Chm. Republican State Com.
FRANK D. CURRIER, Secretary.

The reason why Solomon said, that there was nothing new under the sun, was that he could not buy a good remedy to cure his stubborn cold. Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup had not been compounded then. It has long since proved itself to be the great benefaction of the nineteenth century.

Over $1,000,000 have been spent in New Zealand in the last eight years in efforts to overcome the rabbit plague.

The breath of a chronic catarrh patient is often so offensive that he cannot go into society and he becomes an object of disgust. After a time ulceration sets in, the spongy bones are attacked, and frequently, entirely destroyed. A constant source of discomfort is the dripping of the purulent secretions into the throat, sometimes producing inveterate bronchitis, which in its turn has been the exciting cause of pulmonary disease. The brilliant results which have attended its use for years past properly designate Ely's Cream Balm as by far the best, if not the only real cure for hay fever, rose cold and catarrh.

—A news item says: "Everybody is wearing either the Greek or the Directory bodice in New York." It must look rather odd to see Mr. Dana of the Sun and Mr. Pulitzer of the World going about attired in a Greek or Directory bodice.

THE MOST WONDERFUL FAMILY REMEDY EVER KNOWN.

Paine's Celery Compound

WEAK NERVES

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND is a Nerve Tonic which never fails. Containing Celery and Coca, those wonderful nerve stimulants, it speedily cures all nervous disorders.

RHEUMATISM

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND purifies the blood. It drives out the lactic acid, which causes Rheumatism, and restores the blood-making organs to a healthy condition. It is the true remedy for Rheumatism.

KIDNEY COMPLAINTS

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND quickly restores the liver and kidneys to perfect health. This curative power, combined with its nerve tonics, makes it the best remedy for all kidney complaints.

DYSPEPSIA

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND strengthens the stomach, and quiets the nerves of the dyspeptic organ. This is why it cures even the worse cases of Dyspepsia.

CONSTIPATION

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND is not a cathartic. It is a laxative, giving easy and natural action to the bowels. Regularity surely follows its use.

Recommended by professional and business men. Send for book.

Price $1.00. Sold by Druggists.

ADAMSON'S BOTANIC COUGH BALSAM

More than twenty years ago Adamson's Botanic Balsam was introduced generally throughout New England as a remedy for Coughs, Colds and Pulmonary complaints. Since its introduction it has constantly won its way into public favor, until now it is the universal decision that ADAMSON'S BOTANIC BALSAM is the best remedy for curing Coughs, Colds and Asthma.

Notice—Get Your Full Weight!

THIS CARD is intended to call the attention of every housekeeper in the city of Portsmouth and vicinity. The Spring Cleaning time is drawing near, when every housekeeper will have more or less domestic refuse, such as rags and old rubber, and all kinds of old paper stock, to dispose of; every one wants, and ought to have the best prices of the market, and this can be assured by seeing John O'Brien or his man, as he is about sending out his carts on the different routes and having made a contract with parties to take all his paper stock, he will be able to pay the best prices of any man outside of Boston. If you do not see O'Brien's teams, drop a postal card to "John O'Brien, No. 1 Holmes Court," and prompt attention will be paid to the same.

N. B. Beware of unprincipled men; they will call and weigh your rags, and give you about one-half of what they really weigh. My attention has been called to six different cases of late where parties got rags in that way and the housekeeper took them back again. Weigh all your rags, and catch the dishonest dealer. What I say to one I say to all—"Weigh your rags." Why should you sell your rags for ½ cent when you can get 1 cent per lb. for colored rags, 1½ cents for white, and 3 cents per lb. for your old rubbers. You can get these prices by seeing John O'Brien, cash or trade. If you should enter a grocery store and call for a bag of flour, and found it four or five pounds short, you would think that was not right; and why should you not have your weight in your bag of rags? I say to you again, weigh your rags, for me and for all.

Five negroes, one Indian and one white man were hung at Fort Smith, Ark., April 27th, for various crimes. They were all sentenced by the United States court.

A Great Battle

Is continually going on in the human system. The demon of impure blood strives to gain victory over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave. A good reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla is the weapon with which to defend one's self, drive the desperate enemy from the field, and restore peace and bodily health for many years. Try this peculiar medicine.

A Nebraska bank president is regarded as a typical westerner because at the age of thirteen he drove an ox team across the plains barefoot and friendless; at eighteen he was $10,000 in debt. He is now at the head of one of the largest horse ranches in the west, and worth nearly $1,000,000.

The exhausted and dreary feelings, common to spring time, indicate an impure and sluggish condition of the blood, which may be remedied by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It is the most powerful, and, at the same time, most economical blood purifier known.

Standard Oil.

At Washington, April 26th, State Senator Lewis Emery of Bradford, Penn., testified before the house "trust" investigation committee that practically all the independent oil refineries had been wiped out between 1872 and 1879 by reason of the rebates given the Standard Oil Co. and its predecessor, the Southern Improvement company, by the railroads. The independent competitive refineries in 1872 numbered 250, and only four or five were in existence in 1879. A computation made by witness showed that the Standard had received over $10,000,000 in rebates in seventeen and a half months from the four principal railroads leading from the oil fields. The witness said it was his opinion that the railroad men were interested in these drawbacks, and made hundreds of thousands of dollars a year out of them. "Had they all had their deserts," continued the witness, "they would be in state prison to-day." The witness said there was no valid business reason why these rebates should be given, and it was a gross injustice to the stockholders of the railroads. The amount of rebates given the Standard, he certainly thought, amounted in the aggregate to over $100,000,000, and, had the railroads treated all shippers alike, it was his belief that they would now be in receipt of an annual income of from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 greater than they receive at present. No wonder that Standard Oil was able to buy up the democratic legislature of Ohio, and send itself to the United States senate, labelled Payne.

Notice has been given in the French chamber of deputies of the proposed introduction of a resolution signed by 122 members, representing the necessity of amending the present system of international law, and expressing a particular wish for an understanding between France and the United States, with a view to obtaining a definitive acceptance of the principle of arbitrating among nations.

At the big rabbit drive nine miles from Fresno, Cal., the other day, 2,000 persons were present. Five hundred men and boys formed the line of the drive, and, starting four miles from the corral, slowly swept down to it. The wings were half a mile in length, and the corral proper was seventy-five feet in diameter and inclosed with a wire screen. Into this inclosure were driven and killed 2,000 jack rabbits, and 1,000 others were killed in the drive and outside.

An Enoch Arden romance came to light at Cleveland, Ohio, the other day. A young lady and gentleman of the New England states were married near the close of the rebellion, settled down in a thrifty village, became prosperous and rejoiced in the birth of three children. During the Centennial year the husband started for the Pacific coast in the expectation of speedily amassing a fortune at mining. During the first two years he wrote often and affectionately to his wife. Then his letters became irregular, and in 1881 they ceased altogether. In the meantime the wife removed to Cleveland. Not long after the reception of the last letter she learned on what she deemed good authority that her husband was dead. Six years later she married a Cleveland gentleman. About ten days ago she received a letter from her first husband announcing his accumulation of a fortune. By advice of a lawyer she at once left husband two, and will obtain a divorce from him.

Dr. Horace Bacon, of Biddeford, died Tuesday night, April 24th, aged eighty-four years. He was born in Scarboro, graduated at the Bowdoin medical school in the class of 1826, and practiced medicine in Biddeford fifty-three years. He retired from the profession in 1879, at which time he was the oldest practicing physician in York county. He leaves two sons, Henry M. Bacon, a lawyer in Lowell, Mass., Charles E. Bacon, of Dover, and one daughter, Mrs. Mary Bacon, of Biddeford.

An interesting problem is being solved by Prof. B. T. Washington, of Tuskegee, Ala. Professor Washington is a graduate of the Hampton, Va., Normal and Agricultural Institute, which has done so much for the industrial training of young colored men and women. Some seven years ago he started the Tuskegee Normal school with twenty pupils. Today he has 405 bright young men and women from all parts of the south receiving training in this school. At present there are twelve industries taught in the school. All materials used in building are manufactured on the place by the students. The course of study extends over a period of four years.—Iron Age.

A Famous Doctor

Once said that the secret of good health consisted in keeping the head cool, the feet warm, and the bowels open. Had this eminent physician lived in our day, and known the merits of Ayer's Pills as an aperient, he would certainly have recommended them, as so many of his distinguished successors are doing.

The celebrated Dr. Farnsworth, of Norwich, Conn., recommends Ayer's Pills as the best of all remedies for "Intermittent Fevers."

Dr. I. E. Fowler, of Bridgeport, Conn., says: "Ayer's Pills are highly and universally spoken of by the people about here. I make daily use of them in my practice."

Dr. Mayhew, of New Bedford, Mass., says: "Having prescribed many thousands of Ayer's Pills, in my practice, I can unhesitatingly pronounce them the best cathartic in use."

The Massachusetts State Assayer, Dr. A. A. Hayes, certifies: "I have made a careful analysis of Ayer's Pills. They contain the active principles of well-known drugs, isolated from inert matter, which plan is, chemically speaking, of great importance to their usefulness. It insures activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. Ayer's Pills contain no metallic or mineral substance, but the virtues of vegetable remedies in skillful combination."

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Combines, in a proportion peculiar to itself, the active medicinal properties of the best blood-purifying and strengthening remedies of the vegetable kingdom. It will positively cure—when in the power of medicine—Spring Debility, Headache, Dyspepsia, Catarrh, Salt Rheum, Scrofula, and all Diseases caused by a low state of the blood.

"I suffered three years with blood poison. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and think I am cured." MRS. M. J. DAVIS, Brockport, N. Y.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla beats all others, and is worth its weight in gold." I. BARRINGTON, 130 Bank Street, New York City.

Is so vastly superior to any other sarsaparilla or blood purifier, that one has well said: "Its health-giving effects upon the blood and entire human organism, are as much more positive than the remedies of a quarter or a century ago, as the steampower of to-day is in advance of the slow and laborious drudgery of years ago."

"While suffering from a severe bilious attack in March, 1883, a friend in Peoria, Ill., recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla. I tried the remedy, and was permanently cured." J. A. SHEPARD, travelling agent for Devoe & Co., Fulton Street, N. Y.

Purifies the Blood

"I tried a dozen articles to cleanse my blood, but never found anything that did me any good till I began using Hood's Sarsaparilla." W. H. PEER, Rochester, N. Y.

"My wife was troubled with dizziness and constipation, and her blood has been in a bad order—in fact she has been all run down. Hood's Sarsaparilla is doing her a wonderful amount of good." F. M. BALDWIN, druggist, Blanchester, Ohio.

"I was for five years a sufferer with boils, all run down, and was at one time obliged to give up work. Before taking all of two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, was entirely cured." R. M. LEWIS, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. Took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

GRAND

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

— TO THE —

People of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont.

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co., having completed their purchases for

THIS SPRING'S STOCK,

respectfully request a call from all those interested in the Furnishing and Beautifying their Homes. And we would further request that those near our Bangor Store, located on Union street, opposite the Bangor House, should call on our Manager, MR. A. J. MOREY. And those living on the line of the KNOX & Lincoln R. R., in the vicinity of Rockland, we would respectfully request to call at our Store on Main street, formerly the old Linde Hotel, MR. W. A. KIMBALL, manager. And again, to those who are nearest our Auburn Store, located on Main street, MR. J. J. EMERSON the Manager, will attend to your every want in House Furnishings. And to those living at Kennebunk, Kennebunkport and Old Orchard, and towns adjacent to Biddeford, we would respectfully request them to call at our Store at the Corner of Alfred and Bacon streets, MR. HENRY P. ATKINSON, Manager. While to those who prefer to select from our Mammoth Stock, we would say come to our Store and Headquarters at the

Cor. of Middle and Pearl Streets,

In each of these Stores we carry complete lines of furnishings which we will sell for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. Of course we prefer to make cash sales when we can, but at the same time it has always been our aim and object to satisfy everyone of our customers to the uttermost, whether they wished to buy for cash or otherwise. This is the House Cleaning season of the year. Old Carpets must give place to New, Old Chamber Sets should be replaced by those of later design. Parlor Suits that have been in use for some time are often moved into the sitting room, making room for the new Parlor Suit. That Range that you have been using for many years, perhaps takes more coal to run it to get the desired work from it than a new one would, consequently making you a loss every day. Now we will sell you from the very largest stocks at Lowest Prices than you can buy elsewhere, and we will sell them to you for cash or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. Write for samples.

Chamber Sets

We have an enormous quantity in each of our Stores. Ask your neighbors who have seen them, and they will testify to our almost endless variety, and we will Sell you Cheaper than you can buy elsewhere. We mean what we say, for all cash, quarter cash, or balance by the week or month. Write us for cuts, photographs and prices. Orders through the mail promptly attended to.

Parlor Suits

In all the Stores in Endless Variety, and a stock of 356 full Suits at our Headquarters. Prices from $31 to $400, all cash, or quarter cash, and balance by the week or month. Write us for photographs, cuts and prices.

KITCHEN RANGES

In all our Stores you will find the Quaker, New Tariff and First National, besides a host of others, but to those who wish a good range we recommend the Quaker and the New Tariff; also the First National, for a lower priced one. We have them all the way up to $50, and we sell you a range for cash, or for $10 down and the balance by the week or month. Do not delay ordering. We would rather have the range in your house than in our store house, and let you take your time to pay for it.

Window Shades and Drapery Curtains,

Lace Curtains all prices, kinds, qualities and styles. And everything to completely furnish a House, Hotel, Cottage, Church, Lodge Room or Club Room. Write us for cuts, catalogues and prices. And please do not forget that we handle the

Baldwin Refrigerator and Ice Chests,

besides other makes and kinds, but we prefer to sell the BALDWIN, as it has the Biggest Reputation of any Ice Chest or Refrigerator in the Market.

Write us for Cuts, Catalogues and Prices of this Celebrated Refrigerator, and do not delay buying because hot weather will be upon us, and you will regret it. And please remember that MR. MOREY, manager of the Bangor store; MR. KIMBALL, manager of the Rockland store; MR. EMERSON, manager of the Auburn store; and MR. ATKINSON, manager of the Biddeford store, will each show you a complete line of house furnishings and give you the same terms as would be given at the Headquarters at Portland. All goods will be delivered Freight Prepaid at your depot, and at each one of these stores you will receive the most Honorable Treatment Possible To Give A Customer, whether you wish to buy for cash, or part cash, and the balance on time.

Respectfully,
The Public's Obedient Servants,

The Atkinson House Furnishing COMPANY.

Headquarters Cor. Pearl and Middle Sts., Portland, and Branches as above quoted.

☞ Do not pay long prices when you can buy goods from us and save money. It costs you nothing to look, and very little to write. Consequently it is an easy matter to inform yourself.

Ward Two Caucus.

The Republicans of ward two, including all who propose to support the republican nominations in the coming elections, are hereby notified to meet at the Court House on Court street this Saturday evening, April 28th, to choose delegates to the State and Congressional conventions. PER ORDER.

At Music Hall To-night.

This evening, at Music hall, Miss Maggie Mitchell will play "Ray" to a large audience, this being assured by the large advance sale of tickets. The popular little actress is well known here, but the play has never been presented in this city.

To Housekeepers.

The time of year is at hand when it is customary to take up carpets, clean paint, and thoroughly prepare the house for the summer season. Let us suggest that you sprinkle a small quantity of Preston's Insect Powder under the carpet; it would be a wonderful preventive against moths, and for packing away winter clothing is preferred by many to camphor. Then if you pour a few teaspoonfuls of Preston's Family Amonia in a gallon of water, and clean with this your paint, we are sure you will be gratified with the result.

Death of Henry Lowd.

Mr. Henry Lowd, an estimable and most respected citizen, died at his residence on Pleasant street Friday forenoon, the immediate cause being paralysis, though he had been in feeble health for some years. Mr. Lowd was a gentleman of the old school, and his dignified presence and commanding form has been a notable figure on our streets, for many years. For more than thirty years he was a messenger for the city banks, retaining that position until a few years ago, when feeling the infirmities of age, he tendered his resignation and was succeeded by his son, John H. Lowd, who still fills that responsible position. The kindly old gentleman was well known to all our citizens who have done business here for any considerable length of time, and they will regret to learn of his decease, though of course it was expected. Mr. Lowd's age was eighty-six years. He has long been an attendant on the ministrations of the Unitarian church, and until within a very recent period was rarely missed from his pew, whatever the weather might be.

Base Ball.

The Portsmouth base ball association have rented the field belonging to Mr. Rienzi Ridge, on the corner of South street and Newcastle avenue, and will commence fencing it in to-day. This field ought to make an excellent ground for ball playing, as there is plenty of room for the fielders. Manager Leonard has engaged in addition to the players before mentioned, Cannavan and Murray, first-class players, who were with New England clubs last season, and is now on the "still hunt" for more talent. The first game will be played with the Lynn club, belonging to the New England association, on Thursday, May 10th. The Portsmouths propose to "play ball" for all the game is worth this season.

Dartmouth's first ball game on her own grounds, last Thursday afternoon, resulted far differently than was even hoped for. The Manchesters were the opponents, and made their only two runs in the first inning, through errors of the infielders; they made only three base hits, and two of those were scratches. The Dartmouths scored three runs, and made five base hits, with a total of seven. It was the best pitched game seen in Hanover for years.

The Dover base ballists are going ahead. The Democrat of April 26th says: "A large crew of men went to work yesterday morning on the base ball grounds, and with three teams employed are making great headway in levelling the entire grounds. In some places they find it very wet, and are laying drains for the drawing off the water. They think that by Saturday the ground will be in perfect condition for hardening, and with a dry week the place will be in excellent condition for the practice games that will begin there one week from Monday morning."

On Thursday, April 26th, in Washington, the Bostons beat the home club, nine to two. At Pittsburg, the Chicagos beat the Pittsburgs, nine to one. In New York the Philadelphias were beaten by the home club, eleven to five. In Indianapolis the home club beat the Detroits, eight to three.

The Battle of Gettysburg.

Mr. Editor: Having noticed in the local press that the great Battle of Gettysburg is to be exhibited in Music hall under the auspices of our Grand Army Post, it occurred to me that a few thoughts regarding this great struggle that turned the tide of war in those dark days when our country was distracted with the carnage and tumult of civil strife, might be of interest to those who were too young at that time to remember the lesson then taught, and especially to the children in the schools. This very important incident in our nation's history was participated in by many of the citizens of this city, and we meet them every day; but they like many others builded better than they knew. History, both sacred and secular, is full of the daring deeds of men who lived in the times referred to; but when we take into consideration the weapons of modern warfare, this crash of arms on the field of Gettysburg surpasses them all. Little Round Top, Cemetery hill, and other pivotal points in this most exciting scene are faithfully portrayed by General Mulholland, one of the heroes of that hour. Let all who can succeed in obtaining seats in Music hall on Friday or Saturday evenings, May 11th and 12th, or on Saturday afternoon at the matinee, do so, and decide for themselves if the sentiment that prompted and the sacrifice made, was in keeping with our glorious Union of to-day, and the men worthy sons of those who founded this Great Republic. This is the wish of one of those who had the honor of being, in the first year of the war, a VOLUNTEER.

An Ocean Canoe Trip.

In order to "beat the record" another foolhardy attempt is to be made to cross the Atlantic in a frail bark, this time in a canoe. Mr. William A. Andrews, who with his brother made a trip across the Atlantic in the dory "Nautilus" a few years ago, is now having the canoe constructed. It will be fourteen feet nine inches long, with one mast, a lateen sail, and an iron keel so arragned that in case of capsizing it can immediately be released from the bottom of the boat, precluding all possibility of sinking her. Her sails will be of tan color, so as not to attract whales and other large fish, which are among the most formidable dangers of the undertaking. Her name will be the "Dark Secret," and the skipper intends sailing June 18th. The canoe is being built in Gloucester.

Personal.

Engineer Jones, of Kearsarge fire engine, had the thumb of his right hand caught in the gearing of the engine at the time of the fire on the night of April 26th, and badly injured.

Miss Susie F. Ham has contracted with a leading publishing house to canvass Worcester city and county, Mass., for their publications, for the next six months, on most favorable terms.

Mrs. William Ellis, who has for several weeks been visiting in this city at the home of her brother in-law, Capt. Herman A. Tarlton, leaves for her home in Worcester, Mass., to-day.

Ullie Akerstrom commences a week's engagement at Music hall on Monday, at popular prices. This popular and really excellent actress is under engagement to play a month at the Boston theatre shortly.

The mosquito was around, Friday evening. We do not like the mosquito very well, but we hope he will not be frozen to death any more until next autumn.

The attention of the ladies is invited to the millinery advertisement of Mrs. Tibbets.

The injury to the U. S. S. Swatara's reversing gear has been repaired; it was of a very simple character, and called for no such talk as was created.

Insects in swarms are now to be seen nightly around the electric lights on the streets. Spring, gentle spring, must be here at last. Mighty slow about getting here, though.

The fire alarm in this city on Thursday night was distinctly heard at Rye Center, the number of the box being plainly distinguishable.

Guess it's safe enough to take off your double windows now.

The Dover Navigation Co.'s schooner Jonathan Sawyer, Reynolds master, has been chartered for the season between Philadelphia and Dover with coal.

The streets were dusty enough, Friday, to have justified the appearance of the sprinkling carts.

The Dover Republican recently reported that Mr. Josiah H. Morrison of this city had purchased the Dover Point house and intended erecting on its site a much larger and finer hotel. Mr. Morrison was surprised to learn this, not having been aware of anything of the kind; he is not buying hotels to any extent just now, having all the other business to do which he can attend to.

Ex-Senator Patterson of Hanover has accepted an invitation from the New Hampshire Historical society to deliver an oration June 21st at Concord, on the centennial anniversary of the adoption of the federal constitution by this state.

The annual destruction of the peach crop by frost occurred last Thursday night. The frost was very heavy in the vicinity of Norfolk and Staunton, Va., and did great damage to vegetation.

—She—"I hear that you have lost your valuable little dog, Mr. Sissy." He—"Ya'as, in a railroad accident. I was saved, but the dawg was killed." She (shocked)—"What a pity."

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.

$22 TO $900.

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture in these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS

Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all GRAND & UPRIGHT pianos. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "Mason & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with great increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

Pianos and Organs sold for cash or easy payments; also rented. tiny10

THE JOB PRINTING

Business is conducted in the same office by RICHARD I. WALDEN, who keeps on hand a large and well-selected stock of all materials required in his line. Give him a trial and you will be more than pleased.

Another "Reformer."

When Zachariah Montgomery was nominated by Cleveland for assistant attorney general his record in opposition to the public school system of this country was much criticised. It was made the ground of opposition to his confirmation which at one time threatened to be fatal. Since that time little has been heard of Montgomery's views upon the school question, or of him anyway; but on the evening of April 26th he delivered a lecture in Washington before a Roman Catholic audience, in which he reiterated his peculiar views upon the public schools. He denounced the present American system "as anti-parental, Godless, and destructive of all happiness for time and eternity." Very nice man to have as assistant attorney general of the United States; almost as good as is Pan-Electric Garland for attorney general.

The "Pale Faces"

This is the generic designation of the white race bestowed by our copper-colored brother, the "noble savage." The Caucasian, though many shades lighter, is not necessarily pallid. But when his cuticle has the parchment-colored tint, and his cheeks the hollowness indicative of a want of bodily stamina, he well deserves the appellation of "pale face." These facial indications should suggest a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, an acknowledged rehabilitator of a failing strength and renewer of bodily substance. It is derived exclusively from botanic sources—is pure and efficient. Its invigorating action is prompt, thorough and speedily felt. Can the like be said of most tonics? Scarcely. Appetite, as sequent discomfort, is renewed by it, and it fortifies the system against malaria and rheumatism, and remedies nervousness and Kidney complaints.

Two men who were cleaning out the wheelpit of the Mascoma woollen mill at Lebanon, April 28th, were drowned by the breaking of the head gate, letting the water in on them. Both had families.

As its name proves—it is soothing, pain-allaying and the best on earth—the Hop Plaster.

The French chamber of deputies last week voted urgency for the Panama canal lottery bill.

"A Wonder of Medical Science," may well be applied to Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry. It is nearly half a century since this remarkable remedy was introduced to the public, and yet the immediate and enviable reputation which it gained by its wonderful cures of coughs, influenza, consumption, and all bronchial complaints, is to this day fully sustained.

Two men and two little girls were drowned at Ogden canon, Utah, April 28th, by the capsizing of a boat.

To be free from sick headache, biliousness, constipation, etc., use Carter's Little Liver Pills. Strictly vegetable. They gently stimulate the liver and free the stomach from bile.

There is a curious well in Williamsburg county, South Carolina. It is about twenty feet deep, and the water on one side of it is all the time bubbling up as if boiling. On the other side the water is continually sizzing and popping, as though confined in a hot vessel. The noise can be heard some distance from the well. The water is cold and fine.

The Population of Portsmouth

is about 15,000, and we would say at least one-half are troubled with some affection of the throat and lungs, as those complaints are, according to statistics, more numerous than others. We would advise all our readers not to neglect the opportunity to call on their druggist and get a bottle of Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs. Trial size free. Large bottles 50c and $1. Sold by all druggists. 1my2

A Scientific Benefactor.

If a benefactor be one who "makes two blades of grass grow where but one grew before," he certainly is a benefactor who makes one hour do the service of five or six. And this is precisely what Professor A. Loisette, 237 Fifth Ave., New York, does with his marvelous system of memory development. He makes bad memories good and good ones better. He is a scientific benefactor. Write for his prospectus.

THE LATEST DISCOVERY.

A Prominent Physician Reveals Some New and Startling Secrets.

"Do you know," said Dr. Bodfich, of Boston, at the club, one evening recently, "what the starting point of most physical troubles is?"

"No, indeed," replied a circle of anxious inquirers, as they crowded about the doctor.

"Tea and coffee," answered the eminent physician.

There was a look of horror on the faces of his listeners. The doctor continued:

"Men, and women even more, drink tea and coffee constantly, and wonder why they feel dull and stupid, have headaches, a bad taste in the mouth, pains in the limbs and about the body and irregularity of the secretions. Nine cases out of ten these things are caused by too free a use of tea and coffee. These drinks clog the system, weaken the tissues and destroy the most important organs. Few men or women who indulge in tea and coffee regularly have clear urine, but on the contrary, sediment, scum and brick dust, all of which invariably mean coming disease or death."

"But what are we to do, Doctor? Shall we give up tea and coffee altogether?"

"No. I do not advise that, but regulate it. Keep the kidneys clear and active. There is nothing in the world so good for this as the well known and popular Hunt's Remedy. Any one who uses this medicine regularly can drink tea and coffee moderately without fear. The reason is that Hunt's Remedy flushes or washes out the kidneys, and keeps them free and healthy. Any number of prominent men and women can confirm what I say, among the number scores of doctors and ministers, Gen. Butler, Gen. Monroe and Miss Alcot."

It was plain that the warning and advice of the doctor had made a deep impression on his listeners, as it also should upon the millions of men and women who are shortening their lives by the use of these drinks.

ADAMSON'S

BOTANIC COUGH BALSAM

More than twenty years ago Adamson's Botanic Balsam was introduced generally throughout New England as a remedy for Coughs, Colds and Pulmonary complaints. Since its introduction it has constantly won its way into public favor, until now it is the universal decision that ADAMSON'S BOTANIC BALSAM is the best remedy for curing Coughs, Colds and Asthma.

Republican Conventions.

CONCORD, N. H., March 31st, 1888.

In accordance with the vote passed at the recent meeting of the Republican State Committee, conventions for the choice of delegates to the National Republican Convention at Chicago, on the 19th of June next, will be held as follows:

State Convention, for the choice of four delegates-at-large and four alternates, at White's Opera house, Concord, on Tuesday, May 8th, at eleven A. M.

First Congressional District Convention, for the choice of two delegates and two alternates, at White's Opera house, Concord, on Tuesday, May 8th, at 2 P. M., or immediately upon the adjournment of the State Convention.

Second Congressional District Convention, for the choice of two delegates and two alternates, at Phenix hall, Concord, on Tuesday, May 8th, at 2 P. M., or immediately upon the adjournment of the State Convention.

Classed towns, and such towns and wards as are entitled to pro-rata representation in the General Court, will each send one delegate to the State and District conventions, and all other towns and wards will be entitled to twice as many delegates as they have representatives.

The same delegates may represent their towns and wards in the State and District conventions, if properly accredited thereto, or different sets of delegates may be sent to the State and District conventions.

The caucuses should be notified sufficiently early and in such manner that the voters will know about them and have an opportunity to attend.

It is desirable that all voters, without regard to past political differences, who are now in favor of elevating and dignifying American labor, protecting home industries from ruinous foreign competition, restricting the influence of the saloon, giving free and popular education to the masses of the people, establishing a liberal system of pensions for Union soldiers, extending the commercial interests of the Nation by a liberal system of appropriations to American steamship lines, especially those engaged in the transportation of our foreign mails, securing free suffrage and an honest count of the ballot, and elevating and protecting human rights in every section of our common country, should be invited to participate in these preliminary gatherings, to the end that no voter now in sympathy with the fundamental principles of the Republican party may feel that he has been overlooked or slighted.

Arrangements have been perfected with the railroads of the state for the transportation of the delegates to the several conventions at the uniform rate of two cents per mile each way. Delegates should be careful to call attention to this when they purchase their tickets.

A meeting of the State Committee and delegates will be held in Phenix hall, Concord, on Monday evening, May 7th, at nine o'clock, to arrange the preliminaries for the State Convention of the succeeding day, after which the question of reorganizing the Republican Clubs throughout the State and also the matter of appointing the times and places for holding the usual State, Congressional, Councillor, and County Conventions will be considered.

The floor of the hall will be reserved for delegates exclusively, and the galleries will be open for spectators. Delegates can receive their tickets of admission by presenting their credentials at the rooms of the Concord Republican Club, Merchants' Block, either on Monday evening or Tuesday morning. As the greatest possible care will be observed in issuing tickets, delegates are requested to call for them in person, and at as early an hour as practicable.

Trusting that the Republicans of the State may at once get themselves in readiness for hard work and a glorious victory in the coming campaign, we are, fraternally,

J. H. GALLINGER,
Chm. Republican State Com.
FRANK D. CURRIER, Secretary.

George Dunham was last week hanged in the yard of the Woodbury, N. J., jail, for the murder of his mother-in-law, Barbara Kandla, in November last.

The breath of a chronic catarrh patient is often so offensive that he cannot go into society and he becomes an object of disgust. After a time ulceration sets in, the spongy bones are attacked, and frequently, entirely destroyed. A constant source of discomfort is the dripping of the purulent secretions into the throat, sometimes producing inveterate bronchitis, which in its turn has been the exciting cause of pulmonary disease. The brilliant results which have attended its use for years past properly designate Ely's Cream Balm as by far the best, if not the only real cure for hay fever, rose cold and catarrh.

King John has again opened negotiations for peace between Italy and Abyssinia.

What a Pity

That so many otherwise attractive, polite, and particular people afflict their friends by the foul and disagreeable odor of their breath; it is mainly caused by disordered digestion, and can be corrected by removing the cause, by using that pure medicine, Sulphur Bitters.—Health Magazine.

The members of the Boston Plasterers' union want $4 per day established as the rate of wages. The employers object to paying the price asked.

They make one feel as though life was worth living. Take one of Carter's Little Liver Pills after eating; it will relieve dyspepsia, aid digestion, give tone and vigor to the system.

Parents must remember that children have more need of friendly monitors than of censorious critics; instructors who would advise them to never be without Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, the only pleasant remedy for croup, diphtheria and sore throat.

A Great Battle

Is continually going on in the human system. The demon of impure blood strives to gain victory over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave. A good reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla is the weapon with which to defend one's self, drive the desperate enemy from the field, and restore peace and bodily health for many years. Try this peculiar medicine.

A letter signed by all the physicians of Barlow, Florida, states that there is no yellow fever in the place, nor in the county, and no case has ever occurred there that they know of.

The exhausted and drowsy feelings, common to spring time, indicate an impure and sluggish condition of the blood, which may be remedied by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It is the most powerful, and, at the same time, most economical blood purifier known.

The Manchester Liquor Cases Settled.

The liquor cases at Manchester have been settled by the dealers accepting County Solicitor Wallace's terms, which were that they should each plead nolo contendere in one case of keeping for sale, paying a fine of $50 and costs on that case; secondly, that they should plead nol. con. in one common seller's case and pay a fine of $100 and costs, having a six months' sentence of imprisonment suspended while they keep out of the business; and, finally, that they acknowledge service for a petition for an injunction under the nuisance act and agree that an injunction may issue, waiving all question as to the constitutionality of the law. This arrangement was agreed to by the dealers, and carried out on Saturday morning.

Let Us Have War.

The Cutting case will not down, it seems. This country may yet be obliged to go to war with Mexico about the Paso del Norte editor. Senior Marical, the Mexican minister of foreign affairs, has sent a curt and cutting refusal in reply to Secretary Bayard's demand for indemnity, and it remains to be seen how this country will take it. When Mexico assumes the right to punish American citizens for acts begun, continued and ended in the United States, and then flatly refuses to pay damages, it is time for a little judicious chastisement to be administered. We can probably lick Mexico, even if we do have to back down to Canada.

Masonic Grand Bodies.

The annual sessions of Masonic grand bodies of New Hampshire will be held in Freemason's hall at Concord as follows:

Council of High Priests, Tuesday, May 15th, at half-past seven o'clock in the evening.

Grand Council of Royal and Select Masters, May 14th, at four o'clock in the afternoon; exemplification of work in the evening.

Grand Royal Arch Chapter, Tuesday, May 15th, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon.

Grand Lodge Free and Accepted Masons, Wednesday, May 16th, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon.

Round trip tickets will be sold at reduced rates by the various railroads, good May 14th to 17th, inclusive.

Heroism Recognized.

The fund raised in Boston for Lois M. Royce, the "blizzard" school teacher of Nebraska, now amounts to $1255. Between five and six thousand dollars have been raised for Miss Royce in the region around the scene of her heroism. Some local newspapers have given her the proceeds of their advertising for a certain period, and enterprising tradesmen have given her a share of their profits for a stated time. It will be six months before the sufferer can wear artificial feet.

Papal Disapproval.

The statement that the pope has issued a decree condemning the "plan of campaign" in Ireland is confirmed. His holiness says he does so because he is convinced that the plan of campaign is illegal. He says he is also convinced that the land courts will reduce all unfair rents. The pope condemns boycotting as a practice contrary to justice and charity. The nationalists have determined to continue the plan of campaign in spite of the papal decree. It is asserted that the movement will not suffer much from the necessary defection of the priests, who will undoubtedly continue to sympathize with the people, and that the vacancies can easily be filled with laymen.

A despatch from Rome to the London Times says: "The paper letter has already been sent to the Irish bishops, and will be published about ten days hence. The versions hitherto printed are more or less conjectural. The pope forbids Catholics to adopt the plan of campaign or to engage in boycotting, and enjoins obedience to the laws. Other questions are in abeyance."

Dexter, the famous trotting horse which first made a record of 2:17 1-4, breaking Flora Temple's record, died in Robert Bonner's stable at New York on Sunday morning, April 22d, at the age of thirty years. Mr Bonner bought Dexter in 1867 for the then unheard-of price of $25,000, and with him bought $200,000 worth of free advertising for the New York Ledger.

The Manchester Union calls upon the aspirants for the position of delegate to the republican national convention, to declare themselves, as to whether or no they are for Blaine. As the Union is not recognized as a republican paper, its call will probably not receive an answer from the aspirants aforesaid. But it is safe to assume that they are in no instance opposed to Mr. Blaine, or any other honorable and eminent republican; if they are, they won't go to the convention.

Hereafter the New York aldermen will say what the color of the flag on the city hall shall be, the mayor's veto having been overridden by that distinguished body. Now let's see how the stars and stripes will fare.

Eight attachments of $2000 each were last week recorded at Salem, Mass., by the United States against Charles Kimball of Beverly, in actions of contract, presumably for violation of the law in regard to importing contract labor, as he is one of the owners of the fishing schooner Iolanthe. This is the case where a lot of fishermen from the provinces came to Boston to sail on this vessel, but were sent back home. The Watcheska, which was formerly owned by J. W. Ober of Beverly, who was served with papers a few days ago, was sold by him last February to a man by the name of Walker, of Hingham, and was delivered April 1st, and sailed for that port.

The British legation in Washington have been taught that the horse has some rights in this country which even titled Englishmen must respect. A member of the legislation had his horses' tails docked in the English fashion, and was fined $250, in each case on complaints brought by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

The Alarm, the official organ of the Chicago anarchists, suspended publication April 28th. The alien bummers find it hard work crowding the theories of European criminals down the throats of American working men.

A Montana miner who couldn't pay a debt of $48 offered to let his creditor shoot twice at him with a pistol at a distance of 200 feet. The offer was accepted, and two bullets were planted in the debtor's body, though he was not seriously wounded.

It is Absurd

For people to expect a cure for Indigestion, unless they refrain from eating what is unwholesome; but if anything will sharpen the appetite and give tone to the digestive organs, it is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Thousands all over the land testify to the merits of this medicine.

Mrs. Sarah Burroughs, of 248 Eighth street, South Boston, writes: "My husband has taken Ayer's Sarsaparilla, for Dyspepsia and torpid liver, and has been greatly benefited."

A Confirmed Dyspeptic.

C. Canterbury, of 141 Franklin st., Boston, Mass., writes, that, suffering for years from Indigestion, he was at last induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla and, by its use, was entirely cured.

Mrs. Joseph Aubin, of High street, Holyoke, Mass., suffered for over a year from Dyspepsia, so that she could not eat substantial food, became very weak, and was unable to care for her family. Neither the medicines prescribed by physicians, nor any of the remedies advertised for the cure of Dyspepsia, helped her, until she commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. "Three bottles of this medicine," she writes, "cured me."

That Tired Feeling

When the weather grows warmer, that extreme tired feeling, want of appetite, dullness, languor, and lassitude, afflict almost the entire human family, and scrofula and other diseases caused by humors, manifest themselves with many. It is impossible to throw off this debility and expel humors from the blood without the aid of a reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"I could not sleep, and would get up in the morning with hardly life enough to get out of bed. I had no appetite, and my face would break out with pimples. I bought a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and soon began to sleep soundly; could get up without that tired and languid feeling, and my appetite improved." R. A. SANFORD, Kent, O.

"I had been much troubled by general debility. Last spring Hood's Sarsaparilla proved just the thing needed. I derived an immense amount of benefit. I never felt better." H. F. MILLER, Boston, Mass.

At no other season is the system so susceptible to the beneficial effects of a reliable tonic and invigorant. The impure state of the blood, the deranged digestion, and the weak condition of the body, caused by its long battle with the cold, wintry blasts, all call for the reviving, regulating and restoring influences so happily and effectively combined in Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla did me a great deal of good. I had no particular disease, but was tired out from overwork, and it toned me up." MRS. G. E. SIMMONS, Cohoes, N. Y.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"For seven years, spring and fall, I had scrofulous sores come out on my legs, and for two years was not free from them at all. I suffered very much. Last May I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and before I had taken two bottles, the sores healed and the humor left me." C. A. ARNOLD, Arnold, Me.

"There is no blood purifier equal to Hood's Sarsaparilla." E. S. PHELPS, Rochester, N.Y.

Republican Delegates.

The republicans of ward three held their caucus on Friday evening in the Spalding schoolhouse, and elected delegates to the state and first district congressional conventions as follows:

State—Joseph J. Wain, Frank E. H. Marden;

District—Harry B. Drew, Charles H. Hayes.

The delegations from each ward were empowered to fill vacancies.

At the republican caucus of ward two, held in the court house Saturday evening, convention delegates were chosen as follows:

State—Aaron Young, Charles P. Berry, Wm. G. Billings, Wm. A. Hodgdon, Stephen L. Marston, Charles H. Joy.

Congressional—Edgar M. Jewett, Myers Dempsey, Henry O. Batten, Charles F. Abbott, Herman W. Oxford, John L. Randall.

Wrathful Passengers.

Some of the Patriarchs Militant of this city and Dover, who went to Manchester to take part in the celebration there on April 26th, got left over at Raymond on the way from Manchester to this city on the morning of the 27th, and were pretty mad about it. We don't blame them. We know nothing of the circumstances, but whatever they may have been, the passenger who is left, through no fault of his own, to pass several weary hours at a station ten miles from nowhere waiting for the next train, is justified in getting mad way through. On Saturday, the 28th, the following protest was sent to the president and directors of the Concord & Portsmouth railroad:

Sirs—The undersigned passengers on the 8:30 A. M. train from Manchester to Portsmouth, April 27th, 1888, most earnestly protest against the uncalled-for and dangerous action of the conductor of that train, while at the Raymond station of your road, by which action a number of highly respectable patrons were not only seemingly willfully and purposely left at the latter station, but many lives were endangered by starting the train before any warning whatever was given either by the conductor or by the ringing of the locomotive bell.

This formidable arraignment was signed by David Urch, Albert R. Junkins, Albert E. Rand, W. E. Pinder, John A. Peterson, C. W. Taylor, Chas. H Clough, Albert C. Plummer, Jas. G. Preble, C. D. Usinger, Wm. E. Palmer and Harry S. Freeman of Portsmouth, and by A. T. Pierce, S. H. Goodnow, J. W. Foss, F. E. Rollins, W. H. Tebbetts, Harris M. Shaw, John F. Felker, John S. Stackpole, O. R. Clark, L. W. Tucker, James Brown, O. W. Coleman, T. A. Thompson and A. S. Bradeen of Dover.

A new pole for the electric light at the foot of Daniel street was hauled there last week, and will soon be put in place. It is nine feet longer than the one now there, and will be located close to the northwest corner of Broughton's wharf store, where its light will shine for the navy yard steamer as well as for the Mystic.

At Music Hall To-night.

This evening, in Music hall, Ullie Akerstrom and her dramatic company will present, for the first time in this city, Miss Akerstrom's new comedy-drama, "Renah, the Gypsy's Daughter." Miss Akerstrom needs no introduction here. Tickets at Goodrich's, at popular prices.

"The Wicked Flee" Etc.

The Dover Democrat says one of the liquor dealers of that city whose place is within a stone's throw of the city hall, on Thursday of last week had just housed a half barrel of ale in his place and was ready for business, when he was called to the door by a friend, and while there saw Rev. F. K. Chase go into lawyer Kivel's office. Mr Chase is the principal worker in the recent anti-liquor crusade in Dover, and the Democrat says "it took just one minute to have all that half-barrel of ale running down the sink spout."

Base Ball.

J. Rudderham, who last season played with the St. Albans, Vt., team, will play 2d base for the Portsmouths this season. J. Conners, the pitcher of Danversport, Mass., will be given a trial.

Work on the grounds of the Portsmouth club at the junction of South and Newcastle streets will be commenced today.

The Manchester club beat the Dartmouth college club, 7 to 3, on April 27th; and on the 28th beat the Portland club, 4 to 2, at Manchester, the New England League games commencing that day. The other victors in the league were the Lynns, who defeated the Salems, 8 to 4, in Lynn, and the Worcesters, who defeated the Lowells, 9 to 4, at Worcester.

National League games, April 27th: Boston 4, Washington 2, at Washington; New York 2, Philadelphia 1, at New York; Indianapolis 16, Detroit 7, at Indianapolis; Chicago 7, Pittsburg 2, at Pittsburg.

National League record, April 28th: At Washington, the Bostons beat the Washingtons and the umpire, 4 to 3; Detroit 1, Indianapolis 0, at Indianapolis; New York 14, Philadelphia 1, at New York; Pittsburg 7, Chicago 4, at Pittsburg.

Personal.

Miss Marion Fendall of this city is visiting the family of Mr. John Magruder in Annapolis, Md.

Miss Miller, matron of the Cottage Hospital, has been compelled by failing health to resign that position, and leaves this week for South California, to recuperate.

Mr. Charles C. B. Loeser, for several years past clerk at the Kearsarge house in this city, will sever his connection with that hotel on May 7th, and go west for his health.

Mr. George H. Young of Exeter has been appointed railway postal clerk on the Portland & Ogdensburg railroad, in place of W. H. Gorman of Dover, resigned.

Mr. Edward C. Stickney, the champion dumb-bell lifter, arrived in town Saturday for a brief stay before going on a professional trip through Maine and New Hampshire.

The naval retiring board has recommended the retirement of Naval Constructor Thomas E. Webb, whose health has broken down; his retirement will promote Naval Constructor William L. Mintonye, now stationed at the Portsmouth navy yard, to the relative rank of commander.

The Army and Navy Journal of last week says: "In the case of First Lieutenant Christopher W. Harrold, 3d Artillery, recently argued, the court of claims decides that an officer detailed to light battery duty is entitled to mounted pay from the date of the order of detail. This overrules the absurd decision of the accounting officers of the treasury that the mounted pay is not due until the battery is fully equipped." Lieut. Harrold is a native of this city, and well known to the older citizens; his war record was of the best, and that he is a gentleman of good sense is shown by the fact that he has been for twenty years a subscriber to the New Hampshire Gazette.

Maritime Notes.

The brick schooners Triton, Clara B. Kennard, Hattie Lewis, J. Chester Wood and Lillie sailed from this port for Boston on Saturday.

It has been reported to the navy department that the repairs to the U. S. S. Constellation, at this navy yard, will be finished by May 15th, and that she will be ready to sail for Annapolis on that date.

Orders have been received at the navy yard to have the Kearsarge fitted for sea by the 30th of June, and the various departments are driving work as fast as possible in the endeavor to obey the order, which they will find it hard work to do.

Instead of the old-style steam launch originally assigned to the U. S. S. Swatara, she takes out a new Herreshoff launch.

Market square was really a market place on Saturday, several loads of hay and wood, a load of young trees, several pigs, a cow, carriages, baskets and other articles being offered for sale there, and sold.

The ladies having in charge the management of the entertainment in Franklin theatre and hall to-morrow evening in aid of the Children's Home, will be glad to receive contributions of cake at the hall in the afternoon.

Maggie Mitchell had a large and refined audience at Music hall on Saturday evening, when she presented for the first time in this city her new play "Ray." The play is well suited to her, was finely performed, and gave much satisfaction.

The Hotel Wentworth, Newcastle, is being fitted with a large number of fire escapes.

The house carpenters of this city last week agreed to knock off work at five o'clock P. M. on Saturdays hereafter, commencing next Saturday.

Lewis E. Staples offers for this week the bargain of the season. One case all wool fancy mix dress goods at 33cts. These goods have never been sold for less than fifty cents.

Rev. Mr. Wood, bible distributor of New Hampshire, will be in this city during the month of May, commencing this week, and will call on every family. He will have both the King James and revised versions, and will sell or give a bible to every family not having one, but desiring to have one.

Enthusiastic if not law abiding boys, to the number of a dozen or more, were swimming in the ponds in the old gravel pit on South street, Saturday afternoon.

Quite a bank of ice yet remains on the southerly side of State street, east of Washington street.

The Concord railroad last week put on the rails a new locomotive, named Anson S. Marshall.

The Newmarket Advertiser says: "In all probability Rev. D. W. C. Durgin will be settled as pastor of the Free Baptist church here. Mr. Durgin was pastor of this church several years, some fifteen years ago, and was universally liked. The church will no doubt greatly prosper under his ministrations."

The sprinkling carts were out on the streets Saturday.

There was much lightning far away to the north and east on Sunday night from eight to ten o'clock; the shower was so far off the thunder could not be heard in this city, but the telephone was somewhat affected. There were several light showers later at night.

—"How doth the little busy b"—and the rest of it is "urglar"—improve each nightly minute, by gently gliding through the house and taking all that's in it."

The pleasant weather of last week has put the suburban roads in good condition, in very pleasant contrast to what they have been since early in March.

The parish meeting of the Unitarian society will be held this afternoon in the church at 4:15 o'clock.

The Dover point bridge was opened to public travel on Sunday, after being closed nearly eleven weeeks.

The grass took a grand start, and the buds on the trees swelled noticeably, during the warm days at the end of last week.

Sagamore bridge was visited by scores of pedestrians on Sunday.

An exceedingly neat roster of the Department of New Hampshire, G. A. R., for 1888, has been issued. It was printed at the office of the Veteran's Advocate, Concord.

The old brick schoolhouse in Seabrook, built in 1818, has been torn down to make room for a new school building which will contain primary and grammar departments.

Mrs. Orrin Kimball of Newmarket attempted suicide, Wednesday morning of last week, by cutting her throat with a shoe knife, and made a gash four inches long, but without reaching a vital part.

Senator Chandler introduced a bill in the senate last week providing for a suitable recognition of the merits and services of Chief Engineer Melville and others of the Jeannette expedition. It provides for the advancement of Melville one grade, and the presentation of medals to the survivors and the heirs of the dead.

The prince of Wales is always accompanied by two detectives. They dress as gentlemen and are over at his heels. At the theatre they sit at the back of his box, at the races they stand just behind him, and it is their business never to have him out of their sight.

Rasdale Wilcox, of Savannah, Ga., son of an ex-state senator, was married recently to Miss Janie Clark, a school girl. At the time of the wedding a mutual agreement was entered into between the young couple that in order for the bride to complete her education they would not live together, as man and wife, until four years should have elapsed.

PRESERVE YOUR COMPLEXION.

THE combination of the Oils and Alkali (Soda) must be complete to form a perfect or true soap, such as will not burn, or redden and irritate the skin. The IVORY SOAP is $99\frac{44}{100}$ % pure, which insures its being perfectly harmless, and will leave the skin clear, white and velvety.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory'!" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and indispensable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

TO HOUSEKEEPERS.

The time of year is at hand when it is customary to take up carpets, clean paint, and thoroughly prepare the house for the summer season. Let us suggest that you sprinkle a small quantity of

PRESTON'S INSECT POWDER

Under the carpet; it would be a wonderful preventive against moths, and for packing away winter clothing is preferred by many to camphor. Then if you pour a few teaspoonfuls of

PRESTON'S FAMILY AMMONIA

Into a gallon of water, and clean with this your paint, we are sure you will be gratified with the result.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS,

$22 TO $900.

The cadinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequaled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS,

Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all GRAND & UPRIGHT, others. They receive the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority, that they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO OVERSTRUNG," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

Pianos and Organs sold for cash or easy payments; also rented. tmy10

GRAND SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

— TO THE —

People of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont.

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co., having completed their purchases for

THIS SPRING'S STOCK,

respectfully request a call from all those interested in the Furnishing and Beautifying their Homes. And we would further request that those near our Bangor Store, located on Union street, opposite the Bangor House, should call on our Manager, MR. A. J. MOREY. And those living on the line of the Knox & Lincoln R. R., in the vicinity of Rockland, we would respectfully request to call at our Store on Main street, formerly the old Linde Hotel, MR. W. A. KIMBALL, manager. And again, to those who are near-est our Auburn Store, located on Main street, MR. J. J. EMERSON the Manager, will attend to your every want in House Furnishings. And to those living at Kennebunk, Kennebunkport and Old Orchard, and towns adjacent to Biddeford, we would respectfully request them to call at our Store at the Corner of Alfred and Bacon streets, MR. HENRY P. ATKINSON, Manager. While to those who prefer to select from our Mammoth Stock, we would say come to our Store and Headquarters at the

Cor. of Middle and Pearl Streets.

In each of these Stores we carry complete lines of furnishings which we will sell for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. Of course we prefer to make cash sales when we can, but at the same time it has always been our aim and object to satisfy everyone of our customers to the uttermost, whether they wished to buy for cash or otherwise. This is the House Cleaning season of the year. Old Carpets must give place to New, Old Chamber Sets should be replaced by those of later design. Parlor Suits that have been in use for some time are often moved into the sitting room, making room for the new Parlor Suit. That Range that you have been using for many years, perhaps takes more coal to run it to get the desired work from it than a new one would, consequently making you a loss every day. Now we will sell you from the very largest stocks at Lowest Prices than you can buy elsewhere, and we will sell them to you for cash or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. Write for samples.

CARPETS,

Chamber Sets

We have an enormous quantity in each of our Stores. Ask your neighbors who have seen them, and they will testify to our almost endless variety, and we will Sell you Cheaper than you can buy elsewhere. We mean what we say, for all cash, quarter cash, or balance by the week or month. Write us for cuts, photographs and prices. Orders through the mail promptly attended to.

Parlor Suits

In all the Stores in Endless Variety, and a stock of 356 full Suits at our Headquarters. Prices from $31 to $400, all cash, or quarter cash, and balance by the week or month. Write us for photographs, cuts and prices.

KITCHEN RANGES

In all our Stores you will find the Quaker, New Tariff and First National, besides a host of others, but to those who wish a good range we recommend the Quaker and the New Tariff; also the First National, for a lower priced one. We have them all the way up to $50, and we sell you a range for cash, or for $10 down and the balance by the week or month. Do not delay ordering. We would rather have the range in your house than in our store house, and let you take your time to pay for it.

Window Shades and Drapery Curtains.

Lace Curtains all prices, kinds, qualities and styles. And everything to completely furnish a House, Hotel, Cottage, Church, Lodge Room or Club Room. Write us for cuts, catalogues and prices. And please do not forget that we handle the

Baldwin Refrigerator and Ice Chests,

besides other makes and kinds, but we prefer to sell the BALDWIN, as it has the Biggest Reputation of any Ice Chest or Refrigerator in the Market.

Write us for Cuts, Catalogues and Prices of this Celebrated Refrigerator, and do not delay buying because hot weather will be upon us, and you will regret it. and please remember that MR. MOREY, manager of the Bangor store; MR. KIMBALL, manager of the Rockland store; MR. EMERSON, manager of the Auburn store; and MR. ATKINSON, manager of the Biddeford store, will each show you a complete line of house furnishings and give you the same terms as would be given at the Headquarters at Portland. All goods will be delivered Freight Prepaid at your depot, and at each one of these stores you will receive the most Honorable Treatment Possible To Give A Customer, whether you wish to buy for cash, or part cash, and the balance on time.

Respectfully,
The Public's Obedient Servants,

The Atkinson
House Furnishing COMPANY.

Headquarters Cor. Pearl and Middle Sts., Portland, and Branches as above quoted.

☞ Do not pay long prices when you can buy goods cheaper and save money. It costs you nothing to look, and very little to write. Consequently it is an easy matter to inform yourself.

ISAAC C. ATKINSON, Gen. Manager.

NEW BUSINESS CENTERS.—The building of railroads in a new and fertile country creates many new towns, affording excellent business opportunities. Particulars regarding such opportunities in Montana, Minnesota and Dakota will be sent upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

STOCK IN MINNESOTA.—From an exclusive grain country, Minnesota is being rapidly transformed into the finest stock and dairy state in the Union. Cheap lands still obtainable, convenient to railroad. Particulars free upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

SUCCESS. Are you mortgaged, paying heavy rent, or enduring hot, stuffy work in cities? Excellent farms, cheap, which will increase in value several fold in five years. No other such opportunities existing. Full particulars, free, upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

FAILURE OF CROPS is an unknown experience in Central and Northern Dakota and Minnesota. Maps and full particulars regarding lands, prices, etc., sent free. Address C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

PROSPEROUS North Dakota never had better crops than those just harvested. Many opportunities to secure fine Government lands recently surveyed, near excellent coal fields and adjacent to railroad. Maps and full particulars, free, upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

WHY WORK FOR ANOTHER, or on small farm? Why continue working on a worn-out farm? Why try to secure a living from such high-priced or heavily mortgaged farms? Why work on rented land? Why not start for yourself? Why not secure at once some of the low-priced but very fertile and well located lands adjacent to railroads now to be obtained by those going to Northern Dakota and Minnesota, where you can make a larger net profit per acre than on the high-priced or worn-out land you now occupy? Why not go and look the situation over, and see for yourself, or at least obtain further information, which will be sent free. If you will address C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn. ?

THE JOB PRINTING

Business is conducted in the same office by RICHARD I. WALDEN, who keeps on hand a large and well-selected stock of all materials required in his line. Give him a trial and you will be more than pleased.

What a Pity

That so many otherwise attractive, polite, and particular people afflict their friends by the foul and disagreeable odor of their breath; it is mainly caused by disordered digestion, and can be corrected by removing the cause, by using that pure medicine, Sulphur Bitters.—Health Magazine.

William H. Hawley, who shot Virgil E. Barnum, has been released from the county jail at Danbury, Conn., where he had been confined. The bond of $25,000 demanded for his appearance May 4th, was filed late Thursday night, several prominent business men in town being his bondsmen. The case has assumed a new phase, as evidence is alleged to have been found which will prove that the shooting was done in self-defence.

Delicate Children, Nursing

Mothers, overworked men and for all diseases where the tissues are wasting away from the inability to digest food, or from overwork; should take Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites. "I used the Emulsion on a lady who was delicate. It put her in such good health and flesh, that I must say it is the best Emulsion."—L. P. Waddell, M. D., Hugh's Mills, S. C.

The autopsy on the body of "Red" Leary, the New York burglar, revealed the fragment of a bullet imbedded in the front part of his skull. In the doctor's opinion the bullet had been there for twenty years.

Weak lungs are soothed and strengthened by wearing a Hop Plaster. Never fails to do good.

John Howard of Dover is in jail for beating Mark Whitehouse with an ox-goad so that he will probably die. The men were going toward the county farm together, both being drunk, and Howard charged Whitehouse with too a great intimacy with Mrs. Howard, and fight ensued.

We think we can cure a bad case of backache quicker with one of Carter's Smart Weed and Belladonna Backache Plasters, than by any other application, and after the backache is cured, you can still wear the plaster without discomfort for two or three weeks, or longer. This combination of Smart Weed and Belladonna is a great hit, and it is hard to find any pain or ache that will not yield to it. Price 25 cents. Sold by druggists everywhere.

Dr. Barnum, the attending physician of W. H. Hawley, who shot his brother-in-law, Virgil E. Barnum, has very little hope of his patient's recovery. Mr. Hawley, who is suffering from the effects of a blow on the side of his head inflicted by Barnum and also from nervous prostration, has had a relapse and has been failing rapidly.

Every one should remember that by the loss of health, enjoyment and happiness soon follow. Check the slightest cough or cold by using Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam, according to the directions printed upon the label of the bottle.

The Gatling Gun company, with a capital of £800,000, subscribed in London, has been formed with the object of transacting business in the eastern hemisphere.

Ayer's Pills are the best cathartic for correcting irregularities of the stomach and bowels. Gentle, yet thorough in their action, they cure constipation, stimulate the appetite and digestive organs, and strengthen the system.

A clerk in a drug store at Hopedale, Mass., for a practical joke, gave a six-year old boy named Lapworth a bottle of ammonia instead of a sample bottle of cough medicine which the boy wanted. The little fellow at once took a swallow, no one in the store taking a hand to prevent him. His mouth and throat were terribly burned. His father threatens prosecution.

Not one in twenty are free from some little ailments caused by inaction of the liver. Use Carter's Little Liver Pills. The result will be a pleasant surprise. They give positive relief.

THE LATEST DISCOVERY.

A Prominent Physician Reveals Some New and Startling Secrets.

"Do you know," said Dr. Bodkich, of Boston, at the club, one evening recently, "what the starting point of most physical troubles is?"

"No, indeed," replied a circle of anxious enquirers, as they crowded about the doctor.

"Tea and coffee," answered the eminent physician.

There was a look of horror on the faces of his listeners. The doctor continued:

"Men, and women even more, drink tea and coffee constantly, and wonder why they feel dull and stupid, have headaches, a bad taste in the mouth, pains in the limbs and about the body and irregularity of the secretions. Nine cases out of ten these things are caused by too free a use of tea and coffee. These drinks clog the system, weaken the tissues and destroy the most important organs. Few men or women who indulge in tea and coffee regularly have clear urine, but on the contrary, sediment, scum and brick dust, all of which invariably mean coming disease or death."

"But what are we to do, Doctor? Shall we give up tea and coffee altogether?"

"No. I do not advise that, but regulate it. Keep the kidneys clear and active. There is nothing in the world so good for this as the well known and popular Hunt's Remedy. Any one who uses this medicine regularly can drink tea and coffee moderately without fear. The reason is that Hunt's Remedy flushes or washes out the kidneys, and keeps them free and healthy. Any number of prominent men and women can confirm what I say, among the number scores of doctors and ministers, Gen. Butler, Gen. Monroe and Miss Alcot."

It was plain that the warning and advice of the doctor had made a deep impression on his listeners, as it also should upon the millions of men and women who are shortening their lives by the use of these drinks.

COUGH BALSAM

More than twenty years ago Adamson's Botanic Balsam was introduced generally throughout New England as a remedy for Coughs, Colds and Pulmonary complaints. Since its introduction it has constantly won its way into public favor, until now it is the universal decision that ADAMSON'S BOTANIC BALSAM is the best remedy for curing Coughs, Colds and Asthma.

THE WIND.

I saw you toss the kites on high
And blow the birds about the sky;
And all around I heard you pass,
Like ladies' skirts across the grass—
O wind, a blowing all day long,
O wind, that sings so loud a song!

I saw the different things you did,
But always you yourself you hid.
I felt you push, I heard you call
I could not see yourself at all—
O wind, a blowing all day long,
O wind, that sings so loud a song!

O, you, that are so strong and cold,
O blower, are you young or old?
Are you a beast of field and tree,
Or just a stronger child than me?
O wind, a blowing all day long,
O wind, that sings so loud a song!

—Robert Louis Stevenson.

The Good Which Rats Do.

Though the rat is a despised animal, yet he is a useful servant to man, for the animal lives in and near human habitations and eats every particle of refuse and filth that he can get at. He is the only animal which can thrive and keep a clean coat in the most filthy localities, where the air would be fatal to any other creature. Rats are almost incessantly licking their fur to keep it clean and, though they doubtless become a nuisance in many instances and places, yet they after all perform great service for mankind, especially in cities, by cleaning up every edible thing that would eventually become a source of noisome odors and of disease.—Good Housekeeping.

A Strange Malady.

Legrand writes on "Narcolepsy" in the current number of The France Medicale. This consists in sudden attacks of deep sleep lasting some minutes; not days like a trance or seconds like petit mal. Moreover, the condition is one apparently of simple sleep, from which the patient may easily be aroused. Brain congestion resulting from deficient heart action, gastric troubles or derangements of the liver, and such diseases as gout, diabetes and rheumatism, are some of its associations. The fat boy Joe of the "Pickwick Papers" will occur to the reader as a typical case of narcolepsy, associated with "gastric trouble."—Paris Figaro.

Symbol of the Sun.

"Nature" gives us a curious explanation of the flat pieces of iron, five or six inches long and shaped like a letter S, which are occasionally seen on the walls of old brick houses. This is said to be an ancient symbol of the sun. They say in rural parts of England that it protects the house from fire. The same sign was on old official seals in Sicily and the Isle of Man and elsewhere. You may even trace it back to Asia, and to an era before history. The curious part of it is that such habits should so long survive the superstition, and Asiatic myths be written on Yankee walls.—Globe-Democrat.

A Cheap Battery.

The Electrical World mentions a cheap and effective battery made by dissolving common soap in boiling water and adding to it small amounts of bran and caustic potash of soda. This mixture, while warm, is poured into a jar containing a large carbon pole and an amalgamated zinc rod. When cold the battery "sets" after the manner of a jelly, and consequently will not readily evaporate or spill over.—St. Louis Republican.

For Testing the Eyesight.

The "opsiometer" is a new instrument for testing the eyesight. It consists of a mahogany case with two front eyeholes, behind which are two traveling bands mounted on rollers. These bands have holes in which different lenses are fitted, and the person whose sight is to be tested looks through the holes and lenses at printed matter behind.—Public Opinion.

How to Pronounce "Goethe."

It is said that the literary people of Chicago are divided into three hostile camps over the question how Goethe's name should be pronounced. One faction says it should rhyme with "teeth," another maintains that it should rhyme with "dirty," while still another asserts that it should rhyme with "eighty."—New York Tribune.

Pure Water for Plants.

Persons whose plants mysteriously sicken and die are warned by Dr. J. W. L. Leudicum, in a communication to the London Society of Arts, that only pure water must be used in watering them. Impure water breeds a sort of fungus at the roots, which soon destroys them.—Chicago Times.

The Name "Assassins."

The name assassins was applied to a tribe or clan called Ismaelians, who settled in the mountains of Lebanon about 1090 and became notorious for their muderous propensities; hence the origin of the name as applied to murderers.—Boston Budget.

Silk for Steam Pipes.

Careful experiments have shown that waste silk is the most effective of all non-conducting coverings for steam pipes, and the demand for this purpose promises to be great, notwithstanding the high price.—Arkansaw Traveler.

When Chased by Bloodhounds.

If you are ever chased by bloodhounds it may be well to know that sheets of tissue paper placed on the ground under the feet and then removed, carry with them every trace of the scent.—New York Sun.

GRAND
SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT
— TO THE —
People of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont.

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co., having completed their purchases for

THIS SPRING'S STOCK,

respectfully request a call from all those interested in the Furnishing and Beautifying their Homes. And we would further request that those near our Bangor Store, located on Union street, opposite the Bangor House, should call on our Manager, MR. A. J. MOREY. And those living on the line of the Knox & Lincoln R. R., in the vicinity of Rockland, we would respectfully request to call at our Store on Main street, formerly the old Linde Hotel, MR. W. A. KIMBALL, manager. And again, to those who are nearest our Auburn Store, located on Main street, MR. J. J. EMERSON the Manager, will attend to your every want in House Furnishings. And to those living at Kennebunk, Kennebunkport and Old Orchard, and towns adjacent to Biddeford, we would respectfully request them to call at our Store at the Corner of Alfred and Bacon streets, MR. HENRY P. ATKINSON, Manager. While to those who prefer to select from our Mammoth Stock, we would say come to our Store and Headquarters at the

Cor. of Middle and Pearl Streets.

In each of these Stores we carry complete lines of furnishings which we will sell for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. Of course we prefer to make cash sales when we can, but at the same time it has always been our aim and object to satisfy everyone of our customers to the uttermost, whether they wished to buy for cash or otherwise. This is the House Cleaning season of the year. Old Carpets must give place to New, Old Chamber Sets should be replaced by those of later design. Parlor Suits that have been in use for some time are often moved into the sitting room, making room for the new Parlor Suit. That Range that you have been using for many years, perhaps takes more coal to run it to get the desired work from it than a new one would, consequently making you a loss every day. Now we will sell you from the very largest stocks at Lowest Prices than you can buy elsewhere, and we will sell them to you for cash or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. Write for samples.

CARPETS,

Chamber Sets

We have an enormous quantity in each of our Stores. Ask your neighbors who have seen them, and they will testify to our almost endless variety, and we will Sell you Cheaper than you can buy elsewhere. We mean what we say, for all cash, quarter cash, or balance by the week or month. Write us for cuts, photographs and prices. Orders through the mail promptly attended to.

Parlor Suits

In all the Stores in Endless Variety, and a stock of 356 full Suits at our Headquarters. Prices from $31 to $400, all cash, or quarter cash, and balance by the week or month. Write us for photographs, cuts and prices.

KITCHEN RANGES

In all our Stores you will find the Quaker, New Tariff and First National, besides a host of others, but to those who wish a good range we recommend the Quaker and the New Tariff; also the First National, for a lower priced one. We have them all the way up to $50, and we sell you a range for cash, or for $10 down and the balance by the week or month. Do not delay ordering. We would rather have the range in your house than in our store house, and let you take your time to pay for it.

Window Shades and Drapery Curtains.

Write us for Cuts, Catalogues and Prices of this Celebrated Refrigerator, and do not delay buying because hot weather will be upon us, and you will regret it. And please remember that MR. MOREY, manager of the Bangor store; MR. KIMBALL, manager of the Rockland store; MR. EMERSON, manager of the Auburn store; and MR. ATKINSON, manager of the Biddeford store, will each show you a complete line of house furnishings and give you the same terms as would be given at the Headquarters at Portland. All goods will be delivered Freight Prepaid at your depot, and at each one of these stores you will receive the most Honorable Treatment Possible To Give A Customer, whether you wish to buy for cash, or part cash, and the balance on time.

Respectfully,
The Public's Obedient Servants,
The Atkinson House Furnishing COMPANY.
Headquarters Cor. Pearl and Middle Sts., Portland, and Branches as above quoted.

☞ Do not pay long prices when you can buy goods from us and save money. It costs you nothing to look, and very little to write. Consequently it is as easy matter to inform yourself.

ISAAC C. ATKINSON, Gen. Manager.

Herbert Spencer says, that a man's conversation is a sure index to his mental capacity; we therefore account for the numerous flattering commendations made by our most learned men of the merits of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

The president on April 30th nominated Mellville W. Fuller, of Illinois, to be chief justice of the United States.

I have been a sufferer from catarrh for the past eight years. Having tried a number of remedies advertised as "sure cures" without obtaining any relief, I had resolved never to take any other patient medicines, when a friend advised me to try Ely's Cream Balm. I did so with great reluctance, but can testify with great pleasure that after using it for six weeks I believed myself cured. It is a most agreeable remedy—an invaluable Balm.—Joseph Stewart, 624 Grand Ave., Brooklyn.

Owing to a lack of enthusiasm among Canadian yachtsmen, the scheme to build a yacht at St. John to compete for the America's cup is likely to fail through.

Ingalls' Mandrake Compound is the best and surest remedy in every case where a low or impure state of the blood has induced Liver, Kidney or stomach troubles.

Albert W. Hedberg, one of the new firemen of the Burlington railroad, killed a striking engineer named Newell and badly wounded another named Cable, in Galesburg, Ill., April 28th. Hedberg claims to have acted in self-defence.

A Great Battle

Is continually going on in the human system. The demon of impure blood strives to gain victory over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave. A good reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla is the weapon with which to defend one's self, drive the desperate enemy from the field, and restore peace and bodily health for many years. Try this peculiar medicine.

Mrs. Jennie Thorne, a good actress of comedy parts, and the wife and supporting actress of Edwin F. Thorne, the star of "The Black Flag" company, died suddenly in Washington, Thursday. Her first husband was Mr. Murdock, who wrote the successful play "Davy Crockett" and then wrote the comedy "The Bohemians."

That feeling of weariness, so often experienced in the spring, results from a sluggish condition of the blood which, being impure, does not quicken with the changing season. Ayer's Sarsaparilla, by vitalizing and cleansing the blood, strengthens and invigorates the system.

The Carpenters' Union at Owassa, Mich., has undertaken the novel scheme of appointing five contractors to take jobs for the union men, the members to work by the day, and the contractors to receive only twenty-five per cent. more wages than the men.

Apply a Hop Plaster and experience its soothing, stimulating and pain-killing properties.

Father Chiniquy, who was invited by the Y. M. C. A. and clergymen of Biddeford to visit that city, after Rev. Dr. Fulton's departure last fall, on Sunday last began a course of lectures against Roman Catholicism, the hall being filled at each service. Admission was by ticket, and no disturbance occurred.

Benj. W. Patton, of Globe Village, Mass., says: "Having sold Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry for many years, and used it in my family with the most satisfactory results, I can with confidence say that in my estimation it is the best remedy in the market for coughs, colds and throat and lung diseases."

Fires, Floods, Earthquakes, Suicides, Robberies.

Mrs. John Mahl, aged sixty-five years, was sitting on her doorstep at Brunswick, Me., watching a bonfire in her front yard, when some leaves blew under her dress. Her clothing caught fire and she was severely burned. It is not expected that she will recover.

Mrs. Sarah Haslitt, aged fifty, a widow lady, residing in South Meriden, Conn., was fatally burned by a bonfire on Thursday afternoon. She died in great agony Saturday night.

About 600 acres of pine land lying between the Carver and Plympton roads, three miles from Plymouth, Mass., were burned over on Friday. Two hundred cords of wood were also consumed. The fire was evidently of incendiary origin.

A barn with outbuilding, the property of Mrs. Clarence Chase, at Hyannis, Mass., were burned to the ground Saturday afternoon. Cause, little boys smoking cigarettes. Valued at $800; insured.

A man named Slade, aged seventy-five years, and his grandson aged three, were burned to death at Chatham, Mass., April 27th, while burning brush.

The Merrimack and Connecticut rivers are on a tear, owing to the rapid melting of the snow by the heat of April 29th, when the temperature was up to ninety in some parts of Vermont.

A heavy earthquake shock occurred at Briggs, Cal., Saturday, lasting seventy-five seconds. The vibrations were from east to west. Plastered buildings were cracked.

Rev. Edgar L. Hermance, long pastor of the Presbyterian church, Broadway, New York, one of the richest churches in the city, shot himself in the pulpit after service Sunday, April 29th, and died in a short time.

Rev. Charles T. King, pastor of Miller avenue Methodist church, at Columbus, Ohio, while in a fit of delirum, cut his throat from ear to ear and died instantly. He had been sick with typhoid fever for some weeks.

The Lake Port stage was robbed by two masked robbers Saturday, a few miles from Cloverdale, Cal. Wells, Fargo & Co.'s box was taken, but the amount it contained is not known. When the news was received Constable Abe Crighter and Samuel Allen started in pursuit of the robbers and found them in the mountains, but one of them shot Crighter through the heart with a rifle. Allen returned the fire, but both robbers slid down a precipice, and escaped.

A passenger train on the Interoceanic railway in Mexico was robbed near Irolo, April 27th, by fourteen highwaymen, who took all the valuables of the passengers, and got $8000 of the railroad's money.

A Democratic Acknowledgement.

During the maladministration of postal affairs by Postmaster General Vilas, the democratic papers as a rule either kept silent when the republican papers charged him with crippling the service in all directions, or denied that any such crippling had occurred. But now the Washington correspondent of the Boston Post, in commending the energy and liberal views of Postmaster General Dickinson, says:

He was quick to see the folly of the parsimonious policy of Colonel Vilas, and to send in supplementary estimates asking for about $1,000,000 more. The committee granted all that was asked within $90,000. It is fortunate for the service that Colonel Vilas left the post-office department when he did. It was going down hill at a constantly accelerating rate, and it required a strong hand to effectually put on the brakes.

Lewis E. Staples offers for this week the bargain of the season. One case all wool fancy mix dress goods at 33cts. These goods have never been sold for less than fifty cents.

—A news item says: "Everybody is wearing either the Greek or the Directory bodice in New York." It must look rather odd to see Mr. Dana of the Sun and Mr. Pulitzer of the World going about attired in a Greek or Directory bodice.

The First Symptoms

Of all Lung diseases are much the same: feverishness, loss of appetite, sore throat, pains in the chest and back, headache, etc. In a few days you may be well, or, on the other hand, you may be down with Pneumonia or "galloping Consumption." Run no risks, but begin immediately to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Several years ago, James Birchard, of Darien, Conn., was severely ill. The doctors said he was in Consumption, and that they could do nothing for him, but advised him, as a last resort, to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. After taking this medicine, two or three months, he was pronounced a well man. His health remains good to the present day.

J. S. Bradley, Malden, Mass., writes: "Three winters ago I took a severe cold, which rapidly developed into Bronchitis and Consumption. I was so weak that I could not sit up, was much emaciated, and coughed incessantly. I consulted several doctors, but they were powerless, and all agreed that I was in Consumption. At last, a friend brought me a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. From the first dose, I found relief. Two bottles cured me, and my health has since been perfect."

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

PREPARED BY

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Sold by all Druggists. Price $1; six bottles, $5.

President Cleveland has appointed as consul at San Salvador one Thomas T. Tunstall of Mobile, Ala., who narrowly escaped hanging as a pirate during the war of the rebellion, and who was for some months a prisoner at Fort Warren. When the war broke out he was consul at Cadiz and was removed from office because of his disloyalty. When the Confederate privateer Sumter put into Gibraltar to procure coal after destroying an American merchantman just off the port, Tunstall tried to assist the rebel, but was seized at Tangier by the American consul general, cast into the consular prison, and subsequently sent to the United States.

Daniel Moriarty and Daniel Hayes were hanged at Tralee, Ireland, Saturday morning, for the murder of James Fritzmaurice, a farmer, near Lixany, county Kerry, on Jan. 21st last. Before the execution Moriarty and Hayes attended mass and prayed fervently. They both declared their innocence. Fritzmaurice, the murdered man, had taken a farm from which his brother had been evicted. Shortly after, while on his way to market at Tralee, he was stopped by two men, who, after making sure of his identity, shot him with revolvers. Moriarty and Hayes were subsequently arrested, charged with the murder.

That Tired Feeling

When the weather grows warmer, that extreme tired feeling, want of appetite, dulness, languor, and lassitude, afflict almost the entire human family, and scrofula and other diseases caused by humors, manifest themselves with many. It is impossible to throw off this debility and expel humors from the blood without the aid of a reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"I could not sleep, and would get up in the morning with hardly life enough to get out of bed. I had no appetite, and my face would break out with pimples. I bought a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and soon began to sleep soundly; could get up without that tired and languid feeling, and my appetite improved." R. A. SANFORD, Kent, O.

"I had been much troubled by general debility. Last spring Hood's Sarsaparilla proved just the thing needed. I derived an immense amount of benent. I never felt better." H. F. MILLET, Boston, Mass.

At no other season is the system so susceptible to the beneficial effects of a reliable tonic and invigorant. The impure state of the blood, the deranged digestion, and the weak condition of the body, caused by its long battle with the cold, wintry blasts, all call for the reviving, regulating and restoring influences so happily and effectively combined in Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla did me a great deal of good. I had no particular disease, but was tired out from overwork, and it toned me up." MRS. G. E. SIMMONS, Cohoes, N. Y.

"For seven years, spring and fall, I had scrofulous sores come out on my legs, and for two years was not free from them at all. I suffered very much. Last May I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and before I had taken two bottles, the sores healed and the humor left me." C. A. ARNOLD, Arnold, Me.

"There is no blood purifier equal to Hood's Sarsaparilla." E. S. PHELPS, Rochester, N.Y.

"See That Ye Fall Not Out by the Way."

Several good democrats will go to Concord to-day, to attend the state convention of the party to be held in order to go through the form of choosing Frank Jones and his friends delegates to the St. Louis convention.

Let these men remember that there is none of it on sale at Concord or Manchester, and if they leave the train at Raymond let them not get left as did the Major and his battalion at Raymond, on the homeward march recently.

Music Hall.

Miss Ullie Akerstrom's company had a great audience in Music hall Monday evening, when Miss Akerstrom's new and bright comedy-drama, "Renah, the Gypsy's daughter," was presented. The vivacious and painstaking actress is more pleasing than ever, and quite as popular with her audiences.

This evening "A Willful Girl" and "The Child of the Regiment."

Fire Alarm Test.

One round each on Boxes 28, 35, 14, 24 and 17 will be struck during the regular monthly test of the fire alarm today.

May Day Festival.

The May Day festival in Franklin theatre and hall this evening, given by the ladies of the Children's Home Sewing Circle for the benefit of the home, will be highly enjoyable, the programme containing many and varied attractions. Tickets to both theatre and dance, 35 cts.; to be had at the door; see advertisement.

The committee in charge ask friends of the Home to send donations of cake for the refreshment tables to the hall this afternoon, between two and five o'clock.

Base Ball.

At Exeter, April 28th, the Y. M. C. A. nine of Lawrence, Mass., defeated the Exeter academy nine, 14 to 7.

A game of ball at the Plains on Saturday between the Walker school nine and the Jones school nine, resulted in a victory for the Walker school; score 41 to 11.

The Haven school nine will play the Jones school on Wednesday afternoon.

He Did Give a Signal.

Conductor H. E. Chandler of the Concord & Portsmouth railroad, who was in charge of the train which on leaving Raymond for this city last Friday morning left behind a number of passengers who had come on the train from Manchester, publishes a statement that instead of starting his train without giving any signal, as alleged by the castaways in a published item, he called "all aboard" loud enough to be heard by a number of reputable gentlemen whose names he gives, and who were in different cars of the train.

Matrimonial.

Mr. Charles W. Ham, formerly assistant janitor of the federal building in this city, now employed in Boston, was on Monday united in marriage with Miss Cecelia Salmon, daughter of Mr. Thomas Salmon of this city, one of the veterans of the U. S. S. Kearsarge's original crew. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. M. O'Callaghan, at the Church of the Immaculate Conception.

Obituary.

Mrs. Mabel M. Bellows died at her home in South Boston on Sunday, in the 23d year of her age. She was the daughter of the late John H. Slater of this city, and was married in Boston on June 9th of last year to Mr. Rufus E. Bellows, Rev. Frederick B. Allen, assistant minister of Trinity church, performing the ceremony. She was a young lady of amiable disposition and more than ordinary personal attractions, and her former youthful associates, with whom she was a general favorite, will deplore the early ending of a life that promised so fair.

Personal.

Col. Charles A. Sinclair arrived home from Florida on Saturday.

Cedric Laighton and family, of State street, will go to Appledore in about ten days, for the season.

Misses Ada and Maud Washburne, of Portland, Me., are guests at Capt. I. H. Washburne's, on Vaughan street.

Fred L. Martin of Boston, was in this city Sunday on a brief visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Martin, of Vaughan street.

Sylvester Merrill, formerly of this city, but now of Amesbury, Mass., was in this city Sunday, having driven from the latter place Saturday with his trotter. He returned to his home on Monday

Charles H. Larkin, formerly of this city but now of Portland, Me., is on his way to Omaha, Nebraska, on business connected with the introduction of Larkin's patent saddle point loop, of which he is inventer and patentee. He was in this city on Monday.

Wiley B. Coleman, who has been confined to his home for about a week on account of sickness, was out on Monday. He will at once commence cutting a new door in the store of Fred B. Coleman, the druggist, which will be situated directly on the corner of Vaughan street, where the window is now.

Henry P. Payne, for a number of years past in the employ of Charles E. Laighton & Son., has accepted a position with John Laighton. His place has been filled by James R. Conlon, who deserves the promotion he has received; he will be missed by Mr. Laighton's customers, as he has been driver of the order wagon for some time past, and always pleasant and obliging. His place on the wagon has been taken by Christopher Conlon.

The Boston Globe of Monday says: "Patrick McGlinchy, a noted distiller, died yesterday in Portland, Me." Mr. McGlinchy was at one time a resident of Portsmouth, and travelling agent for the Portsmouth Brewing Co. Previous to the passage of the Maine liquor law he conducted a large business in Portland as a distiller, but the operation of that law closed his distillery. One of his sons married a daughter of the late John Dixon.

Maritime Notes.

The schooner Annie J. Russell, from Rondout, N. Y., with 1100 barrels of Newark Co.'s cement, and schooner Sinbad, from Rockland with 800 barrels of lime, arrived at this port April 30th, both to J. H. Broughton.

The new bricker Sadie A. Kimball, Burns master; the Lillie, Perkins, and Hattie Lewis, Lowe, all from Boston, arrived at this port on Sunday, April, 29th. Also arrived the same day, schooner J. W. Woodruff, from Perth Amboy with 225 tons of coal, and the Mabel Hall, from South Amboy with 248 tons, both to J. Albert Walker.

The steamer James Sampson came off the marine railway at Kittery on Monday afternoon.

The surfmen at the Rye Beach and Jerry's Point life-saving stations went off duty at midnight on the night of Monday, April 30th, in common with the surfmen at other stations; the captains remain in charge during the year, and emergency crews of competent surfmen are provided, in case need of their services should arise.

The old war ship Ticonderoga was burned on the beach of Apple island, Boston harbor, Saturday, to enable the old metal in her hulk to be got at. The Ticonderoga did some service in the war, but will be remembered here from having occupied an anchorage at the quarantine ground near Wood island, at the entrance to this harbor, nearly the whole of one summer a dozen years or so ago, with the yellow flag flying, having come from the West Indies with yellow fever on board.

The harbor steamboat season in Boston will commence to-day, when the steamer General Lincoln of the Hingham, Hull & Downer Landing Steamboat company's line will begin to make regular trips between Boston and Hull, Nantasket beach, Downer landing and Hingham.

A Question of Health.

What Baking Powder Shall We Use?

This plain question comes home to every housekeeper. We all desire pure and wholesome food, and this cannot be had with the use of impure or poisonous baking powder. There can be no longer a question that all the cheaper, lower grades of baking powders contain either alum, lime or phosphatic acid. As loath as we may be to admit so much against what may have been some of our household gods, there can be no gainsaying the unanimous testimony of the official chemists. Indeed, analysts seem to find no baking powder entirely free from some of these objectionable ingredients except Royal, and that they report as chemically pure. We find some of the baking powders advertised as pure, to contain, under the tests of Professors Chandler, Habirshaw and others, nearly twelve per cent. of lime, while others are made from alum with no cream of tartar. This, we presume, accounts for their lack of leavening power as sometimes complained of by the cook, and for the bitter taste found in the biscuits so frequently by ourselves.

But aside from the inferiority of the work done by these powders, the physicians assure us that lime and alum taken into the system in such quantities as this are injurious. These physiological effects are indigestion, dyspepsia, or worse evils.

The question naturally arises, why do these cheap baking powder making makers use these things? Alum is three cents a pound, lime still cheaper, while cream of tartar costs thirty-five or forty. The reasons for the chemical purity of the Royal Baking Powder were given in the New York Times in an interesting description of a new method of refining argols, or crude cream of tartar. It seems that it is only under this process that cream of tartar can be freed from the lime natural to it and rendered chemically pure; that the patents and plant for this cost the Royal Baking Powder Company about half a million dollars, and that they maintain exclusive control of the rights.

Professor McMurtrie, late chief chemist of the Department of Agriculture, at Washington, D. C., made an examination of this process, and reported upon the results attained in the refined cream of tartar. The following extract from his report would seem to answer the question repeated at the head of this article, and which is so frequently propounded by the housekeeper:

"I have examined the cream of tartar used by the Royal Baking Powder Company in the manufacture of their baking powder, and find it to be perfectly pure and free from lime in any form. The chemical tests to which I have submitted the Royal Baking Powder prove it perfectly healthful and free from every deleterious substance. The Royal Baking Powder is purest in quality and highest in strength of any baking powder of which I have knowledge."

Mr. C. H. Hersey, of the hair dressing firm of Hersey Bros., Congress street, leaves this morning for Providence, R. I., where he was formerly employed, having sold out his interest here to Mr. Martin V. Hoyt, who with Mr. George W. Hersey will continue the business at the old stand under the firm name of Hoyt & Hersey.

Annual meetings of the stockholders of the Eastern railroad in New Hampshire, and of the Portsmouth, Great Falls & Conway, will be held in this city to-day.

The Sunday school of the Court street Christian church will give a concert in their church on Wednesday evening. It will consist of singing, recitations, dialogues, etc. Admission ten cents.

The "Pink festival" given by the ladies of the Christian society of Rye in the town hall last Thursday evening netted about $75 for the building fund.

Carpenter Joseph E. Cox, U. S. N., of Kittery, has been ordered to report at Widow's island, Me., for temporary duty.

TO HOUSEKEEPERS.

The time of year is at hand when it is customary to take up carpets, clean paint, and thoroughly prepare the house for the summer season. Let us suggest that you sprinkle a small quantity of

PRESTON'S INSECT POWDER

Under the carpet; it would be a wonderful preventive against moths, and for packing away winter clothing is preferred by many to campher. Then if you pour a few teaspoonfuls of

PRESTON'S FAMILY AMMONIA

Into a gallon of water, and clean with this your paint, we are sure you will be gratified with the result.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.

$22 TO $900.

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture in these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS

Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all GRAND & UPRIGHT others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

PHILOSOPHY OF MARRIAGE, giving a clear synopsis of the impediments to marriage, exhausted vitality, etc., etc., can be had from all news agents or forwarded direct from the author, Dr. P. J. JORDAN, 19 Joy St., Boston, on receipt of 25 cents. eoftoow

THIS PAPER is on file in Philadelphia at the Newspaper Advertising Agency of Messrs. N. W. AYER & SON, our authorized agents.

At Carlyle, Ill., a young lady conceived the idea of issuing invitations to a unique sleigh ride. Before sending out the cards, however, she secured five large pairs of oxen. These were hitched to stylish cutters, which were loaded with the representatives of the beauty, wealth and culture of the town. Throngs of people were attracted to witness the novel procession as it moved through the principal streets.

Probably the most expensively-dressed man seen in Pittsburg for many a day was Toy Sun, a San Francisco merchant, who went through there recently on his way to Washington. His garments were a combination of silks, satins and laces, and five big diamonds did duty for buttons. To a reporter Mr. Sun said that the law prohibiting Chinese immigration was a good one, and should be rigidly enforced.

Mrs. Fida Lewis died at South Hadley Falls, Mass., recently, of a disease which it puzzled the doctors to diagnose, but which was treated as a tumor. It was learned after her death that twenty-six years ago, when a girl of twelve, she had fallen and driven a darning needle through her hip, and a post mortem examination showed that this had been the immediate cause of her death.

Liverpool detectives in New York have been searching for an aristocratic young lady who recently disappeared from her domicile in England. They got on her track, and learned that she had visited a registry office, where she secured employment as a servant of all work for a family in the upper story of a Third-avenue house. But she had found another place somewhere before they could get a glimpse at her. She has a mania for humility.

Robert Durers and Lawrence McEvoy, boys of fourteen years of age, were arrested for highway robbery at Lawrence, Mass., and are now in jail. The boys met two young clerks who were crossing Merrrimac river bridge and "held them up" with revolvers, relieving them of a small amount of property. McEvoy discharged his revolver, but he claims it was only done in fun. Yellow-covered literature is said to be the inciting cause of the boys' actions.

Samuel Stevens of Monroe, Ct., lost five cows by a singular accident on Wednesday night, April 25th. On going to the barn on Thursday morning, he found that a portion of the foundation walls had given way and with it also the flooring of the stable in which there were five cows, and they being fastened by the neck to the stanchions had choked to death.

Daniel Callahan, who a year ago shot at Chief Police Brown, and who was lately pardoned from State prison, died Saturday morning at the residence of his mother in Marblehead, Mass. Callahan was about thirty years of age. He leaves three children.

Gout in most cases first makes itself known by an acute pain in the joint of the great toe. This most excruciating pain may be likened to that produced by the driving of a wedge under the nail. When thus affected rub well with Salvation Oil, the greatest pain-cure on earth. Price 25 cents.

George Bunten, fourteen years old, of Bridgeport, Conn., was drowned in Pembroke lake, Saturday afternoon, by the capsizing of a canoe. His companion, a boy named Benjamin Birks, escaped. The victim's body has not been recovered.

It is estimated that Vermont alone has 15,000,000 maple trees fully grown, of which only 5,000,000 are as yet used for sugar-making, and that the sugar-producing capacity of the state is fully 50-000,000 pounds. This would be equivalent to a total cash value of nearly $4,-000,000.

Two foreigners who attempted to land at Boston, Tuesday, April 24th, in violation of the contract labor laws, were detained. Frederick W. Green came over on the Cunard steamer Marathon, and was under contract to a silverware dealer in Concord, N. H., and the other, a Scotch girl, Jane F. Eaton by name, came by the Allan steamer Siberian, and was engaged as a domestic by a physician of Barre, Mass.

The Columbia River Fisherman's Protective Union of Astoria, Ore., warns men against the false reports that are being circulated about employment and wages in that country. The country is overrun with men, and fishermen make hardly enough to keep them alive.

Pain from indigestion, dyspepsia, and too hearty eating, is relieved by once taking one of Carter's Little Liver Pills immediately after dinner. Don't forget this.

a man for groaning when he has Rheumatism or Neuralgia. The pain is simply awful. No torture in the ancient times was more painful than these twin diseases. But—oughtn't a man to be blamed if, having Rheumatism or Neuralgia, he wont use Ath-lo-pho-ros, when it has cured thousands who have suffered in the same way? It has cared hundreds after physicians have pronounced them incurable.

"The skill of five physicians could not cure me of Rheumatism which had settled in the hips, neck and shoulders. So intense was the pain that sleep was almost impossible. The first dose of Athlophoros gave me relief, and the third enabled me to sleep for four and a half hours without waking. I continued its use and am now well."

THE JOB PRINTING

Business is conducted in the same office by RICHARD I. WALDEN, who keeps on hand a large and well-selected stock of all materials required in his line. Give him a trial and you will be more than pleased.

Herbert Spencer says, that a man's conversation is a sure index to his mental capacity; we therefore account for the numerous flattering commendations made by our most learned men of the merits of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

Mayor John Gates of Portland, Ore., died April 27th, aged sixty years. He was the inventor of Gates' steering gear for steamboats, one of the most important factors in navigation in swift water.

Delicate Children, Nursing

Mothers, overworked men and for all diseases where the tissues are wasting away from the inability to digest food, or from overwork; should take Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites. "I used the Emulsion on a lady who was delicate. It put her in such good health and flesh, that I must say it is the best Emulsion."—L. P. Waddell, M. D., Hugh's Mills, S. C.

Allen B. Wilson, perfecter and part inventor of the sewing machine, and who with Nathaniel Wheeler, established the great Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine company of Bridgeport, Conn., is dead. He was born in New York in 1827.

Weak lungs are seothed and strengthened by wearing a Hop Plaster. Never fails to do good.

Seth Thomas, of the Seth Thomas Clock company of Thomaston, Conn., died at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Miles Morse, at Thomaston, April 28th, aged seventy one.

We think we can cure a bad case of backache quicker with one of Carter's Smart Weed and Belladonna Backache Plasters, than by any other application, and after the backache is cured, you can still wear the plaster without discomfort for two or three weeks, or longer. This combination of Smart Weed and Belladonna is a great hit, and it is hard to find any pain or ache that will not yield to it. Price 25 cents. Sold by druggists everywhere.

In a fight at Alexandria, Egypt, April 29th, between police and escaped convicts, fifteen convicts and four policemen were killed, and a number wounded on each side.

Every one should remember that by the loss of health, enjoyment and happiness soon follow. Check the slightest cough or cold by using Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam, according to the directions printed upon the label of the bottle.

Capt. Jinks, a notorious horse thief, was killed by a posse at Wichita, Kansas, April 29th. Three members of his gang were hanged by vigilantes several weeks ago.

Ayer's Pills are the best cathartic for correcting irregularities of the stomach and bowels. Gentle, yet thorough in their action, they cure constipation, stimulate the appetite and digestive organs, and strengthen the system.

At Valentine station, Texas, April 29th, Sam Taylor, a drunken cattleman, fatally stabbed Charles Server, conductor of the train, and was fatally shot by Server.

Not one in twenty are free from some little ailments caused by inaction of the liver. Use Carter's Little Liver Pills. The result will be a pleasant surprise. They give positive relief.

There are sixty-four gas companies in business in Massachusetts, with a capitalization of about twelve million dollars. There are fifty-six companies engaged in supplying electric lights.

Michigan's Claims as a Champion Winner.

Michigan can now justly claim to be champion State prize winner in the Louisiana State Lottery. Within the past year and a half Maskegon, through Chas. J. Herrmann and Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Campbell, has personally collected capital prizes, while Detroit, Grand Rapids and other points have drawn through banks and express companies. Messrs. Gouard and Mock of East Saginaw, left for home last Wednesday, thoroughly satisfied with their visit to the land of fortune and flowers.—New Orleans (La.) Picayune, March 24th.

The Population of Portsmouth

Is about 15,000, and we would say at least one-half are troubled with some affection of the throat and lungs, as those complaints are, according to statistics, more numerous than others. We would advise all our readers not to neglect the opportunity to call on their druggist and get a bottle of Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs. Trial size free. Large bottles 50c and $1. Sold by all druggists. 1m72

THE LATEST DISCOVERY.

A Prominent Physician Reveals Some New and Startling Secrets.

"Do you know," said Dr. Bodfich, of Boston, at the club, one evening recently, "what the starting point of most physical troubles is?"

"No, indeed," replied a circle of anxious enquirers, as they crowded about the doctor.

"Tea and coffee," answered the eminent physician.

There was a look of horror on the faces of his listeners. The doctor continued:

"Men, and women even, drink tea and coffee constantly, and wonder why they feel dull and stupid, have headaches, a bad taste in the mouth, pains in the limbs and about the body and irregularity of the secretions. Nine cases out of ten these things are caused by too free a use of tea and coffee. These drinks clog the system, weaken the tissues and destroy the most important organs. Few men or women who indulge in tea and coffee regularly have clear urine, but on the contrary, sediment, scum and brick dust, all of which invariably mean coming disease or death."

"But what are we to do, Doctor? Shall we give up tea and coffee altogether?"

"No. I do not advise that, but regulate it. Keep the kidneys clear and active. There is nothing in the world so good for this as the well known and popular Hunt's Remedy. Any one who uses this medicine regularly can drink tea and coffee moderately without fear. The reason is that Hunt's Remedy flushes or washes out the kidneys, and keeps them free and healthy. Any number of prominent men and women can confirm what I say, among the number scores of doctors and ministers, Gen. Butler, Gen. Monroe and Miss Alcot."

It was plain that the warning and advice of the doctor had made a deep impression on his listeners, as it also should upon the millions of men and women who are shortening their lives by the use of these drinks.

ADAMSON'S

BOTANIC COUGH BALSAM

More than twenty years ago Adamson's Botanic Balsam was introduced generally throughout New England as a remedy for Coughs, Colds and Pulmonary complaints. Since its introduction it has constantly won its way into public favor, until now it is the universal decision that ADAMSON'S BOTANIC BALSAM is the best remedy for curing Coughs, Colds and Asthma.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

CURE

Sick Headache and relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state of the system, such as Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Distress after eating, Pain in the Side, &c. While their most remarkable success has been shown in curing

SICK

Headache, yet Carter's Little Liver Pills are equally valuable in Constipation, curing and preventing this annoying complaint, while they also correct all disorders of the stomach, stimulate the liver and regulate the bowels. Even if they only cured

HEAD

Ache they would be almost priceless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all such head is the bane of so many lives that here is where we make our great boast. Our pills cure it while others do not.

Carter's Little Liver Pills are very small and very easy to take. One or two pills make a dose. They are strictly vegetable and do not gripe or purge, but by their gentle action please all who use them. In vials at 25 cents; five for $1. Sold by druggists everywhere, or sent by mail.

THE AGE OF OVERWORK.

Insanity on the Increase—Wrecked Nervous Organisms—A Doctor's Warning.

I urge that, to be successful, our life work must be done with our own special aim and ambition. But when I pick up an essay that advises more ambition, and more toil, I say the writer is an idiot. The age is now overworked. We need less work, but we need it wisely directed. Bailey, in Festus, is often aprovingly quoted:

I know what study is—it is to toil
Hard through the hours of the midnight watch;
Wring a drop out of the crough; and see
The self same moon, which lit us to our rest,
Her place scarce changed, perceptibly in heaven,
Now light us to renewal of our toil.

This is worse than trash; it is false, exaggerated and misleading. There is no lack of work; but fully nine-tenths of work is wasted. It is folly to point me to the great painters, great musicians and great of all sorts, and to their indefatigable toil. They all worked to a specific end, and that was their life work.

I am out of all patience with finely worded essays that urge young men to more work. We are now overworked and are working ourselves out of all reason. Insanity is on the increase. Cerebral troubles are our most serious ills. Our finely built nervous organisms are being wrecked. "The successful banker must take his bank to bed with him," was the remark of a celebrated New York financier. He must do nothing of the kind. Our worst possible bed fellows are our daily cares. We must know how to work to a point and how to stop at a point. The lines quoted from Festus describe a process of committing suicide, a method of reaching intellectual confusion and weakness. This worries me more than anything else, that young people should be advised to work at night, and be encouraged to "burn the midnight oil." I say to them, sleep. If you once form a habit of crowding sleep you will find your strength departing. Vigor lies in your power to recuperate.

There is no compensation for a habit of sleeplessness. More good work can be done in one hour after a sound night's rest than in ten hours when one should be asleep. "I can do nothing," said Grant, "without eight hours' sleep." James Fields said late in life, "If I were a boy again, I would keep better hours; that is, I would go to bed earlier than most boys do. Nothing gives more mental and bodily vigor than sound rest when properly applied. If we sit up late we decay; and sooner or later we contract insomnia. Late hours are shadows of the grave." I do not press this point because I inherit a Puritan prejudice, but have a physician's conviction, founded on wide experience. If you are ambitious to do a true, stout, manly work, apply your energies all along the line of the years in one direction, or in few directions, and never crowd the brain to undue exertion when it is weary.—M. Maurice, M. D., in Globe-Democrat.

Invented by a Woman.

There are many instances where women have "invented" articles for convenience and of practical usefulness, for which a patent has never been applied, though not the less patentable or appreciated, as the following instance, which shows not only the ability but the genius with which she is by nature endowed. The article was devised (?) by a woman in Connecticut, the fatherland of inventive genius and Yankee ingenuity, the land of steady habits, wooden clocks, wooden nutmegs and red oak hams. The lady was one day using the carving knife, which probably, from too frequent contact with bones and the stovepipe, which a woman generally uses for a steel, with uncertain results, had become rather dull, and the handle of which, in her frantic efforts to "carve dat possum," twisted about and hurt her delicate digits.

At last, after several desperate and hazardous attempts, she turned sharply to her better half, who sat by calmly viewing the situation, and probably reflecting on the chances of life and death and the prospect of a square meal, and asked: "Can't you invent a handle that won't twist about and hurt so?" With fear and trembling lest his answer should cause his irate spouse to scalp him on the spot, the good man answered that he could not. "Well I can," was the reply, and with the impetuosity proverbial of her sex she left the room and soon returned with a triumphant air and a piece of putty, which she soon had shaped to fit her hand, and, holding it up to the admiring, though crestfallen, lord, said: "There, that's what I call a handle." Although no patent has ever been applied for, these handles, invented by a woman, are in great demand, and thousands are annually made.—Boston Budget.

Colored Citizens' Excursion.

With the running of the first excursion train in the spring the old nomadic instinct awakes in the bosom of the colored citizens. They must go somewhere. The destination is of little moment, the journey is everything. To the pine woods of Mississippi, among the villages of the Gulf coast, even to the penitentiary at Baton Rouge, they swarm upon the regular excursion days. No matter how sultry the weather, they pack into the cars, an indiscriminate mass of shouting men, struggling women and shrieking babies; and, wherever their journey may terminate, they are allowed for that day almost exclusive possession of the town. Evening comes. The whistle sounds, and all who purpose returning crowd upon the train. Few, however, are the parties of excursionists who do not leave some of their number in durance, souvenirs to the town which they have visited of an exciting day.—Cor. New York Post.

GRAND

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

— TO THE —

People of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont.

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co., having completed their purchases for

THIS SPRING'S STOCK,

respectfully request a call from all those interested in the Furnishing and Beautifying their Homes. And we would further request that those near our Bangor Store, located on Union street, opposite the Bangor House, should call on our Manager, MR. A. J. MOREY. And those living on the line of the Knox & Lincoln R. R., in the vicinity of Rockland, we would respectfully request to call at our Store on Main street, formerly the old Linde Hotel, MR. W. A. KIMBALL, manager. And again, to those who are nearest our Auburn Store, located on Main street, MR. J. J. EMERSON the Manager, will attend to your every want in House Furnishings. And to those living at Kennebunk, Kennebunkport and Old Orchard, and towns adjacent to Biddeford, we would respectfully request them to call at our Store at the Corner of Alfred and Bacon streets, MR. HENRY P. ATKINSON, Manager. While to those who prefer to select from our Mammoth Stock, we would say come to our Store and Headquarters at the

Cor. of Middle and Pearl Streets.

In each of these Stores we carry complete lines of furnishings which we will sell for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. Of course we prefer to make cash sales when we can, but at the same time it has always been our aim and object to satisfy everyone of our customers to the uttermost, whether they wished to buy for cash or otherwise. This is the House Cleaning season of the year. Old Carpets must give place to New, Old Chamber Sets should be replaced by those of later design. Parlor Suits that have been in use for some time are often moved into the sitting room, making room for the new Parlor Suit. That Range that you have been using for many years, perhaps takes more coal to run it to get the desired work from it than a new one would, consequently making you a loss every day. Now we will sell you from the very largest stocks at Lowest Prices than you can buy elsewhere, and we will sell them to you for cash or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. Write for samples.

CARPETS,

Chamber Sets

We have an enormous quantity in each of our Stores. Ask your neighbors who have seen them, and they will testify to our almost endless variety, and we will Sell you Cheaper than you can buy elsewhere. We mean what we say, for all cash, quarter cash, or balance by the week or month. Write us for cuts, photographs and prices. Orders through the mail promptly attended to.

Parlor Suits

In all the Stores in Endless Variety, and a stock of 356 full Suits at our Headquarters. Prices from $31 to $400, all cash, or quarter cash, and balance by the week or month. Write us for photographs, cuts and prices.

KITCHEN RANGES

In all our Stores you will find the Quaker, New Tariff and First National, besides a host of others, but to those who wish a good range we recommend the Quaker and the New Tariff; also the First National, for a lower priced one. We have them all the way up to $50, and we sell you a range for cash, or for $10 down and the balance by the week or month. Do not delay ordering. We would rather have the range in your house than in our store house, and let you take your time to pay for it.

Window Shades and Drapery Curtains.

Write us for Cuts, Catalogues and Prices of this Celebrated Refrigerator, and do not delay buying because hot weather will be upon us, and you will regret it. And please remember that MR. MOREY, manager of the Bangor store; MR. KIMBALL, manager of the Rockland store; MR. EMERSON, manager of the Auburn store; and MR. ATKINSON, manager of the Biddeford store, will each show you a complete line of house furnishings and give you the same terms as would be given at the Headquarters at Portland. All goods will be delivered Freight Prepaid at your depot, and at each one of these stores you will receive the most Honorable Treatment Possible To Give A Customer, whether you wish to buy for cash, or part cash, and the balance on time.

Respectfully, The Public's Obedient Servants,

The Atkinson House Furnishing COMPANY.

Headquarters Cor. Pearl and Middle Sts., Portland, and Branches as above quoted.

Do not pay long prices when you can buy goods from us and save money. It costs you nothing to look, and very little to write. Consequently it is as easy and cheap to inform yourself.

ISAAC C. ATKINSON, Gen. Manager.

Gout in most cases first makes itself known by an acute pain in the joint of the great toe. This most excruciating pain may be likened to that produced by the driving of a wedge under the nail. When thus affected rub well with Salvation Oil, the greatest pain-cure on earth. Price 25 cents.

Deacon Royal Storr, of Lyme, has been to church every Sunday for forty-five years, as well as to every special service of his church during that time, and he lives two miles and a half from the meeting house, too.

A Great Battle

is continually going on in the human system. The demon of impure blood strives to gain victory over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave. A good reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla is the weapon with which to defend one's self, drive the desperate enemy from the field, and restore peace and bodily health for many years. Try this peculiar medicine.

Wilbur Cowan of Lancaster, thirty-five years old, and married, brakeman on a cattle train, was probably fatally injured at Wentworth by striking a bridge.

That feeling of weariness, so often experienced in the spring, results from a sluggish condition of the blood which, being impure, does not quicken with the changing season. Ayer's Sarsaparilla, by vitalizing and cleansing the blood, strengthens and invigorates the system.

Mary Banfield, aged sixty, hung herself in a barn at Milton on April 29th; cause, ill health.

Apply a Hop Plaster and experience its soothing, stimulating and pain-killing properties.

G. W. Sawin's saw mill at Grafton was burned April 28th; loss $5000; insurance $1500.

Benj. W. Patton, of Globe Village, Mass., says: "Having sold Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry for many years, and used it in my family with the most satisfactory results, I can with confidence say that in my estimation it is the best remedy in the market for coughs, colds and throat and lung diseases."

The New Remedy.

The disposal by agreement, of the liquor cases at Manchester, a place which, having exceedingly large numbers of foreigners within its borders, has been noted for its immense sales and consumption of spirits, looks as if there was some concerted action among liquor men. It is hardly possible that when, for years, the great problem has been attempted in so many states to be demonstrated that prohibitory laws do not prohibit the liquor traffic, so brief an enactment as the one which went through the legislature with but a single negative vote, should, without legal defences or cavil upon the oft-quoted constitutional grounds, at once prove so effectual. We are half inclined to the belief that the traffickers are playing possum. To suppose that the great mass of drinkers in Manchester who buy their liquors literally from hand to mouth, are hereafter to find no place where they can expend their Saturday night's wages, is too much for ordinary credulity to absorb. Ask us to believe that Col. John B. Clark knows nothing about horse flesh, that Henry Putney is not fond of office, that Ex-Gov. Cheney does not wish to be senator, or that Ex-Gov. Smyth dislikes travel, and we will essay the credulity. But when it comes to be stated as a fact that the liquor element of Manchester, some of whose dealers have never read the law, is to everywhere and always obey the statute in such case made and provided, it is asking too much of a confiding community. There is a cat in the meal somewhere, unless the lawyers of the liquor venders have concluded that the learned legal light from whose bright intellect this new enactment flashed, has at last discovered a process which the highest-paid lawyer retained by the dealers and manufacturers is unable to circumvent.

Democratic State Convention.

The New Hampshire state convention of the democratic party was held in Phenix hall, Concord, May 1st.

John Mitchell of Concord was president, with one vice president from each county, Samuel Spinney of Portsmouth representing Rockingham county. George E. Hodgdon of Portsmouth was chairman of the committee on resolutions.

On a ballot for delegates at large to the St. Louis convention, Alvah W. Sulloway of Franklin had 592, Frank Jones of Portsmouth 575, Daniel Connor of Manchester 563, Joseph C. Moore of Gilford 562, eight others having a total of twenty-five votes for the lot.

The resolutions adopted heartily endorse President Cleveland, fully approve his tariff message, and recommend his renomination.

The congressional district conventions were held at the close of the state convention.

Teachers' Institutes.

Hon. J. W. Patterson, superintendent of public instruction, gives notice that county teachers' institutes will be held as follows:

Strafford county, at the town hall in Great Falls, beginning Wednesday, May 9th, and ending May 11th.

Rockingham county, at the Congregational vestry in Epping, beginning Wednesday, May 16th, and ending May 18th.

Round trip tickets will be sold to those attending the institutes by the Concord & Portsmouth and Boston & Maine railroads, at two cents per mile.

Teachers wishing board in private families during the sessions of the institutes are requested to write to J. W. V. Rich of Great Falls, or Elmer E. French of Epping.

Base Ball.

National League games, April 30th: Boston 4, New York 3, at New York, in ten innings; Detroit 13, Indianapolis 1, at Indianapolis; Philadelphia 3, Washington 1, at Philadelphia; Pittsburg 8, Chicago 2, at Pittsburg.

New England League games, April 30th: Manchester 13, Worcester 9, at Manchester; Salem 11, Lynn 9, at Salem; Lowell 10, Portland 2, at Lowell.

Hampton Jottings.

HAMPTON, April 30th.

The fine weather of late is appreciated, but there were not as many trees set out on Arbor day, as last year in this vicinity.

Saturday evening the republicans held their caucus to elect delegates to the conventions, and chose Charles Philbrick and Horace Lane for the state, and John Cutter and John I. Page for the district.

Dr. Smith of Epsom will move into town the first of May; he comes well recommended as a fine man and a skillful physician.

Miss Bessie Palmer is attending a private school at Portsmouth, taught by Miss Morgan.

On Sunday, the 22d, eight couples dined at John Cutler's; doubtless he had a larger number yesterday, as the streets were full of teams all day.

A fine time is expected at the May ball held at the Union house; some very handsome costumes have been made for the occasion.

Many people are sick, and brain fever, with lung trouble, seems to be prevalent, more among males generally. Mr. Norman Marston is very ill with pneumonia, and yesterday Dr. Perry of Exeter was called for consultation.

Laighton Bros., of Appledore, last week bought of Mr. Richard Seeley a horse for use on the island the coming season.

Forepaugh's circus and wild west show is announced to visit this city at some date not yet fixed, during the coming summer.

"Monte Cristo" is to be performed in Music hall next Monday evening by Aiden Benedict's company.

The telephone wires in the cable box at Portsmouth bridge were nearly all burned out by electricity during the shower on Sunday night.

The monument which Indiana is to rear to her soldiers and sailors is to cost $250,000, which is $100,000 greater than that of the famous German national monument at Niederwald, and will exceed that of any monument in this country, except the Washington monolith.

It is Absurd

For people to expect a cure for Indigestion, unless they refrain from eating what is unwholesome; but if anything will sharpen the appetite and give tone to the digestive organs, it is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Thousands all over the land testify to the merits of this medicine.

Mrs. Sarah Burroughs, of 248 Eighth street, South Boston, writes: "My husband has taken Ayer's Sarsaparilla, for Dyspepsia and torpid liver, and has been greatly benefited."

A Confirmed Dyspeptic.

C. Canterbury, of 141 Franklin st., Boston, Mass., writes, that, suffering for years from Indigestion, he was at last induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla and, by its use, was entirely cured.

Mrs. Joseph Aubin, of High street, Holyoke, Mass., suffered for over a year from Dyspepsia, so that she could not eat substantial food, became very weak, and was unable to care for her family. Neither the medicines prescribed by physicians, nor any of the remedies advertised for the cure of Dyspepsia, helped her, until she commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. "Three bottles of this medicine," she writes, "cured me."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Spring Medicine

Nearly every body needs a reliable spring medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla to expel the impurities which have accumulated in the blood during the winter, to keep up strength as the warm weather comes on, create an appetite and promote healthy digestion. Try Hood's Sarsaparilla this spring and you will be convinced that it does possess superior and peculiar merit.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most popular and successful Spring Medicine.

A Good Appetite

"When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was dizzy in the morning, had a headache, and no appetite; but now I can hardly get enough cooked to eat." EMMA SHEPARD, 1 Coral Street, Worcester, Mass.

"Last spring my whole family took Hood's Sarsaparilla. The result is that all have been cured of scrofula, my little boy being entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy as possibly can be. I have found Hood's Sarsaparilla good for catarrh." WM. B. ATHERTON, Passaic City, N. J.

Be Sure to Get Hood's

Sarsaparilla, my child. See that they do not give you anything else. You remember it is the medicine which did mama so much good a year ago—so reliable, beneficial, pleasant to take—my favorite spring medicine.

Ullie Akerstrom's company had another very large audience on Tuesday evening, when "A Wilful Girl" and "The Child of the Regiment" were played, and the hearty reception accorded the favorite actress on Monday evening was repeated.

This afternoon and to-night Miss Akerstrom's great success, "Annette, the Dancing Girl," will be presented, and we positively assure a delightful entertainment for all who attend.

Republican Delegates.

The following delegates were elected at the ward four republican caucus, held May 1st:

State—William H. Rollins, Elvin Newton;

First Congressional District—George E. Robinson, Joshua Stackpole.

Death of Albert J. Badger.

Albert J. Badger died at his home, No. 22 Vaughan street, Tuesday morning, May 1st, in the house in which he was born on the 24th of May, 1808, and in which he always lived.

Mr. Badger was probably the oldest man in continuous business in Portsmouth, having gone into the stove, sheet iron and tinware business in 1832, in the store on Daniel street where he had previously served an apprenticeship with his father as a tin and sheet iron worker. In this location his business life of fifty-six years was passed, except during a brief period when the brick Badger block was being built on the site of the old structure which was burned. He was as unobtrusive and retiring in disposition as he was industrious in business and honorable in his dealings, and was rarely seen during the week except on his way to and from his store.

Mr. Badger was twice married, the first time in 1831 to Miss Anna M. Akerman, who bore him four children, and the second time in 1861 to Miss Margaret E. Gray, who survives him. He leaves a daughter and two sons, all living in other cities.

After the Fire.

Mr. J. C. Carr expects to have his new stores open for trade by Friday morning, and will offer greater bargains than ever before; all he asks is for intending purchasers to look over his stock and judge for themselves; prices marked on every piece. He will offer his large stock of men's goods in the Downs store, corner of Market and Bow streets, and the ladies' goods in the store formerly occupied by F. E. H. Marden as a five and ten cent store.

Railroad Meeting.

The annual meeting of the stockholders in the Eastern Railroad in New Hampshire was held at the Boston & Maine railroad station in this city on Tuesday. Hon. Moody Currier, president of the corporation, presided, and the call for the meeting was read by Col. Hackett, clerk of the corporation. The report of the treasurer showed a balance of $4807 on his hands.

The meeting proceeded to elect seven directors, and Moody Currier, Dexter Richards, Edward L. Giddings, Edward A. Abbot, William H. Goodwin, Frank A. Philbrick and Samuel C. Eastman each having 1860 votes, the whole number cast, were declared elected. The meeting then adjourned.

At a meeting of the directors held subsequently, Ex-Governor Currier was re-elected president, and Col. William H. Hackett clerk.

Personal.

George B. Wallace, telegraph operator at the Boston & Maine railroad station in this city, is with his wife and daughter on a visit to Mrs. Wallace's parents in Rochester. This is a much needed rest for Mr. Wallace, and is taken early as there is not so much business at present as there will be later on, when the summer arrangements go into effect and the "beach travel" begins.

Dr. C. M. Murphy, formerly of Dover, and mayor of that city in 1880, died at his residence in Boston on the evening of April 30th, in the 55th year of his age.

A New York paper of April 30th says "Noyes Lewis Dickey of Portsmouth, N. H., thirty-three years old, died suddenly from heart disease in the Barclay street ferry-house yesterday afternoon. He had been visiting friends at Orange, N. J."

Mrs. Dwight and family, of Massachusetts, arrived at their cottage at York Harbor on Monday of this week, and Mrs. Huidekoper and family, of Philadelphia, arrived at theirs on Tuesday. There is not a cottage at the harbor to be hired, every one being taken for the season; and the advance engagements at the hotels and boarding houses are much more numerous than ever before at so early a date.

Mr. George W. Williams and family, who have lived in this city several years, move this week to Brattleboro', Vermont, where they formerly resided.

Mr. Walter H. Page, formerly local editor of the Times, has accepted a position on the Lynn (Mass.) Bee, succeeding Hubert O. Moore, who assumes the management of the new daily to be established in Amesbury, Mass.

Y. W. C. T. U.

The first regular meeting of the Young Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held Monday evening at the Congregational chapel on Middle street, and the officers elected were: President, Emma Grace; vice presidents, Carrie Hazel, Lizzie Ferguson, Agnes Fernald, Carrie Pettigrew, Abbie Hickey, Eva C. Lowd, Flora Ham, Emily Hoyt, Norah Gerrish; corresponding secretary, Mary Reese; recording secretary, Annie Wingate; treasurer, Clyde Spinney. Meeting adjourned till May 17th.

Fires.

The fields of Gerrish P. Drew and John Meserve at Back river, Dover, were burned over last Friday, the flames spreading from a pile of burning rubbish. Over a hundred men, women and children fought the fire with brush, shovels, hoes and axes, but it was not conquered until it had gone over about seventy-five acres of grass land and twenty-five of young pine growth, and deseroyed several miles of good slat fence. Damage $400 or more.

The barn of Sedley Grant, situated in South Berwick, near the Eliot line, was burned on the afternoon of Sunday, April 29th, with its contents, consisting of farming tools, etc. Loss $400; insurance $200, in Kittery & Eliot Mutual Co.

On Sunday, April 29th, Luther Ham and wife of Eliot had been out to ride, and coming back hitched the horse outside the barn with intention of going again. A few moments later smoke was seen issuing from the building, which was in flames on the inside. The neighbors gathered, but were unable to save any of the farm tools or other things in the barn. The loss on the barn and contents will be about $500. The flames caught the district school house close by, and burned two holes through the roof and peeled off the paint, but the building was saved. It will take $300 to repair the damage. How the fire caught is unknown. No insurance.

In view of the death of Mr. Albert J. Badger, the ladies of the Universalist society will omit this month's usual social meeting.

The superintendent of the fire alarm, not being satisfied with the working of the apparatus yesterday, will test a portion of the same to-day, to remedy some trouble in the bell striker.

The Sunday school of the Court street Christian church will give a concert in their church this (Wednesday) evening. It will consist of singing, recitations, dialogues, etc. Admission ten cents.

Lewis E. Staples offers for this week the bargain of the season. One case all wool fancy mix dress goods at 33cts. These goods have never been sold for less than fifty cents.

Five shares of Portsmouth Gas Light Co.'s stock for sale. For terms apply to Ilsley & Moore, No. 3 Pleasant street.

Benjamin Green, for six years past clerk in Capt. Jos. H. Thacher's drug store on Market square, has purchased the business and stock.

Dr. Gage and Associate Physicians, and Their Great Work.

Probably no physician in New England is better and more favorably known, says a New Hampshire exchange, than is Dr. Gage, the gifted specialist, who has treated more than fifteen thousand patients in this state, the announcement of his visits each month being the signal for a grand rally of a multitude of invalids. His success is indeed phenomenal and the reports of marvellous cures would fill this entire paper, the like of which was never known in the history of medical practice. The following is a fair sample:

Mr. Editor: A few months ago my daughter was laying at the point of death. She had a complication of troubles, a terrible cough, raising an immense quantity, a discharging sore upon her hip which rendered her perfectly helpless. Our family physician gave us no hope, but with a mother's will and determination to save her perishing child if possible, I hastened to consult Dr. Gage. Although he did not see her he nevertheless understood the case and his remedies have wrought a miracle—almost—by restoring my child to perfect health. I thank God that I consulted Dr. Gage.

Mrs. B. F. WILSON,
Derry Depot, N. H.

Mrs. Orwin Webber, Bedford, N. H., a cripple and on crutches 14 years with terrible ulcers on her limbs; soundly cured.—Geo. H. Stevens, North Lyndeboro, N. H., cured of terrible burning and itching humor which covered the entire body.—Mrs. Wm. E. Russ, North Hartland, Vt., given up by counsel, with a large ovarian tumor, heart disease and dropsy; perfectly cured and tumor disappeared. Doctor did not see her.—Oliver Pelren, Concord, N. H., wife cured of ovarian and female difficulties after she had been made worse by the usual treatment.—C. L. Buffum, North Monroe, helpless with spinal disease, involving liver, kidneys and bladder; perfectly cured and the Doctor did not see him.—Isaac Bullock, Londonderry, N. H., son cured of discharging ears and deafness.—Mrs. A. L. Coty, West Andover, N. H., given up in the last stage of consumption; is now well.—Mrs L. A. Sawyer, Keene, N. H., terrible bleeding from lungs; cured.—Amos Young, Derry Depot, N. H., catarrhal cancer a hole through roof of mouth; cured.—Miss Lizzie Williams, 76 Blodgett st., Manchester, N. H., blindness cured.—Dr. Levi B. Dodge, Waterloo, Vt., kidney disease with frequent hemorrhages; given up by counsel; cured, and the Doctor did not see him.—Thomas Tuke, Levi Burr, Madison, N. H., and hundreds of other cases, cured of nervous debility in its various stages.—Mrs. J. E. Fields, Milford, N. H., cured of a complication of female difficulties after she had doctored 9 years with others.—Son of W. B. Pill, Plaistedd, N. H., was a most terrible case of heart disease, dropsy and epileptic fits; got well, went to work and has not had a fit for two years.—G. Ambrose, No. Londonderry, N. H., cured of cancer.—C. C. Hall, Boscawen, N. H., cured of cancer.—C. B. Marshall, Nashua, N. H., son cured of epileptic fits.

Remember their appointments: Exeter, Gorham Hall, Monday, May 7th; Rochester, Dodge's Hotel, Tuesday, May 8th; Farmington, Wilson House, Wednesday, May 9th; Great Falls, Hotel, Thursday, May 10th; Dover, American House, Friday, May 11th; Portsmouth, Rockingham House, Saturday, May 12th. 2taw,d,G,taug1

A new flag has been furnished the collector of the port by the department at Washington, to fly from the custom house staff. The old one was in a used-up state long ago.

Mr. Wallis, the Congress street baker, has had his bakery and bread shop connected by telephone. Mr. Tilton, shoemakaker on Hanover street, has taken Mr. Wallis' former bread shop, and will occupy it for the shoemaking and repairing business; the old oven is to be taken down by Mr. A. Brackett Trefethen.

The Dover Point house is not to be opened to the public this season, Mr. D. C. Wiggin, who for a number of summers past ran it, having given it up and removed to Dover.

The ship Smyrna was sunk in a collision with the steamer Moto off the Isle of Wight, April 29th, and thirteen persons were drowned.

Three missing schooners, which were seen off the coast just before the great blizzard and have not been heard from since, have been given up for lost, with their crews. These vessels are the William G. Lewis, which sailed from Newport News on February 28th for Boston; the John F. Merrow, from Baltimore to Providence; and the Rachel Collins, from Norfolk to Philadelphia. The crews numbered over fifty men, and the vessels with their cargoes were estimated to be worth over $150,000.

PROPOSALS FOR HEAD STONES.—New York Depot of the Quartermaster's Department, Houston Street, corner Greenwich, New York City, April 18, 1888. Sealed proposals, in triplicate, subject to usual conditions, will be received at this office until 12 o'clock M. June 1, 1888, at which time and place they will be opened in the presence of bidders, for furnishing from 4,000 to 5,000 American White Marble Head Stones, in slabs. The government reserves the right to reject any or all proposals, or to accept as may be most advantageous to the department. Preference given to articles of domestic production and manufacture, conditions of price and quality being equal, and such preference given to articles of American production and manufacture produced on the Pacific coast to the extent of the consumption required by the public service there. Specifications, blanks and information as to bidding, &c., will be furnished by this office on application. Envelopes containing proposal should be marked "Proposals for Head Stones," and be addressed to the undersigned, J. G. CHANDLER, Lieut. Col. and Deputy Quartermaster General, United States Army. my1,2,3,4,25,26

THE average "silver polish" is a strong chemical compound, that will, in a short time, destroy the finish of every article it is used upon. If you would have your silver retain its brightness, clean it with IVORY SOAP and hot water; use a soft brush for cleaning the chased and ornamental work, then rub with a dry chamois, and your silver will be as bright as new.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

TO HOUSEKEEPERS.

The time of year is at hand when it is customary to take up carpets, clean paint, and thoroughly prepare the house for the summer season. Let us suggest that you sprinkle a small quantity of

PRESTON'S INSECT POWDER

Under the carpet; it would be a wonderful preventive against moths, and for packing away winter clothing is preferred by many to camphor. Then if you pour a few teaspoonfuls of

PRESTON'S FAMILY AMMONIA

Into a gallon of water, and clean with this your paint, we are sure you will be gratified with the result.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS.

Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all GRAND & UPRIGHT pianos. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO VENEER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

THIS PAPER is on file in Philadelphia at the Newspaper Advertising Agency of Messrs. N. W. AYER & SON, our authorized agents.

The body of an unknown man, about thirty-five years of age, was discovered in a field about a quarter of a mile from Sudbury Centre, Mass., Saturday afternoon, by Nelson Fairbank, a farmer of Sudbury. The body was lying near a stone wall, about twenty feet from Saxonville road, and it is thought that death resulted from exposure during the blizzard of last March. It was attired in a neat thick winter suit of clothes, with button boots, without an overcoat or head covering, and was in a good state of preservation. In the pockets were discovered $3 in paper money, a new "Old English" razor, a clay pipe, a red cotton handkerchief and a figured cotton collar marked "C. A. S., 235."

Intense indignation has been aroused throughout New Brunswick by the action of the supreme court judges in sentencing John T. Hawke, editor of the Moncton Transcript to imprisonment for two months and a fine of $200 for criticising the acts and conduct of some of the judges of the bench. Hawke, who is fighting for the liberty of the press, has expressed his determination to lie in jail until his bones rot before he will apologize or pay the fine. John V. Ellis, editor of the Globe and a member of parliament from St. John city, has also been adjudged guilty of contempt by the New Brunswick supreme court, and is to be sentenced in June. The Globe says editorially that the supreme court of New Brunswick practically undertakes to do what the Queen of England cannot—punish one of her majesty's subjects by fine or imprisonment by her own mere motion.

The "Pale Faces."

This is the generic designation of the white race bestowed by our copper-colored brother, the "noble savage." The Caucasian, though many shades lighter, is not necessarily pallid. But when his cuticle has the parchment-colored tint, and his cheeks the hollowness indicative of a want of bodily stamina, he well deserves the appellation of "pale face." These facial indications should suggest a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, an acknowledged rehabilitator of a failing strength and renewer of bodily substance. It is derived exclusively from botanic sources—is pure and efficient. Its invigorating action is prompt, thorough and speedily felt. Can the like be said of most tonics? Scarcely. Appetite, as sequent discomfort, is renewed by it, and it fortifies the system against malaria and rheumatism, and remedies nervousness and kidney complaints.

At Chicago, Ill., some fifteen conductors of street cars have been discharged for "beating" the companies. They were in the habit of using a bell called the "brother-in-law," and it is alleged that one conductor stole as much as $6 a day.

To turn gray hair to its natural color and beauty, use Halls' Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer, the best and most reliable preparation science has given us.

Four steamships Saturday landed 8990 immigrants at Castle Garden, New York. The number landed during the week ending Sunday is 21,772, of whom one third were from Italy.

I have been a sufferer from catarrh for the past eight years. Having tried a number of remedies advertised as "sure cures" without obtaining any relief, I had resolved never to take any other patient medicines, when a friend advised me to try Ely's Cream Balm. I did so with great reluctance, but can testify with great pleasure that after using it for six weeks I believed myself cured. It is a most agreeable remedy—an invaluable Balm.—Joseph Stewart, 624 Grand Ave., Brooklyn.

The Handsomest Lady in Portsmouth

Remarked to a friend the other day that she knew Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs was a superior remedy, as it stopped her cough instantly when other cough remedies had no effect whatever. So to prove this and convince you of its merit, any druggist will give you a sample bottle free. Large size 50c and $1.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. mon,wed,fri,qu41

OH! MY HEAD.

The pain from Neuralgia and its companion disease Rheumatism is excruciating. Thousands who could be quickly cured are needlessly suffering. Ath-lo-pho-ros will do for others what it did for the following parties:

Williamsport, Ind., Oct. 3, 1887.

Having been afflicted with neuralgia for the past four years, and trying almost everything, but in vain, I finally heard of Athlophoros. After taking one bottle I found it to be helping me, and after taking four bottles of Athlophoros and one of Pills, I found that I was cured. I recommend the medicine is positively a sure cure.

The cows were killed by lightning. Most of the farm implements and household furniture were saved. Loss about $4000; nearly covered by insurance.

The "Pale Faces."

This is the generic designation of the white race bestowed by our copper-colored brother, the "noble savage." The Caucasian, though many shades lighter, is not necessarily pallid. But when his cuticle has the parchment-colored tint, and his cheeks the hollowness indicative of a want of bodily stamina, he well deserves the appellation of "pale face." These facial indications should suggest a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, an acknowledged rehabilitator of a failing strength and renewer of bodily substance. It is derived exclusively from botanic sources—is pure and efficient. Its invigorating action is prompt, thorough and speedily felt. Can the like be said of most tonics? Scarcely. Appetite, as sequent discomfort, is renewed by it, and it fortifies the system against malaria and rheumatism, and remedies nervousness and kidney complaints.

Jonas G. Howard, the democratic Indiana congressman who is charged with appropriating to his own use $78,000 belonging to his insane ward, has given up $125,000 worth of real estate to be sold to settle the claim.

That feeling of weariness, so often experienced in the spring, results from a sluggish condition of the blood which, being impure, does not quicken with the changing season. Ayer's Sarsaparilla, by vitalizing and cleansing the blood, strengthens and invigorates the system.

The leap year privilege is said to be 650 years old, having been established in 1228 by an act of the Scottish parliament, in these words: "During the reign of her blessed majesty (Margaret) every maiden lady of both high and low degree shall have liberty to speak to the man she likes. If he refuses to take her to be his wife he shall be mulct in the sum of one hundred pounds or less, as his estate may be, except and always if he can make it appear that he is betrothed to another woman, then he shall be free."

The Population of Portsmouth

"A GREEN OLD AGE."

How Men or Women Reach It, But Nearly All Might—The Remarkable Experience of an Octogenarian.

"There is only one thing I dread," said the late Charles Sumner, "and that is the coming on of old age."

Mr. Sumner was a brave man, and could face danger unflinchingly but to watch the hairs whiten, the lines of pain and care grow deep in the face, to feel the strength and activity going and death coming on. Were more than he could bear. Alas! how many others feel the same today. Pains, loss of sleep, weakness, poor appetite, and feebleness, all break the spirit. Have you never heard of Mr. Nathan Chase, of New Redford, Mass.? A man nearly four score years old, and hale and hearty as in youth. And yet he was supposed to be dying of heart trouble less than two years ago. Here is what he says:

"A year ago or more I began to lose flesh and strength. I sent for my physician to know the cause. He examined me, and said it was my heart; that the old machinery was wearing out, and I must be careful. Still I grew worse. Finally I got so bad I could scarcely breathe; I could not lie in bed but had to sit up all night with possibly one hour's sleep out of twenty-four. And yet to-day, I am in fine condition; can go up three flights of stairs without inconvenience, and feel as well and about as young as ever in my life before. What accomplished this? Hunt's Remedy—nothing else. It has made a new man of me, and I bless God for it every day."

Such an experience should be a valuable lesson to all readers, both old and young. It shows that a long and happy life is possible. It shows that men or women need not despond. It shows that by care and the use of the right remedy health, happiness and long life may be secured by all.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

CURE Sick Headache and relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state of the system, such as Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Distress after eating, Pain in the Side, &c. While their most remarkable success has been shown in curing

SICK HEADACHE, yet Carter's Little Liver Pills are equally valuable in Constipation, curing and preventing this annoying complaint, while they also correct all disorders of the stomach, stimulate the liver and regulate the bowels. Even if they only cured

HEAD ACHE they would be almost priceless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all sick head

ACHE is the bane of so many lives that here is where we make our great boast. Our pills cure it while others do not.

Carter's Little Liver Pills are very small and very easy to take. One or two pills make a dose. They are strictly vegetable and do not gripe or purge, but by their gentle action please all who use them. In vials at 25 cents; five for $1. Sold by druggists everywhere, or sent by mail.

ANCIENT LAKE BONNEVILLE.

Great Salt Lake the Largest Survivor of an Ancient Inland Sea.

The largest of the ancient lakes at present known is Lake Bonneville, the second in size has been named Lake Lahontan. Lake Bonneville was situated on the east border of the Great Basin, principally in Utah, and extended from a few miles north of the Utah-Idaho boundary 350 miles southward. It flooded all the valley of Great Salt lake, together with the Sevier and Escalante deserts in southern Utah. It was 125 miles broad and 1,000 feet deep, where Great Salt lake is now situated. The site of the temple at Salt Lake City was then submerged 850 feet.

Lake Bonneville overflowed northward and became tributary to Snake river, which flows into the Columbia. At various stages its waves and currents formed terraces and gravel bars on the mountain slopes which confined it. These still remain as fresh and perfect as when they were formed, and are in part the records from which the geologist has been able to determine the history of the ancient lake. We know that it rose with many fluctuations until it had a depth of about 900 feet, but did not overflow. Then a change of climate caused it to contract its borders, and possibly to become completely desiccated. In the lower stages of this desiccation it was broken into separate water bodies, which must have been more or less saline.

Another great climatic change caused the basin to be refilled to a higher level than before and to overflow. The water found an outlet at the north end of Cache valley, Idaho, and, as we have said, became tributary to the Columbia. The lake continued to overflow until the waters had cut down their outlet 370 feet. During this period, unless there were some peculiar conditions near the point of discharge, the lake must have been fresh. The discharge of the lake was finally stopped by a climatic change which lowered its surface below the bottom of the outlet, and again the basin became partly if not wholly desiccated. This second low water period has continued to the present day, and Great Salt and Sevier lakes are the representatives of ancient Bonneville.

The largest of these representatives of the ancient sea is Great Salt lake. In 1850 it covered 1,750 and in 1869 2,166 square miles. Its maximum depth is about fifty feet and its mean depth approximately fifteen feet. These recent changes in area are due to small variations in climate, similar in character to the changes which produced the great expansions and contractions of the lake in ancient times. With change in volume there is change in density; that is, the strength of the brine increases with decreased area, and decreases when the lake expands. In 1850 its waters contained about twenty-two parts, by weight, of saline matter in solution to 100 parts of water. In 1869 the saline matter had decreased to a little less than 15 and in 1873 to a little more than 14 per cent. This change in salinity was accompanied by increased area.

The waters of the ocean contain 3-10 per cent. of total salts in solution. Great Salt lake, therefore, in 1850, was six times as saline as the ocean. Like the ocean, too, it holds many substances in solution; the principal ones are common salt, or sodium chloride, and sodium sulphate; besides these there are small percentages of potassium, magnesium, etc.

The influence of temperature on the solubility of certain saline substances is well illustrated by this dead sea of Utah. In summer its waters are clear and transparent, but as cold weather comes on it becomes milky or opalescent, owing to the precipitation of sodium sulphate in an extremely fine condition. In the depth of winter, when the temperature of the atmosphere above the lake falls far below freezing, an immense quantity of sodium sulphate is precipitated and is thrown ashore by the waves until thousands of tons accumulate on the beach. When the temperature rises, the salt thus precipitated is again dissolved. This natural process of fractional crystallization produced by a lowering of temperature, is instructive, and should suggest to those who are attempting to manufacture salt in Utah a practical method of treating the natural brines in order to obtain common salt free from sodium sulphate. Lake Sevier is also highly saline, and during the arid season sometimes evaporates to dryness. —Israel C. Russell in Overland Monthly.

Senator Stanford's $100,000 Tomb.

The architect who planned the magnificent mausoleum of Senator Stanford at San Francisco says that it will be the most elaborate repository for the dead ever built in this country. In style of architecture the simple but effective methods of the ancient Egyptians will be followed. Massive imperishable granite, of a light shade of gray, with an interior lining of the finest Italian marble, will be employed. The item of expense has not been considered, the designers being given carte blanche as to cost and directed to secure the best of material and workmanship to be had.

The total outlay necessary to complete the tomb and prepare the surroundings will reach $100,000, and may considerably exceed that amount. The item of transportation alone will be a large one, as the granite will all be shipped from Vermont and the marble from Italy. The site selected is a beautiful four acre plot in the senator's grounds, just outside of San Francisco. It already contains handsome shrubbery, and occupies an altitude commanding a magnificent view of the bay. A driveway sixty feet wide will be made, circling around a slight elevation, on the brow of which will be the tomb. The art of the landscape gardener will be employed to beautify the approaches and render even more effective the vistas of the park.—New York Mail and Express.

GRAND

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

— TO THE —

People of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont.

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co., having completed their purchases for

THIS SPRING'S STOCK,

respectfully request a call from all those interested in the Furnishing and Beautifying their Homes. And we would further request that those near our Bangor Store, located on Union street, opposite the Bangor House, should call on our Manager, Mr. A. J. Morey. And those living on the line of the Knox & Lincoln R. R., in the vicinity of Rockland, we would respectfully request to call at our Store on Main street, formerly the old Linde Hotel, Mr. W. A. Kimball, manager. And again, to those who are nearest our Auburn Store, located on Main street, Mr. J. J. Emerson the Manager, will attend to your every want in House Furnishings. And to those living at Kennebunk, Kennebunkport and Old Orchard, and towns adjacent to Biddeford, we would respectfully request them to call at our Store at the Corner of Alfred and Bacon streets, Mr. Henry P. Atkinson, Manager. While to those who prefer to select from our Mammoth Stock, we would say come to our Store and Headquarters at the

Cor. of Middle and Pearl Streets.

In each of these Stores we carry complete lines of furnishings which we will sell for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. Of course we prefer to make cash sales when we can, but at the same time it has always been our aim and object to satisfy everyone of our customers to the uttermost, whether they wished to buy for cash or otherwise. This is the House Cleaning season of the year. Old Carpets must give place to New, Old Chamber Sets should be replaced by those of later design. Parlor Suits that have been in use for some time are often moved into the sitting room, making room for the new Parlor Suit. That Range that you have been using for many years, perhaps takes more coal to run it to get the desired work from it than a new one would, consequently making you a loss every day. Now we will sell you from the very largest stocks at Lowest Prices than you can buy elsewhere; and we will sell them to you for cash or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. Write for samples.

CARPETS,

Chamber Sets

We have an enormous quantity in each of our Stores. Ask your neighbors who have seen them, and they will testify to our almost endless variety, and we will Sell you Cheaper than you can buy elsewhere. We mean what we say, for all cash, quarter cash, or balance by the week or month. Write us for cuts, photographs and prices. Orders through the mail promptly attended to.

Parlor Suits

In all the Stores in Endless Variety, and a stock of 356 full Suits at our Headquarters. Prices from $31 to $400, all cash, or quarter cash, and balance by the week or month. Write us for photographs, cuts and prices.

KITCHEN RANGES

In all our Stores you will find the Quaker, New Tariff and First National, besides a host of others, but to those who wish a good range we recommend the Quaker and the New Tariff; also the First National, for a lower priced one. We have them all the way up to $50, and we sell you a range for cash, or for $10 down and the balance by the week or month. Do not delay ordering. We would rather have the range in your house than in our store house, and let you take your time to pay for it.

Window Shades and Drapery Curtains.

Write us for Cuts, Catalogues and Prices of this Celebrated Refrigerator, and do not delay buying because hot weather will be upon us, and you will regret it. And please remember that Mr. Morey, manager of the Bangor store; Mr. Kimball, manager of the Rockland store; Mr. Emerson, manager of the Auburn store; and Mr. Atkinson, manager of the Biddeford store, will each show you a complete line of house furnishings and give you the same terms as would be given at the Headquarters at Portland. All goods will be delivered Freight Prepaid at your depot, and at each one of these stores you will receive the most Honorable Treatment Possible To Give A Customer, whether you wish to buy for cash, or per cash, and the balance on time.

Respectfully,
The Public's Obedient Servants,

The Atkinson House Furnishing COMPANY.

Headquarters Cor. Pearl and Middle Sts., Portland, and Branches as above quoted.

Do not pay long prices when you can get goods from us and save money. If you come nothing to look, and very little to write about it is an easy matter to inform yourself.

ISAAC C. ATKINSON, Gen. Manager.

A Great Battle

Is continually going on in the human system. The demon of impure blood strives to gain victory over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave. A good reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla is the weapon with which to defend one's self, drive the desperate enemy from the field, and restore peace and bodily health for many years. Try this peculiar medicine.

The union carpenters of Waltham, Mass., struck May 1st for nine hours a day, and $2.50 wages. The building business being very active, many of the contractors and builders at once yielded the point.

Marshall Hall's

Ready method in drowning, as to what to do and how to do it, will be found in Dr. Kaufmann's Medical Work; fine colored plates from life. Send three 2 cent stamps, to pay postage, to A. P. Ordway & Co., Boston, Mass., and receive a copy free.

The strike on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad was declared "off" May 1st. It was dead from the start. The strikers can now seek work elsewhere, their former places being filled.

Delicate Children, Nursing

Mothers, overworked men and for all diseases where the tissues are wasting away from the inability to digest food, or from overwork; should take Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites. "I used the Emulsion on a lady who was delicate. It put her in such good health and flesh, that I must say it is the best Emulsion."—L. P. Waddell, M. D., Hugh's Mills, S. C.

Democratic National Delegates.

The first congressional district democratic convention, in Concord on the 1st inst., chose Miah B. Sullivan of Dover and Geo. Byron Chandler of Manchester as delegates to the St. Louis convention, with Daniel Marcy of this city and John F. Cloutman of Farmington as alternates.

The second district convention chose William S. Ladd of Lancaster and George B. Williams of Walpole as delegates, and John W. Dodge of Enfield and Walter S. Carr of Andover as alternates.

The reports say "All the delegates are for Cleveland." This reminds us of the Dutchman whose wife had recently died, and who, on being asked if she was resigned, replied: "Resigned! Thunder! She had to be."

The Country Week.

The Boston Young Men's Christian Union has issued the thirteenth annual report of the "Country Week," a charity which has for its object to give summer vacations of about ten days' duration to the poor children of Boston, and, in certain cases, to adults.

Since the inauguration of the work in 1874, 20,272 persons have enjoyed its privileges. The number sent out during the first season was 160; and there has been a steady increase from that time until last year, when 2,433 children and 326 adults were recorded, the average expense for each visitor being $2.18 per week.

Many towns in New England entertained these little visitors; and the report which gives their list, with much other matter of interest respecting details of the work, will be sent to any one desiring it upon application to the Union. Any of our readers who may desire to help in this good work by offering the hospitality of their country homes to one or more of the children, can, by writing to "Ellen H. Bailey, Secretary, Country Week Committee, Boston Young Men's Christian Union, 18 Boylston street, Boston, Mass.," receive all needed information.

Subscriptions for the season of 1888 are now being received, and should be sent to Wm. H. Baldwin, President Boston Young Men's Christian Union, 18 Boylston street, Boston.

He Should Have Done It Long Ago.

The New York Herald of May 2d prints a double-leaded Washington special declaring that if the senate rejects the fishery treaty and the Canadians continue to annoy American fishermen, it is likely that the president will issue a proclamation under the retaliation act passed by the last Congress, and lay an embargo on Canadian goods.

Eliot Items.

ELIOT, ME., May 1st.

Beautiful spring, which has so long been looked for, seems to have arrived at last. The few warm days that we had last week made the trees put forth their buds, and started the grass so that the fields are beginning to assume the lovely tint of green which is so refreshing after the weary stretches of wintry white.

Mrs. Wm. A. Lydston and son returned home on Friday, April 27th, from East Somerville, Mass., where she has been passing the winter with her daughter, Mrs. L. S. Remick.

Mrs. W. H. Staples and daughter returned home Friday from a short visit to her mother in Boston.

The schools in districts six and eight commenced their sessions on Monday. Mrs. Anna B. Spinney is teaching in district six, and Miss Laura V. Dame in district eight.

A special town meeting was called for Friday, April 27th, to see what could be done in regard to a free high school, but the people seemed very much opposed to it, and those in its favor did not have a chance to express their opinion, as a motion was at the start made, seconded and carried, to adjourn until the regular March meeting.

Melville Dixon is having a new house erected close by his blacksmith shop, next to the town house.

Mrs. J. W. Wherren returned home on Monday from Salem, Mass., where she has been passing the winter with her husband, who is employed in the car shops of the Boston & Maine railroad, and is a skillful workman. It will seem cheerful to see Mrs. Wherren's house open again.

Elder William P. Israel preached his farewell sermon to the Advent people on Sunday last; there was a very full attendance on the occasion.

A. W. Wingate will pass a short time at home from his journeyings in the northern and eastern portions of the state as an agent of the New England Farmer. Mr. Wingate has a very fine residence on Bolt hill, and takes much pleasure and pride in improving it.

A May party was given in the town hall on Tuesday evening by the children of the Eliot Library Association. Lillian A. Dame was the May Queen, and other misses represented different flowers. There was singing and other exercises, after which delicious ice cream and cake were served. We were much pleased with the entertainment the children gave, and hope they may at some time not too far distant favor us with another similar experience. HARRY.

The Present Dangerous Season.

It is the most dangerous time of our year. We are assailed by strong temptations in the form of warm breezes and occasional foretastes of summer heat to change our thick clothing for that of lighter weight; to linger for a few minutes upon a chilly corner, to discuss matters with a friend; or to let furnace fires go out—it is really so warm. When the frost is coming out of the ground, it has a power of imparting a chilliness to feet that even winter's ice did not possess; or perhaps the thick boots and overshoes have been laid aside—spring is really here, you know.

All such things make these May days dangerous, and the "American" warns its readers to exercise double care during this month. No underclothing should be changed in weight, no matter what temporary aberrations thermometers may show in upward leaps, and an overcoat is quite as necessary as in January. It need not be worn continually, but it should be as constant a companion as the hat.—Dr. W. F. Hutchinson, in the American Magazine for May.

Preston's Flavoring Extracts are perfectly pure, and of great strength.

The Illustrated London News tells of a fatal accident in elephant hunting, by which the youngest son of the late Mr. Herbert Ingram, M. P. for Boston, and founder of the News, has lost his life. This disaster took place near Berbera, on the east cost of Africa, where Mr. Walter Ingram had gone from Aden on a hunting expedition. He was killed by an elephant which had been wounded by a shot from the hunters.

The First Symptoms

Of all Lung diseases are much the same: feverishness, loss of appetite, sore throat, pains in the chest and back, headache, etc. In a few days you may be well, or, on the other hand, you may be down with Pneumonia or "galloping Consumption." Run no risks, but begin immediately to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Several years ago, James Birchard, of Darien, Conn., was severely ill. The doctors said he was in Consumption, and that they could do nothing for him, but advised him, as a last resort, to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. After taking this medicine, two or three months, he was pronounced a well man. His health remains good to the present day.

J. S. Bradley, Malden, Mass., writes: "Three winters ago I took a severe cold, which rapidly developed into Bronchitis and Consumption. I was so weak that I could not sit up, was much emaciated, and coughed incessantly. I consulted several doctors, but they were powerless, and all agreed that I was in Consumption. At last, a friend brought me a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. From the first dose, I found relief. Two bottles cured me, and my health has since been perfect."

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

Spring Medicine

Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most popular and successful Spring Medicine.

Nearly every body needs a reliable spring medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla to expel the impurities which have accumulated in the blood during the winter, to keep up strength as the warm weather comes on, create an appetite and promote healthy digestion. Try Hood's Sarsaparilla this spring and you will be convinced that it does possess superior and peculiar merit.

A Good Appetite

"When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was dizzy in the morning, had a headache, and no appetite; but now I can hardly get enough cooked to eat." EMMA SHEPARD, 1 Coral Street, Worcester, Mass.

"Last spring my whole family took Hood's Sarsaparilla. The result is that all have been cured of scrofula, my little boy being entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy as possibly can be. I have found Hood's Sarsaparilla good for catarrh." WM. B. ATHERTON, Passaic City, N. J.

Be Sure to Get Hood's

Sarsaparilla, my child. See that they do not give you anything else. You remember it is the medicine which did mama so much good a year ago—so reliable, beneficial, pleasant to take—my favorite spring medicine.

Music Hall.

An excellent audience occupied Music hall on Wednesday afternoon, the 2d inst., when the Lillie Alberstrom company presented Miss Alberstrom's deservedly successful play "Annette, the Dancing Girl." The audience was composed largely of ladies and children, who were delighted with the entertainment. In the evening another large audience witnessed the repetition of the play.

E. L. Duane and Edwin Varney, two excellent actors formerly connected with the company, but for some time past playing elsewhere, rejoined the organization the first of the week, adding a marked degree of strength to it.

This evening, for the first time in this city, the drama "Peggy" will be presented.

Parish Meeting.

At the annual meeting of the South Parish, held this week, the following-named gentlemen were elected officers for the ensuing year:

Wardens, William H. Sise, Justin V. Hanscom, William W. Cotton, John W. Parsons, A. Coburn Hoyt;

Trustees of the South Parish Charity Fund, William H. Sise, George T. Vaughan;

Parish Clerk, Geo. Ralph Laighton.

WEDNESDAY, May 2d.

Simon G. Smith, drunk, thirty days at Brentwood, costs $6.90.

Another person, for assaulting his wife while inebriated, was given thirty days in Brentwood, with $5.76 costs.

Shocking Irreverence.

The New York Tribune says: "Ex-Congressman Frank Jones of New Hampshire, the big beer brewer, who has charge of President Cleveland's interests in that part of New England, was in New York recently, having come from a visit to the president in Washington. He had evidently talked with the occupant of the White House on the subject of the tariff, for he was full of free trade talk and denunciation of the 'nincompoops' who occupy seats in Congress. According to his notion the average member of Congress knows as little about business as a blacksmith does about the jeweller's art. This sort of talk from a warm administration man bears in it a reflex of the disgust that President Cleveland feels because his party has ignored his attempted dictation and leadership. When Frank Jones was asked about the chances of the president carrying any New England state he said it was not a question that could be answered until the canvass was begun, and he went on to denounce the trusts in which so many of his fellow-democrats are interested and which contributed so heavily to Cleveland's campaign fund four years ago."

Rockingham County Sunday School Convention.

The thirteenth annual session of the Rockingham County Sunday School association is to be held in the First Congregational church at Exeter on Tuesday, May 18th. The officers of the association for the present term are as follows:

B. R. Jewell, Esq., of South Hampton, president; Rev. Charles Tenney of Chester, Rev. D. W. Dowse of Greenland, vice presidents; Dea. Frank R. Drake of North Hampton, secretary and treasurer; Rev. G. E. Street of Exeter, Rev. C. L. Pinkham of Northwood, Rev. J. D. Folsom of Epping, Rev. L. W. Phillips of Rye and Rev. W. A. McGinley of Portsmouth, executive committee.

Each Sunday school in the county is entitled to business representation by pastor, superintendent and two delegates; for convention purposes, all Sunday school workers are earnestly invited to be present. The basket collation plan, which proved so satisfactory last year, will be continued at this session; the Exeter people will provide tea and coffee for the visitors.

The order of exercises for the convention is as follows:

FORENOON.

9:30. Devotional exercises, conducted by Rev. G. E. Street.

9:45. Words of welcome.

9:55. "How shall our Sunday School scholars be induced to study their lessons before coming to the class?" Rev. Lee H. Fisher, of Portsmouth; Rev. F. E. White, of Newmarket.

10:30. Report of secretary.

11:00. Business, — appointments of committees, etc.

11:10. Address, by Rev. Smith Baker, of Lowell, Mass.; "How shall the Sunday School secure the attendance of the children and youth? their conversion to Christ? their growth in Christian character?"

12:15. Notices; adjournment.

AFTERNOON.

1:30. Praise service.

1:45. Essay, by Rev. C. S. Nutter, of Exeter, "Sunday School Hymnology."

2:15. Business, report of committees, choice of officers.

2:30. Address, by Miss Semantha C. Merrill, of Derry, "The Teachers' Class."

3:00. "Best methods of temperance work in Sunday schools," Rev. J. A. Ross, of Hampton; Rev. L. W. Phillips, of Rye.

3:30. "The Bible a pre-eminent educator," by Rev. J. A. Lowell, of Danville, Rev. W. K. Davey, of South Hampton.

4:00. Question box, Rev. Smith Baker.

4:45. Closing words, by President Jewell.

The May Day Festival.

The May Day festival given in Franklin theatre and hall on the evening of the 1st inst., in aid of the Children's Home, was an entire success in all points save one. The tableaux were the best ever presented here, at least within our memory, and Mr. Pickard's explanatory remarks were so interesting as to be alone worth more than the trifling price of admission. Crowning the May Queen; a picnic scene; "the maiden's choice;" scenes from "Faust;" a scene from "the Mikado;" and the "Congress of Nations," were each and all pleasing in a very high degree, most careful attention having been paid to details, and the stage setting being appropriate. The music by Miss Flora Hayes of Kittery, the Orpheus Quartette and the Music Hall orchestra was of course excellent. The dance in Franklin hall which followed the stage performance in the theatre was also a very pleasant affair, and the ice cream and cake were all that could be asked. The one point in which the affair failed of complete success was in the attendence, the receipts but little more than covering the expenses.

Personal.

John P. Hanson has been commissioned postmaster at Dover Point, vice C. D. Wiggin, resigned.

Mr. Stephen Hill of Kittery, for many years fireman on the steamer Emerald, died on the 2d inst. after a long and painful illness.

Collector Page has appointed Charles F. Richards of this city a deputy collector of internal revenue for the district of New Hampshire.

Mrs. W. C. Walker, wife of Mr. Walker of the Rockingham house staff, arrived in this city on Wednesday of this week from Andover, Mass.

Concerning the congressman from this district, an item of personal gossip now going the rounds of the press says: "Congressman McKinney of New Hampshire says he has never tasted a drop of liquor or beer in his life." Robinson Crusoe may not have had a very hilarious sociable time on his island, but Bro. McKinney must be much more lonesome in Congress. And then what a lot of fun he hasn't had, some folks will say.

Base Ball.

New England League games, May 1st: Worcester 12, Portland 3, at Worcester; Salem 12, Lowell 7, at Salem.

In a base ball game at New York on Sunday April 29th, Jacob Hatch, nineteen years old, acted as umpire. One of his decisions caused a row, and a free fight ensued. The poor umpire was unmercifully pounded, and his recovery is doubtful.

The children of the Juvenile Temple will have a social party and refreshments at Rechabite hall to-night. Admission ten cents.

The "tripe factory" in Deering, Me., was burned on the night of April 30th. If that was the place where they made tripe out of old rubber boot legs, of which we saw on a particularly enduring sample a couple of weeks ago, we are glad it's burned.

The schooner Frances Ellen, belonging to Mr. Charles S. Downe, went up river on Tuesday, the 1st inst. to load with bricks for Boston at a Durham brickyard. This is the vessel which was wrecked last year at Rye harbor, and afterward got off and towed in here.

Mr. Henry E. Dixey, supported by Rice & Dixey's Big Burlesque Co. of sixty performers, will appear in Music hall next Tuesday evening in the famous burlesque "Adonis," with the same cast as in New York and Boston, and new and magnificent scenic accessories. Prices 35, 50, 75 cents, and $1.00.

If the "counsel for the defence" really wrote the resolutions he read to the democratic convention on Tuesday of this week, he has improved on Harry Bingham's verbosity. The "Director" has acquired at least one kind of information in serving the Brewing Co. He is a good condenser.

Lewis E. Staples offers for this week the bargain of the season. One case all wool fancy mix dress goods at 33cts. These goods have never been sold for less than fifty cents.

The Nautical Farmer of South road, who is usually able to extract whatever consolation is to be extracted from circumstances which to persons of less philosophic mind seem hopelessly annoying or entirely detrimental, is just now rejoicing over the backwardness of spring, which has brought things around so that just as he is getting ready to plant his garden, his small but highly select flock of three hens have all taken to setting, and won't know anything about the garden being made until all chance of scratching things to pieces and eating all the seeds is gone. He says there would be a good deal less grumbling in this world if people would only look at things in the proper light.

Five shares of Portsmouth Gas Light Co.'s stock for sale. For terms apply to Disley & Moore, No. 3 Pleasant street.

Mr. Charles Merrill has started a new brickyard on Sturgeon creek, Eliot.

Rice's and Sewall's bridges, York, have been thoroughly repaired this spring.

The projected union chapel at York Harbor will not be completed this year. The lot has been secured and fenced in, and a cellar dug, but operations are now suspended, owing it is said to lack of funds.

The store at York Harbor occupied for the past two years by Colcock, the confectioner, is to be used this season by Putnam's Express, as an office.

James H. Robbins, a gardener of Biddeford, is still wearing a white hat which he put on four years ago to wear until Blaine's election to the presidency. He says it is good for just seven months more service.

Rev. Wm. G. Mann of Monson, Me., has declined the call given him by the Second Congregational church of Biddeford. He was inclined to accept, but his church in Monson would not accept his resignation, and induced him to remain.

The Fernald brickyard at Dover point, recently purchased by Mr. James Coleman of Eliot, has been sold by him to Mr. Rhodes of Eliot, who will carry on the brick-making business there this season.

It is reported that a ledge of gold-bearing quartz has been found on the farm of Dr. A. W. Johnson of Kittery, and that Gen. S. L. Butterfield is getting out specimens to be sent away for analysis.

It is stated that Capt. Charles E. Grant of Kittery, commander of the steamship Vaderland, running between Philadelphia and Antwerp, will on his present trip bring his wife home from Antwerp, where she has for some time been a resident.

On Sunday last Rev. D. B. Sewall, for fifteen years the loved and honored pastor of the First Congregational church of York, at the close of his sermon astounded and grieved his congregation by reading a letter of resignation. It was like a thunderbolt from a clear sky, the venerable and highly esteemed gentleman's action being entirely unanticipated.

PROPOSALS FOR HEAD STONES.—New York depot of the Quartermaster's Department, Houston Street, Corner Greene, New York City, April 18, 1888. Sealed proposals, in triplicate, subject to usual conditions, will be received at this office until 12 o'clock M. June 1, 1888, at which time and place they will be opened in the presence of bidders, for furnishing from 4,000 to 5,000 American White Marble Head Stones, in bulk. The government reserves the right to reject any or all proposals, or to accept as may be most advantageous to the department. Preference given to articles of domestic production and manufacture, conditions of price and quality being equal, and such preference given to articles of American production and manufacture produced on the Pacific coast to the extent of the consumption required by the public service there. Specifications, blanks and information as to bidding, &c., will be furnished by this office on application. Envelopes containing proposal should be marked "Proposals for Head Stones," and be addressed to the undersigned, J. G. CHANDLER, Lieut. Col. and Deputy Quartermaster General, United States Army. my1,2,3,4,25,26

TO HOUSEKEEPERS.

The time of year is at hand when it is customary to take up carpets, clean paint, and thoroughly prepare the house for the summer season. Let us suggest that you sprinkle a small quantity of

PRESTON'S INSECT POWDER

Under the carpet; it would be a wonderful preventive against moths, and for packing away winter clothing is preferred by many to camphor. Then if you pour a few teaspoonfuls of

PRESTON'S FAMILY AMMONIA

Into a gallon of water, and clean with this your paint, we are sure you will be gratified with the result.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS. $22 TO $900. The caulnest organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture in these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS. Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all GRAND & UPRIGHT pianos. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

THE JOB PRINTING

Business is conducted in the same office by RICHARD I. WALDEN, who keeps on hand a large and well-selected stock of all materials required in his line. Give him a trial and you will be more than pleased.

That feeling of weariness, so often experienced in the spring, results from a sluggish condition of the blood which, being impure, does not quicken with the changing season. Ayer's Sarsaparilla, by vitalizing and cleansing the blood, strengthens and invigorates the system.

The fire losses of 1887 were in excess of those of any previous year in the history of the country, except those of the Chicago and Boston conflagrations.

A Jerusalem correspondent writes that the Holy City is fast becoming again the city of the Jews. In 1880 there were not more than 5000 Jews there; now there are more than 30,000. Recent Russian persecutions have led thousands to make their homes there, and although the Turkish government forbids all Jews who are not residents of Jerusalem to remain longer than thirty days, yet a judicious application of bribes enables them to remain there as long as they please without molestation. Wealthy Jews have built hospitals and founded homes, and many of the refugees who are poor live from the charity of their brethen.

Benj. W. Patton, of Globe Village, Mass., says: "Having sold Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry for many years, and used it in my family with the most satisfactory results, I can with confidence say that in my estimation it is the best remedy in the market for coughs, colds and throat and lung diseases."

A prominent railroad official says fully fifty thousand tramps continually infest the railroad lines of the country. They are a constant menace to the safety of travellers as well as to the property of the companies, as many of them do not hesitate to cause accidents by turning switches, burning bridges, and other devices. It is estimated that three thousand of them are killed annually while attempting to steal rides or walking on the track.

Ingalls' Mandrake Compound is the best and surest remedy in every case where a low or impure state of the blood has induced Liver, Kidney or stomach troubles.

What is probably the most venerable piece of furniture in existence has just been deposited in the British Musem. It is the throne of Queen Hatasu, who reigned in the Nile valley some sixteen hundred years before Christ, and twenty-nine years before Moses. This now dilapidated object seems to be of lignum vitae, the carvings of the legs being inlaid with gold, and those of the back with silver.

"A GREEN OLD AGE."

Few Men or Women Reach It, But Nearly All Might—The Remarkable Experience of an Octogenarian.

"There is only one thing I dread," said the late Charles Sumner, "and that is the coming on of old age."

Mr. Sumner was a brave man, and could face danger unflinchingly but to watch the hairs whiten, the lines of pain and care grow deep in the face, to feel the strength and activity going and death coming on, were more than he could bear. Alas! how many others feel the same today. Pains, loss of sleep, weakness, poor appetite, and feebleness, all break the spirit. Have you never heard of Mr. Nathan Chase, of New Bedford, Mass.? A man nearly four-score years old, and hale and hearty as in youth. And yet he was supposed to be dying of heart trouble less than two years ago. Here is what he says:

"A year ago or more I began to lose flesh and strength. I sent for my physician to know the cause. He examined me, and said it was my heart; that the old machinery was wearing out, and I must be careful. SHE I grew worse. Finally I got so bad I could scarcely breathe; I could not lie in bed but had to sit up all night with possibly one hour's sleep out of twenty-four. And yet to-day, I am in fine condition; can go up three flights of stairs without inconvenience, and feel as well and about as young as ever in my life before. What accomplished this? Hunt's Remedy—nothing else. It has made a new man of me, and I bless God for it every day."

Such an experience should be a valuable lesson to all readers, both old and young. It shows that a long and happy life is possible. It shows that men or women need not despond. It shows that by care and the use of the right remedy health, happiness and long life may be secured by all.

ADAMSON'S BOTANIC COUGH BALSAM

More than twenty years ago Adamson's Botanic Balsam was introduced generally throughout New England as a remedy for Coughs, Colds and Pulmonary complaints. Since its introduction it has constantly won its way into public favor, until now it is the universal decision that ADAMSON'S BOTANIC BALSAM is the best remedy for curing Coughs, Colds and Asthma.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

CURE

Sick Headache and relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state of the system, such as Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Distress after eating, Pain in the Side, &c. While their most remarkable success has been shown in curing

SICK

Headache, yet Carter's Little Liver Pills are equally valuable in Constipation, curing and preventing this annoying complaint, while they also correct all disorders of the stomach, stimulate the liver and regulate the bowels. Even if they only cured

HEAD

Ache they would be almost priceless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all sick head is the bane of so many lives that here is where we make our great boast. Our pills cure it while others do not.

Carter's Little Liver Pills are very small and very easy to take. One or two pills make a dose. They are strictly vegetable and do not gripe or purge, but by their gentle action please all who use them. In vials at 25 cents; five for $1. Sold by druggists everywhere, or sent by mail.

Ingenious Invention for Druggists.

In order to avoid errors in dispensing poisons, an ingenious inventor a few years ago constructed a patent shelf upon which all the bottles containing poisons were to be placed. It is made of two metallic plates, held apart by a spring, and so evenly balanced that when one bottle is taken off the equilibrium is destroyed and the plates come together, which creates an electric current, and an alarm bell is rung. Thus, if a clerk should take down a bottle of poison, the alarm would attract his attention and warn him of the dangerous drug. This was called the "poison bell." They were introduced into drug stores all over the country, but they never became popular on account of a peculiar trait in all customers. When the alarm rung, the customer would ask: "What does that mean?" and when told it was the "poison bell," the innovation was never forgotten, and ever afterward the customer would feel rather chary about taking the prescription when he heard the warning tones of the "poison bell." In this way it would not be a great while until nearly all the customers found out the meaning of the alarm.

As many people have a superstitious fear about taking medicine with poison in it, they would imagine that possibly the doctor or the prescription clerk was making a mistake, and they would hesitate in accepting the medicine. Poisons are used in small amounts in a vast number of prescriptions, and the "poison bell" was kept busy in attracting the painful attention of the customers. Why, a nervous lady would come in with a harmless prescription, but the moment the "poison bell" rung she would be as disconcerted as if its tones were her death knell. Hence, the "poison bell" fell into disuse, as it was continually arousing the apprehension of customers. One other superstition, I might say, that customers have is the prevailing idea that medicines of a green color are poison. Several harmless compounds will produce a green color, but customers are invariably suspicious of them.—C. Falk in Globe-Democrat.

Success in Literary Work.

No man can tell whether a book will take or not. The criticism of the press seems to have little effect upon the popularity of a book. Some books owe their success to singular combinations of circumstances. A book that had the phenomenal sale of 25,000 copies owed its success very largely to the auspices under which it was brought out. A book that otherwise would fall flat might happen to come out just in the nick of time to strike a popular chord. I think that most successful authors soon find that they make more at other literary work than writing books. Some go into the business of getting even for their wounds at the hands of the reviewers and critics by becoming critics themselves on newspapers and magazines, and thus earn much better pay than they could at pure authorship. Others go into the field of editing copy in the big publishing houses, where familiarity with the current works of fiction is the thing demanded. Others again go into journalism, pure and simple, and are heard of no more in the ranks of writers of fiction.—Boston Herald.

Habits of the Cobra.

H. M. Phipson, secretary of the Bombay Natural History society, says that the cobra lays from twelve to twenty eggs once a year during the rains, and the young show signs of venomous powers at an early age. The cobra is timid, and is about the only poisonous snake used by "snake charmers," being the only one that can be easily handled. You have only to attract its attention with one hand, he says, seize it with the other in the middle of the body, and the snake is yours. It strikes at moving things, but unlike other snakes, it never turns and bites the hand that is holding it. Snakes have no external ears, and it is considered doubtful whether the cobra hears the music of the charmers at all. It is attracted by the movements of the musical instrument. They feed freely on young rats, birds and toads.—New York Sun.

Indian Civilization in Mexico.

There has existed on the Gila river, from time immemorial, a white house, the origin of which is unknown, much dilapidated by the wear and tear of time. Also, the remains of a large aqueduct and fragments of fine porcelain, all of which prove the existence of a civilized race in these regions at some remote period of antiquity. These Indians all raise corn, beans, melons and gourds of good flavor, some of which grow to an enormous size. The smaller ones are polished or painted and decorated in geometrical designs and used for domestic purposes. We brought away a basketful of them, some painted red, with designs outlined in black, while others were done in white. They make pretty ornaments for the toilet table, and are unique souvenirs of our visit.—Laura B. Starr in Cleveland Leader.

A Giant Natural Barometer.

No need of the weather bureau at Naples, for the huge volcano, Mount Vesuvius, serves as a giant barometer and thermometer of the city. The direction in which the smoke from the crater blows announces unerringly a coming change of weather twenty-four hours beforehand. The direction of the smoke also indicates the coming of the hot and depressing sirocco, when the perfect repose of the populace is almost imperative. Also when the neighboring island of Capri is of a dark blue color, and long, low regular waves roll in from the Bocca Piccola, these are sure premonitory symptoms of the coming sirocco.—Troy Budget.

GRAND SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT — TO THE — People of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont.

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co., having completed their purchases for

THIS SPRING'S STOCK,

respectfully request a call from all those interested in the Furnishing and Beautifying their Homes. And we would further request that those near our Bangor Store, located on Union street, opposite the Bangor House, should call on our Manager, MR. A. J. MOREY. And those living on the line of the Knox & Lincoln R. R., in the vicinity of Rockland, we would respectfully request to call at our Store on Main street, formerly the old Linde Hotel, MR. W. A. KIMBALL, manager. And again, to those who are near our Auburn Store, located on Main street, MR. J. J. EMERSON the Manager, will attend to your every want in House Furnishings. And to those living at Kennebunk, Kennebunkport and Old Orchard, and towns adjacent to Biddeford, we would respectfully request them to call at our Store at the Corner of Alfred and Bacon streets, MR. HENRY P. ATKINSON, Manager. While to those who prefer to select from our Mammoth Stock, we would say come to our Store and Headquarters at the

Cor. of Middle and Pearl Streets.

In each of these Stores we carry complete lines of furnishings which we will sell for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. Of course we prefer to make cash sales when we can, but at the same time it has always been our aim and object to satisfy everyone of our customers to the uttermost, whether they wished to buy for cash or otherwise. This is the House Cleaning season of the year. Old Carpets must give place to New, Old Chamber Sets should be replaced by those of later design. Parlor Suits that have been in use for some time are often moved into the sitting room, making room for the new Parlor Suit. That Range that you have been using for many years, perhaps takes more coal to run it to get the desired work from it than a new one would, consequently making you a loss every day. Now we will sell you from the very largest stocks at Lowest Prices than you can buy elsewhere, and we will sell them to you for cash or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. Write for samples.

CARPETS,

Chamber Sets

We have an enormous quantity in each of our Stores. Ask your neighbors who have seen them, and they will testify to our almost endless variety, and we will Sell you Cheaper than you can buy elsewhere. We mean what we say, for all cash, quarter cash, or balance by the week or month. Write us for cuts, photographs and prices. Orders through the mail promptly attended to.

Parlor Suits

In all the Stores in Endless Variety, and a stock of 356 full Suits at our Headquarters. Prices from $31 to $400, all cash, or quarter cash, and balance by the week or month. Write us for photographs, cuts and prices.

KITCHEN RANGES

In all our Stores you will find the Quaker, New Tariff and First National, besides a host of others, but to those who wish a good range we recommend the Quaker and the New Tariff; also the First National, for a lower priced one. We have them all the way up to $50, and we sell you a range for cash, or for $10 down and the balance by the week or month. Do not delay ordering. We would rather have the range in your house than in our store house, and let you take your time to pay for it.

Window Shades and Drapery Curtains.

Write us for Cuts, Catalogues and Prices of this Celebrated Refrigerator, and do not delay buying because hot weather will be upon us, and you will regret it. And please remember that MR. MOREY, manager of the Bangor store; MR. KIMBALL, manager of the Rockland store; MR. EMERSON, manager of the Auburn store; and MR. ATKINSON, manager of the Biddeford store, will each show you a complete line of house furnishings and give you the same terms as would be given at the Headquarters at Portland. All goods will be delivered Freight Prepaid at your depot, and at each one of these stores you will receive the most Honorable Treatment Possible To Give A Customer, whether you wish to buy for cash, or part cash, and the balance on time.

Respectfully, The Public's Obedient Servants,

The Atkinson House Furnishing COMPANY.

Headquarters Cor. Pearl and Middle Sts., Portland, and Branches as above quoted.

Do not pay long prices when you can buy goods from us and save money. It costs you nothing to look, and very little to write. Consequently it is an easy matter to inform yourself.

ISAAC C. ATKINSON, Gen. Manager.

Neuralgia, rheumatism, erysipelas, tumors, swellings, sore throats, toothache and all other pains and aches are promptly cured with Salvation Oil. Price twenty-five cents. Sold everywhere.

A Great Battle

Is continually going on in the human system. The demon of impure blood strives to gain victory over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave. A good reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla is the weapon with which to defend one's self, drive the desperate enemy from the field, and restore peace and bodily health for many years. Try this peculiar medicine.

Masonic Relief Association.

The annual meeting of the Strafford County Mutual Relief Association was held Wednesday forenoon, May 2d, in Masonic hall, Dover. There was a good attendance from Durham, Newmarket, South Newmarket, Rochester, Great Falls, Salmon Falls and other places outside of Dover. The proceedings were marked with great unanimity. Mr. Nathan Hill having peremptorily refused to allow the use of his name as a candidate for re-election to the office of president, Mr. Orange S. Brown of Salmon Falls was elected. The officers chosen are as follows:

President—O. S. Brown, Salmon Falls.
Vice-President—Wm. R. Tapley, Dover.
Secretary—Channing Folsom, Dover.
Treasurer—John T. W. Ham, Dover.
Trustees—John J. Abbott, Rochester; M. C. Lathrop, Dover; Horatio G. Hanson, Dover; Alfred M. Norton, Nashua; Charles H. Willey, Wolfeboro Junction.

Several important amendments to the by-laws were adopted. The effect of these amendments is to change the name of the association to the "New Hampshire Mutual Relief Association;" to make any regularly affiliated master mason, living in New England, eligible to membership, upon the old conditions as to the age and health; to make the maximum relief $1000; to increase the number of trustees to five; to provide for having the annual and semi-annual meetings of the association at 7:30 P. M. instead of at 10:30 A. M.; and that death certificates may be attested by the master or secretary of the lodge within whose jurisdiction deceased was affiliated or resident, the change being in the addition of the words "or resident."

A Terrible Fellow.

During the debate in the Canadian senate on the bill approving the fishery treaty, Senator Peirier said that if the United States does not adopt the fishery treaty it will be all the worse for it. "If in rejecting that which is just, they should, relying on their number and wealth, attempt to prey on our national substance, it will not be the Canadians' fault if within sound of their Atlantic cities they hear, nearer and nearer, the mighty voice of British cannon."

It is hoped that Lawrence, Mass., will also put a team in the league.

Pain from indigestion, dyspepsia, and too hearty eating, is relieved by once taking one of Carter's Little Liver Pills immediately after dinner. Don't forget this.

General Wirt Adams and John H. Martin, prominent citizens of Jackson, Miss., met on the street May 1st, and shot each other dead. A witness to the tragedy says: "General Adams accosted Martin, saying, 'You rascal, I have stood enough from you.' Martin replied, 'If you don't like it'—and simultaneously with the remark he drew a pistol and fired. General Adams also fired about the same time." Martin was editor of the New Mississippian, and was a brilliant and promising young man. General Adams was sixty-nine years old, and postmaster of Jackson. He was a prominent officer in the confederate army.

The schooner William G. Lewis sailed from Newport News for Boston, and the Rachel Ann Collins sailed from Norfolk for Philadelphia, before the great blizzard of March 11th and 12th, and have not reached their destination; both are undoubtedly lost, with all hands.

Game Warden Colling of Connecticut comes to the defence of owls and hawks by saying that the examination of over two hundred specimens of these birds by miscroscopists proves that they live on small birds, frogs, snakes, mice and grasshoppers. The "small birds" are mostly sparrows, and very few game birds are eaten.

The are thirty-three starch factories in Maine, thirty-one of them being in Aroostook county. The make for 1887 was the smallest for years, as potatoes were scarce and poor. The average capacity of the mills is from 20,000 to 40,000 bushels per year, producing from one hundred to two hundred tons of starch to each factory.

It is Absurd

For people to expect a cure for Indigestion, unless they refrain from eating what is unwholesome; but if anything will sharpen the appetite and give tone to the digestive organs, it is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Thousands all over the land testify to the merits of this medicine.

Mrs. Sarah Burroughs, of 248 Eighth street, South Boston, writes: "My husband has taken Ayer's Sarsaparilla, for Dyspepsia and torpid liver, and has been greatly benefited."

A Confirmed Dyspeptic.

C. Canterbury, of 141 Franklin st., Boston, Mass., writes, that, suffering for years from Indigestion, he was at last induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla and, by its use, was entirely cured.

Mrs. Joseph Aubin, of High street, Holyoke, Mass., suffered for over a year from Dyspepsia, so that she could not eat substantial food, became very weak, and was unable to care for her family. Neither the medicines prescribed by physicians, nor any of the remedies advertised for the cure of Dyspepsia, helped her, until she commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. "Three bottles of this medicine," she writes, "cured me."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,
PREPARED BY
Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Price $1; six bottles, $5. Worth $5 a bottle.

Spring Medicine

Nearly every body needs a reliable spring medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla to expel the impurities which have accumulated in the blood during the winter, to keep up strength as the warm weather comes on, create an appetite and promote healthy digestion. Try Hood's Sarsaparilla this spring and you will be convinced that it does possess superior and peculiar merit.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most popular and successful Spring Medicine.

A Good Appetite

"When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was dizzy in the morning, had a headache, and no appetite; but now I can hardly get enough cooked to eat." EMMA SHEPARD, 1 Coral Street, Worcester, Mass.

"Last spring my whole family took Hood's Sarsaparilla. The result is that all have been cured of scrofula, my little boy being entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy as possibly can be. I have found Hood's Sarsaparilla good for catarrh." WM. B. ATHERTON, Passaic City, N. J.

Be Sure to Get Hood's

Sarsaparilla, my child. See that they do not give you anything else. You remember it is the medicine which did mama so much good a year ago—so reliable, beneficial, pleasant to take—my favorite spring medicine.

Municipal Affairs.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, Mayor Hodgdon in the chair.

Absent, Aldermen Stevens and Fletcher.

Requests of heirs of Joseph Gordon for a sidewalk on State street; of B. F. Webster for a sidewalk on Middle street; and G. J. Greenleaf for relay of sidewalk on State street, were referred to the committee on streets.

Petition of C. H. Mendum and others for sidewalk on Middle street was referred to committee on streets, with power.

Petition of Thomas A. Ward and others for a crosswalk on Deer street was granted.

Enoch J. Connor was granted leave to encumber Union street for building purposes.

Bills to the amount of $2700 were ordered to be paid.

Request of Charles Austin for use of the south wardroom for religious purposes was referred to the committee on city lands and buildings, with power.

Adjourned.

Sudden Death.

Walter Akerman, aged about sixty years, who has been living with Joseph Akerman on Spinney road, was found dead in a loft of their home on Thursday forenoon; he had on the clothes he usually wore, and is supposed to have died of heart disease, he having been out of doors and in seeming good health the previous evening.

Accidents.

Thomas Conway of Manchester, an employe in the steam engineering department at the navy yard, had his right foot badly crushed Thursday forenoon by the falling upon it of a heavy bar of iron. His foot was dressed at the yard hospital, after which he was taken to his boarding house on Market street, this city.

Mr. Henry W. Trefethen of Kittery Point, a painter in the employ of the Boston & Maine railroad, was brought to this city on the train due here from Dover at 10:45 o'clock on Thursday forenoon, having been found lying insensible beside the track near Cushing's station. Upon his arrival here he had recovered sufficiently to say that he had fallen from a ladder while painting a railroad target. Doctor Berry was summoned, and upon examination found that Trefethen had received severe injuries to the head, and was suffering internally. The injured man was at once taken to his home at Kittery Point, in a very precarious condition.

The Alabama Awards.

Second-class claimants in the Alabama awards will be interested to know that the first comptroller of the treasury, having suffered an unaccountable attack of common sense, has decided to adjust all cases without further delay, so as to permit the distribution of the $250,000 heretofore withheld while the matter has been pending in the court. All that is necessary for claimants without attorneys to do is to forward to Comptroller Dunham the number of their claim, and such other particulars as should be given. Attorneys and those who have lawyers employed will be guided by the instructions in a circular letter which will be forwarded to them on application.

Concert by the Sunday School of the Court Street Christian Church, Wednesday Evening, May 2d.

The concert given by the Sunday school of the Court street Christian church, on Wednesday evening of this week, was very fine; it was attended by a large audience, and will probably net a good sum towards the object of the entertainment. Every number on the programme was carried out successfully, and showed that the children as well as the older ones had given much of their time in preparing the excellent entertainment. The superintendent and assistant being unavoidably absent, their duties were most acceptably performed by the pastor, Rev. John A. Hainer.

The concert commenced at eight o'clock and lasted about an hour and a half; the following was the programme:

1. Singing by the school, "Work, for the Night is coming."
2. Responsive reading.
3. Prayer, Rev. Mr. Hainer.
4. Singing by chorus of little girls, "The Spider and his Wife."
5. Recitation, "The Unlucky Horseshoe," Emma Odiorne.
6. Recitation, Sybil Canney.
7. Recitation, Edie Ham.
8. Song, Miss Lillian Shannon.
9. Recitation, "Gracie's Discovery," Eva Adams.
10. Dialogue, "The Children of Story Land;" Gertie Russell, Little Red Riding Hood; Fannie Russell, Little Bow Peep; Sadie Dickey, Cinderella; Louis Winn, Jack Horner; Percy Davis, Jack the Giant Killer; Grace Kennison, ——.
11. Recitation, Bertha Colbath.
12. Song, "Trundle Bed," Pearl Seavey.
13. Recitation, "My letter to Mother Nature," Bertha Hatch.
14. Reading. "Deacon's Courtship," Miss Effie Sides.
15. Recitation, "Kittens and Babies," Flossie Hatch.
16. Song, "The Busy Bees," by chorus of little girls.
17. Recitation, Eliza and Bertha Russell.
18. Recitation, Alice Adams.
19. Duett, "Wandering in the May time," Misses Florence M. Coleman and Mary Locke.
20. Recitation, Bessie Blatchford.
21. Recitation, "The Conceited Grasshopper," Mabel Waldron.
22. Dialogue, "The Phantom Doughnuts,"—Miss Florence M. Coleman, doctor; Miss Fannie H. Amazeen, lady of the house; Miss Georgie E. Dennett, pedler; Miss Ada T. Lear, "Village Belle;" Miss Stella Winn, one who borrows; Pearl Seavey, an important messenger.
23. Recitation, Hattie Blatchford.
24. Singing, "Keep me, Father," by the school.

The recitation by Miss Flossie Hatch was rendered in that little lady's best manner, and she was obliged to give another selection. The singing by Misses Florence M. Coleman and Mary Locke was excellent, as was also the solo by Miss Lillian Shannon. Miss Pearl Seavey's solo was really very fine for so young a miss. The dialogue entitled "The Phantom Doughnuts" was a very laughable affair, and the parts were all finely taken. The reading by Miss Effie Sides deserves special mention. We wish we had space and time to give a more descriptive account of the concert, but as we have not we will say that all carried out their parts well. Mr. Hainer at the close thanked them all for their efforts in making the concert a success.

Miss Alice M. Swasey and Miss Mattie Fernald presided at the organ.

We do not know to whom the full credit is due for successfully carrying out the programme, but we think a large share of it belongs to Miss Kittie Davis and Miss Mattie Fernald.

The proceeds of the concert will go to buy a new set of books for the library.

The next concert by the school will be on "Children's Sunday" in June, when the church will be handsomely trimmed with flowers, singing birds, etc.

The sewing circle connected with this church will give an entertainment and supper in Grand Army hall on Thursday evening, May 10th. Admission fifteen cents, including supper. There should be a large attendance, as the proceeds are for a good cause. All are invited.

Republican Convention—First District of Maine.

The republican convention for the First Congressional district of Maine, to nominate a candidate for Congress and a candidate for presidential elector, and choose two delegates and two alternates to the Republican National convention, was held in Portland city hall on Wednesday afternoon, May 2d, 284 delegates of 290 chosen being present.

Judge Nathaniel Hobbs of North Berwick was chosen president of the convention; Charles E. Weld of Buxton and D. W. Morrill of New Gloucester, vice presidents; Dr. J. J. Hazen of York and James T. Hancock of Gray, secretaries.

The following-named gentlemen were chosen as a district committee: Amos L. Allen of Alfred, John Wentworth of Kittery, Charles S. Hamilton of Biddeford, H. K. Millet of Gorham, A. D. Boyd of Cape Elizabeth, O. T. Despeaux of Brunswick, and Isaac L. Canie of Portland.

Hon. Thomas B. Reed was renominated for Congress by acclamation, with rousing cheers.

Col. Mark F. Wentworth of Kittery was nominated for presidential elector.

Charles A. Brown of Portland and William H. Tobie of North Berwick were chosen delegates to the national convention, and E. B. Mallett, Jr., of Freeport, and Justin M. Leavitt of Buxton, alternates.

Resolutions were adopted endorsing republican principles and condemning the democratic policy; endorsing Mr. Blaine and Mr. Reed; and instructing the national delegates to use all their influence toward securing the nomination of Mr. Blaine for the republican candidate for president of the United States.

Commodore John G. Walker, chief of the bureau of navigation, will with his family pass the summer at this naval station. Orders have been issued to fit up the cottage on Seavey's island, formerly occupied by the late Civil Engineer B. F. Chandler, for the commodore's occupancy.

Charles E. Batchelder, Esq., has resigned as president of the Portsmouth Republican club.

About daylight Thursday morning persons in Wingate's boarding house, State street, saw a man in the garden of T. Salter Tredick, Esq., wrestling with a young tree and evidently endeavoring to destroy it. After he had worked for some time, stopping several times to take breath, a window was opened and enquiry made as to the object of his labor, when the fellow went off like a shot. What his motive was is hard to surmise.

Lewis E. Staples offers for this week the bargain of the season. One case all wool fancy mix dress goods at 33cts. These goods have never been sold for less than fifty cents.

A young man named Hollis Linscott was arrested in North Berwick, Me., May 1st, on a charge of complicit in the robbery of D. Lothrop & Co's clothing store in Great Falls in October last. There were four in the party of thieves, one of whom is serving four years in state prison for the crime, another escaped punishment by turning state's evidence, and a third has not yet been arrested. Linscott is in the Dover jail, to await the sitting of the supreme court in September.

MESSRS. PROCTER & GAMBLE, Cincinnati.

Gentlemen:—Although a stranger to you, and my testimonial entirely unnecessary as it certainly is unsolicited, yet I take great pleasure in testifying to the excellence of your "Ivory" Soap, and thanking you for putting it on the market at so low a price.

It has entirely supplanted the use of Castile and other fine soaps in my household for several years past, being in no way inferior, and from fifty to seventy-five per cent. more economical.

A good test I find for the purity of soap is to try it with a brush for cleansing the teeth, and the taste of the "Ivory" Soap so used is perfectly sweet and clean.

Very Respectfully Yours, W. S. BAKER, M. D.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

TO HOUSEKEEPERS.

The time of year is at hand when it is customary to take up carpets, clean paint, and thoroughly prepare the house for the summer season. Let us suggest that you sprinkle a small quantity of

PRESTON'S INSECT POWDER

Under the carpet; it would be a wonderful preventive against moths, and for packing away winter clothing is preferred by many to camphor. Then if you pour a few teaspoonfuls of

PRESTON'S FAMILY AMMONIA

Into a gallon of water, and clean with this your paint, we are sure you will be gratified with the result.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS

$22 TO $5000. The cadinent organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture in these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

PIANOS.

Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all GRAND & UPRIGHT pianos. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and sustainment of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

Utilizing Small Coal.

Foreign exchanges note the fact that the utilization of small coal, known as "slack," "dross," etc., by being manufacutured into briquettes or blocks of compressed fuel is making considerable progress in England. For household and other purposes briquettes are growing rapidly in favor. In France and Belgium this has been an important industry for many years, and recently Germany has made great strides in this direction, and even threatens to introduce her briquettes in England.—Public Opinion.

Formation of Mountains.

M. Faye, the well known French astronomer, has drawn attention at a recent meeting of the French Academy of Sciences, to the apparent geological law that the cooling of the terrestrial crust goes on more rapidly under the sea than with a land surface. Hence he argues that the crust must thicken under oceans at a more rapid rate, and so give rise to a swelling up and distortion of the thinner portions of the crust—in other words, to the formation of mountain chains.—Home Journal.

Size of Rain Drops.

Variations in the size of rain drops are dependent upon the differences in the height from which they have fallen and to the amount of atmospheric disturbance present at the time. If fallen from a great height the drops suffer gradual division into smaller and smaller parts until they are converted into a mist. In calm weather, with the clouds near the earth's surface, the drops are large and heavy.—Chicago Herald.

The Closing Years.

Few realize that in less than twelve years we shall have entered upon a new century. Happy, indeed, has been the lot of the man who has lived in the closing years of the Nineteenth century. He has witnessed the grandest achievements in science, if not in art and literature, that the world has ever known.—Albany Journal.

Petrified Loaf of Bread.

A petrified loaf of bread was recently dug up at Acmetonia Station, near Pittsburg, being found at a depth of twelve feet beneath the surface of the earth and beneath an ancient forest of locust trees. The loaf is now in the possession of Henry Armstrong, who intends to have it made into paper weights.—New York Evening World.

A Confederate Gold Dollar.

What is supposed to be a Confederate gold dollar was found in an ash heap in Atlanta recently by a colored boy and sold for $30. It is said that only six such coins were issued by the Confederate government, and if genuine this specimen would be worth $650.—New York World.

Experts, it is said, now value a perfect ruby of five karats as being ten times more valuable than a diamond of the same weight. A perfect ruby seems to be the rarest of all gems.

We think we can cure a bad case of backache quicker with one of Carter's Smart Weed and Belladonna Backache Plasters, than by any other application, and after the backache is cured, you can still wear the plaster without discomfort for two or three weeks, or longer. That so many otherwise attractive, polite, and particular people afflict their friends by the foul and disagreeable odor of their breath; it is mainly caused by disordered digestion, and can be corrected by removing the cause, by using that pure medicine, Sulphur Bitters.—Health Magazine.

That feeling of weariness, so often experienced in the spring, results from a sluggish condition of the blood which, being impure, does not quicken with the changing season. Ayer's Sarsaparilla, by vitalizing and cleansing the blood, strengthens and invigorates the system.

Many people suppose that artificial incubation is a modern invention. Such is not the case. The Copts of Egypt have been engaged in artificial egg hatching for centuries. There are 700 establishments for that industry within a short distance from Cairo, and the production of chickens from the ovens reaches 12,000,000 annually. The season for incubating lasts through three months in the early summer. The country people take fresh eggs to the owners of the ovens, and give two for each newly hatched chick.

CURE OF

CANCER and ULCERS.

Judge T. C. McLendon writes to the Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga., under date of February 14, 1888: "About three years ago, Jerry Bradley, a colored man, had a cancerous sore on his face, near the right eye. It caused him a great deal of pain, and he lost the sight of the eye, but was finally cured of the cancer by the use of Swift's Specific. This case is well known in Wilkes Co., Ga., where he lived (near Danburg), and of this case, I, myself, had personal knowledge."

Mr. A. Cox, of Kabatie, Tate Co., Miss. writes, February 24, 1888: "I suffered a great deal from old ulcers for six years. Your medicine was recommended to me, and after using six bottles, I was completely cured. I never saw its equal as a Blood Purifier. My neighbors will use no other. Your medicine does even more than you claim for it. I have known it to cure cases which were thought to be hopless. It is the best medicine made."

Mrs. A. M. Goldsmith, No. 674 Warren St., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes, February 22, 1888: "I commenced using S. S. S. about three years ago. I had suffered with a sore throat for over a year, when I commenced using your remedy. I used a great many other remedies with no good results. My little girl, also, had sore fingers; it commenced from the quick, and then the nails would come off. We doctored her for over two years, and when I commenced using S. S. S. I thought I would see what it would do for her. I am thankful to say that it entirely cured her. It is the best remedy I know of for the blood. I really believe it was the means of saving my life. The doctor told me I had a throat disease similar to General Grant's. I cheerfully recommend it to all suffering from disordered blood. I use it now as a tonic whenever I think I need it."

Mr. B. F. George, Milford P. O., Ellis Co., Texas, writes: "I had a cancerous wart or mole on my eyelid, as large as the end of my thumb, which had the appearance of cancer, causing me much pain and inflammation, from which I suffered a long time. Seeing the S. S. S. advertised I commenced using it, and after the use of a few bottles the sore dropped out, my cancer was gone, and I was entirely relieved."

Mr. G. W. Pettis, of Alkin, N. C., writes: "I was a sufferer from cancer of the breast, and had been under the treatment of three physicians, but it did me no good. It was so bad that I had to stop work. After taking a course of S. S. S. I was entirely cured."

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

CURE

Sick Headache and relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state of the system, such as Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Distress after eating, Pain in the Side, &c. While their most remarkable success has been shown in curing

SICK HEAD ACHE

Headache, yet Carter's Little Liver Pills are equally valuable in Constipation, curing and preventing this annoying complaint, while they also correct all disorders of the stomach, stimulate the liver and regulate the bowels. Even if they only cured

HEAD ACHE

Ache they would be almost priceless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all sick head is the bane of so many lives that here is where we make our great boast. Our pills cure it while others do not.

Carter's Little Liver Pills are very small and very easy to take. One or two pills make a dose. They are strictly vegetable and do not gripe or purge, but by their gentle action please all who use them. In vials at 25 cents; five for $1. Sold by druggists everywhere, or sent by mail.

Life in the Deep Sea.

The exploring vessels of our fish commission have discovered in the deep sea, in one single season, more forms of life than were found by the Challenger expedition in a three years' cruise. Through their agency we have studied the geographical distribution of marine life; and in our marine laboratories explorers have studied the life history of the most useful forms.

The knowledge gained has enabled us to breed and multiply at will; to protect the young fish during the period of their infancy (when alone they are liable to wholesale destruction); finally to release them in the ocean, in those waters that are most suitable to their growth. The fecundity of fish is so great, and the protection afforded them during the critical period of their life so ample, that it may now be possible to feed the world from the ocean, and set the laws of Malthus at defiance. Our geographers of the sea have shown that an acre of water may be made to produce more food for the support of man than ten acres of arable land. They have thrown open to cultivation a territory of the earth constituting three-quarters of the entire surface of the globe.—Gardiner G. Hubbard, president National Geographic society.

Drilling an Oil Well.

The bringing in of a well of the "gusher" caliber is an exciting affair. The drill is known to be half way through the pay sand, and the driller is in his glory. The owner and his friends anxiously watch the great walking beam as it rises and falls. Hour after hour passes, and as the driller pulls the tools and changes the bit it is noticed that there are several hundred feet of oil in the hole. The tools are lowered and the ton and a half of steel at the bottom of the 2,000 feet hole pounds away once more. Another hour passes. The hole is full and the oil begins to spray, saturating everything in the derrick room. Suddenly there is a sound like thunder from below; a pocket of gas has been struck. The spraying oil increases to a shower that shoots clear over the derrick, while dirt, pebbles and slate come up from below. The rumbling increases to a roar, and then, with a mighty rush, up come the tools, and the golden fluid flows unchecked. The well is in, and a "gusher."—Rufus R. Wilson in San Francisco Chronicle.

Success by Perseverance.

At one of the mills in the city of Boston a boy was wanted, and a piece of paper was tacked on one of the posts:

"Boy wanted. Call at the office tomorrow morning."

At the time named there was a host of boys at the gate. All were admitted, but the overseer was a little perplexed as to the best way of choosing one from so many, and said he: "Now, boys, when I only want one of you, how can I choose from so many?"

After thinking for a moment, he called them into the yard, drove a nail into a tree, and, taking a short stick, told them that the boy who could hit the nail with a stick a little distance from the tree should have the place.

The boys each tried three times, and failed to hit the nail. They were told to come again the next morning. When the gate was opened there was but one boy, who, after being admitted, picked up the stick and, throwing it at the nail, hit it every time.

"How is this?" said the overseer. "What have you been doing?"

And the boy said, "You see, sir, I have a mother, and we are very poor. I have no father, and I thought I would like to get the place, and so help all I can; and, after going home yesterday, I drove a nail into the barn, and have been trying ever since, and have come down this morning to try again."

The boy was admitted to the place. Many years have passed, and this boy is now a prosperous man. His success has come by perseverance.—Youth's Companion.

Cocoanut Oil in Sugar Making.

In the West Indies much interest is felt in an alleged successful use of cocoanut oil, in a prominent factory on the west coast, as a new sugar making agent. It is claimed that its addition to the pan prior to striking, at the rate. it is understood, of about a pint to the ton, produces an enormously increased return of sugar from the massecuite. Abnormally high figures have been given for the increase, but The Colonies and India says: "After making every allowance for unintentional exaggeration and want of true experimental conditions, it would appear that advantage really accrues from its use. As no chemical action would be likely to occur, this advantage probably lies in the ability to concentrate the massecuite further than under ordinary conditions, the lubricating influence of the oil facilitating the striking of the pan, and preventing too tumultuous boiling at the finish. Nothing is heard of its use in making yellow sugar, and experience will have to show how far the color, taste and smell of the sugar will be influenced by it."—English Mechanic.

Mistakes About Rats.

Capt. Powell, late master of the bark Gray Eagle, in speaking to a reporter, turned some of the old sailors' superstitions bottom upward. Capt. Powell said that the impression that rats would leave a sinking ship was altogether fallacious. If the ship was in the ocean, as an ordinary rat had sense enough not to try to swim to a shore hundreds of miles distant.

"That sort of thing," he said, "might work in Bear creek or somewhere up the head of the Potomac, but it's foolishness to tell me that anything livin' is goin' to leave a thing that is supposed to be sinkin' before the thing is actually sunk."—Baltimore Herald.

THE MOST WONDERFUL FAMILY REMEDY EVER KNOWN.

Paine's Celery Compound

WEAK NERVES PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND is a Nerve Tonic which never fails. Containing Celery and Oats, those wonderful nerve stimulants, it speedily cures all nervous disorders.

RHEUMATISM PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND purifies the blood. It drives out the lactic acid, which causes Rheumatism, and restores the blood-making organs to a healthy condition. It is the true remedy for Rheumatism.

KIDNEY COMPLAINTS PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND quickly restores the liver and kidneys to perfect health. This curative power, combined with its nerve tonics, makes it the best remedy for all kidney complaints.

DYSPEPSIA PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND strengthens the stomach, and quiets the nerves of the digestive organs. This is why it cures even the worse cases of Dyspepsia.

CONSTIPATION PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND is not a cathartic. It is a laxative, giving easy and natural action to the bowels. Regularity surely follows its use.

GRAND SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

TO THE People of Maine, New Hampshire & Vermont.

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co., having completed their purchases for

THIS SPRING'S STOCK,

respectfully request a call from all those interested in the Furnishing and Beautifying their Homes. And we would further request that those near our Bangor Store, located on Union street, opposite the Bangor House, should call on our Manager, MR. A. J. MOREY. And those living on the line of the Knox & Lincoln R. R., in the vicinity of Rockland, we would respectfully request to call at our Store on Main street, formerly the old Linde Hotel, MR. W. A. KIMBALL, manager. And again, to those who are near our Auburn Store, located on Main street, MR. J. J. EMERSON the Manager, will attend to your every want in House Furnishings. And to those living at Kennebunk, Kennebunkport and Old Orchard, and towns adjacent to Biddeford, we would respectfully request them to call at our Store at the Corner of Alfred and Bacon streets, MR. HENRY P. ATKINSON, Manager. While to those who prefer to select from our Mammoth Stock, we would say come to our Store and Headquarters at the

Cor. of Middle and Pearl Streets.

In each of these Stores we carry complete lines of furnishings which we will sell for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. Of course we prefer to make cash sales when we can, but at the same time it has always been our aim and object to satisfy everyone of our customers to the uttermost, whether they wished to buy for cash or otherwise. This is the House Cleaning season of the year. Old Carpets must give place to New, Old Chamber Sets should be replaced by those of later design. Parlor Suits that have been in use for some time are often moved into the sitting room, making room for the new Parlor Suit. That Range that you have been using for many years, perhaps takes more coal to run it to get the desired work from it than a new one would, consequently making you a loss every day. Now we will sell you from the very largest stocks at Lowest Prices than you can buy elsewhere, and we will sell them to you for cash or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. Write for samples.

CARPETS,

Chamber Sets

We have an enormous quantity in each of our stores. Ask your neighbors who have seen our goods, they will testify to our almost endless variety, and we will sell you Cheaper than you can buy elsewhere. We mean what we say, for all cash, quarter cash, or balance by the week or month. Write us for cuts, photographs and prices. Orders through the mail promptly attended to.

Parlor Suits

In all the Stores in Endless Variety, and a stock of 356 full Suits at our Headquarters. Prices from $31 to $400, all cash, or quarter cash, and balance by the week or month. Write us for photographs, cuts and prices.

KITCHEN RANGES

In all our Stores you will find the Quaker, New Tariff and First National, besides a host of others, but to those who wish a good range we recommend the Quaker and the New Tariff; also the First National, for a lower priced one. We have them all the way up to $50, and we sell you a range for cash, or for $10 down and the balance by the week or month. Do not delay ordering. We would rather have the range in your house than in our store house, and let us take your time to pay for it.

Window Shades and Drapery Curtains.

Write us for Cuts, Catalogues and Prices of this Celebrated Refrigerator, and do not delay buying because hot weather will be upon us, and you will regret it. And please remember that MR. MOREY, manager of the Bangor store; MR. KIMBALL, manager of the Rockland store; MR. EMERSON, manager of the Auburn store; and MR. ATKINSON, manager of the Biddeford store, will each show you a complete line of house furnishings and give you the same terms as would be given at the Headquarters at Portland. All goods will be delivered Freight Prepaid at your depot, and at each one of these stores you will receive the most Honorable Treatment Possible To Give A Customer, whether you wish to buy for cash, part cash, and the balance on time.

Respectfully,

The Public's Obedient Servants,

The Atkinson House Furnishing COMPANY.

Headquarters Cor. Pearl and Middle, Portland, and Branches as above.

Do not pay long prices for goods from us and after seeing our goods, nothing to look, and very cheap quantity it is an easy matter.

ISAAC O. ATKINSON.

It is a Curious Fact

That the body is now more susceptible to benefit from medicine than at any other season. Hence the importance of taking Hood's Sarsaparilla now, when it will do you the most good. It is really wonderful for purifying and enriching the blood, creating an appetite, and giving a healthy tone to the whole system. Be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla, which is peculiar to itself.

A bar of iron that is only worth five dollars in its natural state is worth twelve dollars when it is made into horseshoes; and after it goes through the different processes by which it is made into needles its value has increased to $350. Made into penknife blades it will be worth $3000; and put into balance wheels for watches, $250,000.

A curious and historic Indian tomahawk has been unearthed on the banks of Richland Creek, in Greene county, Ga. Its historic interest consists in the fact that it has been identified by old settlers as the axe wielded by Cussuggee, one of the most dreaded Indian braves who resisted the advances of the paleface into this part of the country. In size the tomahawk is as large as an ordinary axe, but is much thicker and heavier, yet Cussuggee is said to have wielded it as easily as were a mere toy. It has still a fine edge. As a piece of workmanship it is perfect. It is of block quartz rock, smooth, and weighs seven pounds. It was found on the bank of the creek, buried up in the earth, where it had lain years.

Dr. Gage and Associate Physicians, and Their Great Work.

Probably no physician in New England is better and more favorably known, says a New Hampshire exchange, than is Dr. Gage, the gifted specialist, who has treated more than fifteen thousand patients in this state, the announcement of his visits each month being the signal for a grand rally of a multitude of invalids. His success is indeed phenomenal and the reports of marvellous cures would fill this entire paper, the like of which was never known in the history of medical practice. The following is a fair sample:

Mr. Editor: A few months ago my daughter was laying at the point of death. She had a complication of troubles, a terrible cough, raising an immense quantity, a discharging sore upon her hip which rendered her perfectly helpless. Our family physician gave us no hope, but with a mother's will and determination to save her perishing child if possible, I hastened to consult Dr. Gage. Although he did not see her he nevertheless understood the case and his remedies have wrought a miracle—almost—by restoring my child to perfect health. I thank God that I consulted Dr. Gage.

Moncure D. Conway writes in the May "Cosmopolitan," a lively article on "The Pedigree of the Devil" which is illustrated with a number of rare and weird pictures, including four pages in color. The colored pictures of the Faust legend, showing Mephistopheles with Margaret and in the witch's kitchen, and of the Japanese demons and Persian devils, are the most finished and attractive color work that has yet appeared in this enterprising magazine. Mr. Conway is presumed to be on intimate terms with his subject, having been formerly a Methodist divine, and having written the book published on Demonology. The article is opportune just now, as it is exactly 300 years since Mephistopheles made his first appearance (in the earliest English "Faust" book). So important a character in the world as his Red Majesty surely deserves a memorial now and then, and no doubt he appreciates the compliment of so bright and entertaining a description of his protean career.

On April 15th, James Nelson, sixteen years of age, who was employed as an errand boy by Newhall, Martin & Co., 158 Main street, Charlestown, Mass., was commissioned by his employers to deposit $423 in the bank. Nelson took the money and skipped to parts unknown. He was arrested in Brooklyn, N. Y., on Thursday, May 3d.

The jockey business is becoming a very lucrative one in this country. Several jockeys earn $10,000 a year, and three have made engagements which it is reckoned will net them $20,000, $15,000 and $14,000 respectively during the coming season.

The First Symptoms

Of all Lung diseases are much the same: feverishness, loss of appetite, sore throat, pains in the chest and back, headache, etc. In a few days you may be well, or, on the other hand, you may be down with Pneumonia or "galloping Consumption." Run no risks, but begin immediately to take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Several years ago, James Birchard, of Darien, Conn., was severely ill. The doctors said he was in Consumption, and that they could do nothing for him, but advised him, as a last resort, to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. After taking this medicine, two or three months, he was pronounced a well man. His health remains good to the present day.

J. S. Bradley, Malden, Mass., writes: "Three winters ago I took a severe cold, which rapidly developed into Bronchitis and Consumption. I was so weak that I could not sit up, was much emaciated, and coughed incessantly. I consulted several doctors, but they were powerless, and all agreed that I was in Consumption. At last, a friend brought me a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. From the first dose, I found relief. Two bottles cured me, and my health has since been perfect."

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Combines, in a proportion peculiar to itself, the active medicinal properties of the best blood-purifying and strengthening remedies of the vegetable kingdom. It will positively cure—when in the power of medicine—Spring Debility, Headache, Dyspepsia, Catarrh, Salt Rheum, Scrofula, and all Diseases caused by a low state of the blood.

"I suffered three years with blood poison. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and think I am cured." MRS. M. J. DAVIS, Brockport, N. Y.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla beats all others, and is worth its weight in gold." I. BARRINGTON, 130 Bank Street, New York City.

"Is so vastly superior to any other sarsaparilla or blood purifier, that one has well said: "Its health-giving effects upon the blood and entire human organism, are as much more positive and lasting than the remedies of a quarter of a century ago, as the steam-power of to-day is in advance of the slow and laborious drudgery of years ago."

"While suffering from a severe bilious attack in March, 1883, a friend in Peoria, Ill., recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla. I tried the remedy, and was permanently cured." C. E. SHEPARD, travelling agent for Devoe & Co., Fulton Street, N. Y.

Purifies the Blood

"I tried a dozen articles to cleanse my blood, but never found anything that did me any good till I began using Hood's Sarsaparilla." W. H. PERR, Rochester, N. Y.

"My wife was troubled with dizziness and constipation, and her blood has been in a bad order—in fact she has been all run down. Hood's Sarsaparilla is doing her a wonderful amount of good." F. M. BALDWIN, druggist, Blanchester, Ohio.

"I was for five years a sufferer with boils, all run down, and was at one time obliged to give up work. Before taking all of two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, was entirely cured." R. M. LANE, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. Took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

A Good Oration Assured.

The committee on literary exercises, of the general committee on dedication of the Soldiers' Monument, had a meeting on Friday evening, at which a letter was read from Hon. Charles Levi Woodbury, accepting an invitation to deliver the oration on the occasion of the dedicatory exercises, July 4th.

Music Hall.

This afternoon and evening end the week's engagement of the charming actress, dancer, singer and elocutionist, Ullie Akerstrom, at Music hall. This afternoon she will appear as "Fanchon, the cricket on the hearth," in which character we consider her more pleasing than Maggie Mitchell; and this evening the attraction will be "The Hidden Hand."

Death of Ammi L. Knowlton.

Capt. Ammi L. Knowlton, one of the elder of our citizens, was found dead in his bed at his home, No. 3 Atkinson street, Friday morning. He was out in his garden at work on the previous afternoon, and retired in his usual health, apparently. He evidently died without a struggle, probably from rheumatism of the heart. His age was eighty-two years, and he leaves two sons and a daughter, his wife having died about four years ago.

The Portsmouth Ball Club.

The following are the names of the men who have been engaged by the managers of the Portsmouth Base Ball Association, and the positions they will probably fill in the nine:

William H. Murray, captain, and 1st base;

Charles H. Willis, pitcher;

John A. Davis, pitcher;

James Conners, pitcher;

Frank J. Holland, pitcher, and right field;

James E. Canavan, catcher;

Malachi Kitteredge, catcher;

John E. Rudderham, 2d base;

Frank Madigan, 3d base;

David L. Macaffry, short stop;

James Daley, centre field.

"Monte Cristo."

The largest house of the season greeted Aiden Benedict's Monte Cristo company last night, and Alexander Dumas' masterpiece was rendered in a manner to satisfy the most critical. Mr. Aiden Benedict as Edmond Dantes, looked the ideal of the part, and played it as only a finished actor could. Miss Sarah Farley, as Mercedes, was excellent, showing herself to be possessed of an emotional power of a high order. The marvellous setting of the second act provoked rounds of applause.—Columbus Transcript.

"RETURN PARTY,"

In Franklin Hall last evening.

Enjoyed by a large number. A very Successful Affair.

Names of the dancers. Full account of the Party.

The "Return Party" in Franklin hall on Friday evening, complimentary to the young ladies who gave the "Leap Year Party" on April 11th, was one of the most successful dances given in the city this season. The young men who had charge and made all the arrangements, are to be congratulated on the results of their efforts, which must be more than satisfactory for the enjoyable time they gave to all, (if not financially,) to themselves as well as those who attend. The managers have given only their spare time in arranging the affair, none of them having left their business to attend to it, and for that reason much more credit is due to them than otherwise would be. The managers were Alfred N. LaBrie, Chas. W. Gray, Will. C. Pooler, and T. F. Flanagan.

It was a very "dressy" affair; the young ladies were attired in beautiful costumes, and the young gentlemen wore full-dress evening suits. We doubt if a more select party was ever held in this city. All united in saying that they had enjoyed a most delightful evening, and that the young men had fully repaid in pleasure the young ladies who gave the Leap Year party.

The following invitation, handsomely written on Southworth's bond invitation paper, the very latest and most stylish paper for that purpose, by Mr. Freeman F. Sanborn of this city, to the number of one hundred were sent out ten days previous, about thirty-five of them being sent to Dover, Boston, Newburyport, Salem, South Berwick and Great Falls:

The pleasure of your company is requested at a dress party, given complimentary to the Young Ladies who gave the Leap Year Party, April 11th.

Alfred N. LaBrie, Will. C. Pooler.
Chas. W. Gray, Thos. F. Flanagan.
Franklin Hall, May 4th. Tickets $1.00
"R. S. V. P."

The Music hall orchestra gave the following promenade concert from eight to nine o'clock:

1. Overture. "Home Memories."
2. Trombone solo. "When life's golden turns to gray." A. B. Cooney
3. Waltz. "Mariana." Waldteufel
4. Galop. "Infernal" Muller

The managers, thinking it well to depart from the general rule of opening the dance with a grand march and circle, opened with a waltz. We think that will do for once, but the march is an important feature to omit. The spectators in the galleries and friends of those who are on the floor miss the march more than do the dancers, for it enables them to see who is there and to watch the graceful movements of the merry participants—and that is all for spectators to enjoy at a dance.

During the concert the couples promenaded to the stage, where the orders were given out by Master Eugene Shelton, a young colored boy, in neat fitting dress suit, and he looked very nice.

The orders of dances were very pretty, being printed on hammered cardboard, embossed with a wish-bone on the cover in gold, silver and bronze, with an insert. On the cover of the orders was the following inscription: "Program; Return party, 1888; Managers, A. N. LaBrie, Chas. W. Gray, Will. C. Pooler, T. F. Flanagan." On the first page of insert: "May 4th, 1888; Return Party, Given complimentary to the Young Ladies who gave the Leap Year Party, April 11th, 1888. Promenade Concert by the Music Hall Orchestra, 8 to 9 o'clock." They were printed by Richard I. Walden, the printer. On the second and third pages was the following

ORDER OF DANCES.

I. Waltz. "Summer Evening" Waldteufel
II. Lancers. "Oriental" Schlepegrell
III. Schottische. "Rose of Kentucky." Tobini
IV. Quadrille. "Orpheus." Strauss
V. Galop. "Jockey." Arnson
VI. Quadrille Waltz. "Opera Puffs." Ross
VII. Lancers. "Ermisie." Jacobowski
VIII. Portland Fancy. "Medley."

INTERMISSION.

I. Schottische. "aux cinq pas." Honeysuckle
II. Quadrille. "Chimes of Normandy."
III. Waltz. "Society." Gungel
IV. Virginia Reel. "a la Horatio." Bennett
V. Polka. "La Esprit Francais." Waldteufel
VI. Lancers. "Hiddygore." Bullivan
VII. Galop. "Leap Year." Ladies' Choice
VIII. Quadrille. "Auld Lang Syne."

On the fourth page was the following; Floor Director Will. C. Pooler, Aids Alfred N. LaBrie, Chas. W. Gray, Thomas F. Flanagan.

The ladies' dressing room was in charge of two young colored ladies who attended to whatever the young ladies desired of them. Master Eugene Shelton attended the gentlemen's dressing room. This was very thoughtful on the part of the managers, for which we are sure that they have the thanks of all the ladies as well as the gentlemen.

The floor manager wore a bow of nile green and pink ribbon, and the aids pink and lavender.

The following is a partial list of the dancers:

Glorious Gettysburg.

The meeting on the battlefield last July of the men of the Philadelphia Brigade and those of Pickett's Division was only one of the many instances that cause the popular interest in that glorious fight to still continue, increase and become even greater than it is, if that were possible; and we are barely well over the meeting of last July when we hear the notes of preparation for next year's gathering of the veterans of both armies on the historic field. Next summer will be the twenty-fifth anniversary of the fight, and no doubt will be to the survivors the most interesting of all that have taken place. When another quarter of a century shall have passed away how few of those who participated in the fight will be with us to visit the field and "fight the battle o'er again." General Meade, the superb Hancock and a host of noble souls have already gone to join the heroic Reynolds in the fields of eternal rest. Corps, division, brigade and regimental commanders are following fast. The hundred thousand gallant men who touched elbows in defense of Pennsylvania soil are being rapidly gathered to their reward, and soon none will be left to tell the story of the awful struggle which is the one event of our history that overshadows all others. Our people seem to never tire of studying the field and hearing the incidents of that memorable fight. Our Grand Army friends have succeeded in securing for an early date the magnificent exposition of the battle that has been creating such a sensation throughout the country for many months past, and our citizens will have a chance to see the Titanic struggle, not only on one portion of the grounds, but the entire fight from first to last, in all the sublime grandeur of the storm-swept field.

Henry W. Trefethen of Kittery Point, who was last Thursday found insensible alongside the Portsmouth & Dover railroad near Cushing's station, Dover, and brought to this city on the 10:45 A. M. train and afterwards taken to his home in Kittery, had not on Friday come to his senses, and it was impossible to tell whether he fell from a ladder as first reported, or not. A careful examination of his body and limbs revealed no bruise of any kind. He often felt of his head, but had nothing to say, and recognized no one.

Messrs. Mitchell, Tobey & Co., of Kittery Point, are putting their weir down at Pocahontas point.

The schooner Mountain Laurel arrived at this port on Friday, the 4th inst., from Boston, with salt to E. F. Sise & Co.

Personal.

Miss Jennie Goodrich, daughter of Hon. Moses H. Goodrich, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Willard Lewis, of Walpole, Mass.

Miss Ruth Simpson of Greenland is passing a few days with the family of Mr. A. Pearson, of Broad street.

Mrs. J. F. Hall and Mrs. Rollins, wife of Judge Rollins of Meredith, arrived in this city this week, and have reopened Mrs. Hall's residence on State street.

Miss Lulu Emery of Boston is at the Chapman place, Greenland, for the summer.

It is reported that Judge Batchelder is contemplating a trip to Europe this summer.

Mayor Hodgdon and wife start this morning for Cleveland, Ohio, where the mayor is representative to the Supreme Lodge of the Knights of Honor, to be held in that city next week.

Rev. Wm. A. Loyne, formerly of this city, was appointed by the recent Methodist conference of this state to have charge of the churches at Colebrook and Stewartstown.

Moses A. Safford of Kittery is to deliver the Memorial day oration at Buxton, instead of at Alfred as has been reported.

Miss Isabella C. Wingate of Stratham, who has been visiting in California for some months past, has returned to her home.

The recent earthquake in China was of frightful magnitude. The shaking of the earth was followed by a subterranean convulsion of the most appalling kind. The earth yawned until a frightful chasm was produced, from which red colored water was ejected. Great tracts of land suddenly disappeared, and lakes formed in their place. The shocks continued for four days. More than fifteen thousand persons were killed. The aspect of the country has been completely changed.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.

The eminent organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861, and the makers followed in the manufacture in these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

$22 TO $900.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS

Mason & Hamlin do not absolute to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

A. F. McNeal, a well-known citizen of Rawson, Ohio, died Thursday, April 26th, after a short illness, and there is a weird story connected with this fact, which is as fully authenticated as his death. On the night of the 28th of January, he dreamed that he died and went to heaven. In his dream the date of his death, April 26th, was firmly fixed upon his mind. In "the beautiful city" he dreamed that he met Mr. Mahlon Povenmire, of Ada, an old friend, and asked him when he died. Povenmire replied that he died a week before. The next morning, when McNeal awoke, he reduced the details to writing. He was then in excellent health. His wife found the manuscript a few days after and it worried her a good deal, but she said nothing to her husband concerning it. Thursday, April 26, McNeal died, while Povenmire joined the silent majority one week ago Thursday. The case is a remarkable one, but it cannot be laughed down, for every word of it is true, and the substance of McNeal's dream is in manuscript, just as he wrote it three months ago.

That feeling of weariness, so often experienced in the spring, results from a sluggish condition of the blood which, being impure, does not quicken with the changing season. Ayer's Sarsaparilla, by vitalizing and cleansing the blood, strengthens and invigorates the system.

According to the Oil City Derrick, 53,000 wells have been drilled in Pennsylvania and New York since the discovery of petroleum, at a cost of $200,000,000. These wells have produced 310,000,000 barrels of oil, which was sold at the wells for $500,000,000. This represented a profit to the producer of $300,000,000. The amount of oil exported is placed at 6,231,102,923 gallons.

The spring immigration from Europe to this country leads to the opinion that the rush to our shores this year will be unparalleled. It is remarkable that after so much has been written and published in regard to early steam-navigation (especially ocean navigation, which is of comparatively recent date), it remains to be shown that the first regularly built ocean steamer was constructed on this side of the Atlantic. Waiving all that has been claimed for the voyage of the "Savannah," we now find that an American shipbuilder constructed the first sea-going steamer that ever crossed the ocean propelled wholly by steam. This was called the "Royal William," in honor of a "sailor King" who then reigned in England, and the Historical Society of Chicago has her original drawings on file in its archieves.—F. L. HEARTLESS.

"No you have no ambition," cried the girl; "but I have."

Her splendid eyes flashed upon the young fellow, and in a dull undefined way he felt clumsy and loutish, and altogether inadequate to the companionship of this radiant creature.

"Ambition!" he repeat vaguely.

Hilary swung herself on the gate with an impatience which perhaps accorded little with the announcement she had been making of high and brilliant social aims for herself.

"Yes, ambition. Did you ever think you would like to be anything more or better than you are now? And what are you? Just a farm-laborer."

She flung the words out with a magnificent contempt.

"It's what your father and brother were, Hilary," returned Oliver after a little space.

He said it gravely, without accent of offense.

"That's no reason why everyone should go on being the same thing to everlasting," announced Hilary, not very clearly, but with decision and passion.

Oliver felt himself defenseless before this worldly wisdom. This had always been their attitude. Her nimbleness and wit left his slowness and heaviness at a loss. There were things he would have liked to say—things which he felt vaguely, which haunted him with a torturing sense that his reason were best, but that he should never succeed in explaining them so that Hilary would heed, or even listen.

He stood in appearance a bulky stolid young rustic, chewing without thought the long straw he held between his teeth; and the bright, slight, vivid girl by his side continued to swing her little body backward and forward on the white gate from which the paint was chipping, and forgot his existence.

It was a night fair and warm, and redolent with sweet wholesome odors from the great red barn stocked with grain. There was a glory of moonlight abroad, and a south wind rustled the elms. It was a night full of poetry—full of the mysterious voices of nature.

The young fellow, through his heavy corporeal envelope, thrilled with visions, resolves, yearnings he could not define or understand, of which he was scarce conscious. The girl, her spirited beauty glorified by the rare light that shone upon her face, her eyes looking widely out into the sleeping fields, dreamed of city streets, and the delights of delicate dress.

After a silence neither had measured for different reasons, Oliver stirred slowly.

"I suppose I must be going," he said.

"Oh, must you?"

Hilary came back violently from her reverie and gave him an absent glance. But immediately, as he was turning away without other words, she added:

"Come again when you can," and accompanied the admonition with a smile whose actual enchantment she could not have helped had she tried.

She looked after his tall broad figure going down the moonlit road.

"Poor Oliver! He's a first-rate fellow," she thought.

And then she went back to the castles she was building, crystal clear and iridescent with a hundred lights in the silence of the sweet serene midsummer night.

* * * *

The shops were opening, the factory girls were trooping to their work, and the great city was awaking with a myriad tongues to its busy day, when a young man—who, somehow, had the look of middle age about him, too—stopped at an address which he had in his pocket. It might have been there some time, for the bit of paper on which it was written was worn and discolored at the folds.

A tall and imposing personage with a costume of conspicuous stylishness and an unimpeachable coiffure, looked at him and came forward a little.

She seemed to be the only woman in the large deep shop, down the length of which stretched broad white counters laden with feathers, hats, flowers, and boxes of ribbon. Some young men clerks, were lounging about in various attitudes of languor, awaiting the beginning of the day's labors.

"Lester, did you say?" repeated the imposing person with the smooth and effective hair. "Miss Hilary Lester? couldn't tell you, really. She has not been here in my time. We employ only a few girls upstairs on trimmed sample hats."

She had an air of having dismissed the rural looking new comer. One or two of the younger clerks [illegible] Perhaps Oli[illegible] you that I don't even remember the name."

"No, of course not," stammered poor Oliver.

"Who was he after? Seemed to be pretty badly cut up," he heard someone laugh as he went out.

Stumbling a little in his hulking countryman's walk, he passed along the great, strange, noisy street once more. Hurrying hundreds, each unit of them all on his own interests—his own absorbing concerns—intent, brushed by him unheeding.

Where should he look now? Never in these five years of toil, of patient striving for one idea, had this thought occurred to him, that when he did manage to follow her it might be too late; that she might have gone beyond the ken of those who had known her.

He walked about the streets vaguely, aimlessly all the day; and when the thoroughfares shone with the white glare of electric lights he continued his footsore wanderings.

Presently he noticed a sign offering night's lodgings beside a flight of stairs leading into a large house. He considered a moment, and then went in. He engaged a room, then took his money out of his pocket, and put it under his pillow. He would be very careful of it. He would spend nothing on himself. He might find Hilary yet. But where? Oh, my God! With a sudden icy terror of premonition shooting through him he turned his head into his hard, thin, coarse pillow. Where?

* * * *

It was a small room, its spaces managed and utilised in the spirit of compact snugness which characterizes the cheaper metropolitan flat; but it was a very pretty room. Its grace and almost elegance of arrangement made up for its exiguity. And the pretty woman who poured tea for her one visitor gave a last bright charm to the apartment which the gentleman was not slow to appreciate.

He was a rather florid person, to whose good looks the touch of forty years had given a certain appearance of added prosperity, and perhaps pompousness. The appearance of prosperity was quite justified. Mr. Vannest McFarlane had all the material things which a man need wish for.

Perhaps he took them—his unimpeachable position, his gentle blood, his inherited and accumulated wealth—rather as a tribute to his personal excellence and respectability; but, all the same, he was a man of many good impulses and some generosity. If he were very prudent in some respects one could not but acknowledge that he had the right to such prudence, situated as he was.

"Yes, I have a great sympathy with some of these fellows," observed Mr. McFarlane, sipping his tea. "It is pathetic the struggle they go through when they are launched into the maelstrom of city life. Some swim; but many more sink. Yes—poor fellows! I've seen a good many cases of the kind."

The bright young widow's face darkened with an alluring sympathy.

"Yes," she assented with a soft little murmur.

"Some have come under my especial notice."

"Yes? I dare say you have given many struggler a helping hand, too," said the young widow.

She said it quietly, not impulsively. If she had forced the enthusiastic note at all, Mr. McFarlane's delicate taste would have taken umbrage.

This was exactly what Mr. McFarlane greatly appreciated in the charming little woman in the black dress. He made no allusion to himself on the score of her probable original status. He did not know exactly what it was; but he imagined, without wishing to enquire very far back, that it was something rather simple, while respectable.

He did not think he should at all have cared for the acquaintance of the defunct Mr. Lawton, who had been a frank, fresh young dry-goods clerk, with great limitations as to his intellectual outlook, and evidently greatly his young wife's inferior.

Mr. McFarlane could not but consider it as almost providential—and this quite impersonally — that the young dry-goods clerk, after insuring his life nicely, should have left his wife to pursue her career unhampered by the restrictions that a husband without many resources must place upon a clever and pretty woman.

If Mr. McFarlane was a little slow in finally crystallising his various feelings of appreciation, admiration, for this particularly clever and pretty woman into a definite offer of his person and its accompanying advantages, it is to be remembered, as said before, that the advantages were really quite uncommon.

"A man does what he can in such a case," he said, in reply to her remark. But the remark had flattered him—had been delightfully agreeable.

And Mrs. Lawton was looking so very charming—more so even than usual, if that were possible—that evening. There was such a soft color upon her cheek, such a light in her eyes.

And what an air of grace and breeding she had! There was something in personal distinction certainly. It was an excellent substitute for social distinction, if one could not have that. And a what a quaint mellow name Hilary was!

"I have had one instance under my notice for some time," he pursued. "The young fellow who came from the rural districts about two years ago. He was honest, industrious, a capital fellow, though rather dull. But I don't think it was the dullness which stood in the way of his getting on. He had not come to this city with any intention of seeking his fortune, it appeared. On the contrary, when he came—poor wretch!—I fancy he thought himself possessed of a certain wealth. It was a touching story. It seems—I only found this out very lately, for the poor fellow [illegible] [illegible]

"The young woman, it would appear, had been rather ambitious in the time past, and probably would not listen to his suit. But I suppose Oliver felt that if he presented himself before her as a capitalist in a mild way she might be induced to think differently of him and his offer. But he never found her. She had gone up to different things or down to lower, and he looked in vain. And then he had his money stolen from him one night in a lodging house, and he had to look for work or starve. But he did not get on. The hope that had held him up was growing dimmer all the time. Finally he fell ill. Now he is very low. I doubt if he lives through another day. I have been very greatly interested in the poor fellow. * * * The girl's name was Hilary Lester. She worked first in a wholesale straw and flower house down town. All trace of her disappears after that. Yes, it is really an unusually sad case."

"Poor—poor fellow! The girl was a namesake of mine, then?"

Yes, indeed. Mrs. Lawton was clever; she deserved to succeed. She had pushed her chair back a little from the lamp, but she dared not raise her fan to screen her face from its rays lest the action should betray the trembling of her hand.

She had the feeling a person might have who suddenly saw a chasm yawning at his feet. She dared not move; she scarcely breathed. She controlled the muscles of her face, though she felt with horror that her cheeks were turning so cold and white that her visitor must notice the change.

"Ah! Was your name Lester, too?" asked Mr. McFarlane with a little surprised smile at the coincidence.

"No—I was referring to her first name—Hilary."

"Ah yes."

He began talking of other things. Mrs. Lawton, smiling a little, throwing in an apt word now and then, sat still, while the quivering in her nerves subsided and the pounding of her heart grew less and less. She had but one thought. Had he observed anything? Had he suspected the cause of her agitation? It seemed to her that it must be written all over her face that she was the Hilary Lester who had worked in the flower-house down town, and who now denied the man she had known since childhood, the farm-laborer who had seen her going about the menial duties of the miserable house.

But she need have had no apprehension. It could never have occurred to Mr. Vannest McFarlane to conceive of any possible connection between this refined, graceful, brilliant young woman, who had evidently been superior to her dry-goods clerk husband, and the country girl who had won the heart of poor, ignorant, faithful Oliver Payne.

* * * *

When Mr. McFarlane called again (and the intervals between his calls were growing more and more short) he thought it only a proof of the directness and femininity of Mrs. Lawton's charming nature that she should ask after his protege, and hope he was better.

"I don't know whether it should be called better or not," returned Mr. McFarlane pensively. "The poor fellow is dead!

"Dead?"

"Yes. He died last night."

At no other season does the human system so much need the aid of a reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla, as now. The impoverished condition of the blood, the weakening effects of the long, cold winter, the loss appetite, and that tired feeling, make a good spring medicine absolutely necessary. Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiarly adapted for this purpose, and increases in popularity every year. It is the ideal spring medicine.

"I must say Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine I ever used. Last spring I had no appetite, and the least work I did fatigued me ever so much. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and soon felt that I could do as much in a day as I had formerly done in a week. My appetite is voracious." Miss. M. V. BAYARD, Atlantic City, N. J.

It is a Curious Fact

That the body is now more susceptible to benefit from medicine than at any other season. Hence the importance of taking Hood's Sarsaparilla now, when it will do you the most good. It is really wonderful for purifying and enriching the blood, creating an appetite, and giving a healthy tone to the whole system. Be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla, which is peculiar to itself.

All the union carpenters in Troy, New York, last week went on a strike for eight hours. The boss builders have decided to employ new hands, whether union men or not.

There is a rumor that the president may enforce the retaliation act if Canadians continue to annoy American fishermen. Persons giving credence to that rumor have evidently paid no attention to the previous course of the administration in the fisheries matter.

The American Flag Must Lead.

A large meeting to express satisfaction with Mayor Hewett's policy of displaying none but American flags on public buildings was held at the Cooper Union in New York last Friday evening. The hall was profusely decorated with the national emblem. Sanford E. Church, the first speaker, said the meeting signified that the American people would not tolerate even a suspicion that their flag should not occupy the supreme place. Foreigners were welcome, but after they were here they could not remain foreigners. The band played "Rally Round the Flag," and the audience joined in the chorus. Colonel J. H. Pierce spoke next. He said that if any citizen wanted to fly a foreign flag on his house, or carry it in a procession, that was all right, but no flag but our own should float on our public buildings. Judge R. H. Shannon then spoke in a similar strain, and was followed by Rev. C. S. Lansing of Brooklyn. All the speakers eulogized Mayor Hewitt's courage and independence.

To Save Life

Frequently requires prompt action. An hour's delay waiting for the doctor may be attended with serious consequences, especially in cases of Croup, Pneumonia, and other throat and lung troubles. Hence, no family should be without a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has proved itself, in thousands of cases, the best Emergency Medicine ever discovered. It gives prompt relief ... prepares the way for a thorough ...d, which is certain to be effected by its continued use.

S. H. Latimer, M. D., Mt. Vernon, Ga., says: "I have found Ayer's Cherry Pectoral a perfect cure for Croup in all cases. I have known the worst cases relieved in a very short time by its use; and I advise all families to use it in sudden emergencies, for coughs, croup, &c."

A. J. Eidson, M. D., Middletown, Tenn., says: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral with the best effect in my practice. This wonderful preparation once saved my life. I had a constant cough, night sweats, was greatly reduced in flesh, and given up by my physician. One bottle and a half of the Pectoral cured me."

"I cannot say enough in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral," writes E. Bragdon, of Palestine, Texas, "believing as I do that, but for its use, I should long since have died."

John T. Rand shot and ...e and baby at his home in ...ton, Thursday night, May 3d, and then killed himself. Rand was a brutal fellow, and frequently beat his wife. A short time ago she had him arrested for attacking her, and sent to jail. He was released on the 3d, and immediately went home, where he found his wife and young daughter. Rand struck the former, knocking her down, and had commenced to beat her, when the daughter ran from the house to get help. A moment later she saw her mother run out of the side door with her baby in her arms. She had taken but a few steps when her husband appeared in the doorway with a rifle in his hands, and shot her. She fell to the ground and was dead before a doctor could be summoned. As his wife fell Rand placed the muzzle of the rifle to his own head, and killed himself.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Combines, in a proportion peculiar to itself, the active medicinal properties of the best blood-purifying and strengthening remedies of the vegetable kingdom. It will positively cure—when in the power of medicine—Spring Debility, Headache, Dyspepsia, Catarrh, Salt Rheum, Scrofula, and all Diseases caused by a low state of the blood.

"I suffered three years with blood poison. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and think I am cured." MRS. M. J. DAVIS, Brockport, N. Y.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla beats all others, and is worth its weight in gold." I. BARRINGTON, 130 Bank Street, New York City.

Is so vastly superior to any other sarsaparilla or blood purifier, that one has well said: "Its health-giving effects upon the blood and entire human organism, are as much more positive than the remedies of a quarter or a century ago, as the steam-power of to-day is in advance of the slow and laborious drudgery of years ago."

"While suffering from a severe bilious attack in March, 1883, a friend in Peoria, Ill., recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla. I tried the remedy, and was permanently cured." J. A. SHEPARD, travelling agent for Devoe & Co., Fulton Street, N. Y.

Purifies the Blood

"I tried a dozen articles to cleanse my blood, but never found anything that did me any good till I began using Hood's Sarsaparilla." W. H. PEER, Rochester, N. Y.

"My wife was troubled with dizziness and constipation, and her blood has been in a bad order—in fact she has been all run down. Hood's Sarsaparilla is doing her a wonderful amount of good." F. M. BALDWIN, druggist, Blanchester, Ohio.

"I was for five years a sufferer with boils, all run down, and was at one time obliged to give up work. Before taking all of two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, was entirely cured." R. M. LANE, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. Took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

— OF —

The Atkinson House Furnishing...

— FROM THE —

HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND, MAINE,

To those who are contemplating the purchase of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

GREETING:

On and after June 1st we shall STOP PREPAYING the FREIGHT on GOODS SOLD by us, and we respectfully request that those who have dealt with us, and who have been BENEFITED by the PAYMENT OF THIS FREIGHT which in itself in the past three years has amounted to some

30,000 DOLLARS,

Will order what GOODS they require for this SPRING, from us this month, and please order as early as possible. And to those who intend buying

Chamber Sets, Parlor Suits, Carpets, Lounges, Easy Chairs, Mattresses, Springs, Silver-ware, Window Shades, Drapery, Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Stoves and Ranges, Feathers, Feather Pillows, Spreads, Blankers,

And anything else in HOUSE FURNISHING, can be BENEFITED to the extent of the freight to their depot, by buying from us this month. We have always PREPAID THIS FREIGHT FROM OUR OWN PROFITS, as we have invariably made the price on the

Furniture, Carpets,

Etc., lower than could be bought for elsewhere. There has always been a great advantage derived by our prepayment of the freight because we in every instance GUARANTEE the SAFE DELIVERY of the goods, and if there has ever been a fight to make with the railroad, we have done it, or in other words if you have received a

CHAMBER SET, PARLOR SUIT, Chair, or Range,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

That was damaged by the railroad, we have replaced it with another piece, and taken our chances to get the breakage from the road. There are ...ms worthy of our close consideration, and especially at this time of year, be wise and order during this month,

And Save Yourself the Freight from Portland to your Depot, no matter where it is located in the State of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

We believe we are the only HOUSE FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT IN NEW ENGLAND WHO HAVE ADHERED STRICTLY TO THIS PLAN OF PREPAYING THE FREIGHT ON EVERYTHING SHIPPED BY US. We mean by this that while some other houses have shipped the goods, and allowed you to pay freight and afterwards send them a bill and then dicker on it for some time, We have invariably paid out the cash before the article left our freight sheds at Portland. And now notwithstanding the fact that we expect to lose a great deal of business by this this year there seems to be no other way to convince some people of the difference between OUR PAYING THE FREIGHT before the articles leave here, AND OUR CUSTOMERS PAYING THE FREIGHT after the articles get to the depot, and then having to write backwards and forwards over the matter. We wish to deal with perfect fairness and frankness in this matter, consequently we give you another month to make your selection, and to fill orders that are already placed. Now if you want a

KITCHEN RANGE, or a CHAMBER SET, or PARLOR SUIT, or CARPETS, WINDOW SHADES, DRAPERY CURTAINS,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

Kindly come and see us at once, or if you can not come, please write us for Catalogues and Descriptions of these Goods, and we will do our very best to please you in every one. Remember we carry COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHINGS. There is scarcely a thing that you require for your homes that we do not keep, and we sell the same and, shall continue to sell the same for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. This notice applies TO ALL OUR STORES, and we have written to each of our MANAGERS to this effect, consequently there will be no more freight prepaid from our Bangor Store, Rockland Store, Auburn Store, Bar Harbor Store, Biddeford Store, nor from the Headquarters at Portland, after the 31st day of May, 1888.

Kindly get your orders in before June 1st, if you wish to save this freight.

United States Commissioner's Court.

HACKETT Com'r; May 5th.

Patrick Gorman of Dover was brought before United States Commissioner Hackett on Saturday, charged with selling malt liquor since April 1st without payment of the special tax by law required. Gorman paid a fine on his plea of guilty in the Dover police court, which he contended he submitted to rather than to have the annoyance of a trial. The district attorney produced other evidence. Gorman made no defence, other than his statement that he kept ale to give his customers when they settled their bills in his meat shop, adjoining. Held in $250 to answer at the United States circuit court, Tuesday. Bail was furnished.

Daniel McCooey, arraigned on a charge founded on a similar complaint by Internal Revenue Collector Page, turned out to be the father of John McCooey, Jr., who was a son of Daniel, and who had paid the tax for the sale of fluids at the shop. There being no evidence to hold the respondent, the United States attorney was willing that he be discharged. Mr. McCooey conducted his own case.

Queries and Notes.

Is Mr. Blaine really in good or ill health?

Will there be a dissenting vote at St. Louis against the renomination of G. C.?

Was Geo. E. calling on Geo. H. when the nuisance act came up for a third reading?

Does Mr. Jones wish to be senator as much as Mr. Chandler desires a re-election?

These are questions to be solved, with perhaps more than ordinary interest attending the result. But what are the consequences compared with the solid fact that our glorious city government has, after years of desuetude in this respect, at last grappled with the proposition to fill the hole in the sidewalk opposite the stone church, where for so many years, after summer showers and winter storms and thaws, a pool of water has been ready to give a foot-bath to every pedestrian? The street department expended thirty minutes in labor, a bushel of sand and twelve bricks, and this protracted excrescence or rather dent upon a leading thoroughfare has at last been straightened out. Our efficient city government gets there sooner or later. Only give it time. In this measure it was late. But thanks, awfully. The job has been accomplished at last.

Welcome Sweet Day of Sacred Rest.

Brother Norris, of the Times, worshipped in New York on Sunday.

A Lucky Escape.

Charles Perkins of Dover, formerly of this city, now employed as a telephone pole climber, last Thursday afternoon while at the top of a pole thirty feet from the ground, in the rear of the Great Falls post-office, cut a wire that ran to it, and instantly the pole fell. It was rotten at the bottom. Perkins jumped for the edge of a house near by, and got his hands on the gutter, which gave way and he fell to the ground, sustaining a scalp wound and a sprained ankle. He was taken to his home in Dover, but will probably suffer no permanent injury. He had a very narrow escape.

Death of Henry W. Trefethen.

Mr. Henry W. Trefethen of Kittery Point, who was brought to this city last Thursday morning by a train from Dover, having been found insensible beside the track near Cushing's station, died at his home in Kittery on Friday evening about 7:30 o'clock, without having regained consciousness. He had not been in robust health for some years, and it is thought he died from apoplexy. He was a member of St. John's Lodge of Masons, of this city, and of Riverside Lodge of Odd Fellows, of Kittery. He leaves a wife and one son.

At Music Hall To-night.

This evening, in Music hall, Alden Benedict's company will present the romantic drama "Monte Cristo," Mr. Benedict taking the exacting part of Edmund Dantes, and Miss Sarah Farley that of Mercedes. This dramatization of Dumas' wonderful tale is the best ever produced, the story being closely followed, without wearisome details. Tickets at Goodrich's.

Rye Republicans.

At the caucus of the republicans of Rye, held on Wednesday evening of last week, George G. Lougee and Thomas W. Rand were elected delegates to the state convention of the party, and Hon. Emmons B. Philbrick and Augustus Caswell as delegates to the first congressional district convention.

Personal.

Hon. Frank Jones started Saturday afternoon for Washington.

Chief Engineer David B. Macomb, U. S. N., was in this city on Saturday.

Andrew P. Preston arrived home on Saturday night from a trip of several weeks to the south and west.

Mr. Moses French, landlord of the Union house at York beach, has arrived home from a three months trip in the west.

Rev. Mr. Hovey, rector of St. John's church, leaves the first of this week on a short vacation trip to New York and Washington.

Hon. Daniel Marcy and wife, and their daughter, Mrs. Shirley B. Cunningham, and child, arrived home from New Orleans last Saturday morning.

Mr. Edward S. Marshall, proprietor of the Marshall house, York harbor, was in this city Saturday, arranging for telegraphic service the coming summer.

Ex-Mayor Moses Humphrey of Concord, who has passed his 80th year, was married on Wednesday of last week to Mrs. Adeline J. Clarke of South Newmarket.

Mr. John S. Wendell, who has for many years been sexton of St. John's church, has resigned that position, and Mr. Lyman P. Broughton has been appointed in his place.

Hon. Frank Jones and family and Col. Charles A. Sinclair and family leave their winter quarters in the Rockingham house, and take up their residence for the summer at Gravelly Ridge, to-day.

Mr. Franklin O. Badger of Clinton avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., was in this city last Friday to attend the funeral of his father, the late Albert J. Badger. Previous to this visit he had not been in Portsmouth for twenty-seven years. He started for Brooklyn again on Saturday forenoon.

Mr. Peter Shea of Port Chalmers, province of Otago, New Zealand, arrived in this city on Saturday evening on a visit to his friend I. P. Miller, they not having seen each other before for twenty-one years. Mr. Shea left home fifty-one years ago, and this is his first return visit; before again starting for New Zealand he will make a trip to Scotland to see some friends there. He was accompanied to this city by a nephew, Mr. Willie Shea of Maverick square, East Boston.

Maritime Notes.

The brick schooners Lillie, Hattie Lewis, Triton, Sadie A. Kimball and J. Chester Wood arrived at Boston on the 4th, from this port.

Steamer James Sampson was inspected by the United States steamboat inspector on Saturday. Capt. Duncan's new steamer is to be called the Undine.

The moulds are being got out at the navy yard for a vessel of sixty-five feet keel, presumably a torpedo boat, to be built in ship house No. 5.

Music Hall.

The advance sale of tickets for "Adonis," at Music hall to-morrow evening, is already very large, and persons wishing good seats will do well not to wait until the last moment. Tickets can now be secured at Goodrich's.

Mr. Edward W. Riley, who has been a member of Frye's & Co.'s express for the past fifteen years, retires from the firm this morning. The business will be conducted under the same firm name, by Messrs James R. and Edwin T. Morrison.

Miss Ullie Akerstrom, who on Saturday evening closed a most successful week's engagement at Music hall, having had large and enthusiastic audiences at every performance, will commence a week's engagement at the Boston theatre on June 2d.

The first religious newspaper published in America was issued in Ohio, and called The Recorder." So says an item now going the rounds of the press. It has often been stated that the Herald of Gospel Liberty, started in this city by Elias Smith, was not only the first religious newspaper published in America but in the world.

Mr. Bean, who collects milk in this vicinity to be sent off toward Boston on the milk train, was on Saturday driving through Goodwin park when the body of the large wagon, with the hind wheels and the milk, suddenly stopped, the horses keeping on with the forward wheels. The wagon's sudden change of level caused the loss of a large part of the milk, and the dinting of some of the cans, but no other serious damage was reported. The breaking of a bolt caused the trouble.

A strong gang of fresco painters are at work ornamenting the ceilings and inside walls of the Hotel Wentworth.

Venus, now morning star, is brighter now than it ever appeared before to any man now living, and nearer the earth than it will be again for 340 years.

A steam drill hired from Boston parties will be put to work on the ledges at Sagamore road this morning.

Malone's restaurant and beer shop on Elm street was opened on Saturday, under charge of Mr. Martin Garrity.

Rev. Lewis Phillips has been engaged as pastor of the Christian society at Rye for another year. Rev. H. M. Holmes, late of Meriden, this state, having been unanimously called to the pastorate of the Congregational church at Rye, commenced the duties of his office on Sunday.

Thursday, May 11th, is Ascension day.

Denman Thompson will appear at Music hall on May 22d, in "the Old Homestead."

Mrs. Nancy B. Wilson of Kittery Point, widow of Augustus Wilson, fell down stairs about a week ago, and broke one of her legs. She is seventy-six years old, but notwithstanding her advanced age is doing well.

Ullie Akerstrom has engaged "Handsome Dan" Maguinnis to take the part of Dandy Dick in the play of "Annette, the Dancing Girl," when it is presented at the Boston theatre.

The officers of the Grand Council of New Hampshire will visit Davenport Council, No. 5, of this city, Thursday, May 10th.

Special transportation tickets to and from the Republican National convention at Chicago next June will be sold at the Boston & Maine station in this city, at $23.50 for the round trip via Boston, $23.35 via Montreal.

ROUNDED UP BY COYOTES.

How the Jack Rabbits at Nevada are Gathered in by Wolves.

"You never saw the artistic way the Nevada wolves would round up the jack rabbits, I suppose," remarked Joseph Grandelmyer, the old time Nevadan. "It is the cleverest bit of strategy I ever heard of. There are several kinds of wolves all through the state, but the coyotes are by far the plentiest. In the Humboldt, Smoky, and other valleys the coyotes form in military line, oftentimes along some old road, as I have most frequently seen them, and thus systematically go on a regular drive.

"They stretch out over a great area of country, the coyotes being stationed somewhere near a mile apart. Once they get sight of a jack rabbit his name is Dennis. He may take to the sage brush and elude the coyotes for a time. Fifty or a hundred coyotes can thus in a short time rake in a terrible lot of rabbits. If the coyotes are hungry it is about the rarest sport one can witness. They go at the hunt with so much ardor and with such perfect system.

"A coyote on his own account can usually forage successfully for feed. He is sly, like a fox, and, always with an eye out for number one, he generally has his belly full and lots of fat sticking to his ribs; but if the weather has been bad and he gets separated from his fellows on a reconnoitring tour he may have a hard time of it. In the sagebrush a jack rabbit can generally manage to elude a coyote. He can get in and out quicker, while the coyote, being bigger, is delayed by the brush, and can't get in and out like a rabbit.

"But after a lot of hungry wolves have held a council of war and decided to go on a hunt, it is time for the rabbits to hunt their holes. There is always music in the air about that time, and the weird howls of the wolves sound like a distant reveille. The rabbits seem to understand the situation, too, and scamper hither and thither over the plains and rolling hills. It is not long, however, till the wolves marshal their forces. They begin by making a wide detour over the hills, lessening the size of the circle as they advance, and holding all the rabbits they get in as skillfully as a fisherman handles his seine.

"The jack rabbits are all of a tremble when they see how their enemies have them hedged about, and jump helplessly into the air, and utter pitiful cries. The wolves merely watch the sides warily, and look on vindictively, with tongues lolling out through their white teeth, and eyes sparkling, expressive of the knowledge that they will soon have some fine eating. As the wolves draw nearer together the quick snap, snap of their jaws is heard as they snip the throats of their victims, and they fall dead from loss of blood.

"When every rabbit is killed, the coyotes sit down on their haunches to a very comfortable banquet, and never let up until they have taken aboard so much rabbit meat that they can hardly stir. Then they slowly meander off to their homes, wherever they may be, and if there is a lot of rabbit meat left, as there may be, they put in an appearance again, at stated intervals, until the whole is consumed.

"After a lot of coyotes have had a talk, so to speak, and decided to go on a hunt, they will sometimes go to a rough region, where they know the rabbits abound, and lay siege for them in another way. Certain brigades will clamber upon the high rocks and hill tops surrounding a canyon, and drive the game down into the depths below, other relays of wolves having previously been placed at the entrance and at the weak places. They oftentimes get a great many into a canyon in this way, and thus speedily finish them. It is generally in the very early morning that the coyotes sound their reveille and go after the rabbits."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Overcrowding in Siberia.

The overcrowding of the Siberian prisons is appalling. "The Tomsk transportation prison," writes The Siberian Gazette of that city, "is overcrowded. To the 1,520 people we had here 700 new ones have been added, and so the prison which was built for 900 people contains 2,200. There are 207 persons on the sick list." The central prison, on Sackhalin island, which was built for 600 people, contained 1,103 in 1879. Michela, a Siberian official and ex-prison director, writes about two prisons which were under his control as follows: "The jailer brought me to the rooms. Everywhere dirt, overcrowding, wetness, want of air and light. After having visited the rooms I entered the hospital. As soon as I entered the first room I was involuntarily thrown back by the inconceivable smell. The water closets were luxurious apartments in comparison with the hospital. Everywhere the number of prisoners is thrice the number permitted by the law. At Verkneudinsk, for instance, the jail is built for 240 inmates, and it usually contains 800."—Michael Malkoff in Chicago News.

How to Become Learned.

Any man of mature years who has enjoyed all the advantages of a free public primary, grammar and high school, a preparatory academy, a college, and a professional school, will testify that what he has learned by himself is of infinitely more value to him than all he ever acquired in all the institutions of learning he ever attended. Books on all subjects are now so cheap and plenty, public libraries are so large and numerous, instruction in special studies is so easily obtained that any person who can read, write and compute numbers may become a learned as the wisest. He can study what he knows or thinks will afford him the most pleasure or profit. He can cultivate his head, hands, or heels, his eye, tongue, or ear, his manners, morals and language to any extent he desires, at an expense not exceeding what a young man ordinarily spends for cigars or a girl for candy. If a person wishes to become learned there is little trouble in accomplishing what he wishes.—Chicago Times.

The Bigness of Texas.

Says an imaginative statistician: "If Texas were a circular lake and France a circular island, the island could be anchored centrally in the lake out of sight of land twenty-two miles from any point on the encircling shore."—Chicago Herald.

A Deaf Cow.

Evidence exists that deaf mutes are not confined to the human race. In a farmer's herd for twelve years was a cow which never gave any signs of hearing, and whose evident attempts at lowing resulted only in a feeble guttural. Nothing abnormal could be discovered in the ears nor in the vocal organs.—Boston Budget.

Mastodon Skeletons.

The Ichtucknee river in Florida, is said to be remarkably rich in mastodon remains. In no other spot on the globe are they so numerous. Not less than six skeletons have been found within the space of two miles, among them one of the largest known.—Chicago Herald.

Now laughs the sun; the south-wind blows;
Three merry maids hang out the clothes;
Miranda, Maud, and Madaline;
They hear the village clock ring nine.
Quoth Maud: "Why are we done so soon?
The washing used to last till noon?"
Two rosy mouths in chorus ope,
"Oh! now we use the IVORY SOAP."

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

United States Commissioner's Court.

HACKETT Com'r; May 5th.

Patrick Gorman of Dover was brought before United States Commissioner Hackett on Saturday, charged with selling malt liquor since April 1st without payment of the special tax by law required. Gorman paid a fine on his plea of guilty in the Dover police court, which he contended he submitted to rather than to have the annoyance of a trial. The district attorney produced other evidence. Gorman made no defence, other than his statement that he kept ale to give his customers when they settled their bills in his meat shop, adjoining. Held in $250 to answer at the United States circuit court, Tuesday. Bail was furnished.

Daniel McCooey, arraigned on a charge founded on a similar complaint by Internal Revenue Collector Page, turned out to be the father of John McCooey, Jr., who was a son of Daniel, and who had paid the tax for the sale of fluids at the shop. There being no evidence to hold the respondent, the United States attorney was willing that he be discharged. Mr. McCooey conducted his own case.

Queries and Notes.

Is Mr. Blaine really in good or ill health?

Will there be a dissenting vote at St. Louis against the renomination of G. C.?

Was Geo. E. calling on Geo. H. when the nuisance act came up for a third reading?

Does Mr. Jones wish to be senator as much as Mr. Chandler desires a re-election?

These are questions to be solved, with perhaps more than ordinary interest attending the result. But what are the consequences compared with the solid fact that our glorious city government has, after years of desuetude in this respect, at last grappled with the proposition to fill the hole in the sidewalk opposite the stone church, where for so many years, after summer showers and winter storms and thaws, a pool of water has been ready to give a foot-bath to every pedestrian? The street department expended thirty minutes in labor, a bushel of sand and twelve bricks, and this protracted excrescence or rather dent upon a leading thoroughfare has at last been straightened out. Our efficient city government gets there sooner or later. Only give it time. In this measure it was late. But thanks, awfully. The job has been accomplished at last.

Welcome Sweet Day of Sacred Rest.

Brother Norris, of the Times, worshipped in New York on Sunday.

A Lucky Escape.

Charles Perkins of Dover, formerly of this city, now employed as a telephone pole climber, last Thursday afternoon while at the top of a pole thirty feet from the ground, in the rear of the Great Falls post-office, cut a wire that ran to it, and instantly the pole fell. It was rotten at the bottom. Perkins jumped for the edge of a house near by, and got his hands on the gutter, which gave way and he fell to the ground, sustaining a scalp wound and a sprained ankle. He was taken to his home in Dover, but will probably suffer no permanent injury. He had a very narrow escape.

Death of Henry W. Trefethen.

Mr. Henry W. Trefethen of Kittery Point, who was brought to this city last Thursday morning by a train from Dover, having been found insensible beside the track near Cushing's station, died at his home in Kittery on Friday evening about 7:30 o'clock, without having regained consciousness. He had not been in robust health for some years, and it is thought he died from apoplexy. He was a member of St. John's Lodge of Masons, of this city, and of Riverside Lodge of Odd Fellows, of Kittery. He leaves a wife and one son.

At Music Hall To-night.

This evening, in Music hall, Alden Benedict's company will present the romantic drama "Monte Cristo," Mr. Benedict taking the exacting part of Edmund Dantes, and Miss Sarah Farley that of Mercedes. If the coyotes are hungry it is about the rarest sport one can witness. They go at the hunt with so much ardor and with such perfect system.

"A coyote on his own account can usually forage successfully for feed. He is sly, like a fox, and, always with an eye out for number one, he generally has his belly full and lots of fat sticking to his ribs; but if the weather has been bad and he gets separated from his fellows on a reconnoitring tour he may have a hard time of it. In the sagebrush a jack rabbit can generally manage to elude a coyote. He can get in and out quicker, while the coyote, being bigger, is delayed by the brush, and can't get in and out like a rabbit.

"But after a lot of hungry wolves have held a council of war and decided to go on a hunt, it is time for the rabbits to hunt their holes. There is always music in the air about that time, and the weird howls of the wolves sound like a distant reveille. The rabbits seem to understand the situation, too, and scamper hither and thither over the plains and rolling hills. It is not long, however, till the wolves marshal their forces. They begin by making a wide detour over the hills, lessening the size of the circle as they advance, and holding all the rabbits they get in as skillfully as a fisherman handles his seine.

"The jack rabbits are all of a tremble when they see how their enemies have them hedged about, and jump helplessly into the air, and utter pitiful cries. The wolves merely watch the sides warily, and look on vindictively, with tongues lolling out through their white teeth, and eyes sparkling, expressive of the knowledge that they will soon have some fine eating. As the wolves draw nearer together the quick snap, snap of their jaws is heard as they snip the throats of their victims, and they fall dead from loss of blood.

"When every rabbit is killed, the coyotes sit down on their haunches to a very comfortable banquet, and never let up until they have taken aboard so much rabbit meat that they can hardly stir. Then they slowly meander off to their homes, wherever they may be, and if there is a lot of rabbit meat left, as there may be, they put in an appearance again, at stated intervals, until the whole is consumed.

"After a lot of coyotes have had a talk, so to speak, and decided to go on a hunt, they will sometimes go to a rough region, where they know the rabbits abound, and lay siege for them in another way. Certain brigades will clamber upon the high rocks and hill tops surrounding a canyon, and drive the game down into the depths below, other relays of wolves having previously been placed at the entrance and at the weak places. They oftentimes get a great many into a canyon in this way, and thus speedily finish them. It is generally in the very early morning that the coyotes sound their reveille and go after the rabbits."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Overcrowding in Siberia.

The overcrowding of the Siberian prisons is appalling. "The Tomsk transportation prison," writes The Siberian Gazette of that city, "is overcrowded. To the 1,520 people we had here 700 new ones have been added, and so the prison which was built for 900 people contains 2,200. There are 207 persons on the sick list." The central prison, on Sackhalin island, which was built for 600 people, contained 1,103 in 1879. Michela, a Siberian official and ex-prison director, writes about two prisons which were under his control as follows: "The jailer brought me to the rooms. Everywhere dirt, overcrowding, wetness, want of air and light. After having visited the rooms I entered the hospital. As soon as I entered the first room I was involuntarily thrown back by the inconceivable smell. The water closets were luxurious apartments in comparison with the hospital. Everywhere the number of prisoners is thrice the number permitted by the law. At Verkmendinsk, for instance, the jail is built for 240 inmates, and it usually contains 800."—Michael Malkoff in Chicago News.

How to Become Learned.

Any man of mature years who has enjoyed all the advantages of a free public primary, grammar and high school, a preparatory academy, a college, and a professional school, will testify that what he has learned by himself is of infinitely more value to him than all he ever acquired in all the institutions of learning he ever attended. Books on all subjects are now so cheap and plenty, public libraries are so large and numerous, instruction in special studies is so easily obtained that any person who can read, write and compute numbers may become a learned as the wisest. He can study what he knows or thinks will afford him the most pleasure or profit. He can cultivate his head, hands, or heels, his eye, tongue, or ear, his manners, morals and language to any extent he desires, at an expense not exceeding what a young man ordinarily spends for cigars or a girl for candy. If a person wishes to become learned there is little trouble in accomplishing what he wishes.—Chicago Times.

The Bigness of Texas.

A Deaf Cow.

Evidence exists that deaf mutes are not confined to the human race. In a farmer's herd for twelve years was a cow which never gave any signs of hearing, and whose evident attempts at lowing resulted only in a feeble guttural. Nothing abnormal could be discovered in the ears nor in the vocal organs.—Boston Budget.

Mastodon Skeletons.

The Ichtucknee river in Florida, is said to be remarkably rich in mastodon remains. In no other spot on the globe are they so numerous. Not less than six skeletons have been found within the space of two miles, among them one of the largest known.—Chicago Herald.

Now laughs the sun; the south-wind blows;
Three merry maids hang out the clothes;
Miranda, Maud, and Madaline;
They hear the village clock ring nine.
Quoth Maud: "Why are we done so soon?
The washing used to last till noon?"
Two rosy mouths in chorus ope,
"Oh! now we use the IVORY SOAP."

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

Dr. Gage and Associate Physicians, and Their Great Work.

Probably no physician in New England is better and more favorably known, says a New Hampshire exchange, than is Dr. Gage, the gifted specialist, who has treated more than fifteen thousand patients in this state, the announcement of his visits each month being the signal for a grand rally of a multitude of invalids. His success is indeed phenomenal and the reports of marvellous cures would fill this entire paper, the like of which was never known in the history of medical practice. The following is a fair sample:

Mr. Editor: A few months ago my daughter was laying at the point of death. She had a complication of troubles, a terrible cough, raising an immense quantity, a discharging sore upon her hip which rendered her perfectly helpless. Our family physician gave us no hope, but with a mother's will and determination to save her perishing child if possible, I hastened to consult Dr. Gage. Although he did not see her he nevertheless understood the case and his remedies have wrought a miracle—almost—by restoring my child to perfect health. I thank God that I consulted Dr. Gage.

Sailing.

Over the waves in the favoring breeze,
Sailing away toward the sunguided sky,
Fading, at last, on the glimmering seas,
As the stars in the glow of the sun-rising die;

Or, as a spirit in garments of white
Passes away when we wake from a dream,
Fades, and forever, in daylight's first beam,
So in the morning, our ship fades from sight.

Only a sail which we watch with our eyes
Dewy with teardrops obscuring our view,
Much like the sails of this vessel, which lies
Rocking at peace on the harbor waves, blue,
Anchored at rest as she lay yester night;
Much like a host of the sails on the sea—
Sails which are nothing to you or to me—
Passing, unheeded, in darkness or light.

Say not our ship shall return as she goes;
Changes come often and years intervene;
Ships may be lost when the wild tempest blows,
Time cast its shadow our friendships between,
For often the hearts are forgetful who roam;
Watchers who stand on the black pier today
Long may have passed from our circle away,
Long ere our ship from the distance comes home.

A BOOK AGENT.

His Observations.—People Interviewed in the Course of Forty Thousand Miles of Travel.

W. H. Jones, a native of New York, is a gentleman who has had over a score of years' experience as a book agent. In that time he has visited every city or town of any size in these United States. During his career as a seller of books Mr. Jones has traveled over forty thousand miles, ever ready to dispose of anything from "Hustler, the Five-Year-Old Bootblack Detective," to a treatise on protoplastic archetypes.

He has sold the highest-priced works every published in this country, and has met nearly every man of note from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Mr. Jones has studied carefully the manners and faces of his customers. He was in Philadelphia recently, and while trying to convince a representative of the Philadelphia Times that he needed an encylopedia costing $300 told something of his impressions of distinguished men and women he has met:

"Experience has taught me," said Mr. Jones, "that it is truly great men who are always polite, and that the most rude are those who have suddenly acquired riches or been thrust into notoriety. The most polite men I have ever met are Roscoe Conkling, James G. Blaine, Gov. James A. Beaver, and ex-Gov. John T. Hoffman, of New York. Their consideration and courteous treatment I regard as wonderful. The man of whom the firm remarked that they just as much expected to see the devils name brought in as his,' was Wilbur F. Story, of Chicago.

"George W. Childs has a keen appreciation of fine works, and always has pleasant words. William M. Singerly although quick and impulsive, knows well how to refuse with polite consistency a book costing several hundred thousand dollars to produce. Philip D. Armour, the great Chicago millionaire, is decided, aggressive, combative, yet sympathetic and tender. Every book agent has a liking for Chauncey M. Depew. I was surprised at his courteous treatment. He is a true humanitarian, and is very sensitive to the cause of the weak. Gen. U. S. Grant was decisive and laconic. David Dudley Field is polite, and has an admirable, refined manner in which to refuse or accept. William M. Evarts is paraphrastical. Once he has made a decision he is immovable. John Jacob Astor was critical and had excellent judgment.

"I was in William H. Vanderbilt's art gallery when he died," continued Mr. Jones, "awaiting to see him in relation to $8,000 worth of books for Christmas. Vanderbilt had a strong, tender, friendly nature and a deep well of force. George Vanderbilt is constantly increasing his library of merited works, and is an aspiring student in the branches of science, art, and music. Jay Gould is very liberal after you have once gained his confidence. He is very interested, and always inquires deeply into everything. Whitelaw Reid and Carl Schurz value the contents only of the book, and fine bindings are no inducement to them. William B. Dinsmore, president of the Adams Express company, is a genial student of human nature. Marshall Field has a face indicative of caution and progressiveness.

"There is something about Col. Robert G. Ingersoll which is magnetic. He has a very deep insight into character, and seems always to warm the room with a genial atmosphere. In many respects Col. Ingersoll is much like the late Henry Ward Beecher. Rollin M. Squire is a lover of books and a judge. The late Gen. John A. Logan was urbane and suave. Robert T. Lincoln is positive, and of keen perception. Gov. Foraker, of Ohio, has everything about him which indicates principle, decision and unswerving fidelity. Shipbuilder John Roach rarely bought books, rather wishing to study the solution of practical experience. George M. Pullman, of sleeping-car fame is a gentleman to perfection. Murat Halstead I could not help comparing to Napoleon. He has great strength of individuality. Bishop Potter is chilly and yet magnetic.

"A. J. Drexel has a keen eye and a brain of eyes. Potter Palmer, of Chicago, is bland and eagle-eyed. Charles A. Dana is of a well knitted and strongly fortified temperament. Mayor Carter Harrison, of Chicago, is buoyant, with great persistency and vitality. Ferdinand Ward is impulsive and decisive. I sold him a $2,000 set of books in less than three minutes. I sold the late Samuel J. Tilden a $200 set of Macaulay. I sold the highest priced and handsomest encyclopedia ever made in the world, twenty-seven volumes, costing $555, to the United States commissioners and residents of New Orleans, who presented it to Maj. E. A. Burke, director general of the World's exhibition. Mrs. General Logan is a charming appreciator of merit. The busiest man, and the quickest to dispatch business I ever met was J. Pierrepont Morgan. Benjamin Harris Brewster is cordial and has a large degree of agreeableness.

"The highest-priced book I ever sold," continued Mr. Jones, "was Audubon's 'Birds and Animals,' [illegible] William Rockefeller, president of the Standard Oil company. The book cost $2,500. Ex-Gov. Baldwin, of Detroit, I found to be an estimable gentleman, refined to the grain; Gen. Beauregard quiet and modest; Col. J. R. G. Pitkin, of New Orleans, an advancing orator and student. Gen. Sheridan is dignified, but quite cordial. John Wentworth, of Chicago, is volcanic and impulsive. Gov. Hoadly is austere, with clear cutting judgment.

"I have always excellent success among theatrical people. The late John McCullough always struck me as being of a very melancholy disposition, but he treated me with much consideration. John T. Raymond was a good judge of books, although he rarely bought. Bartley Campbell is extremely considerate. Mme. Patti is whole-souled, bird-like, and takes a deep interest in humanity in general. Lawrence Barrett was cultivatingly polite. Edwin Booth is short and quick, with an eye that seems to look into your heart. Henry Irving is extremely polite. Mary Anderson is winning, charming and always a liberal purchaser. Maggie Mitchel paid $1,250 for a set of 'Shakspeare,' and she has a substantial library. Miss Ellen Terry I found unsurpassed, I might almost say unequaled, in charm of manner.

"President Cleveland I met while he was governor of New York. He seemed to be rather shy of book agents, but treated me courteously. James A. Garfield was one of the most pleasant men I ever tried to sell a book to. Gov. Hill has a quiet reserve, and is a man of great executive ability. Mrs. Julia Ward Howe I found placid and sweetly serene. Clara Louise Kellogg refused a book in a very bewitching manner. Mrs. Gov. Foraker has entertaining faculties, and has an expressive and winning face, and a very lovely disposition."

After the tooth was drawn the animal expressed his gratification in many ways.

FARM, FIELD AND GARDEN

MODES OF AGRICULTURE PRACTICED BY PROGRESSIVE FARMERS.

Seasonable Advice in Relation to Injurious Insects and Insecticides—The Most Effective Treatment for the Potato Bug, Rose Bug and Web Worm.

It has been proven over and over again that the larvæ of the potato beetle may be effectually destroyed by the application of either Paris green or London purple. Farmers understand this fact, but many are puzzled in regard to the exact amount of poison required. Repeated trials at the New York experiment station to determine the minimum amount of Paris green, mixed with land plaster, make it appear that one part of the poison to 150 parts of the plaster is sufficient when the two are thoroughly mixed. This represents a much less amount of the poison than is generally employed. Not a few growers use as much as one pound of the Paris green to twenty pounds of pulverized plaster.

As some growers prefer to use water as a dilutent from the poison, attempts were made at the station to discover the minimum amount of the latter that proved effective when used in this way. The results justified the belief that one half ounce of Paris green mixed with five gallons of water would do the work satisfactorily. London purple used at the same rates as the Paris green proved about equally effective. As it is considerably cheaper than the latter, the cost of the application is somewhat less, but as so little of the poison is used in either case, the difference in the expense is slight.

Until recently the only practical means of destroying the rose bug appeared to be gathering them by hand, or shaking them or brushing them from the plants into tin vessels containing a little water. Mr. Carman, editor of The Rural New Yorker, states that for three seasons he has successfully subdued this pest on his bushes with Buhach or pyrethrum powder. In order to make the work effective, however, the powder must be pure and fresh.

About two tablespoonfuls of powder were used to two gallons of water. It is better to wet the powder first with warm water forming a paste, and then mix the paste with the desired quantity of cold water. In from five to ten minutes after the bugs receive the spray they begin to fall to the ground, where most of them wriggle about until they die, though a certain proportion recover. During the few days when the bugs appear in greatest numbers it is necessary to repeat the spraying every day, or even twice a day. The liquid was sprayed upon the infested plants by the employment of a hand pump, rubber hose and iron tube, terminating with a cyclone nozzle. It ought to be added that Buhach is a desirable insecticide for many garden plants, and, as it is not poisonous to the human family, ought to have the preference over arsenical remedies wherever it is effectual.

Attention is called to the fact that emulsions of kerosene, thoroughly sprayed, on fruit as well as ornamental trees, have proven destructive to different injurious insects. The web worm, so troublesome in some localities, may be subdued with an application of a dilute emulsion of kerosene.

Kentucky Blue Grass.

Kentucky blue grass, poa pratensis, is entitled to a front rank among pasture grasses and has given to that state and its "blue grass region" a well deserved distinction as the breeding ground of horses of the finest description as well as for producing cattle that are nowhere surpassed. This grass is ornamental as well as useful for yards and lawns, on account of its rich color and steady growth, and its cultivation has been widely extended into other states. In a word blue grass thrives over a large extent of country, and especially on rich upland limestone soils.

The seed is very light, weighing fourteen pounds to the bushel, and two bushels are required to the acre, while for a thickly sown lawn the quantity may safely be doubled. Blue grass requires time to become well established as a permanent pasture, and it is better to protect it from stock the first year.

For lawns it is quite a common practice to mix Kentucky blue grass with red top and white clover.

Growing Potatoes Under Mulch.

At the Colorado State Agricultural college, where potatoes have been grown under mulch for three seasons, it has been decided that the best mulch is composed of either partially decayed materials or of clean cut straw. It is reported that the yield under mulch is ordinarily greater than without, especially in uncongenial climes. The shading of the ground furnishes the proper conditions of temperature and moisture at the root, as well as assuring the necessary mechanical condition of the soil so desirable in securing uniformity and the greatest possible development of tuber. A mulch, to be of any value in a dry climate, should, according to the report in question, be quite a foot thick, using large seed pieces, however, to enable the tops to push through the cover.

The opinion is expressed that mulch culture is only practicable on a small scale and in localities, soils and seasons unfavorable to the proper development of the potato under ordinary culture.

Chemical Value of Animal Manures.

The real chemical value of animal manures, other things being equal, is in proportion to the nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash they contain, and the quantity of these chemicals existing in the manure is determined, other things being equal, by the quantity contained in the food of the animals making the manure. It will thus be seen that there is a wide difference in the value of barn yard manures, which will satisfactorily account for the fact that far better results are experienced from the manure of animals which have been given a generous portion of nitrogenous food in rations than from an equal quantity from such as have merely kept up an existence through the winter on straw, roots, etc., and the superior value of guano and ben manure is due to the character of the food out of which it has been made.

THE MOST WONDERFUL FAMILY REMEDY EVER KNOWN.

March April May

At no other season does the human system so much need the aid of a reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla, as now. The impoverished condition of the blood, the weakening effects of the long, cold winter, the lost appetite, and that tired feeling, all make a good spring medicine absolutely necessary. Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiarly adapted for this purpose, and increases in popularity every year. It is the ideal spring medicine.

"I must say Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine I ever used. Last spring I had no appetite, and the least work I did fatigued me ever so much. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and soon felt that I could do as much in a day as I had formerly done in a week. My appetite is voracious." MRS. M. V. BAYARD, Atlantic City, N. J.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to buy any other.

Were all wise enough to heed this advice in season, a world of suffering would be avoided. If you suffer from impure blood, scrofula, dyspepsia, biliousness, headache, take

Are the best months in which to purify your blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best blood purifier.

The Earth Exhales Poison

To the air in localities where vegetation, rotted by freshets, is laid bare to the sun's rays by the retiring flood. Millions of square acres, in the vicinity of the great tributaries of the Mississippi and the Missouri in the South and Southwest, give forth this fever-laden miasmatic vapor, disseminating malarial pestilence broadcast. Not only throughout the great West, but wherever on this continent fever and ague makes its periodic appearance—and what locality is wholly exempt from it?—Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the recognized defense, the most highly accredited and popular means of cure. Fever and ague, bilious remittent, dumb ague and ague cake are eradicated by it. Nor is it less potent when used to remove constipation, liver complaint and dyspepsia, kidney troubles, nervousness and rheumatic ailments. Use it upon the first appearance of these troubles, and with persistence.

A Canadian judge holds that a telegram from an American officer is not sufficient authority for the arrest of a criminal.

It is a Curious Fact

That the body is now more susceptible to benefit from medicine than at any other season. Hence the importance of taking Hood's Sarsaparilla now, when it will do you the most good. It is really wonderful for purifying and enriching the blood, creating an appetite, and giving a healthy tone to the whole system. Be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla, which is peculiar to itself.

Singular Accident.

A freight broke apart on the Philadelphia & Reading railroad between Mt. Carmel and Locust Gap, on the night of May 5th, and the two sections came together with such force as to explode a car of powder and dynamite. The explosion wrecked seventeen buildings occupied by Reading mine employes, and the ruins were burned. Eight persons were killed and thirty wounded, some of whom will die; none were train hands. Twelve cars were blown to atoms; windows and doors in the Locust Gap churches and schools were blown out, and in Mt. Carmel large store-windows were broken. The damage is estimated at $75,000.

Republican Conventions.

The republican state convention for the choice of delegates to the national convention at Chicago will be held in White's opera house, Concord, this forenoon at eleven o'clock.

The first congressional district convention will be held in White's opera house, and the second congressional district convention in Phenix hall, this afternoon at two o'clock, or immediately upon the close of the state convention.

He Got up the Surprise Himself.

A young man of Boston whose mind is worthy of the place, found that he had not been invited to a surprise party to which many of his friends were invited. His gigantic intellect came to his rescue. He invited the young woman who was to be surprised to go to the theatre on the evening of the party; and she, not knowing of the intended surprise, accepted gladly. After the performance he suggested luncheon, and the result was that the surprise party was really such, indeed. Those who waited for the young woman to come home were surprised because she was so late.

In a memorial to Congress asking confirmation of the right of way across the military reservation at Fort McClary granted in a license from the secretary of war, the York Harbor & Beach railroad managers say: "That the construction and maintenance of said railroad will be of great benefit to said fort and all persons who may occupy it." As the government has no guns worth the name to arm the fort with, and it would be worth nothing as a fortification even if armed, the only real value the railroad could ever be to the occupants of the fort would be to enable them to get away quickly should an enemy come too near with a real cannon.

The store at Wells formerly owned and occupied by Captain Samuel Bragdon has been sold to the First Congregational church of that town, to be fitted up as a vestry. It required seventy yoke of oxen to move the building to its new location. The structure was purchased by the Ladies' Benevolent circle connected with the society.

What a Time

People formerly had, trying to swallow the old-fashioned pill with its film of magnesia vainly disguising its bitterness; and what a contrast to Ayer's Pills, that have been well called "medicated sugar-plums"—the only fear being that patients may be tempted into taking too many at a dose. But the directions are plain and should be strictly followed.

J. T. Teller, M. D., of Chittenango, N. Y., expresses exactly what hundreds have written at greater length. He says: "Ayer's Cathartic Pills are highly appreciated. They are perfect in form and coating, and their effects are all that the most careful physician could desire. They have supplanted all the Pills formerly popular here, and I think it must be long before any other can be made that will at all compare with them. Those who buy your pills get full value for their money."

"Safe, pleasant, and certain in their action," is the concise testimony of Dr. George E. Walker, of Martinsville, Virginia.

"Ayer's Pills outsell all similar preparations. The public having once used them, will have no others."—Berry, Venable & Collier, Atlanta, Ga.

Denman Thompson, who is to appear in Music hall on Tuesday evening, May 22d, in "The Old Homestead," gave one of the best entertainments that has been given in Music hall this season. It is a play that all who are afforded the opportunity should attend. It is far better than his old play of "Joshua Whitcomb." This is Mr. Thompson's last season in New England for a number of years.

Five thousand dollars in gold and paper money in the window of J. H. Hutchinson's jewelry store on Monday caused a considerable crowd to gather there during the day, especially at noon. It was put there by Aiden Benedict of the Monte Christo Co., which performed in Music hall that evening, as a guarantee that he would give as perfect a representation and as fine a performance as was ever given in this city.

STARTLING STATISTICS.

What a High Official Has to Say About the Condition of the People—Some Serious Facts and Figures.

[Herald.]

"It is wonderful what figures will show." Such was the remark of a high official in the State Department to a representative of this paper. "How many really rich men do you suppose there are in New England? Very few. But how many do you think there would be if people were physically and mentally sound and vigorous? New England people are active, restless and ambitious, and therefore neglect themselves. Not one man or woman in ten is in perfect health."

"Official figures show this, do they?"

"Precisely. There seems to be a New England disease. People do not seem to think that headaches, or tired feeling, or 'blues,' or loss of appetite, or nervousness mean anything. Then, the first thing they know they are in bed and on their road to death.

"Do many die of this disease?"

"Thousands. Henry Wilson, Charles Sumner, Wendell Phillips and Governor Bodwell are among the number. James G. Blaine is also on the road, and his trip abroad is in the hope of recovering health."

"But what do you find to counteract it?"

"Very little. The only reliable medicine so far discovered is Hunt's Remedy. The faculty of one of our leading medical colleges, knowing the composition of this medicine, have been recommending it for some time, and the results have been wonderful. I know three ladies and one gentleman (one of the latter a State officer), who have been entirely cured by its use. I wish everybody might know more about it and use it."

Such facts and figures, and from so high a source, should prove invaluable to thousands whose success in life would be much greater were they physically and mentally sound and vigorous.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Combines, in a proportion peculiar to itself, the active medicinal properties of the best blood-purifying and strengthening remedies of the vegetable kingdom. It will positively cure—when in the power of medicine—Spring Debility, Headache, Dyspepsia, Catarrh, Salt Rheum, Scrofula, and all Diseases caused by a low state of the blood.

"I suffered three years with blood poison. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and think I am cured." MRS. M. J. DAVIS, Brockport, N. Y.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla beats all others, and is worth its weight in gold." I. BARRINGTON, 130 Bank Street, New York City.

Is so vastly superior to any other sarsaparilla or blood purifier, that one has well said: "Its health-giving effects upon the blood and entire human organism, are as much more positive than the remedies of a quarter of a century ago, as the steam-power of to-day is in advance of the slow and laborious drudgery of years ago."

"While suffering from a severe bilious attack in March, 1883, a friend in Peoria, Ill., recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla. I tried the remedy, and was permanently cured." J. A. SHEPARD, travelling agent for Devoe & Co., Fulton Street, N. Y.

Purifies the Blood

"I tried a dozen articles to cleanse my blood, but never found anything that did me any good till I began using Hood's Sarsaparilla." W. H. PEER, Rochester, N. Y.

"My wife was troubled with dizziness and constipation, and her blood has been in a bad order—in fact she has been all run down. Hood's Sarsaparilla is doing her a wonderful amount of good." F. M. BALDWIN, druggist, Blanchester, Ohio.

"I was for five years a sufferer with boils, all run down, and was at one time obliged to give up work. Before taking all of two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, was entirely cured." R. M. LANE, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. Took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

OFFICIAL NOTICE!

—— OF ——

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co.

—— FROM THE ——

HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND, MAINE,

To those who are contemplating the purchase of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

GREETING:

On and after June 1st we shall STOP PREPAYING the FREIGHT on GOODS SOLD by us, and we respectfully request that those who have dealt with us, and who have been BENEFITED by the PAYMENT OF THIS FREIGHT which in itself in the past three years has amounted to some

30,000 DOLLARS,

Will order what GOODS they require for this SPRING, from us this month, and please order as early as possible. And to those who intend buying

Chamber Sets,
Parlor Suits,
Carpets,
Lounges,
Easy Chairs,
Mattresses,
Springs,
Silver-ware,
Window Shades,
Drapery,
Dinner Sets,
Toilet Sets,
Stoves and Ranges,
Feathers,
Feather Pillows,
Spreads, Blankers,

And anything else in HOUSE FURNISHING, can be BENEFITED to the extent of the freight to their depot, by buying from us this month. We have always PREPAID THIS FREIGHT FROM OUR OWN PROFITS, as we have invariably made the price on the

Furniture, Carpets,

Etc., lower than could be bought for elsewhere. There has always been a great advantage derived by our prepayment of the freight because we in every instance GUARANTEE the SAFE DELIVERY of the goods, and if there has ever been a fight to make with the railroad, we have done it, or in other words if you have received a

CHAMBER SET,
PARLOR SUIT,
Chair, or Range,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

That was damaged by the railroad, we have replaced it with another piece, and taken our chances to get the breakage from the road. These are items worthy of our close consideration, and especially at this time of year, be wise and order during this month,

And Save Yourself the Freight from Portland to your Depot, no matter where it is located in the State of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

We believe we are the only HOUSE FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT IN NEW ENGLAND WHO HAVE ADHERED STRICTLY TO THIS PLAN OF PREPAYING THE FREIGHT ON EVERYTHING SHIPPED BY US. We mean by this that while some other houses have shipped the goods, and allowed you to pay freight and afterwards send them a bill and then dicker on it for some time, We have invariably paid out the cash before the article left our freight sheds at Portland. And now notwithstanding the fact that we expect to lose a great deal of business by this this year there seems to be no other way to convince some people of the difference between OUR PAYING THE FREIGHT before the articles leave here, AND OUR CUSTOMERS PAYING THE FREIGHT after the articles get to the depot, and then having to write backwards and forwards over the matter. We wish to deal with perfect fairness and frankness in this matter, consequently we give you another month to make your selection, and to fill orders that are already placed. Now if you want a

KITCHEN RANGE, or a CHAMBER SET, or PARLOR SUIT, or CARPETS, WINDOW SHADES, DRAPERY CURTAINS,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

Kindly come and see us at once, or if you can not come, please write us for Catalogues and Descriptions of these Goods, and we will do our very best to please you in every one. Remember we carry COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHINGS. There is scarcely a thing that you require for your homes that we do not keep, and we sell the same and shall continue to sell the same for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. This notice applies TO ALL OUR STORES, and we have written to each of our MANAGERS to this effect, consequently there will be no more freight prepaid from our Bangor Store, Rockland Store, Auburn Store, Bar Harbor Store, Biddeford Store, nor from the Headquarters at Portland, after the 31st day of May, 1888.

Kindly get your orders in before June 1st, if you wish to save this freight.

Respectfully, the Public's Ob't Servants,

THE ATKINSON HOUSE FURNISHING CO.,

Headquarters Cor. Pearl and Middle Streets, Portland; and Branches at Auburn, Rockland, Bangor and Biddeford, also Bar Harbor for a short time.

ISAAC C. ATKINSON, Gen. Manager.

May You Live Long and Prosper.

Congratulations to our genial neighbor the Chronicle, on its considerably enlarged and improved appearance this morning. The heartiest wishes of the Times for its success, and may its future be as full of sunshine as has been the day on which it made its bow to the public in enlarged form. As the republican organ of Portsmouth, it fully merits the growth it has attained.—Times.

One of the pleasantest indications of prosperity hereabouts, is the enlargement of the Chronicle this morning by the addition of an extra column and appropriate length. We hope our neighbor will be crowded to the full capacity of the added room until he is at loss to know what to do with the overflow.—Penny Post.

At Music Hall To-night.

We are unable to say anything personally of "Adonis," to be played this evening by Henry E. Dixey, but nearly everybody knows the piece had a phenomenal run in New York and London, and a very large number of our theatre-goers have bought tickets, intending to see for themselves. There are fine costumes and scenic effects, and beautiful music. Tickets at Goodrich's.

The Evening of the Second Day's Fight at Gettysburg.

Gen. Buford said on the morning of the first day's fight that "there seemed to be no directing head." This might also be applied to the fighting on the left on the evening of the second day. Until towards dark the fighting had certainly gone against us, and the battle had extended along our line to the right almost half way to the cemetery. The evening and our prospects grew dark together. The Third Corps had been driven back, broken and shattered, its commander wounded and carried from the field; the troops that had gone to its support had fared no better, and every man felt that the situation was grave. All, however, was not yet lost; Meade had again thought of Hancock, and as yesterday he sent him to stop the rout of the First and Eleventh corps, so to-day he orders him to assume command of the left. An hour of daylight yet remained, long enough to enable him to rally the shattered troops, face them once more to the front, gather re-enforcements, drive back the enemy and restore our broken lines. At Waterloo, Wellington positioned God for "night or Blucher." At Gettysburg on this evening we had no Blucher to pray for. Our whole force was now up. But while ommiting the last part of the great Englishman's prayer, we had good reason to adopt the first portion. As the fight was closing on the left of our army Ewell was striking a terrific and successful blow on our right. As our exhausted troops were reforming on the "Baltimore" road, we heard away to the right and rear the yells of Johnston's men as they rushed over our works at Culp's hill; and half an hour later we listened with anxious hearts to the sounds of battle on Cemetery hill, where the noble Ricketts was destroying the Louisiana Tigers with guns double shotted with canister. This was the most anxious hour of all the battle. We had been driven on our left and on our right. The rebs had affected a lodgement in our works, in one of our strongest positions, and were in fact in our rear without any adequate force to oppose them. Another hour of daylight, and unless some miracle intervened we would have most likely have left Gettysburg without waiting to bid the inhabitants good evening. But, fortunately for us, there was no Joshua around Lee's headquarters, and so the sun went down on almanac time regardless of our little trouble that we were trying to settle. Darkness fell upon the scene, giving us a chance to repair our lines and get ready for the morrow, and preventing the Johnnies from pursuing the advantage they had gained.—From "Sketches of Gettysburg," by General St. Clair A. Mulholland.

Prof. Elliot Coues, late of the medical department of the United States army, is the head of the theosophical order in the United States, and attended a convention of theosophists in Chicago last week. A reception was given him by Col. Bundy and Mrs. Bundy at their residence, where he explained his views on thought transference. He insisted that men could telegraph without any wire, and asserted his belief in an astral fluid which made communication possible between two parties wholly separated by distance. He said he did not believe in a material world, that it is a delusion of the senses. He repeated his assertion that while he was in Chicago in 1884 his "astral body" had appeared to and been clearly seen by a friend in Washington.

Miss Lulu Emery, while a guest of Mrs. James F. Rock at the Sagamore hotel in Lynn, Mass, recently, had jewelry to the value of several hundred dollars stolen from her trunk during her absence from her room. There was no indication that the room had been broken into, and a chambermaid, Clara A. Cooper, was suspected. She was put under arrest, but denied all knowledge of the theft. Inspector Rowe went to Boston last week with the hotel proprietor, Mr. O. S. Roberts, and a part of the jewelry was traced and recovered.

Notice is called to the decoration in the window of the store formerly occupied by H. B. Buzzell & Son.

LABELS FOR TREES AND PLANTS.

Various Methods Practiced, Including Permanent and Transient Labels.

The subject for consideration at a late meeting of the Massachusetts Horticultural society was, "Methods of Labeling Trees and Plants." In an essay on the subject read by Robert T. Jackson, the suggestion is made that as labor costs generally more than anything else it is economy to provide good labels—labels that will last a long time. Metals were named as best material for durability. Zinc is the metal most commonly used, as it is reasonably imperishable, cheap and readily handled. Bright, clean zinc may be written on with an aqueous solution of chloride of platinum or chloride of copper—the former is probably the better. They may be obtained of chemists or purchased under the name of chemical inks for zinc labels. A quill pen should be used in writing with them. The zinc should be prepared for them by cleaning with fine emery paper or very weak muriatic acid, the latter being preferable, as it is not so likely to be followed by extensive oxidization, so injurious to the writing. Use a rag dipped in weak acid and rinse in clean water. After writing nothing further is necessary. Zinc, when slightly roughened by oxidization, may be written upon with a soft lead pencil, and the graphite soon becomes indelibly fixed on the zinc, and is quite as permanent as chemical ink. The labels may be sufficiently oxidized by leaving them a few weeks in a damp place. This is much the quickest way of making any metal labels, and makes one of the best labels for outdoor purposes. They have been seen perfectly clear after ten years' exposure.

Zinc labels may also have the names of plants or catalogue numbers stamped with steel dies. The letters are rendered clearer by rubbing black paint into the lines after stamping. This is an extremely good and permanent method, but if the labor of stamping is to be expended it would be better to use copper or pure tin.

Iron or tinned iron is frequently used for labels, especially for trees and botanic gardens. The surface is first painted a neutral color, and the name is then painted in a contrasting color. This makes an expensive but very neat and attractive label where large ones are needed. Good examples may be seen on the trees on Boston common, which are painted in two shades of brown.

White pine is the wood in most common use, and is presumably the best of easily obtained woods. Probably the best way to preserve wood to be written on is to soak it in linseed oil, and then to paint on both sides, reserving a space for writing. Thin garden labels so prepared have been perfectly sound after nine years' exposure in the grounds.

The active horticulturist has frequent needs for a transient label, as for hybridized flowers, seedlings to be separated out at the end of the season, etc. For such purposes paper labels, with a string looped through a perforation in the margin, such as are used in tagging goods, are very useful. They are easily attached to the plant or flower, and last perfectly well throughout the season.

Helpful Hints on Killing Weeds.

1. Plants cannot live indefinitely deprived of their leaves. Hence preventing their appearance above the surface will kill them sooner or later.

2. Plants have greater need for their leaves, and can be more easily killed in the growing season than when partially dormant.

3. Cultivation in a dry time is most injurious to weeds and beneficial to crops.

4. Avoid the introduction of weeds in manure or litter or from weedy surroundings. Some gardeners use no stable manure on grounds they desire to keep especially clean, relying on commercial fertilizers and the plowing under of green crops.

5. After a summer crop has ripened, instead of allowing the land to grow up to weeds it is often well to sow rye or some other crop to cover the ground and keep them down.

6. Give every part of the farm clean cultivation every few years either with a hoed crop or, if necessary, with a fallow.

7. It is often stated that cutting weeds while in flower will kill them. This is only reliable with biennials, and with them only when done so late that much of the seed will grow.

8. If the ground is kept well occupied with other crops weeds will give much less trouble. Keep meadows and roadsides well seeded and plow land cultivated, except when shaded by crops.

Two Sides to Dehorning Cattle.

Readers are advised to consider both sides of the question of dehorning, and not be carried away with the enthusiasm of its advocates. Hoard's Dairyman warns against dehorning, on the ground that dehorning is likely to impair the potency of the transmission of the butter function and to create a tendency toward the beef temperament and type. In this same journal it is told that C. E. Gordon, of Milwaukee, president of the Humane Society of Wisconsin, on being interviewed on the subject of dehorning, said that "while the society is not opposing the practice, it is withholding its decision until it sees more of the immediate results of it. It will not oppose it on the ground of cruelty, as it is conservative enough to see that temporary pain for a permanent benefit is not cruelty." A year or two will decide this matter, and in the meantime those who cannot afford to experiment will do well to wait for the public verdict.

Hornless Cattle.

There are three distinct breeds of polled or hornless cattle—the Galloways, polled Angus or Aberdeen, and the red polled. The Galloway is a pure black, with long, shaggy coat. The polled Angus are black, with white markings on the belly, generally around the udder. They are shorter haired than the Galloways and lighter boned. Both those breeds are of Scotch origin. The red polled are deep red in color, originated in the counties of Norfolk and Suffolk, England, and resemble the Devon, except that they are hornless. One cannot be certain, says Michigan Farmer, of having grades from these breeds come hornless except by using a thoroughbred sire each time.

Oak for Railroad Ties.

The forestry division of the United States department of agriculture issue a circular for the for the information of railroad managers. It calls their attention to the fact that the general use of white oak (Quercus alba) for cross ties is aiding in the exhaustion of that timber, so valuable for other purposes. At the same time the chestnut, or tan bark oak, after being stripped of its bark, is being left to decay, it value for ties not being known. It makes known that several roads report that the chestnut oak ties equal, if they do not excel, those of the white oak in durability in the roadbed. The object of the circular is to induce an economical use of our forest supplies.—American Agriculturist.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS, $22 TO $1000. The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin and still other makers follow in the manufacture in these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.
Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their pianos, the fact that at all the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.
PIANOS Mason & Hamlin do not claim to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all HEAD & SPRIGHT others. They speak the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.
A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.
Pianos and Organs sold for cash or easy payments, also rented. tuy10

AM AMERICAN WOMAN'S STORY

Of What She Saw in Mexico—Characteristics of the People.

It is said of the Mexicans, as of the Russians, that in repose a deep sadness is expressed in their eyes. The Mexicans are good character readers, and especially note the bearing of strangers. They are very polite and hospitable, and very proud. The higher classes of society in Mexico are almost as exclusive as the court circles of Europe. A middle class is growing up in Mexico. Mexican salutations are exceedingly cordial. "Men fall into each other's arms and remain thus for several minutes, patting each other on the shoulder and indulging in all sorts of endearing epithets." Another salutation, even between friends of opposite sex, is thus described: "In the quickest, most spirited manner, the arms of both parties are outstretched, they rush together for a second, their breasts barely touch, and while the observer is watching for a kiss to follow this ardent salute, they separate and the abrazo is finished. The extreme frankness accompanying it compels one to admire the custom; for it means no more than hand shaking among the Americans." If friends meet twenty times a day they must pause to shake hands.

At the capital one day there was seen two splendid carriages, each occupied by one man. The carriages halted, both men alighted, "removed hats, shook hands, embraced, talked for a few moments, again embraced, shook hands, bowed, took off hats, and each entered his carriage and went his way." The formal salutation between women is a tap of the right hand on the left shoulder, and then a generous shake of the hand. Women who are intimate friends not only tap the shoulder, but lay their cheeks softly together for an instant. A lady traveler commends this sort of feminine salutation, and evidently prefers it greatly to the American form of greeting on the lips.

The Mexican makes really as many gestures as a Frenchman, and has quite an extensive social sign language. Their blowing of kisses from the fingers is a graceful demonstration. A certain position of the thumb and forefinger signifies "stop a moment." One arm held half upright, with the elbow in the other hand, means "he is too stingy to pay his debts;" one hand rubbed across the forearm, "he plays on the credulity of his friends;" the palm held outward, with thumb and forefinger forming a circle, "she is very rich;" the fingers of one hand closed, except the thumb and little finger, "he's a sharper." Educated Mexican men are great skeptics in religious matters—except when they are very sick. The people are temperate. Young girls are called "pullets;" marriageable men, "young or old roosters," and the street arabs who ogle ladies are known as "lizards." Americans who have married Mexican women find it necessary to live in Mexico, for their wives are very unhappy elsewhere. Mexican children are never struck. Corporal punishment in schools is prohibited by law. Correction takes the form of persuasion and appeal. The result is that in all classes a gentle courtesy and consideration for others prevail.

Hoodlum children are unknown in Mexico. A hoodlum child is one who has been cuffed and abused until he naturally (that is, according to the examples set him) begins to kick and pound others who are weaker than himself. The step from this to other deeds of violence is short.

One cannot tell half of the graces and courtesies of the Mexican children. "In the alameda, with kindly deference, they will always yield to elderly and infirm persons their own cozy and shady seats. On entering a sala, where there are few or many guests, these exquisitely polite little gentlemen will go all around, shaking hands with every one present. They never break into the conversation, but when addressed will modestly join it; then, wishing to retire, will say, 'with your kind permission,' and, again shaking hands, move gracefully from the company. Girls are no less imbued with the same spirit of courtesy. A Mexican boy never thinks himself too near manhood to pay the compliment to his mother of kissing her hand every time he comes into her presence."

The Mexican flowers are very deeply colored. "If red, it is the most glowing and intense; if yellow or purple, the richest; if white or pink, the purest and most delicate." Fresh flowers are abundant and cheap throughout the year, including roses, pansies, sweet peas, heliotropes, camellias and magnificent poppies. "Calla lilies, the size of a fan, bloom luxuriant in every ditch," and the geraniums are as tall as a man. The most remarkable flower is the "tree of the little hands," a native of the colder region. The bright red flowers are well defined miniature hands. It is slow of growth, not reaching full size in 100 years. In the Valley of Mexico fifty varieties of lilies, no two alike, bloom on mountain, crag and plain.

The mortality of the City of Mexico is fearful and half of it is due to lung and diarrheal diseases. The Mexican capital can hardly be said to have any system of drainage and sewerage. Catarrh is common among the Mexicans, and when they have colds they do not allow water to touch their faces. They have very few nervous diseases. The cadence of their lives is too measured for that.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette Book Review.

Source of Pure Water.

The best water is that which has gone deepest in the earth, where there is the tightest pressure, atmospheric and telluric. Continued and intensified filtration has refined it; but it is here, and not in its open air exposure, before or after, that the water gets effective oxidation. The remarkable fact that water absorbs oxygen in something like a geometrical ratio to the increase of pressure, coupled with the other equally important fact that under a certain pressure and temperature organic germs cease to exist; both these conditions, protracted for the water by a long detention in the depths of the earth, secure the rarest refinement and also vitalization of the element.—Sanitary Era.

The Irish giant (7 feet 5 inches) is dead. An appropriate epitaph would seem to be: Gone to his long home.

A repeating cannon invented by Gruson has been tried at Bresschart, in Belgium, which can throw twenty-seven shots a minute.

European specialists have made the curious observation that acute rheumatism is more prevalent in dry than in rainy weather.

The people of Tokio, Japan, have taken to eating horse flesh, and there is quite a demand for it.

A belle facetiously alludes to one of her admirers as "a man of fine presents."

Republican Conventions.

CONCORD, N. H., March 31st, 1888.

In accordance with the vote passed at the recent meeting of the Republican State Committee, conventions for the choice of delegates to the National Republican Convention at Chicago, on the 19th of June next, will be held as follows:

State Convention, for the choice of four delegates-at-large and four alternates, at White's Opera house, Concord, on Tuesday, May 8th, at eleven A. M.

First Congressional District Convention, for the choice of two delegates and two alternates, at White's Opera house, Concord, on Tuesday, May 8th, at 2 P. M., or immediately upon the adjournment of the State Convention.

Second Congressional District Convention, for the choice of two delegates and two alternates, at Phenix hall, Concord, on Tuesday, May 8th, at 2 P. M., or immediately upon the adjournment of the State Convention.

Classed towns, and such towns and wards as are entitled to pro-rata representation in the General Court, will each send one delegate to the State and District conventions, and all other towns and wards will be entitled to twice as many delegates as they have representatives.

The same delegates may represent their towns and wards in the State and District conventions, if properly accredited thereto, or different sets of delegates may be sent to the State and District conventions.

The caucuses should be notified sufficiently early and in such manner that the voters will know about them and have an opportunity to attend.

It is desirable that all voters, without regard to past political differences, who are now in favor of elevating and dignifying American labor, protecting home industries from ruinous foreign competition, restricting the influence of the saloon, giving free and popular education to the masses of the people, establishing a liberal system of pensions for Union soldiers, extending the commercial interests of the Nation by a liberal system of appropriations to American steamship lines, especially those engaged in the transportation of our foreign mails, securing free suffrage and an honest count of the ballot, and elevating and protecting human rights in every section of our common country, should be invited to participate in these preliminary gatherings, to the end that no voter now in sympathy with the fundamental principles of the Republican party may feel that he has been overlooked or slighted.

Arrangements have been perfected with the railroads of the state for the transportation of the delegates to the several conventions at the uniform rate of two cents per mile each way. Delegates should be careful to call attention to this when they purchase their tickets.

A meeting of the State Committee and delegates will be held in Phenix hall, Concord, on Monday evening, May 7th, at nine o'clock, to arrange the preliminaries for the State Convention of the succeeding day, after which the question of reorganizing the Republican Clubs throughout the State and also the matter of appointing the times and places for holding the usual State, Congressional, Councillor, and County Conventions will be considered.

The floor of the hall will be reserved for delegates exclusively, and the galleries will be open for spectators. Delegates can receive their tickets of admission by presenting their credentials at the rooms of the Concord Republican Club, Merchants' Block, either on Monday evening or Tuesday morning. As the greatest possible care will be observed in issuing tickets, delegates are requested to call for them in person, and at as early an hour as practicable.

Trusting that the Republicans of the State may at once get themselves in readiness for hard work and a glorious victory in the coming campaign, we are, fraternally,

J. H. GALLINGER,
Chm. Republican State Com.
FRANK D. CURRIER, Secretary.

Neuralgia, rheumatism, erysipelas, tumors, swellings, sore throats, toothache and all other pains and aches are promptly cured with Salvation Oil. Price twenty-five cents. Sold everywhere.

Gen. Geurko says Russia does not want war, but gives the information that war is more than probable.

We think we can cure a bad case of backache quicker with one of Carter's Smart Weed and Belladonna Backache Plasters, than by any other application, and after the backache is cured, you can still wear the plaster without discomfort for two or three weeks, or longer. This combination of Smart Weed and Belladonna is a great hit, and it is hard to find any pain or ache that will not yield to it. Price 25 cents. Sold by druggists everywhere.

Rt. Rev. John Henry Hobart Brown, Episcopal bishop of Fond du Lac, Wis., has died of pneumonia, aged fifty-seven.

Ayer's Pills are the best cathartic for correcting irregularities of the stomach and bowels. Gentle, yet thorough in their action, they cure constipation, stimulate the appetite and digestive organs, and strengthen the system.

The great tunnel of the Northern Pacific railroad through the Cascade mountains is approaching completion.

Not one in twenty are free from some little ailments caused by inaction of the liver. Use Carter's Little Liver Pills. The result will be a pleasant surprise. They give positive relief.

There is said to be a strong movement in New York state to make Abram S. Hewitt the democratic nominee for president.

I have been a sufferer from catarrh for the past eight years. Having tried a number of remedies advertised as "sure cures" without obtaining any relief, I had resolved never to take any other patient medicines, when a friend advised me to try Ely's Cream Balm. I did so with great reluctance, but can testify with great pleasure that after using it for six weeks I believed myself cured. It is a most agreeable remedy—an invaluable Balm.—Joseph Stewart, 624 Grand Ave., Brooklyn.

Emin Bey is awaiting Stanley and has been reconnoitering for him.

What a Pity

That so many otherwise attractive, polite, and particular people afflict their friends by the foul and disagreeable odor of their breath; it is mainly caused by disordered digestion, and can be corrected by removing the cause, by using that pure medicine, Sulphur Bitters.—Health Magazine.

She Tried and Knows.
A leading chemist of New York says: "No plasters of such merit as the Ath-lo-pho-ros Plasters have ever before been produced." They are a novelty because they are not made simply to sell cheap, they are the best that science, skill and money can produce, and will do what is claimed for them. For sprains, aches, weakness, lameness, etc., they are unequaled.
40 Fulton St., Sandusky, O., Nov. 21, '87.
The Athlophoros Plaster acted like magic. It is the best I ever tried and I have used many kinds. One dangerous and painful sprain was at about the same time but I don't think so now. I sprained my arm and shoulder in a fall and it has been painful since, but it took one pain me at all now. Mrs. WILLIS MARTIN.

MONTANA HEARD FROM.—Recent railroad extensions have developed exceptionally fine mineral, stock and farming districts. Maps and full particulars, free, upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

NEW BUSINESS CENTERS.—The building of railroads in a new and fertile country creates many new towns, affording excellent business opportunities. Particulars regarding such opportunities in Montana, Minnesota and Dakota will be sent upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

STOCK IN MINNESOTA.—From an exclusive grain country, Minnesota is being rapidly transformed into the finest stock and dairy state in the Union. Cheap lands still obtainable, convenient to railroads. Particulars free upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

SUCCESS. Are you mortgaged, paying 6 per cent interest, or fulling behind? Excellent farm lands, cheap, which will increase in value several fold in five years. No other such opportunities existing. Full particulars, free, upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

FAILURE OF CROPS is an unknown experience in Central and Northern Dakota and Minnesota. Maps and full particulars regarding lands, prices, etc., sent free. Address C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

PROSPEROUS. North Dakota never had better crops than she just harvested. Many opportunities to secure fine Government lands recently surveyed, near excellent coal fields and adjacent to railroad. Maps and full particulars, free, upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

WHY WORK FOR ANOTHER, on a small salary? Why continue working on a worn-out farm? Why try to secure a living from such high-priced or heavily mortgaged land? Why remain a renter? Why not start for yourself? Why not secure at once some of the low-priced but very fertile and well located lands adjacent to railroads now to be obtained by those going to Northern Dakota and Minnesota, where you can make a larger net profit per acre than on the high-priced or worn-out land you now occupy? Why not go and look the situation over, and see for yourself, or at least obtain further information, which will be sent free if you will address C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn. ?

CORN, WART AND BUNION SOLVENT

A CURE IS GUARANTEED.

What a Mistake!

A careful examination would convince any one that two-thirds of all the people in New England have been or are now afflicted with the catarrh of the nose and throat.

No doubt more than half of these persons have tried every blood purifier they have seen, with the erroneous idea that catarrh is a constitutional disease and must be purged out of the blood.

Why a greater mistake was never made! Stop for a moment and think or ask any reputable physician what common catarrh is, and what causes it, and the answer can be only this. "It is an irritation or inflammation of the mucous membrane of the nose and throat, caused by neglected colds, damp piercing irritable winds, foreign matter in the air which is poisonous to some persons and not to others; just as the bites of certain insects is a poisoned torture to some and has no unpleasant effect upon others."

The reason for this is found in the different structure of the outer skin and its counterpart which lines all the inner organs of our bodies. Some people have chapped hands and chilblains and others are never so afflicted because of the peculiar structure of the skin of different individuals.

Therefore stop dosing. It is not blood purifiers you want, but good wholesome food, the plainer the better, then "keep your feet dry and warm, your head cool and bowels open," and use an external application, (Johnson's Anodyne Liniment is the best we know,) to allay the inflammation, cleanse the surface, heal the sores, and your catarrh will disappear like magic. We do not say never to return, because you may cure a severe cold and in three months catch another equally bad, so with catarrh and bronchical troubles. Exposure may bring it on again. We learned more about treating catarrh from the wrapper around a bottle of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, than we ever knew. Certainly this good old medicine deserves to be called "A universal family remedy." No matter how well you know this medicine it will pay you to send to I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass., for a pamphlet free, just to learn how to use the liniment economically. A teaspoonful properly used will often do more good than a half bottle as some people use it.

"I have been married now," boasted a prosy old fellow, "more than thirty years and have never given my wife a cross word; nor have I ever been without a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup in case of a cold or cough."

Hiram Barker, Jr., of Farmington, has given notice that he shall appeal from the recent decision of Judge Young of the Strafford county probate court, which sustained the will of his father, who left $1,000,000 two years ago to the young children of Barker, Jr., to be held in trust until the yougest child is forty years old.

GENIUS AT WORK.

Oddities of Noted Authors—Queer Ways of Statesmen.

Voltaire had in his room sometimes five desks, at which he pursued different tasks.

The great romancer, Balzac, after a frugal dinner at 6 or 7 o'clock, was called at midnight, when he took a cup of black coffee, or green rather, and extremely strong, and worked till noon.

Turgot never worked but when he had dined heartily.

Pitt never ate but at his own table, which was frugal; only when he had some important affair to discuss he took a little port wine with a spoonful of Peruvian bark.

Addison speaks of an advocate who would never plead a case without having his hand to the end of a thread drawn tightly round one of his thumbs all the time his speech lasted. The wags said it was the thread of his discourse.

Dr. Shapman relates that a celebrated advocate of London always applied a blister to his arm whenever he had an important case to plead.

Girodet never loved to work during the day. At night, when inspiration came to him, he arose, lighted candles, and, half muffled up, painted.

Michael Angelo did nearly the same, but with a single candle.

The historian, Mezeray, would work only with a candle, even at midday and midsummer. He never failed to wait on his visitors, even to the street, with a candle in his hand.

Gretry, to animate himself when composing, breakfasted and took coffee, and then applied himself day and night to his piano.

Bossuet worked in a cold room, with his head warmly enveloped.

It is said that Schiller, before composing, put his feet in cold water.

Guido Reno painted with much pomp. He dressed himself magnificently, and had his pupils attend him in silence ranged around him.

Sarti, the musician, composed only in darkness.

Michael Angelo, Leonardo da Vinci, Titian, Rubens, passed from the chisel to the pen or the brush. The change rested them from the preceding work; and thus, during long life, they accomplished marvelous works.

Some persons can think only standing, or in walking the room with swift strides. Some, like Montesquieu, compose in a postchaise. One has need of complete isolation, profound calm; another of the open air and the noise of the crowd.

Buffon wrote in lace ruffles; Alexander Dumas in shirt sleeves.

Milton composed his "Paradise Lost" on a large armchair, with his head thrown back.

When Fox had eaten heartily he would retire to his study, envelop his head in a napkin soaked in vinegar and water, and work sometimes ten hours in succession.

Jeremy Bentham jotted his ideas on little squares of paper, which he piled upon each other, and this pile of little papers stitched together was the first forms of his manuscripts.

Napoleon had his particular mode of meditation and work. When he was not in council he stayed in his study, talked to himself and sung, or, like a child, cut the arms of his chair; then suddenly rousing up, would give the plan of a monument to be erected, or of one of the great military movements which astonished the world.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Musical Talent in Tyrol.

Musical talent is, without comparison, the gift of nature most widely diffused in Tyrol, and to a stranger, particularly an Englishman, it is amazing to find a finely developed ear and a capital voice in the commonest country lout, who scarcely knows his A B C, and to whom Bismarck is an unheard of being.

To be able to join with a second or third voice in a song which they have never heard before is a very common accomplishment. For instance, a lady of my acquaintance was one afternoon playing and singing a Viennese air. The windows were open, and two country lasses passing along the road stopped and listened for a little time. Presently, when at my request my friend repeated the song, the two girls fell in, one with the second and the other with the third voice.

Being a stranger in the country, my friend would not believe that the girls were common peasant lasses, unacquainted with the piece of music which she played; and so, in order to convince her, I sent down for them and made them accompany her in a number of songs which she sang to try them. Their intonation and expressive voices excited her admiration no less than the piano did that of the buxom lasses.—Youth's Companion.

South African Snake Charmers.

Col. Nicholas Pike gives some very interesting experiences in the matter of snake charming.

"I have seen a native of Cape Town, South Africa," he said, "take the deadly puff adder and play with it as you would a riding whip. He would take the deadly cobra, also, and make them stand on their tails and sway their bodies back and forth, keeping time to the music of a small instrument like the clarionet. There are men in India who go about charming snakes out of the thatched roofs of the huts. I have seen them do it. They would sit down and commence to play, and in a little time, if you watched, you would see a large snake come out of the roof and crawl down to the floor of the hut. Then a basket would be put over him and he would be made a prisoner. The shriller the music the more satisfactory it seems to the snake."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Irrigation in India.

There are districts in India where the rainfall is over 100 inches a year, and yet not far off there are other districts which suffer greatly for water. The fields are irrigated in these by water drawn from wells by oxen, lifting it in great skin buckets. Fields so irrigated have wheat waving in as great beauty as I ever saw, while just over the irrigating ditch there are thousands of acres of land which produce scanty crops in the hot rainy seasons, but are desolate at this time, which is the best for good crops under the burning sun of India. —Chicago Times.

FARM, FIELD AND GARDEN

EVERY DAY SUBJECTS CONSIDERED IN A PRACTICAL MANNER.

Some Timely Statements in Regard to the Relative Merits of Barn Yard and Commercial Manures, from an Economic Point of View.

There is no subject of more vital importance to the farming interest at the present time than that of manures. How to supplement the accumulations of home made manures with least outlay of money and time and greatest benefit to the farm, is as yet an open question with some though many farmers have accepted commercial fertilizers as an easy solution of the problem.

There are not a few cultivators who assert that the commercial manures are stimulants rather than fertilizers, and ask the very pertinent question how a few hundred pounds of these made fertilizers can cause such a large increase as has been gained, for instance with wheat, in any other way than by forcing the soil to part with some elements necessary to plant growth which it was holding in reserve after having given up all it could spare to former crops. These objectors state the case with plausibility and also with some truth, unless the use of the artificial fertilizers is alternated with substances of a grosser and more material kind, when their continued employment must be a positive advantage. The true theory of successful farming is the rotation and variety of manures as well as rotation of crops, all being useful and necessary in their turn. Where this rule is observed lands may not only be made to make remunerative returns every year in grain or grass, but also increase in general productiveness under good cultivation.

At the head of all fertilizers stands the product of the barn yard, not only on account of its general distribution, but also for the reason that as it has been wholly derived from the land it contains all the elements necessary to be returned to it. Clover in the north and cow peas in the south offer to each section ready and reliable fertilizers, valuable not only for their chemical properties, but especially for their usefulness in mechanically changing the character of hard and compact soils. Along with these are the numerous kinds of commercial manures, the trustworthy brands of which contain in fair proportions the elements found in those from the stable, with the important exception that they cannot form vegetable mold, which is just as necessary to a well constituted soil as its mineral and chemical elements.

The following formula, made by the Mapes company, indicates about the average chemical composition of many of the well known commercial brands, along with the other necessary ingredients: Ammonia, 4 to 5 per cent.; phosphoric acid, 10 to 12, and potash, 4 to 5 per cent. The analyses of scientists make it appear that a ton of average barn yard manure contains about 10 pounds nitrogen, 12 pounds potash and 5 pounds phosphoric acid. It must, however, be understood that these amounts will vary according to the condition of the manure and the food out of which it was made.

What Others Say.

Experience has not yet developed a suitable mixture or combination of grasses that will give an all the year round pasture. Rye—or barley, if the soil is rich—make a winter pasture that leaves nothing to be desired except the feature of permanency, says Southern Cultivator.

It is settled that in the hands of some men some incubators will hatch a large percentage of the fertile eggs. About this matter there can be no dispute says Poultry World.

The Spaulding plums, according to J. T. Lovett, is sure curculio proof.

W. F. Brown, in Country Gentlemen, claims that loss of ice generally is caused by one of three things: 1. Too small a bulk stored. 2. Neglect to keep it well covered and solidly packed. 3. Allowing the wet packing to accumulate until it generates heat. Other material may be as good as sawdust for packing, but I have had experience with none but sawdust.

Matthew Crawford, of Ohio, recommends shallow culture for blackberries. Some very successful plantations are never cultivated, but receive special mulchings.

The Rural New Yorker says that the system of threshing corn fodder ranks with the silo as a measure of farm economy. Corn and stalks must be perfectly dry to realize the best results. A better machine for the purpose than the ordinary threshing machine is needed.

Lime for Poultry.

It is perfectly true that all the grains used in feeding poultry contain a greater or less percentage of lime, and that if no other supply is furnished the eggs which are laid will generally be inclosed in a shell that is very largely composed of lime. It is also perfectly true, adds The Poultry World, that the universal experience as well as the general practice is to provide lime in some additional form, and that such provision pays.

The methods of giving this additional supply are to furnish ground oyster shells, granulated bone, cracked bone, bone meal, old plaster, sea shells, slaked lime allowed to cool and become crumbly, air slaked lime and the like. When cracked oyster shells, granulated bone, sea shells, old plaster and water or air slaked lime are used it is customary to provide vessels and keep the lime before them at all times. A self feeding hopper, such as is used by pigeon men for feeding their pets, is a very convenient receptacle for lime in these forms. Bone meal is usually mixed with the soft food, and its consumption in that way assured. We think the former method, however, except in the case of very young chickens, the better one, as it is but little labor to fill the hopper, and the fowls will eat all they wish and need no more. Furnish the hens with lime, and thus prevent soft shelled eggs, and, we might truthfully add, get more good ones.

AN ODD MICHIGAN VILLAGE.

A Thousand Little Fishing Huts on Ice. The Fisherman's Methods.

"The oddest settlement, I guess, that can be found anywhere in this country," said William Cotter, of East Saginaw, "is Fish City, on Saginaw bay. When I say it is on Saginaw bay, I don't mean that it is on the bay in the sense that Chicago is on Lake Michigan, or that Albany is on the Hudson river, but that it is, in winter time, literally on the bay, and extends for several miles out over its surface. It is a city on the ice, consequently is not founded on a rock, and naturally its existence is not permanent. During the season just past there were 1,000 houses in Fish City.

"This queer town is not laid out with any idea of regularity, and it is not likely that the ordinary regulations for finding a given location in a city would avail there. The buildings in this interesting town are neither large nor imposing, as the biggest one among them is not more than eight feet high or more than six feet square. They are built of common boards, and cover the frozen surface of the bay almostly as thickly as the burrows of a prairie dog village cover the prairie. They are the huts of men who do the winter fishing for pike, pickerel, lake trout and white fish, and as soon as the ice forms on the bay their construction is begun. The fishermen live in their huts from the time they are built until the breaking up of the ice in the spring forces them to come ashore. The furniture of these huts consists of a sheet iron cylinder stove a little over a foot high, with a hole in the top, a stool and a shelf eighteen inches wide, on which the fisherman sleeps. There is a floor in each hut, and in the floor a trapdoor twenty inches square. When this is raised a hole of the same size through the ice is discovered. At the side of this the fisherman sits all day and a great part of the night watching for his game, which he captures in a novel manner.

"To decoy the fish to the hole in the ice he takes a herring, which he catches with a hook and line as he needs one, crams a piece of lead four inches long down its throat to make it sink, ties a long string to it by a slip noose over its head, fastens the other end of the string to the ceiling of his hut and lowers the herring to the water. The decoy fish will live an amazing length of time, notwithstanding its stomach and throat are filled with lead, and the ballast makes its efforts at swimming so peculiar that the game fish are quickly attracted to the decoy. When the herring dies the fisherman manipulates the string with one hand while he holds his spear in the other. The water over which these huts are built is from ten to fifteen feet deep, but it is so clear that the bottom is easily seen. To the end of this spear handle the fisherman has a strong string securely fastened, and the string is tied to a nail in one side of the hut, so there is no danger of the weapon being lost in the water in case of accident. A decoy herring will not be long in the water before up will dash some alligator jawed pike, or a big, graceful lake trout, or a glistening whitefish. Like a flash the spear shoots down through the hole in the ice, and it rarely misses its mark. The skill with which these Saginaw bay fishermen throw their spear is equaled only by the Indian spear throwers of the Sault Ste. Marie. The fish run in schools, and the favorite times for fishing are early in the morning and from nightfall until midnight. After dark a lamp with a strong reflector is used to light up the hole in the ice and the water beneath, and then the fishing is the liveliest and at its best. Sometimes a fisherman's wife and two or three children occupy his hut with him all winter long, and seem to suffer no inconvenience from the cramped and not altogether cheerful quarters. From 2,000,000 to 2,500,000 pounds of choice fish are taken in this way every season at Saginaw bay.

"In the spring, when the ice begins to threaten a break up, the prudent inhabitants of this queer city lose no time in taking down their houses and seeking the shore with them. There are always a great many among them, however, who brave the inevitable break up until the last moment, and every spring, in spite of past experiences, some of these are sure to be carried out into the lake by the shifting ice. Tugs are always dispatched by some one to rescue these reckless fishermen, but their sufferings are intense, and it sometimes happens that lives among them are lost before the rescuing parties locate and reach them."—New York Mail and Express.

Do Flying Fish Fly?

It has long been a question with scientists whether flying fish actually fly, or are only carried forward through the air by the impulse which they gave to their bodies while still in the water. Professor Mobius expresses an authoritative opinion, and claims that they are totally unable to fly, for the reason that the muscles which move the pectoral fins are not sufficiently large to bear the weight of their bodies in the air. In birds the average weight of the muscles which are concerned in the movement of the wings is one-sixth that of the entire body; in bats one-thirteenth, while in the flying fish it is only one-thirty-fifth. He affirms, therefore, that the impulse to the propulsion of the fish in the air is delivered while they are still in the water.—Globe-Democrat.

Freaks of the Storm.

Wind-rolled snowballs are often seen on the Dakota and Wyoming prairies. Sometimes millions upon millions of the balls are in sight at one time. Many are of the size of an orange, some as big as a cannon ball, while others reach the proportions of the prize pumkin of the county fair. These freaks of the storm leave a person under the fanciful impression that great armies of school boys have been battling over the snowy space. —New York Star.

THE MOST WONDERFUL FAMILY REMEDY EVER KNOWN.

March April May

Are the best months in which to purify your blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best blood purifier.

At no other season does the human system so much need the aid of a reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla, as now. The impoverished condition of the blood, the weakening effects of the long, cold winter, the lost appetite, and that tired feeling, all make a good spring medicine absolutely necessary. Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiarly adapted for this purpose, and increases in popularity every year. It is the ideal spring medicine.

"I must say Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine I ever used. Last spring I had no appetite, and the least work I did fatigued me ever so much. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and soon felt that I could do as much in a day as I had formerly done in a week. My appetite is voracious." MRS. M. V. BAYARD, Atlantic City, N. J.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to buy any other.

Were all wise enough to heed this advice in season, a world of suffering would be avoided. If you suffer from impure blood, scrofula, dyspepsia, biliousness, headache, take

To the air in localities where vegetation, rotted by freshets, is laid bare to the sun's rays by the receding flood. Millions of square acres, in the vicinity of the great tributaries of the Mississippi and the Missouri in the South and Southwest, give forth this fever-laden miasmatic vapor, disseminating malarial pestilence broadcast. Not only throughout the great West, but wherever on this continent fever and ague makes its periodic appearance—and what locality is wholly exempt from it?—Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the recognized defense, the most highly accredited and popular means of cure. Fever and ague, bilious remittent, dumb ague and ague cake are eradicated by it. Nor is it less potent when used to remove constipation, liver complaint and dyspepsia, kidney troubles, nervousness and rheumatic ailments. Use it upon the first appearance of these troubles, and with persistence.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTIONS.

The republican convention for the choice of delegates at large to the national republican convention was held in Concord on Tuesday, and was called to order by Hon. J. H. Gallinger, chairman of the state committee. Harry E. Burnham of Manchester was president, with a vice president for each county, S. A. Haley of Newmarket representing Rockingham county. Ferson C. Cheney of Manchester, Jacob H. Gallinger of Concord, Hiram A. Tuttle of Pittsfield and Alfred T. Batchelder of Keene were elected delegates, and D. W. King of Nashua, D. A. Taggart of Goffstown, F. W. Coburn of New Durham and S. M. Richards of Newport alternates.

The first congressional district convention chose John L. Peavy of Wolfeboro and Edward H. Gilman of Exeter as delegotes, and Samuel A. Haley of Newmarket and Daniel F. Healey of Manchester as alternates.

The second congressional district convention chose Chester Pike of Cornish and Charles H. Greenleaf of Franconia delegates, and David O'Neil of Claremont and Charles Parker of Lisbon alternates.

In the balloting in the state convention, 596 votes were thrown.

Disastrous Explosion in Manchester.

A boiler of 100-horse power in Hodge's sash and blind factory in Manchester exploded Tuesday morning, instantly killing William H. H. Tyler and Harvey D. Emery, employes at the works, and injuring several other persons. The boiler house, engine house and dry house, all brick buildings, were demolished, and the main building badly shattered. The pecuniary loss is between $5000 and $10,000.

A Horrible Tragedy.

The seven persons who were supposed to have been burned to death in a barn on the Freeze farm at Arlington, Neb., a few days ago, are now known to have been murdered, and then dragged into the building which was then fired. Mrs. Freeze's throat, it is found, was cut from ear to ear. The coroner's jury rendered a verdict that the family were murdered and that the murderer also perished in the barn, which he set on fire to conceal the crime. When the ruins were searched after the fire occurred, the body of a man not a member of the family was found burned to a crisp.

Maritime Notes.

The Laighton Bros., of the Isles of Shoals, intend selling the little steamer Pinafore, which has done such excellent service for several years past, summer and winter, and replacing her with a larger boat, about forty-five feet long.

The schooner Edward E. Webster arrived at San Francisco on the 7th inst. [illegible] a passage of 190 days. The crew were [illegible] men being able to work; all her provisions were gone except some musty flour.

The U. S. S. Swatara is ordered to proceed from this port to Norfolk for inspection, and to sail thence to join the Pacific squadron. She is to sail to-day.

The British steamer Benson, from Matanzas for Philadelphia, was towed into Norfolk on the 7th inst. in distress. She reported being in collision the previous noon during a dense fog with the steamer Eureka. When the fog lifted half an hour afterwards the Eureka was nowhere in sight, and it was feared she had gone down with all hands, thirty-eight in number; but on the 8th the entire crew arrived at Philadelphia, they having been picked up shortly after the collision.

Hampton Jottings.

HAMPTON, May 7th.

The May ball was a success. It was a private affair, sixty couples participating. A large number came from Exeter, but could not gain admittance.

It has been decided to have gates at the railroad crossing; work will commence to-day.

A young man who has driven a milk team for a few years was suddenly discharged recently, his team containing 160 cans, forty of which were found not well filled. It does not look reasonable that any one could protect so many cans and come in on time, especially on the dark evenings recently.

One of our popular carpenters reported last fall that he had one hundred cottages to build this summer, and engaged certain lots of lumber; to one man he said he hardly knew what to do with his stock on hand, as he never saw business so dull as at the present time.

Mourning emblems were seen at the Union house yesterday. The wife of the proprietor passed away Saturday morning. Mrs. Whittier was much beloved; possessing a pleasant and affectionate disposition she made many friends, who mourn her death; she has suffered from successive strokes of paralysis, which made sad havoc with her entire system. Funeral services will be at ten o'clock on Tuesday forenoon.

"He sees when their footstep a falter, when their hearts grow weak and faint,
He marks when their strength is failing, and listens to each complaint;
He bids them rest for a season, for the pathway has grown too steep,
And folded in fair green pastures, He giveth His loved ones sleep."

YORK BEACH, ME., May 7th.

Ellis & Sons have bought the Mead shop, and will enlarge it and fit it up for a restaurant.

James Thompson, proprietor of the Thompson house, is having a broad piazza put on his house, which will be a great improvement.

Workmen have begun work on Dr. C. W. Clements' new block. The lower stories will be used as a drug store and dentist rooms.

Byron Hutchins of Farmington, N. H., a tonsorial artist, will open rooms near the post-office on June 15th.

Messrs. Ellis & Sons have built a plank walk from the Ocean house to the new railroad station. It also connects with hotel Rockaway.

The Young People's Debating club will meet with Mr. George Pierce on Friday evening.

S. G. Donnell, proprietor of the Donnell house, had a very valuable dog killed by the cars last Saturday evening. SUB.

The new liquor law in New Jersey went into effect May 6th, and not a saloon was open nor a drop of liquor sold in the state from Hoboken to Camden that day.

To Save Life

Frequently requires prompt action. An hour's delay waiting for the doctor may be attended with serious consequences, especially in cases of Croup, Pneumonia, and other throat and lung troubles. Hence, no family should be without a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has proved itself, in thousands of cases, the best Emergency Medicine ever discovered. It gives prompt relief and prepares the way for a thorough cure, which is certain to be effected by its continued use.

S. H. Latimer, M. D., Mt. Vernon, Ga., says: "I have found Ayer's Cherry Pectoral a perfect cure for Croup in all cases. I have known the worst cases relieved in a very short time by its use; and I advise all families to use it in sudden emergencies, for coughs, croup, &c."

A. J. Eidson, M. D., Middletown, Tenn., says: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral with the best effect in my practice. This wonderful preparation once saved my life. I had a constant cough, night sweats, was greatly reduced in flesh, and given up by my physician. One bottle and a half of the Pectoral cured me."

"I cannot say enough in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral," writes E. Bragdon, of Palestine, Texas, "believing as I do that, but for its use, I should long since have died."

YORK VILLAGE, ME., May 7th.

Old York Lodge, I. O. G. T., gave an entertainment at S. S. S. hall on Wednesday evening, May 2d, consisting of tableaux and select readings, followed by a "pink tea," with hot coffee, cake, cold meats, etc., which was enjoyed by all present.

The primary school in district one commenced last Monday, with Miss Florence Varrell as teacher, the same as has been for several preceding terms. For the grammar school a teacher has not yet been obtained.

It is reported that Mr. H. E. Evans, the successful and popular manager of the Hotel Bartlett for some years past, has recently purchased that estate. J. E.

The agent for Senator Blair's book, "The Conflict Between Man and Alcohol," in Manchester, headed her list with the names of four Ex-Governors. Quite likely Manchester has more Ex-Governors to the square mile than any place in New England, and not one of them ever allows the other to get ahead of him. Not much.

"A GREEN OLD AGE."

Few Men or Women Reach It, But Nearly All Might—The Remarkable Experience of an Octogenarian.

"There is only one thing I dread," said the late Charles Sumner, "and that is the coming on of old age."

Mr. Sumner was a brave man, and could face danger unflinchingly but to watch the hairs whiten, the lines of pain and care grow deep in the face, to feel the strength and activity going and death coming on, were more than he could bear. Alas! how many others feel the same today. Pains, loss of sleep, weakness, poor appetite, and feebleness, all break the spirit. Have you never heard of Mr. Nathan Chase, of New Bedford, Mass.? A man nearly four-score years old, and hale and hearty as in youth. And yet he was supposed to be dying of heart trouble less than two years ago. Here is what he says:

"A year ago or more I began to lose flesh and strength. I sent for my physician to know the cause. He examined me, and said it was my heart; that the old machinery was wearing out, and I must be careful. Still I grew worse. Finally I got so bad I could scarcely breathe; I could not lie in bed but had to sit up all night with possibly one hour's sleep out of twenty-four. And yet to-day, I am in fine condition; can go up three flights of stairs without inconvenience, and feel as well and about as young as ever in my life before. What accomplished this? Hunt's Remedy—nothing else. It has made a new man of me, and I bless God for it every day."

Such an experience should be a valuable lesson to all readers, both old and young. It shows that a long and happy life is possible. It shows that men or women need not despond. It shows that by care and the use of the right remedy health, happiness and long life may be secured by all.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Combines, in a proportion peculiar to itself, the active medicinal properties of the best blood-purifying and strengthening remedies of the vegetable kingdom. It will positively cure—when in the power of medicine—Spring Debility, Headache, Dyspepsia, Catarrh, Salt Rheum, Scrofula, and all Diseases caused by a low state of the blood.

"I suffered three years with blood poison. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and think I am cured." MRS. M. J. DAVIS, Brockport, N. Y.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla beats all others, and is worth its weight in gold." I. BARRINGTON, 130 Bank Street, New York City.

Is so vastly superior to any other sarsaparilla or blood purifier, that one has well said: "Its health-giving effects upon the blood and entire human organism, are as much more positive than the remedies of a quarter or a century ago, as the steam-power of to-day is in advance of the slow and laborious drudgery of years ago."

"While suffering from a severe bilious attack in March, 1883, a friend in Peoria, Ill., recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla. I tried the remedy, and was permanently cured." J. A. SHEPARD, travelling agent for Devoe & Co., Fulton Street, N. Y.

Purifies the Blood

"I tried a dozen articles to cleanse my blood, but never found anything that did me any good till I began using Hood's Sarsaparilla." W. H. PEER, Rochester, N. Y.

"My wife was troubled with dizziness and constipation, and her blood has been in a bad order—in fact she has been all run down. Hood's Sarsaparilla is doing her a wonderful amount of good." F. M. BALDWIN, druggist, Blanchester, Ohio.

"I was for five years a sufferer with boils, all run down, and was at one time obliged to give up work. Before taking all of two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, was entirely cured." R. M. LANE, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. Took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

OFFICIAL NOTICE!

— OF —

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co.

— FROM THE —

HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND, MAINE,

To those who are contemplating the purchase of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

GREETING:

On and after June 1st we shall STOP PREPAYING the FREIGHT on GOODS SOLD by us, and we respectfully request that those who have dealt with us, and who have been BENEFITED by the PAYMENT OF THIS FREIGHT which in itself in the past three years has amounted to some

30,000 DOLLARS,

Will order what GOODS they require for this SPRING, from us this month, and please order as early as possible. And to those who intend buying

Chamber Sets, Parlor Suits, Carpets, Lounges, Easy Chairs, Mattresses, Springs, Silver-ware, Window Shades, Drapery, Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Stoves and Ranges, Feathers, Feather Pillows, Spreads, Blankers,

And anything else in HOUSE FURNISHING, can be BENEFITED to the extent of the freight to their depot, by buying from us this month. We have always PREPAID THIS FREIGHT FROM OUR OWN PROFITS, as we have invariably made the price on the

Furniture, Carpets,

Etc., lower than could be bought for elsewhere. There has always been a great advantage derived by our prepayment of the freight because we in every instance GUARANTEE the SAFE DELIVERY of the goods, and if there has ever been a fight to make with the railroad, we have done it, or in other words if you have received a

CHAMBER SET, PARLOR SUIT, Chair, or Range,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

That was damaged by the railroad, we have replaced it with another piece, and taken our chances to get the breakage from the road. There are items worthy of our close consideration, and especially at this time of year, be wise and order during this month,

And Save Yourself the Freight from Portland to your Depot, no matter where it is located in the State of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

We believe we are the only HOUSE FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT IN NEW ENGLAND WHO HAVE ADHERED STRICTLY TO THIS PLAN OF PREPAYING THE FREIGHT ON EVERYTHING SHIPPED BY US. We mean by this that while some other houses have shipped the goods, and allowed you to pay freight and afterwards send them a bill and then dicker on it for some time, We have invariably paid out the cash before the article left our freight sheds at Portland. And now notwithstanding the fact that we expect to lose a great deal of business by this this year there seems to be no other way to convince some people of the difference between OUR PAYING THE FREIGHT before the articles leave here, AND OUR CUSTOMERS PAYING THE FREIGHT after the articles get to the depot, and then having to write backwards and forwards over the matter. We wish to deal with perfect fairness and frankness in this matter, consequently we give you another month to make your selection, and to fill orders that are already placed. Now if you want a

KITCHEN RANGE, or a CHAMBER SET, or PARLOR SUIT, or CARPETS, WINDOW SHADES, DRAPERY CURTAINS,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

Kindly come and see us at once, or if you can not come, please write us for Catalogues and Descriptions of these Goods, and we will do our very best to please you in every one. Remember we carry COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHINGS. There is scarcely a thing that you require for your homes that we do not keep, and we sell the same and shall continue to sell the same for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. This notice applies TO ALL OUR STORES, and we have written to each of our MANAGERS to this effect, consequently there will be no more freight prepaid from our Bangor Store, Rockland Store, Auburn Store, Bar Harbor Store, Biddeford Store, nor from the Headquarters at Portland, after the 31st day of May, 1888.

Kindly get your orders in before June 1st, if you wish to save this freight.

Respectfully, the Public's Ob't Servants,

THE ATKINSON HOUSE FURNISHING CO.,

Headquarters Cor. Pearl and Wilde Streets, Portland, and Branches at Auburn, Rockland, Bangor and Biddeford, also Bar Harbor for a short time.

ISAAC C. ATKINSON, Gen. Manager.

BAD WORK.

Young Man Stabbed.

Tuesday evening about nine o'clock, as Mr. Bernard Johnson was standing beside a building on Water street, Daniel Stevens of Newcastle, assistant keeper of Whale's-back light, came along the street, and without receiving any provocation or giving any warning struck Johnson in the right breast with a knife, inflicting a very painful and possibly fatal wound. Stevens was arrested and locked up, after considerable resistance, the officer making the arrest having to use his club. The assailant was formerly in the navy, and at one time master-at arms in the U. S. S. Lancaster; he was drunk at the time he made the assault, which is said to have been entirely unprovoked. Johnson was formerly for some time a paper carrier for Moses Brothers, the news dealers in Congress block, and has the reputation of being an inoffensive young man.

Made a Short Voyage.

The captain of the U. S. S. Swatara on Tuesday came up in his barge to the navy yard from the lower harbor to take formal leave of the commandant of the yard, and after having paid his respects returned to the landing to go on board his ship. The place where the boat was left was there all right, but no boat was in sight. The Swatara's steam launch was at the yard, and a reconnoitering expedition to this side of the river discovered the barge at one of the south end wharves, made well fast, but minus her crew. The derelict barge was taken in tow by the launch and conveyed to the ship; where her late crew went to is not stated.

Attention, G. A. R.

Members of Storer Post, No. 1, are requested to meet in G. A. R. Hall at 1:30 P. M. sharp, Thursday, May 10th, to attend the funeral of our late Comrade Edward Jervis. ABEL JACKSON, Comdr.

An Incident at the Battle of Gettysburg.

On the afternoon of the second day, the Irish brigade which had been formerly commanded by that brilliant son of the Emerald Isle, General Thomas Francis Meagher, was ordered into the fight, and with their old time cheer, went in just to to the left of the Peach Orchard. As they were about to advance, the chaplain, Father Corby, addressed them in a few burning words, begging them to do their duty well. Then every man in the brigade fell upon his knees while Father Corby, stretching out his right hand toward them, pronounced the words of a general absolution. Every man seemed deeply impressed, their lips moving in silent prayer whilst they made an act of contrition. The scene was grandly touching. On every side the battle was raging furiously. Out by the Peach Orchard and the Devil's Den the Third Corps was making a gallant fight; and Little Round Top, where Vincent and Weed, O'Bourke and Hazlett were dying, was wreathed in smoke, a veritable volcano of fire. Within half an hour after Father Corby had given his blessing to the men many of them had passed to eternity. They had knelt in their shrouds whilst they prayed, and their prayer was a timely one. Their noble souls were at rest.—From "Sketches of Gettysburg" by General St. Clair A. Mulholland.

First. Lieut. John Dennett, United States revenue marine, of Kittery, has been ordered from the cutter Gallatin to the Corwin, which is stationed at Astoria, Oregon. He relieves First Lieut. O. C. Hamlet.

Mr. Fred Sise, son of John Sise, Esq., has arrived home from the west.

Stephen R. Niles, Esq., of Boston, and his son, Edward G. Niles, the artist, and their wives, of Boston, will not take a European tour this summer, as they at one time intended, but will pass the season at the White mountains.

William H. Kennard and wife, of Boston, will sail for Europe on Saturday, May 26th.

Mr. Thomas Salter of New York is visiting his mother, Mrs. Henry P. Salter, on State street.

Col. D. J. Vaughan of Cambridge, Mass., was in town on Tuesday.

David Nason of Lynn, Mass., a veteran conductor on the Eastern division of the Boston & Maine railroad, has been granted a furlough by Manager Furber. He will pay a visit to some friends in Kansas City. "Uncle David," as he is familiarly known, has been in the service of the corporation thirty-three consecutive years, and never before had a vacation.

Mrs. T. O. Rand and daughter, of Newcastle avenue, have returned home from a winter's sojourn in Great Falls.

J. Albert Walker, Esq., has opened his residence on Islington street for the summer, having driven down from Boston on Monday with his family.

Rev. William L. Gage, D. D., of Hartford, Conn., formerly pastor of the Congregational church in this city, has closed his service as acting pastor of the North church at Springfield, Mass.

Circuit Court of the United States: May Term, Colt J.

The court came in at three o'clock Tuesday afternoon, the 8th. Quite a large number of witnesses from the northern part of the state were in attendance, summoned to testify in a suit against the Grand Trunk railway of Canada.

The following are lists of the jurors summoned for the term:

Grand Jurors—Olinthus N. Doe, Durham; Ira A. Locke, Madbury; Charles H. Hayes, Farmington; Benjamin M. Flanden, David M. Brock, Rochester; Francis M. Horne, Sewell T. Roberts, Jonathan R. Drew, Barrington; James H. Motham, Hooksett; William D. Watson, Northwood; John J. Grogan, ward one, Orwin Griffin, ward two, Portsmouth; Claton C. Foss, ward one, Edwin Burr, ward three, Dover; Hervey M. Bennett, James G. Lake, ward three, George R. Simmons, ward two, Manchester; Jonathan L. Blakely, Alton; Hazen W. Downs, Charles Hurd, Milton.

Petit Jurors—Charles E. Hoitt, James W. Long, Durham; Jonathan Jenkins, Madbury; John W. Berry, Will W. Roberts, Farmington; Charles H. Horne, Denman D. Scruton, Rochester; Charles E. Hammet, Nathaniel Whitehouse, John C. Nutter, Somersworth; Walter H. Smith, Geo. M. Gear, Barrington; Nathaniel Clark, Hooksett; James C. Locke, Northwood; Levi Carkin, Samuel Maddock, ward one, Albert R. Junkins, Thomas Nell, ward two, Portsmouth; Everett S. Grogan, Edward Morrill, ward two, Albert A. Fairbanks, John S. Stackpole, ward three, Dover; David Thayer, ward three, John Cleworth, 2d, ward two, Manchester; George W. Tucker, Milton; Alonzo S. French, Alton.

A very large audience greeted Mr. Henry E. Dixey in "Adonis" at Music hall on Tuesday evening, few seats being vacant on the lower floor, and a fair number occupying the gallery. The play is a conglomeration of irresistably amusing absurdities, and kept the audience convulsed with laughter all through its performance. The stage setting was as handsome as any ever seen here.

Entertainment and sale in Grand Army hall, Thursday evening of this week, under the auspicies of the Ladies' Sewing circle connected wite the Court street Christian church. Admission ten cents. Ice cream and cake on sale during the evening. All are invited.

Tickets for the Battle of Gettysburg are for sale by M. H. Bell, at C. E. Laighton & Son's store, by M. M. Collis and other members of Storer Post, and at M. Goodrich's store, where the plan of seats is now open.

Workmen on Monday commenced repairing the store of J. C. Carr, Market street, damaged by fire a short time ago.

The Christian society of Rye, desirous of enlarging their territorial surroundings, will build elsewhere than upon the site of the church lately destroyed by fire. The society have the refusal of a handsome lot on the William Garland farm, with a strong sentiment in favor of its purchase.

It is to be regretted that a demand for rest and recreation compels the resignation of Judge Batchelder from the presidency of the republican club in this city. The judge has contemplated this trip for some time, and to no one is the trip likely to be of more substantial pleasure and profit.—Penny Post.

This item seems somewhat obscure, as to just what trip is referred to.

Parents should not forget the matinee in Music hall next Saturday afternoon, of "The Battle of Gettysburg." It is instructive and is given for a good cause—the fund of Storer Post, G. A. R. Children fifteen cents, adults twenty-five cents.

It is reported that the Boston & Maine railroad is arranging for a grand press excursion to York Beach about the middle of June, to take in the editors of New England and the Middle states.

We acknowledge with thanks the receipt from Secretary Whitney of a copy of Naval Constructor Hichborn's valuable report on European dockyards.

A Discovery to Prevent the Potato Rot.

NORTH HAMPTON, N. H., April 25th.

More than thirty years ago—in the year 1849—on the farm now owned by Hon. Frank Jones, near the Wentworth house, Newcastle, I had grown a fine crop of potatoes, estimated to yield more than fifteen hundred bushels; but the crop was ruined by the rot, and I did not harvest enough for my family use. Since that time I have been studying, observing, experimenting, and trying to find a remedy to prevent the rot,—being encouraged by the desire to save such a large crop, of such immense value to the people and the country, and also hoping to receive the large reward, which I think Congress offered, for a remedy; and I now claim that I have made an original discovery, of an effectual remedy. That remedy is, to keep the hill dry, so that the potato may have air to breathe, by covering the top of the hill with a piece of old paper, or something similar, after the potatoes are nearly grown, to shed the excess of rain which causes the rot.

If the tops are bent to one side, and a piece of paper some twelve inches square be confined on top of the hill by stones, sticks, nails, or a little earth, I have found it effectual in preventing the rot; and the expense need not be much more than once hoeing.

I was led to this discovery by observing that on a hill of potatoes where a turkey had set and hatched her young, and shed the rain from the hill, that every potato in the hill was sound and good, while the other hills on the piece were not worth digging.

Morbidly Melancholy Verses.

Every editor who has to deal with purely literary contributions will bear witness that nine-tenths of the verses offered by young writers nowadays are of this morbidly melancholy class. To look over the manuscripts in a single morning's mail would lead one to suppose a sort of moral pestilence had jumped the quarantine the night before and descended upon America, depleting its victims' lives of all that was fresh, youthful, hopeful, and pessimizing them, as it were, beyond cure. It is Ach! Ach! Ach! over and over again, every translator giving his own version and application. Poems and stories relating to Christmas and Thanksgiving with a true ring of gladness and good cheer in them are rare; while autumn leaves, particularly the "sear" variety, are as popular mediums for the transmission of woes as were the Sibyls of old.

There is real trouble enough in the world, a pitiful God knows. Let us have words of sympathy, of grave, sweet counsel in our sorrow, you pen wielders whom we admit to our inmost selves at times when no living presence could be borne. Tell us, if you will, of your own sad experiences, and how you found consolation in them; remind us, and we shall be grateful, that life is a solemn, earnest thing, by no means to be laughed at or lightly tripped through; but do not call upon us to shudder over vaguely impending terrors; do not scrape from your palette the living colors of crimson petal, and golden maple bough, and the changing sheen of the rainbow, bidding us solace ourselves with mist and ashes of roses. It is the feet of him that bringeth good tidings; he who publisheth peace is the true benefactor of his fellow men.—Willis Boyd Allen in The Century.

Customs of the Albanians.

Among the Albanians exist bitter feuds that have been handed down from generation to generation, and when men meet of those two families there is bound to be a fight that will last until one or the other is dead or disabled, and these feuds often have their rise in the quarrels of little children, or women over the water fountain. They have a code of unwritten laws, which govern their intercourse with each other when enemies, and they never deviate under any provocation. If their worst enemy goes into a tavern, cabaret or cafe, and sits down beside another man, they regard him as under the protection of that man, and in their eyes it would be making him commit an unpardonable breach of hospitality to attack one under his protection. Also, if they happen by any means to touch the hand of the man they wish to kill he is henceforth a friend instead of an enemy, and if ever you or yours have eaten in company with an enemy he is obliged to forget his enmity and be a friend thenceforward, and being friends among the Albanians means being more than brothers.

An Albanian will never stab a man in the back nor shoot from an ambush. If he cannot fight fair and square, he doesn't want to fight. He will not leave a sick or suffering animal by the roadside; he will pick up a crust of bread wherever he sees it, and pray for the wicked person who made light of such a perfect gift, and placing it up on some high place he will deal tenderly with all weaker than he; he will not drink water standing up, for fear of appearing to despise that great blessing, and he will court a maiden as love lorn as any other man, in spite of his warlike nature.—Olive Harper in Courier-Journal.

Compressed Air for Motive Power.

M. Victor Popp is making good progress with his system of distributing compressed air for motive power purposes in Paris. The works for compressing the air in the Rue St. Fargeau, at Menilmontant, are of considerable magnitude. They cover an area of 15,000 square meters, of which an extent of 2,000 meters is roofed over. There are already fixed and in operation seven steam engines of 400 horse power and two of 100 horse power each, a total of 3,000 horse power. The conduits have already been laid over the whole area comprised between the line of the boulevards and the Rue de Rivoli. These are sometimes laid in trenches cut for the purpose and sometimes in the sewers. The total length of the pipes laid was at the end of last December a little over thirty miles. This source of power is used for working electric light machinery in a large number of establishments, among which may be mentioned the Cafe Americain, the Cafe de Paris, the Cafe Anglais, the offices of The Figaro and The Jardin d'Hiver.—New York Graphic.

Pneumonia and Kindred Diseases.

The strong presumption is that much of the affliction is caused by what are called modern improvements in heating houses. Nothing has taken adequately the place of the chimney as a ventilator. Open flues have grown fewer and fewer, and the oven principle has been substituted in the halls as well as the rooms of the average ill ventilated household. To walk outdoors is to suddenly transfer the individual to another climate. The over or ill regulated heating has been accompanied by an increase of closet and other drains that the utmost care apparently cannot prevent from affecting the interior atmosphere. Our people have been made physically more tender in various ways. They ride in warm cars more and walk less than formerly. The elevator has robbed them of salutary exercise they used to take. Modern comforts, so called, and conveniences are probably being bought too dear. They should either be made better or used less. —New York World.

Burning Solid Petroleum.

According to The Revue Scientifique, Dr. Kaufmann has succeeded in solidifying petroleum by heating it for the space of half an hour with from 1 to 3 per cent. of common soap, until the latter has quite dissolved in the petroleum, forming with it a homogeneous mass of the consistency of tallow. Cut up in cubes, this compound can be used as fuel for heating purposes. It does not ignite easily, but when once set on fire it burns steadily, slowly and smokelessly, leaving a carbonaceous residue of about 2 per cent. of its weight. Solid petroleum burns three times slower than coal, but yields a greater heat than the latter.—Scientific American.

Sicily's Famous Volcano.

But what is that pyramid of white away off to the southwest, with clouds of vapor curling lazily from its top? It is the mountain king of Italy—the far famous peak of Etna—two miles higher than the Mediterranean, which smiles out of blue eyes down here below. The great volcano of Sicily, and the highest of Europe, is thirty miles away, but it is so clear, so distinct, so perfect in its details and outlines, that it looks as if we might walk to the summit in an hour. As we look the sun goes down almost behind it, tingeing its vapor with yellow and red and making the grand old snow coated mountain look as if it were waving a streamer of fire.—Will Carleton in New York Star.

The real cost of soap is not to be estimated by the price paid, but by the results. Soap made of inferior stock, or of good materials not properly combined, will injure whatever it is used upon, so it is not cheap at any price. The IVORY SOAP, which Prof. Cornwall, of Princeton College, says "Is very well made, and cannot injure anything," is certainly very cheap at the price at which any grocer will furnish it to you.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS $22 TO $900. The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of this instrument, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably won the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS. Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN STRAIGHT STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased power, for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

Inherited Diseases.

In the realm of disease the facts of inheritance are most numerous and are daily accumulating. Here, alas, they become terrible, fateful and overwhelming. No fact of nature is more pregnant with awful meaning than the fact of the inheritance of disease. It meets the physician on his daily rounds, paralyzing his art and filling him with dismay. The legend of the ancient Greeks pictures the Furies as pursuing families from generation to generation, rendering them desolate. The Furies still ply their work of terror and death, but they are not now clothed in the garb of superstition, but appear in the more intelligible but no less awful form of hereditary disease.

Modern science, which has illuminated so many dark corners of nature, has shed a new light on the ominous words of the Scriptures, "The sins of the fathers shall be visited upon the children unto the third and fourth generation." Instances of hereditary disease abound. Fifty per cent. of cases of consumption, that fearful destroyer of families, of cancer and scrofula, run in families through inheritance. Insanity is hereditary in a marked degree, but, fortunately, like many other hereditary diseases, tends to wear itself out, the stock becoming extinct. A distinguished scientist truly says: "No organ or texture of the body is exempt from the chance of being the subject of hereditary disease." Probably more chronic diseases, which permanently modify the structure and functions of the body, are more or less liable to be inherited. The important and far-reaching practical deductions from such facts—affecting so powerfully the happiness of individuals and families and the collective welfare of the nation—are obvious to reflecting minds, and the best means for preventing or curing these diseases is a subject of intense interest to all. Fortunately nature has provided a remedy, which experience has attested as infallible, and the remedy is the world-famous Swift's Specific, a pure vegetable compound—nature's antidote for all blood poisons. To the afflicted it is a blessing of inestimable value. An interesting treatise on "Blood and Skin Diseases" will be mailed free on application to THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Drawer 3, Atlanta, Ga.

ADAMSON'S BOTANIC COUGH BALSAM

More than twenty years ago Adamson's Botanic Balsam was introduced generally throughout New England as a remedy for Coughs, Colds and Pulmonary complaints. Since its introduction it has constantly won its way into public favor, until now it is the universal decision that ADAMSON'S BOTANIC BALSAM is the best remedy for curing Coughs, Colds and Asthma.

Made only by F. W. KINSMAN & CO., (Established 1850). Druggists and Dispensing Chemists, 343 4th ave., corner 25th st., N.Y. FOR SALE AT ALL DRUG STORES.

BILIOUSNESS.

This very common complaint, which is caused by a dormant or inactive liver, can be cured in a short time by using Ingalls' Mandrake Compound, as can also the various diseases arising from inactive liver or kidneys. These organs, if inactive, will allow impure blood to enter the heart, causing tightness about that organ and palpitation.

She suffered thirty years.

Mrs. DUDLEY CHANDLER, of Melrose, Mass., says: "I had suffered with Palpitation of the Heart more than thirty years before I found anything to give me essential relief. Last fall I tried Ingalls' Mandrake Compound, and, remarkable as it was, this Compound relieved me in two days, so that for several months afterwards I felt not the slightest touch of it, and am perfectly free from it now. Sometimes, before I took this Compound, the pulsations of my heart were so violent as to shake my whole body with rapid agitations, and at times I fainted and became entirely insensible. Now I am perfectly free from all this suffering. Consequently I can most sincerely and earnestly recommend this Compound to all like sufferers, as pre-eminently the best medicine I ever knew for Palpitation of the Heart."

This Compound is purely Vegetable, and strengthens and builds up the system while it eradicates disease.

Ingalls' Mandrake Compound is sold by all Druggists. Price $1; six bottles for $5. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass. — FOR SALE BY — A. P. PRESTON.

ADIEU.

Let time and chance combine, combine!
Let time and chance combine!
The fairest love from heaven above,
That love of yours was mine,
My dear,
That love of yours was mine.

The past is fled and gone, and gone;
The past is fled and gone;
If not but pain to me remain,
I'll care in memory on,
My dear,
I'll fare in memory on.

The saddest tears must fall, must fall;
The saddest tears must fall;
In weal or woe, in this world below,
I'll love you, ever and all,
My dear,
I'll love you, ever and all.

A long road full of pain, of pain;
A long road full of pain;
One soul, one heart, sworn ne'er to part—
We ne'er can meet again,
My dear,
We ne'er can meet again.

Hard fate will not allow, allow;
Hard fate will not allow;
We blessed are, as the angels are;
Adieu forever, now,
My dear,
Adieu forever, now. —Carlyle.

Boatmen of Havana Harbor.

By and by some one will immortalize the Havana guadano and its swarthy guadanero in song. There is nothing fragile or dainty about these little harbor boats or their boatmen, but no Mediterranean port can show you more picturesque waterside characters than are found in Havana bay. There are upward of 2,000 licensed guadanos. Each boat is hooded astern to protect from the sun, is is rigged with a single mast and sail, painted in all sorts of fantastic colors and its speed and seaworthiness are sometimes marvelous. They are a jangling, wrangling lot, their owners, the guadaneros, but peaceable and sunny withal. They are full of song and wine, and sleep the year round. Many live in their little boats. They keep alive the legends of chivalry by murmuring love songs to everything of the female form; and in the moonlight upon the harbor the whole sensuous night pulses to the rhythmic numbers of their weird guarachas.—Edgar L. Wakeman in New York Mail and Express.

The Beggars of Paris.

There is another thing that I have been glad to notice over here, and that is the generosity of the rich to the poor. I have never seen a beggar hold out his hand in vain; but then all mendicants who can prove themselves truly unable to work or to procure employment are licensed here, and you generally know that your copper cent, or petite piece blanche, will not go far astray. I understand, though, that on New Year's day any man, woman or child so inclined can beg on the street corners, and I am told you cannot take a step without putting your hand in your pockets; and it is well to go with these well lined if one wishes to pave the road to paradise with the blessings received on that day.—Paris Cor. The Argonaut.

A Better Financial Plan.

"How can I get my price on my house and lot?" he asked of the real estate dealer.

"What is it actually worth?"

"Seven thousand dollars."

"Then you must list it at $10,000 and gradually come down."

A week later the man entered the office and said:

"Your plan is no good. I've been asking $10,000 and no one will offer me over $4,000. Hadn't I better start at $20,000 and let somebody offer me $12,000?"—Detroit Free Press.

The Gentleman Who Calls.

His calls should never be too long. One hour was all that Mme. Recamier granted to the most agreeable of men for an evening visit. The rule is a good one. It is much better to go away leaving your friends wishing you had staid longer than to stay so long that one's hostess wonders if Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes' suggestion of a ship which could not be launched had ever occurred to her guest. A man should "suffer himself to be desired" rather than make himself too common.—Mrs. M. E. W. Sherwood.

An Immense Wire Rope.

A wire rope half a mile long, six and one-fourth inches in circumference, and weighing seven and one-half tons, has been manufactured at Gateshead, England. There are six strands of nineteen wires each in it, the breaking strain of the whole being 175 tons, and that of each wire in the rope 120 tons to the square inch. This immense rope is to be used in a colliery in North Wales.—New York Sun.

Finish of American Papers.

The remarkable finish of American papers places them ahead of any made elsewhere in the world. The excellent properties of the paper are imparted by the addition of a mineral called agalith. It is a silicate of magnesia, and is fibrous, resembling in this respect asbestos. Large amounts of it are found in the United States. This substance does not seem to be found as yet in other countries.—Philadelphia Times.

"Evil Communications," Etc.

Manners are contagious, there is an epidemic of fastness in the air. It comes from England, from the court circles, from everywhere. It is raging in our midst, producing a plentiful stock of scandals, divorces and adventuresses. It is a lowered tone of manners and morals. —Mrs. M. E. W. Sherwood.

Worship of Diseases.

A recent traveler through the Chinese province of Manchuaia says that besides having a reverence for animals the rustic Manchus worship diseases, and particularly the smallpox, which is represented under the form of a repulsive idol.—New York Evening World.

Blind Fish of the Sea.

Seven varieties of fish examined by naturalists of the Challenge expedition are found totally blind in the deep sea, but have eyes when inhabiting shallow water.—Arkansaw Traveler.

Why waste your arguments on one who will not be convinced? Yet if you keep your arguments till they are sure to convince, they are to be found rusty when they are put to use.

It is estimated that to collect one pound of honey from clover 62,000 heads of clover must be deprived of nectar and 3,750,000 visits from bees must be made.

Amateur Photographer (to a drowning man)—Hi! I say, my friend, hold on for a minute before you go down for the last time. You're doin' the death struggle splendidly, and I want to make just one more exposure.—Judge.

Dr. Gage and Associate Physicians, and Their Great Work.

Probably no physician in New England is better and more favorably known, says a New Hampshire exchange, than is Dr. Gage, the gifted specialist, who has treated more than fifteen thousand patients in this state, the announcement of his visits each month being the signal for a grand rally of a multitude of invalids. His success is indeed phenomenal and the reports of marvellous cures would fill this entire paper, the like of which was never known in the history of medical practice. The following is a fair sample:

Mr. Editor: A few months ago my daughter was laying at the point of death. She had a complication of troubles, a terrible cough, raising an immense quantity, a discharging sore upon her hip which rendered her perfectly helpless. Our family physician gave us no hope, but with a mother's will and determination to save her perishing child if possible, I hastened to consult Dr. Gage. Although he did not see her he nevertheless understood the case and his remedies have wrought a miracle—almost—by restoring my child to perfect health. I thank God that I consulted Dr. Gage.

Russ, North Hartland, Vt., given up by counsel, with a large ovarian tumor, heart disease and dropsy; perfectly cured and in her disappointed. Doctor did not see her.—Oliver Pelren, Concord, N. H., wife cured of ovarian and female difficulties after she had been made worse by the usual treatment.—C. L. Burton, North Monroe, helpless with spinal disease, involving liver, kidneys and bladder; perfectly cured and the Doctor did not see her.—Mrs. Butrick, Londonderry, N. H., son cured of discharging ears and deafness.—Mrs. A. L. Celly, West Andover, N. H., given up in the last stage of consumption; is now well.—Mrs. L. A. Sawyer, Keene, N. H., terrible bleeding from lungs; cured.—Amos Young, Derry Depot, N. H., catarrh had eaten a hole through roof of mouth; cured.—Miss Lizzie Williams, 76 Blodgett st., Manchester, N. H., blindness cured.—Dr. Levi B. Dodge, Waterford, Vt., kidney disease with frightful hemorrhages; given up by counsel; cured, and the Doctor did not see him.—Thomas Tuke, Levi Burt, Littleton, N. H., and hundreds of other cases, cured of nervous debility in its various stages.—Mrs. J. E. Fields, Milford, N. H., cured of a complication of female difficulties after she had doctored 9 years with others.—Son of W. B. Hill, Pittsfield, N. H., was a most terrible case of heart disease, dropsy and epileptic fits; got well, went to work and has not had a fit for two years.—G. Ambrose, No. Londonderry, N. H., cured of cancer.—C. C. I have been a sufferer from catarrh for the past eight years. Having tried a number of remedies advertised as "sure cures" without obtaining any relief, I had resolved never to take any other patient medicines, when a friend advised me to try Ely's Cream Balm. I did so with great reluctance, but can testify with great pleasure that after using it for six weeks I believed myself cured. It is a most agreeable remedy—an invaluable Balm.—Joseph Stewart, 624 Grand Ave., Brooklyn.

a man for groaning when he has Rheumatism or Neuralgia. The pain is simply awful. No torture in the ancient times was more painful than these twin diseases. But—oughtn't a man to be blamed if, having Rheumatism or Neuralgia, he wont use Ath-lo-phe-ros, when it has cured thousands who have suffered in the same way? It has cured hundreds after physicians have pronounced them incurable.

"The skill of five physicians could not cure me of Rheumatism which had settled in the hips and shoulders. So intense was the pain that sleep was almost impossible. The first dose of Athlophoros gave me relief, and the third enabled me to sleep for four and a half hours without waking. I continued to improve and in now well."

Cure Your Corns,

BY USING

SCHLOTTERBECK'S

CORN, WART AND BUNION SOLVENT

A CURE IS GUARANTEED.

What a Mistake!

A careful examination would convince any one that two-thirds of all the people in New England have been or are now afflicted with the catarrh of the nose and throat.

No doubt more than half of these persons have tried every blood purifier they have seen, with the erroneous idea that catarrh is a constitutional disease and must be purged out of the blood.

Why a greater mistake was never made! Stop for a moment and think or ask any reputable physician what common catarrh is, and what causes it, and the answer can be only this. "It is an irritation or inflammation of the mucous membrane of the nose and throat, caused by neglected colds, damp piercing irritable winds, foreign matter in the air which is poisonous to some persons and not to others; just as the bites of certain insects is a poisoned torture to some and has no unpleasant effect upon others." The reason for this is found in the different structure of the outer skin and its counterpart which lines all the inner organs of our bodies. Some people have chapped hands and chillblains and others are never so afflicted because of the peculiar structure of the skin of different individuals.

Therefore stop dosing. It is not blood purifiers you want, but good wholesome food, the plainer the better, then "keep your feet dry and warm, your head cool and bowels open," and use an external application, (Johnson's Anodyne Liniment is the best we know,) to allay the inflammation, cleanse the surface, heal the sores, and your catarrh will disappear like magic. We do not say never to return, because you may cure a severe cold and in three months catch another equally bad, so with catarrh and bronchical troubles. Exposure may bring it on again. We learned more about treating catarrh from the wrapper around a bottle of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, than we ever knew. Certainly this good old medicine deserves to be called "A universal family remedy." No matter how well you know this medicine it will pay you to send to I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass., for a pamphlet free, just to learn how to use the liniment economically. A teaspoonful properly used will often do more good than a half bottle as some people use it.

HOW POTTERY IS MADE.

Methods of Workmen in a New Jersey Establishment—Various Processes.

The fashioning of pottery from clay may, at first glance, seem a simple process. We have all, as children, made mud pies. The mud pie urchin is the potter in embryo. But when you know that the clay passes through thirty odd processes or handlings before the finished dish is produced, and that it may have received thirty of these handlings only to be utterly ruined at the thirty-first, and the proposition looks somehow different. The story of how a saucer is made is interesting. Imagine, in the first place, three heaps of stuff that looks like ground chalk. These are china clay, flint and feldspar. They have already gone through certain processes of calcining, grinding, etc., before they reach the pottery, to fit them to the use for which they are intended. They are the potter's raw material.

These three materials are mixed in certain proportions, the formula for which is said to be a secret known only to the potters. When I was told this I remember marveling how it could have remained a secret so long when it was known to so many. Still I feel bound to believe it is a secret. Water is now added until the mixture is like thin cream. The cream or "slip" is then passed through a screening process by running it over "lawns" or fine cloths. The impurities are thus removed, and the cream—now containing pure potter's clay only—flows into a vat, from which it is pumped into the presses. These are canvas bags inclosed in shallow trays of wood. The water by pressure is forced through the meshes of the canvas, leaving the clay behind. When the water is all drained off the trays are opened, the canvas coverings thrown back, and the clay in "leaves" or cakes of the consistency and color of putty, are disclosed. These are rolled up and deposited in the clay vault until the superfluous moisture has evaporated. It is then submitted to the process of "wedging" or beating to expel the air, which if left in would cause the goods to blister during the firing process. It is then ready for the "presser" i. e., the man who shapes the dishes out of the clay.

The presser does this with the aid of a mold of plaster prepared by the mold maker, the most important and highest paid of all the pottery employes. These molds are of every size and shape, according to the goods to be produced. The most elaborate are those for sanitary use, called plumbers' goods. The hollow ware molds are made in three pieces—the two sides and the bottom. Hollow ware comprises ewers, teapots, sugar bowls, etc., as distinguished from flat ware, or saucers, plates, platters, etc. The saucer mold looks something like a small apple pie, the upper surface of which is modeled with the reverse form of the inside of the saucer. This mold is placed on a rapidly revolving iron cup called a "jigger," the presser takes a lump of soft clay, flattens it out with a blow or two of a plaster stamp until it looks like pie crust, picks it up and flops it over the revolving mold, where, with the aid of a curiously shaped profile instrument or tool, he instantly fashions the clay into the form of a saucer upside down.

A good workman with a boy or two to help him with the molds will fashion many hundreds of saucers daily in this manner. The mold with the saucer on top is then placed on a rack, where, by means of steam pipes, it is dried. The saucer is then taken from the mold, the edges trimmed off and the surface sponged smooth. It is then placed in the "green room" for a further drying process.

The man who makes cups is called a "thrower," and he exercises a little more skill and dexterity than the flatware presser in "throwing" the clay up into the proper shape. His "jigger" also is of a different form. After the cup has been shaped and dried it is turned in a lathe and then sponged, when it is ready to accompany the saucer to the "green room."

When the saucer is perfectly dry it is ready for its first or "biscuit" baking. A round vessel of coarse pottery, which looks like an old bandbox and is called a "sagger," is produced. White sand is placed at the bottom. Then the saucers are ranged in layers, each layer being covered with sand. When the sagger is full strips of common red clay, called "wads," are placed round the rim, and the sagger is ready for the kiln.

The kilns are about 20 feet high and 12 across, being circular in form. Their size is designated by the number of days it will take to fill them. The one I saw was called a 19 day kiln, because it would take one man 19 days to fill it with saggers. Eight men were at work at it, and it was filled in two days and a half. The saggers are placed in piles, called "bungs," 20 feet high. The "wads" serve to steady the piles and to keep out foreign substances, smoke and the like, when the firing begins. On the top of each "bung" an inverted sagger is placed for a like reason. When the kiln is full the opening is bricked up and the fires lighted. The crockery is subjected to a heat of 3,000 degs. Fahrenheit for from 48 to 60 hours. Then the fires are put out and the kiln allowed to cool for several days, when it is opened, care being taken not to let the cool air chill the contents suddenly for fear of cracking them.

The next process is that of glazing. The glaze is generally a mixture of water, flint, spar, paris white, clay, zinc, lead, boracic acid and soda ash, though sometimes other ingredients are added. In this mixture, looking like thin cream, the saucers are dipped, and after drying a short time they are ready for the "glost" kiln. The saggers used for this firing are glazed inside to prevent the porous earthenware from absorbing or "sucking" the glaze from the surface of the dishes. Care is also taken to keep the latter from touching, lest they stick together in the firing. This is done by means of pins stuck in the sides of the saggers, on the ends of which the rims of the dishes rest. The glost firing is about twenty-four hours long. Then the fires are drawn, the door opened as soon as possible and the contents removed to the ware house, where the rough points, or "stilt marks" left by the pins, are removed and the dishes, except such as are to be decorated, are ready to be packed for the market.—"F. H. H." in New York Press.

TRUSTWORTHY INFORMATION ON MANY POINTS OF INTEREST.

Important Work That Ought to Be Accomplished in Orchards During The Growing Season—How to Regulate the Growth of Trees and Promote Fruitfulness.

Many persons think when they have finished the annual pruning of vines and trees their work is ended, but it not unfrequently occurs that young trees, during the growing season, require considerable attention in way of pinching to regulate the growth and to promote fruitfulness. This is an important operation in the management of trees, as it obviates the necessity of heavy amputations being made at the winter or spring pruning. Instead of allowing certain superfluous or misplaced shoots to acquire their full development at the expense of other parts, many horticulturists pinch these early, and give to the necessary parts or branches of the tree nutriment which they would have appropriated if allowed to remain. In this way one is able to obtain results in one season, that two or more would be required for if winter pruning was wholly depended on.

In pinching to promote fruitfulness, the check given to the extension of the shoot concentrates the sap in the part remaining, and unless the check has been given very early in the season, or the growth is very vigorous in the tree, so that the buds will break and form shoots, they are certain to prepare for the production of fruit.

It is a useful operation in the case of vigorous growing and tardy bearing varieties. The mode of performing it is to pinch off the end of the shoot with the finger and thumb. The time to perform it depends wholly on circumstances. If the object be to regulate growth, then the time to do it is when the tendency to undue or ill proportioned growth is first observable, and this will be from the time the young shoots are two to three inches long and upward. If the object be to induce fruitfulness, the length which the shoots should attain before being pinched depends upon the nature or mode of growth and bearing of the species.

In a general way it may be advised to pinch early the soft extremities of the shoots on the vigorous parts, and as late as possible on the feeble parts, excepting always any shoots which may be too vigorous for their position.

Remember that the leaves serve to prepare the sap absorbed by the roots for the nourishment of the tree and aid the formation of buds on the shoots. All trees, therefore, deprived of their leaves are liable to perish. This principle shows how dangerous it is to remove a large quantity of leaves from trees under the pretext of aiding the ripening of the fruit.

Thinning out fruit while it is small is another important work where fine, well developed specimens are desirable. In performing this thinning out be sure and leave a large amount of fruit on the strong part of tree or vine, and remove the whole or greater part from the feeble.

Brief Definition of Silos and Ensilage.

Ensilage is forage that was cut when green and has been preserved in a silo for feeding to stock. Silo is properly a pit with air tight sides and bottom, but the name is also used to designate a receptacle for ensilage constructed wholly above ground. The pit is commonly walled up with stone or brick, with bottoms and sides so cemented as to be air and water tight, and where the ground is solid enough to admit of it the cementing may be done on the earthen sides, as is often practiced in building cisterns for holding water. Silos above ground may be made of heavy masonry or concrete walls, but more commonly of wood. In the last case the silo is really a large wooden box with ends and sides made air tight by smooth boards nailed together double, and inclosing a lining of tarred roofing paper between them.

First, sills are laid on smooth dry ground for a foundation, next a frame of 3 by 6 studding is set up, strengthened with girts and braces and well bound together so as to withstand the pressure from within. The double boards with the tarred paper form the lining of the silo inside of the studding, and the outside is weather boarded in the usual way, leaving an air chamber between it and the air tight lining. The whole must be roofed over to protect it from rain, unless constructed inside of a building, the whole or a part of which can be used for that purpose, and the bottom must be cemented.

Sweet Corn.

It is better to plant sweet corn in rows than in hills, and if the plants are thinned out to about eight inches apart in the rows, with the rows four and a half feet apart, the yield will be larger than that gained from hills. Large areas of field corn are nowadays usually planted in drills and corn planters and cultivators are generally adopted. Flat shallow culture is gaining new advocates every season, especially in the eastern and middle states. In the northern and western states the system of "checking" corn is still practiced to some extent.

By successive plantings, made every two weeks, the season of sweet corn can be indefinitely prolonged. Numbered with early varieties that have gained deserved popularity are the "Early Cory" and "Northern Pedigree."

Manure in the Hill.

As to applying manure in the hill, this method, according to Southern Cultivator, is not so safe a rule. It is better that the manure used on all crops should be thoroughly mixed with the soil rather than in the hill, especially if in quantity or in lumps, for it soon dries out when the rains stop, then it injures rather than benefits the crop. And, besides, some manures are too strong for young plants. They do not need so much nourishment at the start, but when they have attained considerable size, and have sent out rootlets all through the soil, then plant food is demanded in abundance, and if it has been thoroughly incorporated with the soil it will be found and taken up.

BEANS BETTER THAN WHEAT.

The Former Said to Be More Especially the Food of Civilization.

The bean is a better food than wheat, and is more especially the food of civilization. The average graham bread has but 9.5 per cent. of protein, while beans have 23.2 per cent., or two and a half times as much. The function of protein as food is principally to form the basis of blood, muscle, connective tissue, etc. Herein is the nitrogen that furnishes nerve and brain nourishment. Graham bread has 1.4 per cent. of fat, while beans have 2.1 per cent. Of carbohydrates, beans have 53.7 per cent. and graham bread 53.3 per cent., including woody fiber for the latter. The service of carbohydrates is to be transformed into fat and to be burned as fuel, as in the case of the fats themselves. The chief use of the carbohydrates of wheat bread seems to be to serve for fuel, though they are also transformed into fats. In power to keep the body warm and to furnish muscular energy (not muscle), graham bread hardly equals beans, and if we take into account the animal fats which men have always instinctively combined with beans, no doubt the cooked bean is much richer than wheat as a heat and force food. The mineral matters in graham bread, which are reduced to 1 per cent. in wheat bread, amount to only 1.6 per cent., while beans have 3.6 per cent. of them. These help largely to form bone and blood.

In no respect, then, are cooked beans inferior to graham bread as food, and in most respects they are more than twice as nutritious, particularly in those substances that go to brain and nerve nourishment and to the building up of the muscles and bones of the body. It is fair to presume that beans would have made a more vigorous man than wheat has done, with its large amount of starch to be converted into fat and heat. In case of famine and a small supply of food, the advantage of beans over wheat would have been considerable, and the same may be said of them for long marches and military campaigns. It is a matter of common experience that people are made corpulent by eating starchy foods, and these unwieldy bodies are not so healthy and workable as the leaner bodies of other people. A good diet for persons who want to reduce flesh is made up of leguminous foods, and these have been eaten in such cases with successful result. It is not easy to over eat the leguminous foods, for they soon satisfy the cravings of hunger. Professor Atwater maintains that the bodily ills resulting from over eating are greater and more common than those resulting from the intemperate use of alcoholic drinks. Whether this is fully true or not, the ills from over eating are incalculable, and they would have been and would be greatly reduced if beans had been substituted for wheat.

Other things equal, the bean eater will prevail over the wheat eater and over the potato and the rice eater. The Arabian bean eaters came within one battle of spreading Mohammedan civilization all over Europe. The superiority of the bean over wheat would have made Europeans a stronger and better nourished people than they have been as wheat eaters, and equally as energetic, and they would have had the food that would have made possible, not to say probable, a higher degree of intelligence.

If beans had been substituted for wheat, the effect on the agriculture of the world would have been incalculable. In Massachusetts, in 1880, 963 acres produced 15,768 bushels of wheat, or 16 1-3 bushels per acre. The average product in the United States in that year was but 13 bushels. The product of beans in Massachusetts in 1875 was 41,879 bushels from 1,354 acres, or 31 bushels per acre. Therefore, since beans are about two and a half times as nutritious as wheat (the animal fat mixed with cooked beans reduces the exception in the matter of fuel), and since an acre produces twice as much beans as wheat, then it follows that five times more nutriment is got from an acre of beans than from an acre of wheat.

The western farmer might till but one acre in five of his wheat area if he could raise beans, and people would eat them instead of wheat. The savings of land tillage in the United States would amount to four-fifths of the wheat area, or to 44,280 square miles, according to the census of 1880, and the same amount of nutriment would still be got for the nation and the world—that is to say, an area larger than the state of Pennsylvania, and larger than the state of Ohio, would be freed from the necessity of producing sustenance for the human race, taking account of the land in the United States alone. When the time comes, which is generally expected when the pressure of population will try the ability of the soil to sustain it, the substitution of beans for wheat will be a live question.—Good Housekeeping.

Drawbacks to Hygienic Living.

On all sides the habits and customs of civilized life compel us to tolerate, as best we can, a thousand and one drawbacks to strictly hygienic living. Nature has wisely made liberal provision for deviations from an ideal or perfect standard. The climate we inhabit is far from perfect; alternations of heat and cold, excessive humidity and excessive dryness, all contribute to overtax and depress the vital powers. The food we eat is in no sense ideal; the water we drink is frequently anything but the pure and sparkling element of which bucolic poets sing, and the air we breathe is, for the most part, loaded with every conceivable kind of visible and invisible impurities—germs, spores, organic motes, foul gases, the exhalations of animal bodies and putrefying waste.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Canals of the Punjab.

The irrigation canals of the Punjab are divided into two classes—the perennial or constant type, and those which store and distribute the inundation water only. Of the first class there are 1,380 miles of main canals and 3,034 miles of distributors; of the latter there are 2,440 miles of canal and 641 miles of distributing canals. In 1886-7 the perennial canals irrigated 1,011,061 acres, and the inundation canals watered 939,579 acres, a total of 1,950,640 acres. The crops produced are sugar cane, rice, cotton and wheat, the last covering an area of 747,514 acres in 1887; this is the largest on record.—Engineering News.

THE MOST WONDERFUL FAMILY REMEDY EVER KNOWN.

March April May

Are the best months in which to purify your blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best blood purifier.

At no other season does the human system so much need the aid of a reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla, as now. The impoverished condition of the blood, the weakening effects of the long, cold winter, the lost appetite, and that tired feeling, all make a good spring medicine absolutely necessary. Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiarly adapted for this purpose, and increases in popularity every year. It is the ideal spring medicine.

"I must say Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine I ever used. Last spring I had no appetite, and the least work I did fatigued me ever so much. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and soon felt that I could do as much in a day as I had formerly done in a week. My appetite is voracious." MRS. M. V. BAYARD, Atlantic City, N. J.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to buy any other.

Were all wise enough to heed this advice in season, a world of suffering would be avoided. If you suffer from impure blood, scrofula, dyspepsia, biliousness, headache, take

"What Will The Harvest Be."

There are in and about our state twenty-five hundred persons whose livelihood is impaired by the threatened action of the democrats in the attempt to allow British hosiery to come into this country free of duty. In other words, very many of our industrial residents, who own houses and are a part of our general prosperity, must if the "Cleveland-Mills" party succeed in their operations, go into the fields of the west and become producers of grain, instead of remaining in the east and by mechanical industry helping New Hampshire hold her own in the growth of the country. Mr. Sulloway and the democratic manufacturers have only one plan to meet this exigency; that is, to reduce the pay of the operatives.

The democratic party, as is well known, is composed of two elements,—the aristocratic, wealthy few, who stand the assessments, control the offices, dictate the policy and manage the campaigns. These are supported through through thick and thin, in sunshine and in storm, by the unthinking many. The crowd that read not, reflect not, reason not, are always ready to carry the torch and keep step to the music of the very men whose political aims are to reduce the wages of the skilled mechanic and laboring man of this country.

In the republican party there is that large element of thrifty, thinking men who are good mechanics, who study questions of economy, who reason as to cause and effect, and who vote for their own good. In the democratic ranks are thousands of Irishmen professing hatred for England, but whose votes can be as assuredly counted upon on election day to aid the British manufacturers as can those of the "temperance" democrats to maintain the supremacy of the saloon when it dons the livery of the democracy and distributes its votes at the polls.

The Fisheries Treaty.

Senator Edmunds on the 7th reported the fisheries treaty adversely, and gave notice that he would call it up in a week. Senator Morgan submitted a minority report, favorable to the treaty.

Concerning this measure Hon. Charles Levi Woodbury, the uncompromising quality of whose democracy is well known, writes as follows to the New York Sun:

"The Chamberlain treaty is now before the senate. It sur ender everything the United States have contended for since 1818, when the dispute on the three-mile limit began, contentions which the British authorities have assented to or temporized about as often as pressed, so that really in no entire year since then have they insisted on enforcing their headland theory.

"The commercial rights of the United States under the agreements of 1830 are utterly abandoned by Mr. Bayard after much previous insistence on their obligation.

"The rights of common humanity towards our vessels in distress, accorded everywhere except on the Canadian coast, are hereafter to be allowed only upon the condition that the United States shall change its present registry laws by repealing them, and enacting such new ones as are acceptable to the British government before going into effect. This, of course, leaves the humanity of Canada to vessels of the United States in distress withheld until the United States shall pay the consideration by repealing its laws and making such new ones.

"Commercial intercourse by our fishing vessels is disallowed, but they may be permitted to buy a narrow line of supplies, whose extent would not exceed $50,000 a year, when the United States shall have repealed existing duties, now over $611,000 a year, on Canadian fish and oil, and made them free in our markets.

"This is the substance of the treaty, all losses to the United States both in honor and profit. Gen. Jackson and Mr. McLane, Van Buren and Forsyth, Stevenson and Everett, Webster, Rush, Grant, Evarts, and even Bayard and Phelps, for two of their official years, are buried beneath this treaty, and their memories dishonored by its retreat from their patriotic contentions for American rights.

"Cavillers have said the treaty of 1818 was wrung from our weakness, but this treaty, made in the hour of strength, surrenders what that never did, our markets; and it doubles the water from which it requires we shall be forever excluded.

"The consequence of adopting this treaty would be the destruction of the fisheries under the American flag, the paralysis of our hope of naval power, and a British monopoly of our markets, aggrandizing its dangerous naval power. Let the treaty be rejected."

No Great Secret.

The New York Herald gives extracts from a "confidential circular" recently distributed among the members of the league of republican clubs, declaring that the purpose of the organization is to combat free trade ideas, and that it has nothing to do with a choice of candidates.

As the purpose of the league has from the first been openly declared to be the success of the republican party and not the selection of candidates for office, and the republican party is the open and avowed advocate of the protection of American labor from competition with the pauper-paid labor of Europe, the Herald's remarkable "find" is very much like a mare's nest.

During the Knights of Labor fair at Wolfeboro holden April 10th, 11th, and 12th a young man from Furber's Corner, who was sick with the mumps and measles, mingled among the crowd every night, and now the measles and mumps are spreading all round over that section. It is said that two men and one woman have died from the effects of the diseases, and if the young man could be found they would make warm work for him up there.—Dover Democrat.

What a Time

People formerly had, trying to swallow the old-fashioned pill with its film of magnesia vainly disguising its bitterness; and what a contrast to Ayer's Pills, that have been well called "medicated sugar-plums"—the only fear being that patients may be tempted into taking too many at a dose. But the directions are plain and should be strictly followed.

J. T. Teller, M. D., of Chittenango, N. Y., expresses exactly what hundreds have written at greater length. He says: "Ayer's Cathartic Pills are highly appreciated. They are perfect in form and coating, and their effects are all that the most careful physician could desire. They have supplanted all the Pills formerly popular here, and I think it must be long before any other can be made that will at all compare with them. Those who buy your pills get full value for their money."

"Safe, pleasant, and certain in their action," is the concise testimony of Dr. George E. Walker, of Martinsville, Virginia.

"Ayer's Pills outsell all similar preparations. The public having once used them, will have no others."—Berry, Venable & Collier, Atlanta, Ga.

Viewing the Promised Land.

A large number of squatters recently gathered in Montana, awaiting the opening of an Indian reservation which they greatly coveted. A despatch from Great Falls, Montana, to the Chicago Tribune, said:

News of the opening of the Black Feet reservation is awaited almost only here and throughout northern Montana. A large number of people have gone to the reservation to locate ranches, cities and town sites. The desirable valleys are fairly covered with tents, the greatest rush apparently being to the Big Sandy, the famous hay grounds. Soldiers as well as civilians are on the grounds, and when revolvers talk the bill is signed. There is plenty of room. Bullock Valley, between Big and Little Assiniboine, is still selected from the rest of the squatters, and along the valley of the Milk River there is a silver lode in the Bear Paw mountains that was located several years ago. It is understood that several parties are on hand wishing to locate this mine as well as to possess the owners.

The President has now signed the bill throwing open for settlement the Indian reservation in Montana.

STARTLING STATISTICS.

What a High Official Has to Say About the Condition of the People—Some Serious Facts and Figures.

[Herald.]

"It is wonderful what figures will show." Such was the remark of a high official in the State Department to a representative of this paper. "How many really rich men do you suppose there are in New England? Very few. But how many do you think there would be if people were physically and mentally sound and vigorous? New England people are active, restless and ambitious, and therefore neglect themselves. Not one man or woman in ten is in perfect health."

"Official figures show this, do they?"

"Precisely. There seems to be a New England disease. People do not seem to think that headaches, or tired feeling, or 'blues,' or loss of appetite, or nervousness mean anything. Then, the first thing they know they are in bed and on thence d to death.

"Do many die of this disease?"

"Thousands. Henry Wilson, Charles Sumner, Wendell Phillips and Governor Bodwell are among the number. James G. Blaine is also on the road, and his trip abroad is in the hope of recovering health."

"But what do you find to counteract it?"

"Very little. The only reliable medicine so far discovered is Hunt's Remedy. The faculty of one of our leading medical colleges, knowing the composition of this medicine, have been recommending it for some time, and the results have been wonderful. I know three ladies and one gentleman (one of the latter a State officer), who have been entirely cured by its use. I wish everybody might know more about it and use it."

Such facts and figures, and from so high a source, should prove invaluable to thousands whose success in life would be much greater were they physically and mentally sound and vigorous.

Is so vastly superior to any other sarsaparilla or blood purifier, that one has well said: "Its health-giving effects upon the blood and entire human organism, are as much more positive than the remedies of a quarter or a century ago, as the steam-power of to-day is in advance of the slow and laborious drudgery of years ago."

"While suffering from a severe bilious attack in March, 1883, a friend in Peoria, Ill., recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla. I tried the remedy, and was permanently cured." J. A. SHEPARD, travelling agent for Devoe & Co., Fulton Street, N. Y.

"I was for five years a sufferer with boils, all run down, and was at one time obliged to give up work. Before taking all of two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, was entirely cured." R. M. LANE, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. Took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

— OF —

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co.

— FROM THE —

HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND, MAINE,

To those who are contemplating the purchase of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

GREETING:

On and after June 1st we shall STOP PREPAYING the FREIGHT on GOODS SOLD by us, and we especially request that those who have dealt with us, and who have been BENEFITED by the PAYMENT OF THIS FREIGHT which in itself in the past three years has amounted to some

30,000 DOLLARS,

Will order what GOODS they require for this SPRING, from us this month, and please order as early as possible. And to those who intend buying

Chamber Sets, Parlor Suits, Carpets, Lounges, Easy Chairs, Mattresses, Springs, Silver-ware, Window Shades, Drapery, Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Stoves and Ranges, Feathers, Feather Pillows, Spreads, Blankers,

And anything else in HOUSE FURNISHING, can be BENEFITED to the extent of the freight to their depot, by buying from us this month. We have always PREPAID THIS FREIGHT FROM OUR OWN PROFITS, as we have invariably made the price on the

Furniture, Carpets,

Etc., lower than could be bought for elsewhere. There has always been a great advantage derived by our prepayment of the freight because we in every instance GUARANTEE the SAFE DELIVERY of the goods, and if there has ever been a fight to make with the railroad, we have done it, or in other words if you have received a

CHAMBER SET, PARLOR SUIT, Chair, or Range,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

That was damaged by the railroad, we have replaced it with another piece, and taken our chances to get the breakage from the road. There are items worthy of our close consideration, and especially at this time of year, be wise and order during this month,

And Save Yourself the Freight from Portland to your Depot, no matter where it is located in the State of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

We believe we are the only HOUSE FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT IN NEW ENGLAND WHO HAVE ADHERED STRICTLY TO THIS PLAN OF PREPAYING THE FREIGHT ON EVERYTHING SHIPPED BY US. We mean by this that while some other houses have shipped the goods, and allowed you to pay freight and afterwards send them a bill and then dicker on it for some time. We have invariably paid on the cash before the article left our freight sheds at Portland. And now notwithstanding the fact that we expect to lose a great deal of business by this this year there seems to be no other way to convince some people of the difference between OUR PAYING THE FREIGHT before the articles leave here, AND OUR CUSTOMERS PAYING THE FREIGHT after the articles get to the depot, and then having to write backwards and forwards over the matter. We tried to deal with perfect fairness and frankness in this matter, consequently we give you another month to make your selection, and to fill orders that are already placed. Now if you want a

KITCHEN RANGE, or a CHAMBER SET, or PARLOR SUIT, or CARPETS, WINDOW SHADES, DRAPERY CURTAINS,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

Kindly come and see us at once, or if you can not come, please write us for Catalogues and Descriptions of these Goods, and we will do our very best to please you in every one. Remember we carry COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHINGS. There is scarcely a thing that you require for your homes that we do not keep, and we sell the same and shall continue to sell the same for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. This notice applies TO ALL OUR STORES, and we have written to each of our MANAGERS to this effect, consequently there will be no more freight prepaid from our Bangor Store, Rockland Store, Auburn Store, Bar Harbor Store, Biddeford Store, nor from the Headquarters at Portland, after the 31st day of May, 1888.

Kindly get your orders in before June 1st, if you wish to save this freight.

Respectfully, the Public's Obt Servants,

THE ATKINSON HOUSE FURNISHING CO.,

TO THE CITIZENS OF PORTSMOUTH.

The battle of Gettysburg, fought on the free soil of Pennsylvania, twenty-five years ago, was the most important battle of that great war for the preservation of our Union.

In that battle ten thousand men were slain and forty thousand were wounded; it was fought July 1st, 2d, and 3d, 1863, and during these three memorable days, the troops from our state performed a most heroic and noble part. Ever since the glorious victory was won the people of our whole country have taken a great interest in all pertaining to it. The most talented artists have been employed by some of the states to commemorate the stirring scenes on canvas; wonderful cycloramas have been erected in Boston, New York and other large cities; hundreds of costly monuments have been erected on the field itself, and three years ago a company was formed in Pennsylvania, for the purpose of reproducing in a still more superb manner the three days' awful struggle.

The "Gettysburg Exposition Co." employed the eminent American artist Frank I. Briscoe, and an able corps of assistants, and have succeeded, by the expenditure of thousands of dollars and much time and labor, in placing upon the stage the most superbly grand exhibition of the battle ever yet produced.

Storer Post, No. 1, G. A. R., have arranged with the managers of the company for the presentation at Music hall in this city on Friday and Saturday, May 11th and 12th, this wonderful exposition; and, on behalf of the Post, we earnestly ask you to be present on the occasion and witness this the most magnificant reproduction of "The Battle of Gettysburg" ever yet produced.

A matinee will be given on Saturday afternoon, especially for ladies and children. Very respectfully,

M. H. BELL,
M. M. COLLIS,
JOSEPH R. CURTIS,
GEO. E. HODGDON,
DAVID URCH,
Committee of Storer Post 1.

POLICE COURT---BATCHELDER J.

WEDNESDAY, May 9th.

Daniel Stevens of Newcastle, formerly known as Matt Murphy, was before the court on a complaint of aggravated assault on Christopher B. Johnson of this city. The evidence showed that Johnson was standing on Water street, near Court street, on the evening of the 8th, when Stevens came out of Ryan's saloon, and walking up to the party struck Johnson in the right breast with a knife, there being no provocation whatever for the assault. Stevens then ran away, but was shortly afterward arrested at the south end, near the old Maxcy shipyard, by Officer Wendell, who with Asst. Marshal Hurley's aid took him to the police station. Johnson was taken into O'Donnell's saloon, and medical aid sent for. Dr. Jones and Dr. Whitier arriving very shortly. In the court Dr. Jones said the wound was about half an inch wide and perhaps a little deeper than that; he thought the knife did not reach the lungs, and that Johnson would be able to be out in four or five days. Stevens pleaded not guilty, waived examination, and was held in $500 for the grand jury. City Solicitor Emery appeared for the state, and Calvin Page, Esq., for Stevens.

Stevens has served in the navy, and is said to have been a good man; he was at one time master-at-arms of the U. S. S. Lancaster, which responsible position he filled well, and to the satisfaction of officers and seamen alike. His name we understand was some time ago legally changed from that Murphy to the one he now bears, he having enlisted in the navy under the latter. It was he who as skipper of the Newcastle drag-boat Lafayette, some ten or twelve years ago, picked up off this harbor the wreck of the fishing schooner Mary S. Hontvet, which was wrecked on Goat island ledge when leaving this port for a trip to the banks, and after being hauled off the ledge and sinking to the bottom, floated and drifted to sea. He is said to be a good tempered man when not in liquor, and we never heard any injurious report about him. His commission as assistant keeper of Whale's-back light arrived on the evening of the 8th.

KITTERY & ELIOT INS. CO.

At the annual meeting of the Kittery & Eliot Mutual Fire Ins. Co., held in Eliot on Monday, May 7th, the following-named gentlemen were elected directors:

Warrington Paul, John Wentworth, Paschal M. Langton, Kittery; Timothy Dame, John D. Frost, Eliot; Joseph H. Moody, J. D. Bragdon, York.

The board of directors organized by the choice of Warrington Paul as president, James W. Brooks as treasurer, and Moses E. Goodwin as secretary.

ATTENTION, G. A. R.

Members of Storer Post, No. 1, are requested to meet in G. A. R. Hall at 1:30 P. M. sharp, Thursday, May 10th, to attend the funeral of our late Comrade Edward Jervis. ABEL JACKSON, Comdr.

IN DEATH NOT DIVIDED.

Mrs. Mary G. Otis, wife of Harrison G. Otis, died at her home, No. 5 Jackson street, Christian Shore, on Monday afternoon, May 7th, at ten minutes past five o'clock; and on Tuesday afternoon, May 8th, her husband passed away at the same hour. They were each about seventy-three years old.

Circuit Court of the United States: May Term, Colt J.

WEDNESDAY, May 9th.

The grand jury reported shortly after five o'clock, returning two indictments, and were dismissed.

John M. Fitts of Dorchester, charged with making a false return of the amount of postage on mail matter at his post-office, was arraigned, pleaded nolo contendere, and was fined $500 and costs. Sanborn and Hardy for respondent.

The case of Patrick Gorman of Dover, charged with selling liquor without payment of the special tax, was held open pending the decision of the internal revenue department on his offer to pay the tax, penalty and costs.

William S. Pulsifer of Great Falls and Henry D. Yeaton of Dover were admitted to practice in this court.

Albert King and Charles Rademacker were admitted to citizenship.

Case Mitchelt, adm. of Henry F. Noyes, vs. Grand Trunk railroad, suit for damages, was commenced before a jury.

Entertainment --- To-night.

The first game on the new grounds in this city will be played on Saturday, between the home club and the Melrose club. Admission has been fixed at twenty-five cents, boys fifteen cents; seats in grand stand extra.

Sherman T. Newton is to be given a trial in the Portsmouth club as catcher.

The Interstate League games will open on Saturday, when the Dover and Nashua clubs will meet on the grounds of the latter.

Personal.

Miss Lizzie J. Graham of Nashua is visiting Mrs. Fred R. Randall of this city.

It was reported on Wednesday evening, the 9th inst., that Gunner Wilson, while that day engaged in superintending the moving of some guns at the navy yard, was in some way jammed and so badly injured as to necessitate his removal to the yard hospital in a carriage.

The Portsmouth Chronicle comes to our table very much enlarged and improved, showing prosperity in a marked degree. Glad to see it. The Chronicle is one of the fixed and everlasting institutions of Portsmouth, and we are glad of that also.—Dover Democrat.

Five shares of Portsmouth Gas Light Co.'s stock for sale. For terms apply to Tisley & Moore, No. 3 Pleasant street.

Parents should not forget the matinee in Music hall next Saturday afternoon, of "The Battle of Gettysburg." It is instructive and is given for a good cause—the fund of Storer Post, G. A. R. Children fifteen cents, adults twenty-five cents.

Have you seen that lot of Challi Dress Goods at 10 cts. per yard? If not, go to Lewis E. Staples' dry goods store, No. 7 Market street.

Edward Jervis, who died at his home on Jefferson street on Tuesday, May 8th, at the age of seventy-two years, was well known as a skillful painter of signs, and a really artistic decorator and letterer of curtains for the windows of business places. He was a member of Storer Post, G. A. R., under whose direction his funeral takes place this afternoon.

The Boston & Maine railroad has given the Portland Locomotive Co. an order for four new freight engines and six passenger engines.

Four young gentlemen who were returning home after a night passed out of the city, when coming down High street at early hour on Wednesday morning, the 9th, were capsized, but no harm was received by any of them beyond a few scratches.

The schooner Emma S. Briggs, from the Kennebec with 350 tons of ice for the Isles of Shoals hotels, arrived at Star island on Monday afternoon, May 7th.

The new steam laundry on State street is now in active operation.

The warm rain on the morning of the 9th inst., followed by the warm sunshine during the day, gave vegetation a noticeable start.

A warrant was sworn out on the afternoon of the 8th inst. by Rev. Mr. Chase of Dover, to search the premises in the Sawyer basement on Portland street in that city, occupied by Patrick Rossiter as agent of the Portsmouth Brewing Co. The warrant was served by Marshal Fogerty and Officer Caverly, but nothing contraband found.

W. Coryden Smith, who died in Kittery on the night of the 3d inst., was a son of William M. Smith, who formerly lived in Biddeford. His age was twenty-one years and three months. He was a member of the Foss street Methodist church of Biddeford, and the remains were taken to that city on the 7th, and the funeral service was held at the residence of John B. Murphy, Alfred street, on the afternoon of the 8th, Rev. C. A. Southard, pastor of the Foss street Methodist church, and Rev. Mr. Grovenor of Kennebunk, officiating. Many beautiful floral designs lay upon the casket, among them a pillow from his shipmates in the iron-plate shop at the navy yard, a basket of flowers from the members of his Sunday school class, a bouquet from the crew of the steamer Emerald, and several bouquets and designs from relatives and friends.

Mr. Moses E. Goodwin of Eliot has cut on the Junkins farm in that town the past winter four hundred cords of firewood, and sawed half a million feet of lumber. He has kept from fifteen to twenty men employed constantly during the winter, and expects to get the lot cleared up by June 1st.

Mr. Joseph Bragdon of York received on the 8th inst. from the cot town in Maine ten dogs to be added to his livery stable in York Harbor. Mr. Bragdon says he has no doubt much better for his use than any other breed, he and proposes, as they can be put to work at once, not having to be acclimated.

Forrest Waterhouse of Kennebunk has been held for the grand jury of York county on a quite strange charge. Elsa Waterhouse, a pretty school teacher of Kennebunk, and a sister to Forrest, had at one time a suitor named Stillman G. Thompson, whom she asked a time of acquaintance. Immediately upon this request Elsa commenced receiving obscene letters, and obscene and slanderous statements concerning her would be found on the blackboards in her school room and other places. Thompson was convicted of being their author, solely on the ground of the handwriting being considered his; and he is now out under bonds, pending the decision of the law court on his exceptions. Since his conviction Thompson has been receiving the abusive and obscene letters, and now it is charged that Forrest Waterhouse, mainly on whose evidence it was that Thompson was convicted, was himself the author of the whole lot of letters.

Forrest Johnson, the young man who died in East Boston from blood poisoning in consequence of being stabbed in the thumb with a hat pin by a drunken virago to whom he refused to sell liquor, belonged in Biddeford, and his remains were taken there for burial. The woman who caused his death is held in $5000 for examination.

"Nate" Haines, a young fellow of Biddeford, about nineteen years of age, left the place on Friday, the 4th inst., in consequence of the serious condition of a little boy named Plummer, who was slapped several times on the side of the head by Haines with such violence as to knock him down, and while on the ground was brutally kicked about the body and legs. The boy was taken with risings in the head, fever, etc., and the side and leg upon which the kicks were received became paralyzed.

The work of constructing the Saco and Biddeford horse railroad has commenced. The line is expected to be in operation to Old Orchard by July 1st.

The Dover Democrat of the 7th inst. says: "Saturday afternoon two boys who were digging near the dump came across a large piece of round iron looking something like a cannon ball. They proposed to get a few cents from its sale as old iron, and carried it to a junk shop where they rolled it across the floor to the scales to be weighed. The dealer was surprised when he picked up a loaded shell of some twenty-five pounds, with cap and already to be fired. It was after that handled very carefully, and is now on exhibition. How it came where it was found is a mystery."

For an appetizer, nothing is better than cabbage or the tops of turnips; but for a stubborn cough or cold, don't forget the best thing is a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

Autrim had a serious fire May 8th, the village of North-Bridge being almost destroyed. Nine buildings were burned, including a store and a saw mill; loss $20,000.

The body is more susceptible to benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla now than at any other season. Therefore take it now.

Destruction of property and loss of life was caused by a cloudburst near Maize, Kansas.

The Biddeford Journal comes to us greatly enlarged, and with a new and neat head. The Journal is an excellent and "live" paper, and it is pleasant to see evidence that it is appreciated in its community.

The Amesbury Daily is the title of the new paper issued in Amesbury, Mass., under the management of Hubert O. Moore. It is an evening paper, six columns, is well printed, and is sold for one cent a copy. It is well edited, pays good attention to local affairs, and if the people of Amesbury do not give it proper support they will deserve to go without a local daily paper.

A petition bearing the signatures of over 500 of the citizens of Exeter having been handed to the selectmen, requesting that all the liquor shops in town be closed permanently, the board have ordered that each liquor seller suspend selling and close his shop May 15th, and given notice that after that date the law will be rigidly enforced.

REMARKABLE

It may seem but the sale of Preston's Sarsaparilla is greater than ever before, and yet, not so remarkable either. The preparation is always the same, and has been prepared from the same formula for more than fifty years.

CITIES

All over the Union have sprung up during the time, but in spite of the most careful research

THROUGHOUT

Our whole country no better preparation than Preston's Sarsaparilla for cases of Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Pimples on the Face, Old Ulcers of the Leg, Boils, Ringworms, Scald Head and Rheumatism, has been found. You can buy it for $1.00 per bottle from all dealers. By the way, Preston's Tooth Powder has a deservedly large sale in

THE WEST.

The real cost of soap is not to be estimated by the price paid, but by the results. Soap made of inferior stock, or of good materials not properly combined, will injure whatever it is used upon, so it is not cheap at any price. The IVORY SOAP, which Prof. Cornwall, of Princeton College, says "Is very well made, and cannot injure anything," is certainly very cheap at the price at which any grocer will furnish it to you.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture $223 TO $900. in these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS.

Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all GRAND & UPRIGHT, others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

Inherited Diseases.

In the realm of disease the facts of inheritance are most numerous and are daily accumulating. Here, alas, they become terrible, fateful and overwhelming. No fact of nature is more pregnant with awful meaning than the fact of the inheritance of disease. It meets the physician on his daily rounds, paralyzing his art and filling him with dismay. The legend of the ancient Greeks pictures the Furies as pursuing families from generation to generation, rendering them desolate. The Furies still ply their work of terror and death, but they are not now clothed in the garb of superstition, but appear in the more intelligible but no less awful form of hereditary disease.

Modern science, which has illuminated so many dark corners of nature, has shed a new light on the ominous words of the Scriptures, "The sins of the fathers shall be visited on the children unto the third and fourth generation." Instances of hereditary disease abound. Fifty per cent. of cases of consumption, that fearful destroyer of families, of cancer and scrofula, run in families through inheritance. Insanity is hereditary in a marked degree, but, fortunately, like many other hereditary diseases, tends to wear itself out, the stock becoming extinct. A distinguished scientist truly says: "No organ or texture of the body is exempt from the chance of being the subject of hereditary disease." Probably more chronic diseases, which permanently modify the structure and functions of the body, are more or less liable to be inherited. The important and far-reaching practical deductions from such facts—affecting so powerfully the happiness of individuals and families and the collective welfare of the nation—are obvious to reflecting minds, and the best means for preventing or curing these diseases is a subject of intense interest to all. Fortunately nature has provided a remedy, which experience has attested as infallible, and the remedy is the world-famous Swift's Specific, a pure vegetable compound—nature's antidote for all blood poisons. To the afflicted it is a blessing of inestimable value. An interesting treatise on "Blood and Skin Diseases" will be mailed free by addressing

ADAMSON'S BOTANIC COUGH BALSAM

More than twenty years ago Adamson's Botanic Balsam was introduced generally throughout New England as a remedy for Coughs, Colds and Pulmonary complaints. Since its introduction it has constantly won its way into public favor until now it is the universal decision that ADAMSON'S BOTANIC BALSAM is the best remedy for curing Coughs, Colds and Asthma.

Made only by F. W. KINSMAN & CO., (Established 1850). Druggists and Dispensing Chemists, 343 4th ave., corner 25th st., N.Y. FOR SALE AT ALL DRUG STORES.

BILIOUSNESS.

This very common complaint, which is caused by a dormant or inactive liver, can be cured in a short time by using Ingalls' Mandrake Compound, as can also the various diseases arising from inactive liver or kidneys. These organs, if inactive, will allow impure blood to enter the heart, causing tightness about that organ and palpitation.

She suffered thirty years.

MRS. DUDLEY CHANDLER, of Melrose, Mass., says: "I had suffered with Palpitation of the Heart more than thirty years before I found anything to give me essential relief. Last fall I tried Ingalls' Mandrake Compound, and, remarkable as it was, this Compound relieved me in two days, so that for several months afterwards I felt not the slightest touch of it, and am perfectly free from it now. Sometimes, before I took this Compound, the pulsations of my heart were so violent as to shake my whole body with rapid agitations, and at times I fainted and became entirely insensible. Now I am perfectly free from all this suffering. Consequently I can most sincerely and earnestly recommend this Compound to all like sufferers, as pre-eminently the best medicine I ever knew for Palpitation of the Heart."

This Compound is purely Vegetable, and strengthens and builds up the system while it eradicates disease.

Ingalls' Mandrake Compound is sold by all Druggists. Price $1; six bottles for $5. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

Invented by a Woman.

There are many instances where women have "invented" articles for convenience and of practical usefulness, for which a patent has never been applied, though not the less patentable or appreciated, as the following instance, which shows not only the ability but the genius with which she is by nature endowed. The article was devised (!) by a woman in Connecticut, the fatherland of inventive genius and Yankee ingenuity, the land of steady habits, wooden clocks, wooden nutmegs and red oak hams. The lady was one day using the carving knife, which probably, from too frequent contact with bones and the stovepipe, which a woman generally uses for a steel, with uncertain results, had become rather dull, and the handle of which, in her frantic efforts to "carve dat possum," twisted about and hurt her delicate digits.

At last, after several desperate and hazardous attempts, she turned sharply to her better half, who sat by calmly viewing the situation, and probably reflecting on the chances of life and death and the prospect of a square meal, and asked: "Can't you invent a handle that won't twist about and hurt so?" With fear and trembling lest his answer should cause his irate spouse to scalp him on the spot, the good man answered that he could not. "Well I can," was the reply, and with the impetuosity proverbial of her sex she left the room and soon returned with a triumphant air and a piece of putty, which she soon had shaped to fit her hand, and, holding it up to the admiring, though crestfallen, lord, said: "There, that's what I call a handle." Although no patent has ever been applied for, these handles, invented by a woman, are in great demand, and thousands are annually made.—Boston Budget.

The Banshee's Warning.

Michael Phelan, the vigilant night watchman at the Planters' house, tells some queer stories of his experiences in Ireland before he decided to emigrate:

"Once I saw a banshee. It was many years ago, in King's county, Ireland, about forty miles from Dublin. During the summer months there the twilight is very long, and late one afternoon, when the sun had gone down, I happened to walk over to the farm of a man named Michael Burns. Well, as we stood and talked, my friend suddenly said: 'Mike, do you want to see a banshee?' Of course I did, and when I looked where he pointed, sure enough, there in the lane, creeping along near the hedge, was a wee bit of a thing not more than three feet high. It looked like a little girl, only its hair, which was long and yellow, fell down its back clear to the ground, and as it crept along it whimpered and moaned just like a child in pain. My friend looked very grave, saying: 'That's a family banshee, and I'm afraid some of my relations are going to be sick.'

"Pretty soon I left, but not before a neighbor had come riding up and told my friend to make haste, as his mother had been taken very ill. The next day I learned that the poor woman had died before her son reached her. Oh, the banshees are queer things, and they never let any one come near them. Another man I knew came across one sitting in a corn field, near the fence. When he suddenly appeared it ran out of sight among the corn, but it dropped its comb from its yellow hair, and the man picked it up and put it in his pocket. That night the banshee came near the house and whined so piteously that the man dropped the comb out of the window. The banshee then left, and when a search was made next morning it was found that the comb had disappeared, too."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Russia's Convict "Artels."

Convicts travel to Siberia in "artels." Such artels are provisional associations, formed for the sake of convenience. The members of an artel have everything in common, and their affairs are controlled by an elected chief and his assistants. The chief is called "starosta." Through his hands goes the food of the convicts, he is the keeper of their effects and money, he acts as their spokesman before the authorities, and the latter hold him and his assistants responsible for whatever may be unlawful in the conduct of the members of the artel during the journey.

Every artel of convicts has its strict rules and regulations. It judges and punishes culprits who now and then turn up among them in the shape of informers, spies, etc., and on board convict ships and barges, as well as in the Siberian transportation prisons, the finding of dead bodies "under covers" is a frequent occurrence. To make a "cover" means in the convict dialect to choke a man to death inside the prison walls. The long loose coat worn by the convicts is generally thrown over the head of the victim to deaden his cries and groans while he is being executed. Spies and informers, that is to say convicts who, to gain special privileges, furnish the authorities information about the secret doings and plans of the artel, are especially hated by the convicts. Later on it will be seen that they have a good deal to conceal from the authorities. The artel exerts such a powerful influence on its members that traitors are a rarity in convict trains.—Michael Malkoff in Chicago News.

The "Blessing" Dying Out.

The custom of blessing food, or asking a blessing upon meals when eaten, is dying out. Probably the cause of this decadence of a very charming domestic custom is due to a clearer conception of relative values in these days. The question is forced upon people of religious sentiment why food is more to be considered blessed than clothes, or books, or a dozen other good things. The result is that such religious customs fall away altogether. Home life is certainly none the sweeter, unless some substitute can be offered. American home life is too hard and business like. Perhaps the custom of the Norwegians to dance on the green sward after meals would be more to our taste and improvement. Better still probably is the custom before meals of reading from some interesting volume what may be discussed during meal time and after.—Globe-Democrat.

Burmese Workingwomen.

Poor women work hard in Burmah and perform their allotted tasks by the side of the men, and rival them in the quantity of work they do. In building a pagoda, for instance, I have seen them carry shallow, wide mouthed earthen jars, filled with bricks or mortar, poised on top of their heads, and ascending the frail looking bamboo ladders with them, for the use of the men bricklayers who were building the monument. This habit, universal in Burmah, of the women carrying loads upon their heads, no doubt tends to make their movements more graceful than they otherwise would be. They carry everything in this fashion, their tall jars containing drinking water from the spring or river; the lacquered trays upon which are carried heaped up piles of fruits, vegetables, fish, etc.—Cor. San Francisco Chronicle.

Dr. Gage and Associate Physicians, and Their Great Work.

Probably no physician in New England is better and more favorably known, says a New Hampshire exchange, than is Dr. Gage, the gifted specialist, who has treated more than fifteen thousand patients in this state, the announcement of his visits each month being the signal for a grand rally of a multitude of invalids. His success is indeed phenomenal and the reports of marvellous cures would fill this entire paper, the like of which was never known in the history of medical practice. The following is a fair sample:

Mr. Editor; A few months ago my daughter was laying at the point of death. She had a complication of troubles, a terrible cough, raising an immense quantity, a discharging sore upon her hip which rendered her perfectly helpless. Our family physician gave us no hope, but with a mother's will and determination to save her perishing child if possible, I hastened to consult Dr. Gage. Although he did not see her he nevertheless understood the case and his remedies have wrought a miracle—almost—by restoring my child to perfect health. I thank God that I consulted Dr. Gage.

The Earth Exhales Poison

To the air in localities where vegetation, rotted by freshets, is laid bare to the sun's rays by the retiring flood. Millions of square acres, in the vicinity of the great tributaries of the Mississippi and the Missouri in the South and Southwest, give forth this fever-laden miasmatic vapor, disseminating malarial pestilence broadcast. Not only throughout the great West, but wherever on this continent fever and ague makes its periodic appearance—and what locality is wholly exempt from it?—Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the recognized defense, the most highly accredited and popular means of cure. Fever and ague, billious remittent, dumb ague and ague cake are eradicated by it. Nor is it less potent when used to remove constipation, liver complaint and dyspepsia, kidney troubles, nervousness and rheumatic ailments. Use it upon the first appearance of these troubles, and with persistence.

Patrick Ford says the Irish are for Blaine.

We think we can cure a bad case of backache quicker with one of Carter's Smart Weed and Belladonna Backache Plasters, than by any other application, and after the backache is cured, you can still wear the plaster without discomfort for two or three weeks, or longer. This combination of Smart Weed and Belladonna is a great hit, and it is hard to find any pain or ache that will not yield to it. Price 25 cents. Sold by druggists everywhere.

The German inundation relief fund has reached $1,000,000.

Ayer's Pills are the best cathartic for correcting irregularities of the stomach and bowels. Gentle, yet thorough in their action, they cure constipation, stimulate the appetite and digestive organs, and strengthen the system.

Anti-Chinese demonstrations occurred in Brisbane, Australia.

Not one in twenty are free from some little ailments caused by inaction of the liver. Use Carter's Little Liver Pills. The result will be a pleasant surprise. They give positive relief.

A dispatch says that Michigan is solid for Alger and protection.

That feeling of weariness, so often experienced in the spring, results from a sluggish condition of the blood which, being impure, does not quicken with the changing season. Ayer's Sarsaparilla, by vitalizing and cleansing the blood, strengthens and invigorates the system.

AMONG THE FLOWERS.

Directions on the Cultivation of Annual, Biennial and Perennial Flowers.

The cultivation of popular flowers, that is the annuals, biennials and perennials, hardy in many sections and half hardy in others, has of late years fallen off somewhat in many localities. This is to be regretted, for these flowers are exceedingly attractive and easy of culture. They are propagated from seed, and with even careless culture afford profusion of blooms and a great variety of colors.

The soil best adapted to flowering plants, generally, is a light, friable loam, containing a moderate amount of vegetable matter, and sufficient sand to make it porous; but, as it rarely happens that the amateur has much choice of soil, it is fortunate that most of them will succeed in any soil of average character. In ordinary good soil an annual dressing of leaf mold, decayed turf, or thoroughly rotted manure, in quantities proportioned to the requirements of the soil, dug to the depth of a few inches, will be all that is requisite. These should be applied in spring, only just previous to sowing seeds, though a single digging may be advantageously given in autumn. In preparing the beds, care must be taken that they are so arranged that the ground may be a little elevated in the middle, that the water may run off, and the plants show to better advantage.

The time of sowing flower seeds is regulated by the locality and season. Nothing is gained by dropping seed in cold soil; wait until the earth is warm and friable. It is advised to sow but a part of each package of seed in the first instance, the remaining seed being reserved for subsequent sowing in case of failure. As a rule the surface soil should be dry, rather than wet at the time of sowing; avoid always undertaking the operation when the ground is very wet, especially if the weather is cold. It is particularly cautioned that flower beds are not covered deep.

For a majority of the seeds a very thin covering suffices; if sown too deep they are longer in germinating, and the small ones are liable to decay. It sometimes insures a more even distribution of very small seeds, such as those of campanula, digitalis, etc., if they are mixed before sowing with a little fine, dry soil, the mixture being sown in the same way as the seeds. Woolly seeds which adhere to each other, like the globe amaranthus, etc., should be rubbed with a little fine sand, which will generally separate them. In all cases the more thinly the seeds are strewn, the better; when too thickly sown, the seedlings become elongated and sickly—an evil which no subsequent thinning out will entirely remedy.

Early in the season the watering pot, with a fine nose, must be used should the soil be very dry and the weather sunny. Avoid, however, watering just at night when the weather is inclined to be cold.

It pays to give the same liberal treatment to annuals, etc., that is usually bestowed to geraniums, verbenas and other plants used for bedding purposes.

Many seedlings thrive better for being transplanted; there are, however, many exceptions to this rule. Tap rooted annuals, such as the larkspur and some of the poppy tribe, do not take kindly to transplanting.

Biennial plants do not usually flower the first season, and the seeds are often sowed as late as August and September. Then if the plants get strong before cold weather they will blossom the following summer. Perennials continue to flower two or more years in succession. Where one has but little time to devote to the flower garden the hardy sorts are advised, for these, with little care, will give, as has been already told, very good returns even under adverse circumstances. Indeed there appears no good reason why every home should not be brightened by the presence of flowers.

When one has not saved seed from previous seasons these may be purchased at a small cost of the nearest seedsman. The seeds are, nowadays, put up in packages, on the outside of which appear printed instructions for their sowing and after cultivation. The catalogues of leading seedsmen are, as a rule, sent to any address, on written application, free of cost. These catalogues are, many of them, veritable guides to both farm and garden, and every household ought to be in possession of the ones issued by trustworthy houses.

Cross Fertilization.

Are the "navel" marks often found on the other varieties of the orange the effect of impregnation of navel pollen? Do such crossings and hybridizations ever effect the fruit of the flowers in which they occur? Does fertilization in any form of life effect the parent to the extent of inducing structural changes? These are the questions raised by Professor Meehan in Florida Dispatch, and all of which he seems to think scientific investigation answers in the negative. If this be the true solution it overthrows many of the accepted beliefs of practical horticulturists; we can plant squashes among the melons with impunity in defiance to the time honored axiom of the gardeners that "squashes spoil the melons."

A Beautiful New Violet.

A new violet named Mme. Millot, and vouched for by Peter Henderson as a distinct and beautiful variety, which contains the first real shade of red to be found in the violet, is attracting attention from lovers of flowers. The color is described as being a violet purple, shaded with carmine. The flowers are double and are similar in form to the well known blue variety, "Marie Louise," and are produced in profusion. This variety, it is also claimed, possesses the violet perfume to a marked degree.

Pole and Bush Beans.

Pole or running beans, as a class, are not very hardy, and cannot be planted until settled mild weather. Four plants in a hill, with hills four feet apart each way, is as close as they should be grown, as they require plenty of air and light. Limas, being very tender, should not be planted before the ground is very warm and mellow. Bush or running beans, though somewhat hardier than pole beans, must not be planted until settled weather. All beans thrive best in warm, light soil.

$1,200 FOR AN EGG.

It Was an Egg of the Great Auk, a Very Rare Bird.

The highest price ever paid for an egg, so far as known, since the world began, was that received at an auction sale of the effects of a Mrs. Wise, held in London the other day. A single egg was there offered, and, after an exciting struggle between a number of ornithologists, it was struck off at $1,200. It was an egg of the great auk, a bird now supposed to be extinct, but quite plentiful within the memory of some of the older whalers who frequented the north Atlantic in their boyhood days. It is five years since an egg of this bird changed hands, and then it was sold by the British College of Surgeons for $700, while in 1869 Lord Garvagh at an auction sale in London paid $300 for a single egg. Previous to that the prices obtained for this sort of eggs dwindled down by easy gradations to 4s. 6d., at which price one was sold in 1830 in Paris, although the bird itself was then to be found about the islands of the north Atlantic.

There is a mounted skin of the auk in the American Museum of Natural History in this city that was purchased in London in 1869 for $625. It is one of eighty skins known to be in existence in the world. There are also ten complete skeletons, besides numerous parts of skeletons and several mummies.

The form of the auk is familiar to all who have read illustrated accounts of early voyages to Greenland. It was the penguin of the north Atlantic. It had a squatty, goose shaped body, and was from twenty-eight to thirty inches long on the average. It had wings, however, that were only between five and six inches long, and it was therefore incapable of flight. It is pictured in the old sea stories as sitting up solemn and dignified in ranks along the sand and on the bleakest and most barren coasts as the sailors approached the land in boats. It was not easily frightened by the approach of man, who was apparently its sole enemy. When disturbed it waddled away about as fast as a man could walk, taking very short steps, but taking them rapidly. On account of its gait it was called the wobble in some of the early books, such as the work of John Josselyn, gent., on "New England Rarities," printed in 1672. Not that the bird was a rarity then; on the contrary, it was seen in great numbers as far south on the New England coast as the yachting center of the United States—Boston.

At that time and for 100 years later it was the custom of many of the fishermen frequenting the banks of Newfoundland, particularly the French, to victual their vessels with the flesh of the auk, killing and salting down as many as would last for the entire cruise. Their method of taking the birds was the simplest possible. The ship's boats were rowed into some quiet cove frequented by the auks, and moored a few feet from the land. Then planks were laid from the beach or the rocks to the gunwales of the boats, and the auks were driven on board in single file until their boats were loaded. A man with a club knocked them on the head as they reached the boat, and dumped them under the thwarts.

When driving the birds on the boats it was necessary to station a man with a club on each side of the gang plank to keep them from dropping off into the water. Once afloat the awkward waddle became the swiftest and most graceful of motions. No other water fowl could approach the wonderful speed of the auk on the water; indeed, it could swim as rapidly as some of the more lumbering birds can fly.

Although on account of its fishy food it was somewhat oily when in good condition, it was nevertheless so much esteemed by the sailors that its numbers diminished continuously from the time the banks of Newfoundland began to be much frequented, so that by the beginning of the Nineteenth century it was no longer hunted for food. So few were to be had that they were not worth the time required to take them. However, in the year 1807 a British privateer varied its occupations of pursuing French merchant vessels and impressing Yankee sailors by going to the islands off Iceland for a supply of fresh auk meat. Great numbers of the birds were killed, many being left dead that could not be removed because the ship had all she could use. Three years later the people of the Faroe Islands, being threatened by starvation on account of a failure in the fisheries, visited Iceland, and about completed the destruction begun by the privateer.

That the auk never recovered from these blows even on the coasts best fitted for its maintenance was due to the fact that the auk laid but one egg a year. It made no nest, but deposited the egg on the bare rock. It was an astonishingly large egg, averaging nearly five by three inches in length and diameter. It was shaped much like a big California pear, being very small at one end, a peculiarity of all birds' eggs that are laid in exposed places as this was. Being small at one end, it would, when the bird moved it, simply roll around in the arc of a very small circle. It was of a creamy white color, irregularly marked with brown and black patches.

Although the auk is supposed to be extinct, there is a possibility that another, perhaps several, may yet be discovered. When the fishermen ceased to persecute the auk—that is, when it became rare—the naturalists stepped in to completely exterminate it. The last auks seen about which there is no dispute were two killed on the coast of Iceland in 1844, but a young one is reported to have been picked up dead on the coast of Labrador in 1870. The body of an auk in good condition would make a very handsome addition to the fare of any fisherman, particularly if accompanied by an egg.—New York Sun.

Pure Water as a Medicine.

Dr. Brunton says that water is, perhaps, the most powerful diuretic we possess. It has the power of creating tissue change, and thus multiplying the products of tissue waste which result from it, but it removes these waste products as fast they are formed, and thus, by giving rise to increased appetite, provides fresh nutriment for the tissues and acts as a true tonic. In persons who are accustomed to take too little water the products of tissue waste may be formed faster than they are removed, and thus accumulating, may give rise to disease.—The Practitioner.

Wedding in a Greek Church.

The prettiest wedding procession I have seen was in Constantinople—a stately and rejoicing march, though without music. Fancy a narrow street of high stone houses with projecting balconies, latticed with slats so close together that persons within can see without being seen. A long line of sedan chairs, cushioned and curtained with satin, each borne by two men holding poles, and keeping step together like trained horses; their uniform braided jackets, baggy trousers and scarlet fez made festal by a bunch of lilacs on the bosom—for it was rejoicing spring, and the gardens of the Bosphorus were radiant with color and bloom.

At the head of the column an armed attendant, in gorgeous costume, with whip in hand, cleared away dogs and gaping idlers. They were en route for the Greek church outside Pera, and the beauty of the beautiful race was on the bride. The shining face at the window was like some lovely human flower, too tender for exposure, blossoming under glass. On the classic head a wreath of orange flowers, to be laid away on the morrow and carefully kept for her burial.

As they near the church door a bridal chorus rules the slow steps of the carriers; and when the bride, lovely all in her white, steps from the silken seat bonbons are showered on her by waiting friends. The bridegroom, also crowned with a wreath, joins her, and they stand with clasped hands at the altar while the long ritual is read by the priest. Three times the wreaths are interchanged by the priest in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost. Three times the pair is led by him round the altar; a glass of consecrated wine is offered first to the bridegroom, then to the bride, afterward to the best man and first bridemaid, whose duty it is to be godfather and godmother to the children. The ceremony ends with kisses, congratulations and leave takings, much the same as in our own country.—Susan Wallace in Sunday School Times.

The Shah's Finest Charger.

The Persians of today, as those of old, are a "horsey" race, born riders, fond of their horses, looking never complete till seen in the saddle, with all the luxurious trappings and ornaments they love to bestow upon their persons and their quadrupeds. The beauty and superior breed of a horse, together with the costliness of his apparel, are an unfailing indication of the owner's wealth and station. And such harness, such saddles, girths and blankets! It is the Arabian Nights redivivus.

On race day last spring, after the contests were over, the shah caused his finest charger, a Turcoman of magnificent proportions, to be brought in front of the huge pavilion tent wherein the whole European and American diplomatic corps was assembled. What a fine fellow the animal was, and how he was admired and caressed by the ladies! But what was especially noticeable about him was the splendor of his accoutrements. A saddle blanket of the finest cashmere, every square inch of which was worth several gold pieces; his broad bridle thickly incrusted with diamonds and emeralds and rubies, each the size of a hazelnut; the bit of pure gold, and the saddle straps and other pieces made of velvet and embossed with artistic lumps of gold and precious stones. The whole outfit was worth a large fortune; and this was but one of many.—Wolf von Schierbrand in The Cosmopolitan.

Seen in the Czar's Palace.

On the way to the apartments of state my distinguished escort, Prince Bariatinsky, stopped, and, running his finger across a mahogany panel, said: "You see there is no dust here; it makes no difference whether the emperor is absent or at home, it is always the same." Every room, of which there are several hundred, is kept in rigorous cleanliness. In the art gallery the individuality of the Czar Nicholas was the most striking feature; a superb life size portrait here, a marble bust there, a bronze statue yonder, gave a good idea of the handsomest man of his day. A veritable Apollo of physical perfection, with a callous face, expressive of autocratic pride and affected humility, the face of a typical Romanoff, who could, if necessary, like Peter the Great, drink bumpers of wine with one hand and decapitate with the other. It was the likeness of a type I had never seen in life, and only from the hands of antique sculptors had I witnessed it in the form of chiseled marble. —Jesse Shepard in Chicago Journal.

Cuban Cart and Cartman.

There are several thousand mule and ox carts in and about Havana. You cannot find in Cuba a dray or four wheeled wagon. This Cuban cart is literally a great affair. The wheels are frequently ten feet in diameter, the felloes six inches broad and as thick, the spokes as big as your leg and the hub like a half bushel basket. Many are covered like the old "emigrant" wagons; great rush pouches dangle from beneath, and the shafts are together larger than the little mule's entire body. A tremendous load is piled upon this cart, and, benignly perched upon that, is your Cuban cartretonero or cartman, with shirt rolled to the shoulders, wide linen breeches, sprawling slippers, and, despite the sun, a jaunty cap of red or blue, no larger than and precisely the same shape of a full grown mushroom. The caps tell the nationality. Those wearing red ones are from Navarre, while the Biscayans are invariably told by the blue.—Edgar L. Wakeman's Letter.

Fruits as a Food.

Fruits in general contain but little nutriment, but are of value as a food from their appetizing and pleasant taste; from their supplying in an agreeable way water necessary to food, and from the general laxative effect of the acid present. In addition, both fruits and vegetables supply the body with potash. In this way they counteract the scurvy engendered by a diet of salted meats. The only methods of preserving foods known to ancients were drying and salting, both of which fail to preserve the flavor.—Chicago Times.

THE MOST WONDERFUL FAMILY REMEDY EVER KNOWN.

LINIMENT

March April May

Are the best months in which to purify your blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best blood purifier.

At no other season does the human system so much need the aid of a reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla, as now. The impoverished condition of the blood, the weakening effects of the long, cold winter, the lost appetite, and that tired feeling, all make a good spring medicine absolutely necessary. Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiarly adapted for this purpose, and increases in popularity every year. It is the ideal spring medicine.

"I must say Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine I ever used. Last spring I had no appetite, and the least work I did fatigued me ever so much. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and soon felt that I could do as much in a day as I had formerly done in a week. My appetite is voracious." MRS. M. V. BAYARD, Atlantic City, N. J.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to buy any other.

Were all wise enough to heed this advice in season, a world of suffering would be avoided. If you suffer from impure blood, scrofula, dyspepsia, biliousness, headache, take

BRUTAL MURDER IN MAINE.

William Kenniston, a farmer of North Boothbay, Me., aged eighty-four years, living alone with his wife, was murdered in the most brutal manner on the night of May 9th by Llewellyn M. Quimby, aged about twenty years, who gained access to the house by climbing to a porch window on a plank, and attacked the old man in bed with an iron bar. The old gentleman made a desperate fight for his life, but he was undressed and unarmed, while the young ruffian had the iron bar, a knife and a revolver, and the old man had no chance; and after battling his way from his bedroom to the kitchen he fell dead, with his skull crushed in and a knife wound through his body, besides minor injuries. The assassin then stole a horse from the stable, and fled, taking nothing from the house, though two watches were in the bedroom.

As soon as the murderer left the house, Mrs. Kenniston, who had also been knocked down by the young brute, and then hid beneath the bed, gave the alarm, and the neighbors turned out in hot pursuit. The assassin was overtaken at Nobleboro, four miles from Damariscotta, at seven o'clock in the morning on the 10th, by George H. Perkins and J. H. Kenniston, the latter a son of the murdered man, who fired three shots at Quimby before he yielded, the last one hitting him in the head.

The fellow was brought before a police justice in Boothbay on the 10th, pleaded guilty to the charge of murder, and was committed to the Wiscasset jail. The prisoner has served time in the Maine reform school for burglary.

For the Ladies of New England, Old and Young.

BOSTON, May 8.—Shirley Dare has written a series of articles for the Boston Sunday Globe which will be of great interest and benefit to every lady in New England. These articles will explain how to make yourself more beautiful, and how to preserve beauty, how to get and keep a clear complexion, how to avoid wrinkles, freckles, pimples, etc., how to preserve the hair in its natural color and gloss, and how to dress, to sleep, to eat and to exercise. Without fail you should read the article in the next Boston Sunday Globe.

Noble Deeds.

"Noble Deeds of our Fathers, as Told by Soldiers of the Revolution, Gathered Around the Old Bell of Independence," is the name of an interesting book, revised and adapted for supplementary reading in schools, and for school libraries everywhere, soon to be published by Lee & Shepard, Boston. The noble purpose of this book is to awaken in the minds of young people a deep veneration of the patriots and heroes of the American Revolution, who [illegible] the independence of our great republic, and to cultivate that spirit of patriotism so needful to ensure the permanence of the form of government under which we now live. In the pages of this book,—which are well illustrated,—will be found stories of the chief men of the revolution, so connected by the manner in which they are narrated, as to give a general interest to all. The young reader,—indeed, older readers will like the stories,—will be deeply interested in the story of Lafayette's return to this country, of reminiscences of Washington, of the night before the battle of Brandywine, of the first prayer in Congress, of the patriotic women of that day, stories of adventure regarding Gen. Wayne, the traitor Arnold, the massacre of Wyoming, the capture of Gen. Prescott, and in other narratives equally interesting and important.

The State Prison.

The annual report of the New Hampshire state prison, as prepared by Acting Warden Thomas A. Pillsbury, is now in the hands of the state printer. It will make the following showing for the year ending May 1, 1888: Whole number of prisoners May 1, 1887, 121; committed during the year, 38; whole number in prison during the year, 159; whole number discharged during the year, 44, viz., pardoned, 2; discharged 40; died, 1; transferred to asylum for insane, 1; number in prison April 30, 1888, 115. Earnings for the year, $15,190.98; expenses, $19,450.30; deficit, $4259.32.

Portsmouth claims to have the smartest set of coal heavers east of Boston, but the main-hatch gang of the P. & R. company in this city did a job on Monday and Tuesday which will make the Portsmouth men stop and think. This gang took from the schooner Grace K. Green and the steamer Hercules, in twenty-one hours, 1031 tons of pea and broken coal. The gang consists of six men, and in the long stretch of twenty-one hours averaged above eight tons per hour to each man. The coal heavers would be pleased to see a gang capable of doing a better piece of discharging.—Newburyport Herald.

Moral Teaching in Schools.

One very good plan is something like the following: From two to four pupils are selected, and it is made the duty of each to look up and copy a short moral sentiment or maxim to be read at the opening of the school in the morning. Another set is selected to present similar maxims the next day, and in this way all the pupils are selected in turn. When the pupil has read or repeated his sentiment to the school it is illustrated or commented upon by the teacher till the meaning is not only clear but well impressed. After the reading of the sentiments they are copied on the black board, where they remain all day, and each pupil in the room copies them into a blank book. After the first day the teacher calls upon volunteers to repeat the sentiments given on preceding days. Five or six sentiments may be called up in review each day.

Some pupils, not much accustomed to general reading, may find it difficult to look up new sentiments; but let it be understood that if a new one cannot be found an old one will be accepted. Under judicious management there will be no trouble here. Children do not like to be parrots, repeating the words of their mates; and when review sentiments are presented they will be quite sure to be such as deserve repetition.—Mary E. Beedy in The Century.

Why Time Passes So Swiftly.

John belongs to a race whose members for centuries have enjoyed the proud distinction of being permitted to speak twice, but that is a privilege which John has never yet attempted to avail himself of. The other day he worked so steadily that he too no note of the flight of time and the closing hour arrived before he was able to realize that the afternoon was half gone. "Well, well, well," said the old man, in a bewildered sort of fashion, "it must be true, as I've heard, that the days grow shorter as a man grows older. I can't understand how it is that hours slip by so fast." He stood for a moment in silent and almost mournful contemplation. Then the light of an idea slowly diffused itself over his broad, honest face. "That's it," he said, still in a reverie; "that's it. It must be them little round ninety cent clocks—they tick so fast."—"Rambler" in Brooklyn Eagle.

Hence, no family should be without a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has proved itself, in thousands of cases, the best Emergency Medicine ever discovered. It gives prompt relief and prepares the way for a thorough cure, which is certain to be effected by its continued use.

S. H. Latimer, M. D., Mt. Vernon, Ga., says: "I have found Ayer's Cherry Pectoral a perfect cure for Croup in all cases. I have known the worst cases relieved in a very short time by its use; and I advise all families to use it in sudden emergencies, for coughs, croup, &c."

A. J. Eidson, M. D., Middletown, Tenn., says: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral with the best effect in my practice. This wonderful preparation once saved my life. I had a constant cough, night sweats, was greatly reduced in flesh, and given up by my physician. One bottle and a half of the Pectoral cured me."

"I cannot say enough in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral," writes E. Bragdon, of Palestine, Texas, "believing as I do that, but for its use, I should long since have died."

THE LOSSES AT GETTYSBURG.

The losses in the battle were in proportion to the number engaged, enormous, amounting on our side to twenty-seven per cent, and on the side of the Confederates to thirty-five per cent. The number of dead on the official reports represents but about half only of those slain. On the Union side, for instance, there are but 2834 reported killed, whilst in the national cemetery alone there are 3575 bodies interred. The names on the official returns only include those that were shot dead in action, but takes no account of the vast number who died of wounds within ten days after the battle. If we want to get at the whole number of men who lost their lives in the Union army, we must add to the 3575 interred in the national cemetery at least four hundred buried on different parts of the field and who were never found or transfered to the cemetery. Four hundred more were taken home by their friends immediately after the fight; and several hundred died soon after of wounds in the hospitals at Carlisle, Harrisburg, and other adjacent points, making in all about five thousand Union men who lost their lives at Gettysburg or as the result of the battle.—From "Sketches of Gettysburg," by General St. Clair A. Mulholland.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Combines, in a proportion peculiar to itself, the active medicinal properties of the best blood-purifying and strengthening remedies of the vegetable kingdom. It will positively cure—when in the power of medicine—Spring Debility, Headache, Dyspepsia, Catarrh, Salt Rheum, Scrofula, and all Diseases caused by a low state of the blood.

"I suffered three years with blood poison. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and think I am cured." MRS. M. J. DAVIS, Brockport, N. Y.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla beats all others, and is worth its weight in gold." I. BARRINGTON, 130 Bank Street, New York City.

is so vastly superior to any other sarsaparilla or blood purifier, that one has well said: "Its health-giving effects upon the blood and entire human organism, are as much more positive than the remedies of a quarter of a century ago, as the steam-power of to-day is in advance of the slow and laborious drudgery of years ago."

"While suffering from a severe bilious attack in March, 1883, a friend in Peoria, Ill., recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla. I tried the remedy, and was permanently cured." J. A. SHEPARD, travelling agent for Devoe & Co., Fulton Street, N. Y.

Purifies the Blood

"I tried a dozen articles to cleanse my blood, but never found anything that did me any good till I began using Hood's Sarsaparilla." W. H. PEER, Rochester, N. Y.

"My wife was troubled with dizziness and constipation, and her blood has been in a bad order—in fact she has been all run down. Hood's Sarsaparilla is doing her a wonderful amount of good." F. M. BALDWIN, druggist, Blanchester, Ohio.

"I was for five years a sufferer with boils, all run down, and was at one time obliged to give up work. Before taking all of two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, was entirely cured." R. M. LANE, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. Took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

OFFICIAL NOTICE!

— OF —

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co.

— FROM THE —

HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND, MAINE,

To those who are contemplating the purchase of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

GREETING:

On and after June 1st we shall STOP PREPAYING the FREIGHT on GOODS SOLD by us, and we respectfully request that those who have dealt with us, and who have been BENEFITED by the PAYMENT OF THIS FREIGHT which in itself in the past three years has amounted to some

30,000 DOLLARS,

Will order what GOODS they require for this SPRING, from us this month, and please order as early as possible. And to those who intend buying

Chamber Sets, Parlor Suits, Carpets, Lounges, Easy Chairs, Mattresses, Springs, Silver-ware, Window Shades, Drapery, Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Stoves and Ranges, Feathers, Feather Pillows, Spreads, Blankers,

And anything else in HOUSE FURNISHING, can be BENEFITED to the extent of the freight to their depot, by buying from us this month. We have always PREPAID THIS FREIGHT FROM OUR OWN PROFITS, as we have invariably made the price on the

Furniture, Carpets,

Etc., lower than could be bought for elsewhere. There has always been a great advantage derived by our prepayment of the freight because we in every instance GUARANTEE the SAFE DELIVERY of the goods, and if there has ever been a fight to make with the railroad, we have done it, or in other words if you have received a

CHAMBER SET, PARLOR SUIT, Chair, or Range,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

That was damaged by the railroad, we have replaced it with another piece, and taken our chances to get the breakage from the road. There are items worthy of our close consideration, and especially at this time of year, be wise and order during this month,

And Save Yourself the Freight from Portland to your Depot, no matter where it is located in the State of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

We believe we are the only HOUSE FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT IN NEW ENGLAND WHO HAVE ADHERED STRICTLY TO THIS PLAN OF PREPAYING THE FREIGHT ON EVERYTHING SHIPPED BY US. We mean by this that while some other houses have shipped the goods, and allowed you to pay freight and afterwards send them a bill and then dicker on it for some time, We have invariably paid out the cash before the article left our freight sheds at Portland. And now notwithstanding the fact that we expect to lose a great deal of business by this this year there seems to be no other way to convince some people of the difference between OUR PAYING THE FREIGHT before the articles leave here, AND OUR CUSTOMERS PAYING THE FREIGHT after the articles get to the depot, and then having to write backwards and forwards over the matter. We wish to deal with perfect fairness and frankness in this matter, consequently we give you another month to make your selection, and to fill orders that are already placed. Now if you want a

KITCHEN RANGE, or a CHAMBER SET, or PARLOR SUIT, or CARPETS, WINDOW SHADES, DRAPERY CURTAINS,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

Kindly come and see us at once, or if you can not come, please write us for Catalogues and Descriptions of these Goods, and we will do our very best to please you in every one. Remember we carry COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHINGS. There is scarcely a thing that you require for your homes that we do not keep, and we sell the same and shall continue to sell the same for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. This notice applies TO ALL OUR STORES, and we have written to each of our MANAGERS to this effect, consequently there will be no more freight prepaid from our Bangor Store, Rockland Store, Auburn Store, Bar Harbor Store, Biddeford Store, nor from the Headquarters at Portland, after the 31st day of May, 1888.

Kindly get your orders in before June 1st, if you wish to save this freight.

Respectfully, the Public's Ob't Servants,

THE ATKINSON HOUSE FURNISHING CO.,

Headquarters Cor. Pearl and Middle Streets, Portland, and Branches at Auburn, Rockland, Bangor and Biddeford, also Bar Harbor for a short time.

ISAAC C. ATKINSON, Gen. Manager.

NTERTAINMENT AND SALE.

There was a large attendance at the tertainment and sale in Grand Army all on Thursday evening, given by the adies' Sewing Circle of the Court street hristian church, and an enjoyable even- g was passed by all. During the ev- ning ice cream, cake and fancy articles ere on sale.

The entertainment was excellent, being nely given throughout, and was well ceived by the audience. The followfng as the programme:

Xylphone and violin duet, Harry Prior nd Fred Sides.

Dialogue, "The train to Mauro;" Miss Buttermilk," Miss Bertha N. letcher; "Mr. Bright,"——; "Johnny," ouis F. Winn.

Recitation, Flossie Hatch.

Song, Miss Pearl Seavey.

Dialogue, "The Phantom Dough- nts,"—Miss Florence M. Coleman, doc- or; Miss Fannie H. Amazeen, lady of he house; Miss Georgie E. Dennett, ped- er; Miss Ada T. Lear, "Village Belle;" Miss Stella Winn, one who borrows; Pearl Seavey, an important messenger.

Song, "Curfew," Miss Florence M. Coleman.

Dialogue, "Hamlet and the Ghost."

We understand that the church will non have the required amount to raise he church. The proceeds of the enter- ainment will help swell it quite a sum.

STORY OF THE BATTLE.

The actual participants in a great bat- le know very little about it. The pri- vate soldier or junior officer may hear he thunder of cannon and the rattle of usketry, close by, and far away on ither hand; he sees and hears all the earful accessories to the "pride, pomp nd circumstance of glorious war" in his mmediate vicinity—the dropping of his omrades in their tracks, the shrieks of he wounded and the moans of the dying, he crash of shot and shell, the desperate hand-to-hand struggle in which men mad with rage engage with more than the ury of wild beasts, the clouds of sul- phorous smoke, possibly the driving back of the enemy in disaster, perchance the epulse of his own friends in utter ruin. But at the close of the battle this is all he knows of it; he will have a vivid con- eption of the confusion and horrors which make of a hotly contested battle a veritable hell on earth, and will know that his side or the other has won; that is all. Of the various movements of the different bodies of either army which led up to the result achieved he knows noth- ing. The officers who direct the work of death and destruction know more, but their knowledge is far from complete, though more extended than that of the private, or the company or regimental officer; even the commander-in-chief has but a very imperfect knowledge of the details of the operations which have re- sulted in victory or defeat for his army, although he is of necessity the centre to which tends all the information from commanders at distant points—the ur- gent call of one for re-enforcements to support his hard-pressed forces, the an- nouncement by another that the enemy's repeated charges have been repulsed, of another that the enemy has been disloged from a strong position, but more men are needed to hold it—all written in the briefest style, and dealing only with gen- eral results.

The full history of the battle, with the bearing which each incident of success or defeat had on the whole, is only learned long after, from a careful ex- amination and comparison of the reports of the various subordinate commanders, studied exhaustively by competent milit- tary authority, with the aid of correct maps of the battle ground, and supple- mented by the statements of participants in and eye witnesses of the various de- tached events.

The bloody and decisive battle of Gettysburg, the turning point of the war of secession, from whose effects the con- federacy never could recover, has been subjected to this close study. The nat- ional government has had maps of the ground made by skilled engineers; the reports of regimental, brigade and divi- sion commanders on both sides have been consulted by the historian; the localities held or taken, or lost, by the troops of different states or army organizations, have been pointed out by officers, confed- erate and national, in command or partic- ipating; and probably no great battle has ever been so carefully studied and under conditions so favorable. Large paint- ings of the principle battles—for every large battle is a succession of lesser ones —have been made by eminent artists, who have had every aid toward making them truthful; and Gen. Mulholland, who was in a position to see perhaps as much of the battle as any one man, has written a full account of it, from the first skirmish to the final retreat of Lee's de- feated forces.

The illustrated lecture by Gen. Mul- holland on the battle of Gettysburg is to be given in Music hall this evening; and even the schoolboy, who listens to it at- tentively, will really know more of the battle when he l[illegible] than did Gen. Meade him[illegible] [illegible]'rst gun was fired at the e[illegible] day's fight.

The object of the ent[illegible] most worthy—the replenish[illegible] the charity fund of Storer Post, G. A. We are personally knowing—although we can know but a small part—of the great amount of good done by this organiza- tion, silently, without any flourish of trumpets; the liberal contributions of the members, who are mostly working men; their care for the sick, their giving honorable burial to their deceased poor, their feeding and sheltering of waifs whose only claim is honorable discharge from the service; and we hope the hall will be crowded to-night, to-morrow af- ternoon and to-morrow night, that the charity fund may be made plethoric.

POLICE COURT---BATCH-ELDER J.

THURSDAY, May 10th.

Lizzie Murphy, drunk, thirty days at Brentwood, costs $6.90.

Charles McLaughlin, for assault on Of- ficer Stott, was held in $200 for the grand jury; jail in default of sureties. The de- fendent was a hard looking citizen when brought into court,—what could be seen of him, that is, the officer's club having apparently been used with con- siderable effect, causing the concealment of much of the prisoner's face to be an improvement in his personal appearance. We believe this McLaughlin was the man who some years ago "served time" for an assault on Mr. Joseph B. White, then a police officer, from the effects of which assault Mr. White was hauled up a week or more.

THE NEW CRUSADE.

At Hinsdale, on the 9th, four places where liquor was sold were raided. At Plymouth, on the same day, all the pro- prietors of saloons, shops, drug stores and hotels who are supposed to have sold malt and spirituous liquors hitherto, were served with writs under the nuisance act in response to a petition signed by Rev. Thomas Tyrie and nineteen others, and their places were consequently closed, so that liquor even for medicinal prescrip- tions could not be procured; much ex- citement was created, the petitioners evi- dently meaning business.

It is stated that twenty persons have determined to sign the required paper needed to stop the nuisance of young children being sent with tin pails to pur- chase ale during the Sabbath at one of the largest-patronized resorts in the city. The business will be placed in the hands of the county authorities for action next week, should the next Sabbath show the shop to be engaged in its customary traffic on that day.

OBITUARY.

Miss Mary Ann Halliburton, who died in Boston on the 7th inst. at the age of ninety-one years, was the daughter of the late Andrew Halliburton of this city, who died in May, 1846. Her father was a native of Boston, Nova Scotia, and was descended from the same Halliburton family as Sir Walter Scott, and Judge Halliburton of Nova Scotia, the author of "Sam Slick, the clockmaker." He was chosen cashier of the Portsmouth bank in 1803, and faithfully served in that office, in the building where is now William P. Walker's store on Market square, until 1833. He was a gentleman of literary tastes. After his decease a volume of his essays, many of which had been delivered before the Portsmouth ly- ceum, was published, with a memoir written by the late Hon. William H. Y. Hackett. Miss Halliburton had not res- ided in Portsmouth for very many years. She will be remembered by her few sur- viving friends here, as a lady of much intellectual power and a superior educa- tion.

Mr. Alfred M. Blunt died at his home in Cambridgeport, Mass., May 10th, at the age of seventy-four years. He was a native of this city, but moved to Boston when sixteen years old, and resided there until about a year ago, when he moved to Cambridgeport. He was for forty-five years an employe in Chickering's piano factory. His father was the Capt. Blunt who piloted Gen. Washington across the Delaware the night before the battle of Trenton.

Personal.

Mrs. Sarah Brown of Seabrook, for quite a number of years postmistress there, died on the 9th inst.

A Washington despatch of the 10th inst. says: "Frank Jones of New Hamp- shire is here, giving the administration the benefit of his counsel."

Mrs. Louise Chandler Moulton sails from New York for Europe on Saturday.

Rev. Dr. Alden is to deliver the Me- morial day address at Deerfield this year.

Miss Lou Norton of this city leaves on Saturday for Lowell, Mass., where she is to enter the grocery establishment of John T. Beed as book-keeper.

Rev. Dr. Peabody will preach the bac- calaureate sermon at Lasall seminary, Auburndale, Mass., next June.

Mr. A. H. Rowe of Lawrence, Mass., who has been making a brief visit in Portsmouth, left for his home on the 9th inst. He proposes a trip to California shortly, to occupy three months.

Mr. Jos. B. White, of Water street, is seriously ill, and his friends fear he will not recover.

Mrs. C. Morris Tredick of Boston is visiting her mother, Mrs. N. F. Mathes of Islington street, this city.

Superintendent Morss is to occupy the Foster residence on Richards avenue dur- ing the absence in Europe of the Misses Foster.

Mrs. Carrie P. Stevens, and her daugh- ters Misses Susie K. and Bessie Stevens, of Salem, Mass., are to pass the summer with Mrs. Sarah Pickett of Pleasant street, this city, sister of Mrs. Stevens.

Charles L. Hussey of Rochester, a stu- dent of Phillips Exeter academy, has re- ceived an appointment as cadet at the An- napolis naval school from Congressman McKinney of the first New Hampshire district.

"What is that, Daniel, which Judge Woodbury says about Bayard's fishery treaty?" enquired his highness as they read the papers at the breakfast table. "He says," replied the truthful Daniel, "that it buries Jackson and Van Buren, and even puts Phelps and Bayard under ground." "Was not this Woodbury a man who once lived in Portsmouth, and wanted to head off Frank Jones in the Boston naval office appointment with a candidate recommended by the Massachu- setts mossbacks?" "Aye," returned the secretary "that was the self-same man." "Well," exclaimed the head of the table, "let the dead bury their dead. These are the times of live issues;" and the presi- dent resumed the perusal of a mugwump journal as if he had uttered a remark as was a remark.

The big elm on the Ladd lot on High street, after long resisting every effort, even that of dynamite, to remove it, was on Thursday last finally pulled from its position by the united efforts of five yoke of oxen and a small army of men, after having had all the roots cut off. This mammoth stump makes quite a sight as it looms up on the high ground near the house.

A few more good seats for the "Battle of Gettysburg" can be obtained this morning at Goodrich's book store.

Abbey's Uncle Tom's Cabin Co. is an- nounced to appear in Music hall next Wednesday evening.

The steamer Mystic will make extra trips between this city and Kittery to- night to accommodate those who wish to attend the "Battle of Gettysburg."

The schooner Frances Ellen, which sailed from this port on Monday, the 7th inst., at six o'clock in the evening, with 60,000 bricks, arrived in Boston har- bor at one o'clock the next morning, making the run in seven hours.

"Show us how divine a thing a woman may be made" by smoothing out the wrinkles caused by neuralgia or tooth- ache. This can be done only in one way. Invest twenty-five cents in a bottle of Salvation Oil, the great pain remedy.

Dr. Gage and Associate Physic- ians, and Their Great Work.

Probably no physician in New England is better and more favorably known, says a New Hampshire exchange, than is Dr. Gage, the gifted specialist, who has treat- ed more than fifteen thousand patients in this state, the announcement of his visits each month being the signal for a grand rally of a multitude of invalids. His suc- cess is indeed phenomenal and the re- ports of marvellous cures would fill this entire paper, the like of which was nev- er known in the history of medical prac- tice. The following is a fair sample:

Mr. Editor: A few months ago my daughter was laying at the point of death. She had a complication of troubles, a terrible cough, raising an immense quan- tity, a discharging sore upon her hip which rendered her perfectly helpless. Our family physician gave us no hope, but with a mother's will and determina- tion to save her perishing child if poss- ible, I hastened to consult Dr. Gage. Al- though he did not see her he nevertheless understood the case and his remedies have wrought a miracle—almost—by re- storing my child to perfect health. I thank God that I consulted Dr. Gage.

THE MANDARIN.

While seated in his palanquin,
Rode Ling Gum Foo, a mandarin;
Some laundry people working nigh
Were hanging garments out to dry,
He beckoned with his golden fan
And thus addressed the nearest man:
"Why do the robes upon your line
Like glaciers of Alaska shine?
Since we set out from Ning Po Keen,
A finer sight I have not seen!"
"We washed those garments," answered he,
"With soap that's made beyond the sea,
The IVORY SOAP they call it there,
We find it good beyond compare."
Then said the mandarin profound:
"Go order me a thousand pound,
And they who use another kind
Shall prison cell and scaffold find!"

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory'!" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remark- able qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS. $22 TO $900. The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.
Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.
PIANOS. Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all GRAND & UPRIGHT pianos, others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGING," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.
A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

WHY WORK FOR ANOTHER, or on small salary? Why continue working on a worn-out farm? Why try to secure a living from such high-priced or heavily mortgaged farms? Why work on rented land? Why not start for yourself? Why not secure at once some of the low-priced but very fertile and well located lands adjacent to railroads now to be obtained by those going to Northern Dakota and Minnesota, where you can make a larger net profit per acre than on the high-priced or worn-out land you now occupy? Why not go and look the situation over, and see for yourself, or at least obtain further information, which will be sent free, if you will address C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

OH, WHAT A COLD!
This is the season for sudden changes in the weather, and a great many "take cold" either in their Head or on their Lungs, causing Coughs, Hoarseness, and Sore Throat. These troubles can be soon relieved and cured by taking Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific, which acts directly on the Throat and Lungs, entirely removing these difficulties.
Cured his boy of Croup.
C. M. BROOKS, Lowell, Mass., says: "I take great pleasure in recommending Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific as a cure for Coughs, Colds, and Croup. I used it in my family last winter with the best results. Two or three doses cured my little boy of Croup, for which I am very thankful."
You can cure that Cough in a short time. You can cure your Catarrh if you persist in its use, as it will stop the secretion of Catarrhal matter in the head; it will relieve Croup in from three to five minutes.
The best he ever saw.
"The best medicine for Coughs and Consumptive Complaints that ever I saw is Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific," so says JOHN MCLAUGHLIN, of Boston.
Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific is sold by all Druggists. Price 50 cents and $1. Prepared only by the INGALLS MEDICAL CO., Lowell, Mass.

Asthma a Symptom.

Asthma is not a disease per se as is popularly supposed, but a symptom of disease. It is spoken of by different names—as, for instance, hay asthma, rose or June asthma, and ipecac asthma. Some people will get asthma from sleeping on a feather pillow; others as soon as they come in contact with certain animals, as a dog, a cat, or a squirrel. Professor Austin Flints cannot sleep on a feather pillow without getting asthma, and so susceptible is he to it that he is able to detect the feathers when they are placed under his pillow by persons whose design it is to catch him on his theory. Cases have come to notice where the asthmatic symptom was developed in men who happened to get hold of a blanket upon which a dog had been sleeping the previous day. Asthma may be a symptom of emphysema of the lungs, and may last for weeks or even months. Two men who were treated by me, one having nasal polypus and the other stone in the bladder; both had asthma. To persons susceptible to it asthma is developed from working in the dust around thrashing machines, and others suffer from it as soon as they enter an apothecary's shop where ipecac is kept. Nor is dropsy anything but a symptom of disease or a result of it. Defined, generally, asthma is a manifestation of disease of the nervous system which causes contraction of the bronchial tubes. It may be seen as a spasmodic contraction of the nerves, and of course may be a symptom of heart disease or some other disease.—Dr. B. V. Steinmetz in Globe-Democrat.

A Vast Fortune in Furs.

"No one will ever be able to tell the real wealth of Alaska," said a furrier to a reporter. "It consists of the abundance of its skinned animals. The Russians used to value the country for its furs, and it was mainly for the furs that this country acquired it from Russia. The trade has grown very much since its annexation to this country. The shipments of sea otter and fur sealskins alone have more than doubled during the past ten years, and now average annually $1,500,000 in value. The list of furs produced in that part of the country is a long one. The land furs comprising otter, beaver, brown bear, black bear, red fox, silver fox, blue and white fox, mink, martin, polar bear, lynx and musk rat. Rabbits, marmots and wolverines are also common, but their skins are retained by the natives. The annual value of the furs, sea and land, now obtained from Alaska is estimated to average $3,000,000, and there is no sign of decrease in the yield. The competition of the traders for skins has stimulated the natives to greater industry in hunting, and the prices now paid to the hunters are from four to ten times more than were current during the Russian rule."—New York Mail and Express.

Death in a Blizzard.

Dr. Smith, the health officer of this port, a day or two ago spoke of death in a blizzard as being the result of suffocation, and explained his meaning by saying; "One of my clerks was two hours in coming to me on one of the days of the furious blizzard in this city. He was three hours and a half, he told me, in going back over the same distance, something like two miles. He felt no inconvenience beyond the exhaustion consequent on the fight with the wind. He slipped into doorways to catch his breath, and when the wind blew too sharply in his face turned around with his back to it. Death in a blizzard comes too often from attempting to breast the storm. The wind takes away one's breath. Suffocation follows. A man doubles up and drops down and is dead. He does not even know what ailed him. If he had turned his back to the blast for a moment he might have faced it again and have gone on for another struggle unharmed."—New York Tribune.

The Quaker's Peculiar Ideas.

The Quaker never makes oath. He avoids as far as possible coming where such procedure is necessary, but if obliged to make a declaration, the falsity of which would subject him to legal penalty, he affirms. Nor does he observe any holy days or feast days. He believes that the obligation to regard one day more than another ceased with the Mosaic dispensation. The visiting of theatres, race courses, dancing halls, or the investment in any kind of lotteries—grab bags in church fairs included—are declared to be incompatible with the teachings of the society, and are forbidden. No matter what station in life you occupy, a Quaker does not use the prefix "Mr." As soon as your Christian name is given you are addressed by it whenever necessary. All these things are of course known to the Quakers themselves, but not to the average Philadelphian.—Philadelphia Cor. Globe-Democrat.

The Colored Poulterer's Charm.

When a nestful of fluffy little chickens are taking their first peep at the world from under the mother hen's wings, the careful poulterer on the watch for such welcome event will run hastily to the nest with an empty sifter. This she will shake over the brood; the empty sifter lets through nothing, nor does it catch anything, but shaken thus over the "hatching nest" will be an efficacious charm against all hawks or other birds of prey: "Dem sifter sluck chickens 'll be too spry ter be cotch!"—Eli Shepard in The Cosmopolitan.

For a Good Mucilage.

For a strong mucilage pulverize separately about equal parts of gum arabic and gum tragacanth; mix thoroughly while dry, and then add sufficient water. This is a better mucilage than you can get at the stationer's, is cheap, and will keep for a long time without anything to preserve it. Gum arabic is too weak and brittle for good mucilage, and gum tragacanth, if used alone, only partly dissolves, and remains in lumps.—"D. T. P." in The Writer.

To Sea on Friday.

Out of fifty-two ships launched in England on Friday, forty-nine proved fast sailers and profitable crafts. The Scotch are the only nation which still cling to the old superstition, but even Scotch sea captains will put to sea on Friday if under orders.—Detroit Free Press.

The Journalist's Profession.

A famous editor said: "I was first a college graduate, then a reporter, and then an editor; but I ought to have been able to stop after I had been two years in the office and gone back to study international law, history and languages; it would have been worth a large capital to me. A man does not find out what he needs to know until he has been at actual work in journalism for a year or two." Probably no profession at the present time requires a greater combination of native tact, with intense application and wide culture.—M. Maurice, M. D., in Globe-Democrat.

The identification of the democratic party in Indiana with the convicted tally-sheet forgers in Indianapolis is singularly complete. Wm. H. English said to Coy after his conviction, "The whole democratic party is at your back." Gov. Gray and Senator McDonald eulogized the convicted man at a public meeting. When William Henderson went to Washington to secure the prosecution of the indicted man he learned that Bynum, Voorhees and MacDonald had all solicited of the attorney general a dismissal of the case.—Monitor.

The Earth Exhales Poison

To the air in localities where vegetation, rotted by freshets, is laid bare to the sun's rays by the retiring flood. Millions of square acres, in the vicinity of the great tributaries of the Mississippi and the Missouri in the South and Southwest, give forth this fever-laden miasmatic vapor, disseminating malarial pestilence broadcast. Not only throughout the great West, but wherever on this continent fever and ague makes its periodic appearance—and what locality is wholly exempt from it?—Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the recognized defense, the most highly accredited and popular means of cure. Fever and ague, bilious remittent, dumb ague and ague cake are eradicated by it. Nor is it less potent when used to remove constipation, liver complaint and dyspepsia, kidney troubles, nervousness and rheumatic ailments. Use it upon the first appearance of these troubles, and with persistence.

It is believed in Washington that Mr. Fuller will be confirmed as chief justice.

We think we can cure a bad case of backache quicker with one of Carter's Smart Weed and Belladonna Backache Plasters, than by any other application, and after the backache is cured, you can still wear the plaster without discomfort for two or three weeks, or longer. This combination of Smart Weed and Belladonna is a great hit, and it is hard to find any pain or ache that will not yield to it. Price 25 cents. Sold by druggists everywhere.

A Nebraska murderer perished in the fire set to destroy his seven victims.

Ayer's Pills are the best cathartic for correcting irregularities of the stomach and bowels. Gentle, yet thorough in their action, they cure constipation, stimulate the appetite and digestive organs, and strengthen the system.

The democratic executive committee are to meet in New York on the 15th.

Not one in twenty are free from some little ailments caused by inaction of the liver. Use Carter's Little Liver Pills. The result will be a pleasant surprise. They give positive relief.

Professor Leone Levi, F. S. A., the well known economic writer is dead.

That feeling of weariness, so often experienced in the spring, results from a sluggish condition of the blood which, being impure, does not quicken with the changing season. Ayer's Sarsaparilla, by vitalizing and cleansing the blood, strengthens and invigorates the system.

Crickets are destroying vegetation and causing a pestilence in Algeria.

Benj. W. Patton, of Globe Village, Mass., says: "Having sold Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry for many years, and used it in my family with the most satisfactory results, I can with confidence say that in my estimation it is the best remedy in the market for coughs, colds and throat and lung diseases."

What a Mistake!

A careful examination would convince any one that two-thirds of all the people in New England have been or are now afflicted with the catarrh of the nose and throat.

No doubt more than half of these persons have tried every blood purifier they have seen, with the erroneous idea that catarrh is a constitutional disease and must be purged out of the blood.

Why a greater mistake was never made! Stop for a moment and think or ask any reputable physician what common catarrh is, and what causes it, and the answer can be only this. "It is an irritation or inflammation of the mucous membrane of the nose and throat, caused by neglected colds, damp piercing irritable winds, foreign matter in the air which is poisonous to some persons and not to others; just as the bites of certain insects is a poisoned torture to some and has no unpleasant effect upon others." The reason for this is found in the different structure of the outer skin and its counterpart which lines all the inner organs of our bodies. Some people have chapped hands and chilblains and others are never so afflicted because of the peculiar structure of the skin of different individuals.

Therefore stop dosing. It is not blood purifiers you want, but good wholesome food, the plainer the better, then "keep your feet dry and warm, your head cool and bowels open," and use an external application, (Johnson's Anodyne Liniment is the best we know,) to allay the inflammation, cleanse the surface, heal the sores, and your catarrh will disappear like magic. We do not say never to return, because you may cure a severe cold and in three months catch another equally bad, so with catarrh and bronchical troubles. Exposure may bring it on again. We learned more about treating catarrh from the wrapper around a bottle of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, than we ever knew. Certainly this good old medicine deserves to be called "A universal family remedy." No matter how well you know this medicine it will pay you to send to I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass., for a pamphlet free, just to learn how to use the liniment economically. A teaspoonful properly used will often do more good than a half bottle as some people use it.

The Creator with great wisdom has distributed over the earth vegetable remedies for every ill of human kind. This marvelous laboratory reveals its secrets to man only by long and searching labor. Few men have attained greater success than Dr. R. V. Pierce; nor devised for suffering humanity a greater production than his "Golden Medical Discovery," the unfailing remedy for consumption in its earlier stages, as well as for chronic nasal catarrh, scrofula, tumors and all blood disorders.

IN THE VEGETABLE GARDEN.

Practical Suggestions Valuable Alike to Amateurs and Market Gardeners.

At least three things are essential to secure paying crops of vegetables viz., a suitable soil well supplied with plant food pure seed and clean culture. To produce the best and most uniform results the vegetable garden must have at least one foot of friable rich soil. Mark the garden off into rows or beds of convenient size to facilitate the practice of a rotation of crops, which is an important matter. As a rule, do not let the same crops occupy the same bed or spot two years in succession. Potatoes and a few other things may form an exception to this general rule, but it is wise to keep up the rotation.

Progressive gardeners now grow everything in drills or straight lines, not excepting corn and potatoes. Not only are larger crops from a given surface grown in this way but cultivation becomes easier. Remember in the preparation of soil for vegetables that thorough preparation previous to dropping the seed greatly lessens the after culture of the crop. This is especially true of corn.

Great care ought always to be observed in the selection of seeds, and it is best to take for the main crops the varieties that have been tested in the vicinity and found trustworthy. This, however, need not prevent the trial of new varieties in a moderate way. No safe rule can be established as to the depth at which different seeds should be sown, as the weather and varieties of soil must be considered. If continued damp weather could be assured the rule observed by some of covering the seed to a depth equal to its own thickness would be a safe one. At whatever depth the seeds are sown the soil ought to be brought into contact with it by firming with a board or back of a spade.

If you do not grow asparagus for market, at least raise enough for your own table. It is a healthful luxury within the reach of everybody who tills the smallest plot of land. In planting for private use set out in beds five feet wide, three rows in a bed, the outer being each one foot from the edge, and allow twelve inches in the rows; set the plants at least six inches below the surface. For market gardening on a large scale set four feet apart one way and one and a half the other, which will allow the use of a horse and cultivator to keep the weeds under. Every fall a good dressing of coarse manure should be applied after the tops have been cut, and in the spring forked in. The roots need the benefit of some foliage during the year, for if every sprout is persistently cut as it appears the roots weaken and die and there will be no asparagus next year. The best results have been obtained by leaving one good stalk to grow up, say about a foot apart each way in the bed and then cutting out all the small "grass."

Celery is another luxury that is often wanting in the kitchen and garden, though it is one of the market gardener's remunerative crops. In private gardens it is cheaper to buy the plants. Let the celery follow some early crop. It setting out celery plants be careful and firm the earth well about the roots. Indeed, in the transplanting of all vegetables observe the rule of firming the soil around the plant.

In transplanting such plants as the strawberry the fibrous roots should be spread out as much as possible, while the root of a tap rooted plant, as a cabbage or beet, should be placed regularly up and down and not bent upon itself. In sandy soil it is often necessary, in a drought during the transplanting season, to water the plants after setting out. In this case cover the watered surface with dry soil to prevent baking.

Facts Worthy of Note.

Northern Pedigree, one of the very early varieties of sweet corn, is very dwarf, with small ears.

No lawn can be maintained in good order long without successive rollings. Rolling should be done in the spring before the ground becomes dry.

The carrot should always be furnished a good, deep, rich soil. Sow in drills about an inch deep, the drills about a foot apart. At thinning the plants should be left four to ten inches apart, according to the variety.

The merits of trench culture with potatoes is that it secures a loose, fine tilth not only at the roots, but particularly around the stems where the tubers form. The system checks evaporation, and the depression of the rows turns into the rows much of the rainwater falling between them, which would be otherwise largely wasted.

The green pea season may be made an indefinitely long one by successive plantings. So may the lettuce season.

It has been decided that the $15,000 appropriation for agricultural experiments in New York state is to go to Cornell university.

The Rise in Value of Horses.

The rise in value in horses since 1879 has been the most noticeable feature in farm stock values. The highest prices of the inflation period were reached in 1869, averaging $84.16, declining from that date to the lowest ebb of agricultural depression in 1879 to $52.41. The present price is nearly that of 1874, and does not differ much from the value of 1869 reduced to gold, showing that the price of horses is now relatively high, and furnishing a solid reason for the increase in numbers and for the frequent expression of correspondents that horses and mules pay the stock grower better than any other class of animals. There is another good reason for the unyielding prices of horses in a time of general shrinkage of values—viz., the improvement in quality by thoroughbred blood, and especially the increase of weight by the general distribution of French and English draught horses.

New York State Fair.

Syracuse raised $30,000 as an inducement to have the state agricultural fair permanently located there. The next annual exhibition will be held at Elmira Sept. 13-19. The premium list will offer in the aggregate $10,000 in prizes. The fiftieth anniversary of the society will occur in September, 1890, and will doubtless be celebrated at Syracuse.

Facts About Kid Gloves.

"Out of 650,000 dozen gloves imported last year from France and Germany only about 100,000 were genuine kid," said a well known Broadway dealer in gloves. "An expert, however, can readily tell the skin of a kid by the veins which run through it on the unfinished side. In preparing skins for the glove manufacturers a remarkable fact has been discovered which science has not been able to explain. The first process is to soak them in lime water, to take off the hair. This takes from ten to fifteen days, according to the nature of the skin. Locality is the chief thing to be considered. Skins from one district drop their hair sooner than those from another. After the hair has been removed the skins are placed in a small square vat, filled with a preparation of bran water, and shaken violently to take out the grease. This is called the fermentation of the skin.

"A mixture of eggs, salt and flour is next applied. The kid is then ready to receive the color. This is spread on with a brush and the hue fixed with ammonia. In the case of light colored gloves," continued the dealer, "the kid is placed in a large tank filled with the coloring material, and trodden upon by bare legged men in the same manner that grapes are trodden in the process of making wine. Most of the gloves used in this country are of domestic manufacture. They are made in Gloversville and Johnstown, in this state. Fully 25,000 people derive their living from this industry in this locality. Almost every family for miles around is engaged in the manufacture of gloves. The skins are cut up and distributed among the people for sewing in the same manner that trousers are sent out to people living in tenements in this city. Gloversville and the surrounding district is one of the most prosperous communities in the state. There are few poor people to be found, and the distribution of wealth is remarkably even."—New York Sun.

Eskimo Sorcerers and Conjurers.

The Eskimo calls the medicine men angekoks, which is wise men. The Indians, like other people, are subjected to the ills of body and mind, and are, therefore, dependent upon medical protection to help them in the hours of pain. Blindness, arising from the smoke of the lodges, uncleanliness, the habitual use of paint, and hereditary diseases are very prevalent among the tribe. Sitting in a lodge a short time ago with twelve persons, a missionary named Rev. John McLean, B. A., counted no less than five blind individuals. There are numerous cases of scrofula, consumption, rheumatism, immoral diseases, bronchitis, etc.

The medicine men are the priests and doctors of the camp, uniting religion and medicine in their practice. Generally there are grades of distinction, the lower resorting to the use of herbs and other medicines only, the higher relying upon supernatural influences to aid them with the dispensing of their materia medica. Shrewd and intelligent, they are revered by the occupants of the lodges and become instructors of the youth and the guardians of the sacred legends. Occasionally medicine women are found, generally aged persons, who become famous through the numerous cures wrought by their skill. "Medicine" has a two fold meaning, the one referring to the charms and incantations, the supernatural part of the work and the other to the use of physic, the natural part.—St. Paul Globe.

How Coffee is Grown.

The culture of coffee is the chief industry of Venezuela, and a day lately spent at San Bernardino, a large coffee estate, gave me a chance to learn something of the matter. For this culture a rich, well watered soil is needed, with plenty of shade, for the coffee is a delicate tree and cannot stand the direct rays of the sun. Really, there is no tree at all, only a scraggy bush eight or ten feet high, looking much like a venerable lilac. Early in March they are white with blossoms, pretty star shaped posies with a faint, delicious perfume.

The plants grow only from seed, which is planted just before the rainy season, ninety trees to the acre. In about five years a yield may be counted upon, and thenceforth for an average of thirty. There is gathered from each tree some eight or ten pounds of coffee annually. Every one raises coffee. Every one talks coffee. Every one sells coffee, and not a living cook in Venezuela appears to know how to make a decent cup to drink. They burn it jet black in open pans, serve it as strong as lye and call it good. Aroma it has none, and I presume that the delicate flavor of an American cup of Java would be utterly unappreciated. After picking the beans are washed, hulled and sorted into different qualities, put up in sacks of 130 pounds and shipped.—Cor. St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Origin of Earrings.

By the way, talking of earrings, puts me in mind of an eastern legend which I heard a short time ago about their origin. When Hagar ran away to escape the wrath of Abram's wife, so the story goes, Sarai vowed that if her handmaid ever returned she would cause her to be mutilated, thinking thus to destroy her beauty and prevent her causing any further domestic infelicity. Time, however, had the effect of so cooling Sarai's wrath that when Hagar came back and pleaded with her she decided to forego her vengeance and restored her ex-handmaid to favor. But an oath was not a thing to be trifled with, and as Sarai had solemnly vowed to mutilate Hagar she was in a quandary to know how to do this without injuring her or marring her fair face. Finally she hit upon the expedient of piercing a small hole in each of Hagar's ears, and it is said that Abram, to offset the pretty handmaid's punishment, presented her with two beautiful jewels to suspend from the holes. Her appearance thus adorned so excited the admiration of the other women of the tribe that the wearing of earrings soon became general among them.—Jewelers' Weekly.

Metals of the Ancients.

The ancients were acquainted with seven metals which they supposed to possess certain mystic relationship with the planets, and were represented by the hyeroglyphics by which the planets were known. Gold was called Sol or sun; silver, Luna, or moon; iron, Mars; lead, Saturn; copper, Venus; tin, Jupiter; mercury, Mercury.—Mining Review.

BUCKING OF THE BRONCO.

One of the Recreations of the Cowboy. Taming a Vicious Brute.

While the head men are gathered in a little knot, planning out the work, the others are dispersed over the plain in every direction, racing, breaking rough horses, or simply larking with one another. If a man has an especially bad horse, he usually takes such an opportunity, when he has plenty of time, to ride him; and while saddling he is surrounded by a crowd of most unsympathetic associates, who greet with uproarious mirth any misadventure. A man on a bucking horse is always considered fair game, every squeal and jump of the bronco being hailed with cheers of delighted irony for the rider and shouts to "stay with him."

The antics of a vicious bronco show infinite variety of detail, but all are modeled on one general plan. When the rope settles round his neck the fight begins, and it is only after much plunging and snorting that a twist is taken over his nose, or else a hackamore—a species of severe halter, usually made of plaited hair, slipped on his head. While being bridled he strikes viciously with his fore feet, and perhaps has to be blindfolded or thrown down; and to get the saddle on him is quite as difficult. When saddled, he may get rid of his exuberant spirits by bucking under the saddle, or may reserve all his energies for the rider. In the last case, the man, keeping tight hold with his left hand of the check strap, so as to prevent the horse from getting his head down until he is fairly seated, swings himself quickly into the saddle. Up rises the bronco's back into an arch; his head, the ears laid straight back, goes down between his fore feet, and, squealing savagely, he makes a succession of rapid, stiff legged, jarring bounds.

Sometimes he is a "plunging" bucker, who runs forward all the time while bucking; or he may buck steadily in one place, or "sunfish"—that is, bring first one shoulder down almost to the ground and then the other, or else he may change ends while in the air. A first class rider will sit throughout it all without moving from the saddle, quirting his horse all the time, though his hat may be jarred off his head and his revolver out of its sheath. After a few jumps, however, the average man grasps hold of the horn of the saddle—the delighted onlookers meanwhile earnestly advising him not to "go to leather"—and is contented to get through the affair in any shape provided he can escape without being thrown off. An accident is of necessity borne with a broad grin, as any attempt to resent the raillery of the bystanders—which is perfectly good humored—would be apt to result disastrously.—Theodore Roosevelt in The Century.

Detection of a Fraud.

An antiquarian tourist, who paid a Mexican Indian $200 for a vase and an idol of copper that were alleged to be of ancient native workmanship, has been informed by Professor Putnam, the Cambridge archæologist, that the specimens are of modern manufacture and of little value. The first clew to the detection of the fraud was given by a human hair imbedded in the copper.—New York World.

Colored Citizens' Excursion.

With the running of the first excursion train in the spring the old nomadic instinct awakes in the bosom of the colored citizens. They must go somewhere. The destination is of little moment, the journey is everything. To the pine woods of Mississippi, among the villages of the Gulf coast, even to the penitentiary at Baton Rouge, they swarm upon the regular excursion days. No matter how sultry the weather, they pack into the cars, an indiscriminate mass of shouting men, struggling women and shrieking babies; and, wherever their journey may terminate, they are allowed for that day almost exclusive possession of the town. Evening comes. The whistle sounds, and all who purpose returning crowd upon the train. Few, however, are the parties of excursionists who do not leave some of their number in durance, souvenirs to the town which they have visited of an exciting day.—Cor. New York Post.

Value of Social Enjoyment.

Social enjoyment is another factor that enters into long life. I do not believe in ultra fashionable society, and care nothing for it. The late hours, the dissipation, the dreary formalities, the shallow minded talk and the general air of hypocrisy make it very distasteful to me. There are a great many among the rich people in New York at the present time who lose real social enjoyment. Having suddenly acquired wealth, they have become separated from their old friends and acquaintances with whom, in earlier days, they spent many a sociable and sensible evening. They give big dinners to a lot of brainless snobs, sycophants and parasites who will eat their food and laugh at them behind their backs. Their honest friendships of poorer days have been broken, for their acquaintances, not being able to give big dinners, do not accept invitations to them provided they are sent, and so the spirit of true, wholesome enjoyment is soon lost.—P. T. Barnum in The Epoch.

The "Self Limited" Diseases.

The nature of the cause of a given disease has much to do with its duration. In the so called essential fevers, such as typhus, typhoid, relapsing and yellow fever, the cause is a minute vegetable organism that seems to attain its full development within a very short time, after which it produces its progeny and dies. There is no more chance of one of them becoming chronic than there is of raising several crops of oats or barley from once sowing the seed. These are, truly, the "self limited" diseases. It is fortunate in many particulars that such a large proportion of diseases are of this character. It makes but little difference in the treatment of them what the drugs used may be, so long as the strength is kept up, and no harm is done. The main thing is to keep the patient alive a given number of days, when the cause exhausts itself and recovery ought to follow.—Globe-Democrat.

THE MOST WONDERFUL FAMILY REMEDY EVER KNOWN. LINIMENT

March April May

Are the best months in which to purify your blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best blood purifier.

At no other season does the human system so much need the aid of a reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla, as now. The impoverished condition of the blood, the weakening effects of the long, cold winter, the lost appetite, and that tired feeling, all make a good spring medicine absolutely necessary. Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiarly adapted for this purpose, and increases in popularity every year. It is the ideal spring medicine.

"I must say Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine I ever used. Last spring I had no appetite, and the least work I did fatigued me ever so much. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and soon felt that I could do as much in a day as I had formerly done in a week. My appetite is voracious." MRS. M. V. BAYARD, Atlantic City, N. J.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to buy any other.

Were all wise enough to heed this advice in season, a world of suffering would be avoided. If you suffer from impure blood, scrofula, dyspepsia, biliousness, headache, take

That Tired Feeling

Afflicts nearly every one in the spring. The system having become accustomed to the bracing air of winter, is weakened by the warm days of the changing season, and readily yields to attacks of disease. Hood's Sarsaparilla is just the medicine needed. It tones and builds up every part of the body, and also expels all impurities from the blood. Try it this season.

Be Just.

A large number of federal office holders attended the State Convention of the democrats in Vermont. There were present over eighty postmasters, and fifteen holders of other offices. It is only fair to state that these men attended the political gathering, not as incumbents of office under President Cleveland, but as the supporters of Grover Cleveland, formerly of Buffalo, who is the prospective candidate of the democracy in the coming national contest! There should be no misunderstanding in this respect.

American Citizenship.

The secretary of state, in compliance with the senate resolution, has transmitted to the senate copies of a correspondence which has been in progress several years between representatives of this government and the French authorities respecting the enforced military service required by France of naturalized American citizens of French birth, or American-born citizens of French parentage, who may venture to visit France and be discovered by the authorities.

The correspondence covers the cases of John Fruchier, John Pierre Arbios, John F. Gerrard and Albert F. Gendrot. Arbios was born in France, but his father came to America and was naturalized during his son's minority. Fruchier and Gerrard were naturalized American citizens of several years' residence in this country. Gendrot was born at Cambridge, Mass., of French parents, and passed a good portion of his minority in this country. In each of the cases the American minister has been directed to lay the matter before the French authorities and demand the release of the citizen, together with such other relief as circumstances may seem to require.

The reply of the French minister has uniformly been in effect that the question of allegiance was one over which the administration had no jurisdiction, and which must be settled by the courts. They set forth that, under French principles, citizenship is conferred by parentage and not by the place of birth; and that expatriation of the French citizen requires the consent of the French government. Upon these points Mr. Bayard has instructed Minister McLane to inform M. Flourens that the government of the United States holds that the decree of naturalization granted by it to a French citizen is not open to impeachment by the French government, either in its executive or its judicial branches; and that, if it is alleged to have been improvidently issued, the remedy is by application to the department of state.

"You will further say," writes the secretary, "that if the subjection to forced military service of the citizens, whose cases you report, is based upon an assumption that they are not citizens of the United States, this department asks for their immediate release and for a proper compensation for the losses which they have received by such detention. It cannot be admitted that American citizens, not charged with any crime, should be detained under arrest for even a single day after their proofs of citizenship have been presented. In cases like this the United States never admits the propriety of submitting to the ordinary delays of judicial action." Fruchier has been released from the military service of France.

The custom of having deeds registered is becoming more and more general, but still there are hosts of people who neglect to perform this important duty. Some of them go into the register's office with deeds twenty-five years old. People defer the matter, and as they are in peaceable possession, make no move in this direction. They save the interest on their fifty cents, but they are in constant danger of loss of title by destruction of the deed. Sometimes the deeds come into the office all mildewed and yellow with age. Sometimes litigation calls them out. Sometimes the uneasiness of mankind, and often death, brings them to view.

A Veritable Case of Spoons.

The recognized popularity of the Atkinson House Furnishing company was made manifest at the Odd Fellows' fair on Thursday evening, when upon counting the votes the case of silver spoons, to be given to the most popular furniture company, was awarded to this well-known house. The contest was very exciting during the fair, since the friends of the different house furnishers in the city entered heartily into the work. But towards the close, as the ballots came in thick and fast, it was seen that the Atkinson company was destined, as some joker waggishly remarked, to be the Ben Butler of Maine and take its place in history in connection with the silver spoon. The total number of votes cast for this company was 1,303, sixty-nine being in the name of Mr. Isaac C. Atkinson, its president and manager. The case includes tea, table and dessert spoons, sugar shell, berry and sauce spoons, and the whole is an elegant silver from the store of Carter Brothers. It is exhibited in the window of the Atkinson House Furnishing company on Middle street, and excites the admiration of all who see it.—Portland Sunday Times.

DeLesseps is quite confident that his Panama canal will be completed in three years; other men who are acquainted with the Isthmus, declare that the two oceans can never be united at that point. Well, time will tell. We have long ceased to pronounce any project impossible. For thousands of years people suffered life-long misery from diseases which were supposed to be "visitations from God," but which are now known to be the result of impure blood. The old doctors considered such diseases impossible of cure, and not a few modern ones have shared that opinion; but what can skeptics say in view of the record of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, in the cure of blood diseases, during the past quarter of a century? Instances are innumerable of cases which defied all other treatment, but yielded, in a brief time, to a course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla—a conclusive proof that no other alterative medicine has equal curative power.

It Was Anticipated.

The points of evidence before the grand jury of Alice Hoyle, sister of Lilla Hoyle, who was murdered at Webster, Mass., were mainly those published several days ago, except that McQuaid is more directly implicated. Lilla, who was pregnant, was chloroformed by Alice in Cowie's presence and in Cowie's house, the object being to perform an abortion, an operation to which Lilla persistently objected. The unconscious girl was then taken from the house by Cowie and Alice and placed in a wagon, which had been provided by McQuaid, who was waiting near at hand. McQuade was the driver; while on the road the dazed girl aroused herself from her deep sleep, and with a piteous cry she dispelled the stillness of the air. Again her cries rang out, and both men impelled by dread and fear of discovery, clinched at her throat. When quiet was restored Lilla was dead, and Alice had fallen half unconscious from her seat in the wagon. Cowie tied the arms and legs together and with McQuaid concealed the body in the old corn crib while Alice sat in the wagon. The stories which have misled the officers were invented by Alice and Cowie.

Ayer's Pills,

What a Time

People formerly had, trying to swallow the old-fashioned pill with its nauseous vainly disguising its bitter ness; and what a contrast is Ayer's Pills, that have been called "sugar-coated gem-pills"—the only few bitter sugar-plums—the only few pills that patients may be tempted into taking too many at a dose. But the directions are plain and should be strictly followed.

J. T. Teller, M. D., of Cuttingsville, N. Y., expresses exactly what hundreds have written at greater length. He says: "Ayer's Cathartic Pills are highly appreciated. They so perfect in form and coating, and their effects are all that the most careful physician could desire. They have supplanted all the Pills formerly popular here, and I think it must be long before any other can be made that will at all compare with them. Those who buy your pills get full value for their money."

"Safe, Pleasant, and certain in their action," is the concise testimony of Dr. George R. Walker, of Martinsville, Virginia.

"Ayer's Pills outsell all similar preparations. The public having once used them, will have no others."—Berry, Venable & Collier, Atlanta, Ga.

"IT WAS INHERITED."

The Fearful Effect of Heredity Upon the Lives of Men and Women—A Striking Case.

"The man or woman does not live who is free from hereditary influences." This remark was made by the celebrated Dr. Vanderville, of New York, to the Rev. Dr. Brooks, at a recent convention of scientists.

"I agree with you, doctor," said the divine.

"Pure blood," continued the doctor, "is the great cause of health; impaired blood the source of most diseases. It may even go back to the grand or great grand parents."

"I have in mind a prominent man," said the reverend gentleman, "General Alfred C. Monroe, of No. 1 Pemberton Square, Boston. He inherited kidney troubles from both parents, one of whom died with it. He suffered terribly from pains in the back and head, and at times when walking the dizziness became so bad that he was compelled to lay hold of some convenient post for support. He was in a most desperate condition."

"And is he so still?" asked the doctor.

"No, he is in perfect health. Dr. McGregor, I believe of Maine, who had amputated an arm for the general, cured him."

"Do you know what medicine he used?"

"I understand it was Hunt's Remedy."

"Oh, Hunt's Remedy. I know it very well," said Dr. Vanderville. "I consider it the best remedy for kidney, liver, heart troubles, and female difficulties in the world. It is in no sense a patent medicine, but a standard remedy, which deserves to be used by all intelligent people. The fact is, no blood-taint can exist when the kidneys are in perfect order, and there is where Hunt's Remedy shows its marvelous superiority."

"I only wish," said Rev. Dr. Brooks, "that all people who inherit a tendency to disease could know of this remedy of which you speak so highly and use it. I am positive it would greatly lessen suffering and death."

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Combines, in a proportion peculiar to itself, the active medicinal properties of the best blood-purifying and strengthening remedies of the vegetable kingdom. It will positively cure—when in the power of medicine—Spring Debility, Headache, Dyspepsia, Catarrh, Salt Rheum, Scrofula, and all Diseases caused by a low state of the blood.

"I suffered three years with blood poison. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and think I am cured." MRS. M. J. DAVIS, Brockport, N. Y.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla beats all others, and is worth its weight in gold." I. BARRINGTON, 100 Bank Street, New York City.

Is so vastly superior to any other sarsaparilla or blood purifier, that one has well said: "Its health-giving effects upon the blood and entire human organism, are as much more positive than the remedies of a quarter or a century ago, as the steam-power of to-day is in advance of the slow and laborious drudgery of years ago."

"While suffering from a severe bilious attack in March, 1883, a friend in Peoria, Ill., recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla. I tried the remedy, and was permanently cured." J. A. SHEPARD, travelling agent for Devoe & Co., Fulton Street, N. Y.

Purifies the Blood

"I tried a dozen articles to cleanse my blood, but never found anything that did me any good till I began using Hood's Sarsaparilla." W. H. PEER, Rochester, N. Y.

"My wife was troubled with dizziness and constipation, and her blood has been in a bad order—in fact she has been all run down. Hood's Sarsaparilla is doing her a wonderful amount of good." F. M. BALDWIN, druggist, Blanchester, Ohio.

"I was for five years a sufferer with boils, all run down, and was at one time obliged to give up work. Before taking all of two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, was entirely cured." R. M. LANE, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. Took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

OFFICIAL NOTICE!

— OF —

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co.

— FROM THE —

HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND, MAINE,

To those who are contemplating the purchase of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

GREETING:

On and after June 1st we shall STOP PREPAYING the FREIGHT on GOODS SOLD by us, and we respectfully request that those who have dealt with us, and who have been BENEFITED by the PAYMENT OF THIS FREIGHT which in itself in the past three years has amounted to some

30,000 DOLLARS,

Will order what GOODS they require for this SPRING, from us this month, and please order as early as possible. And to those who intend buying

Chamber Sets, Parlor Suits, Carpets, Lounges, Easy Chairs, Mattresses, Springs, Silver-ware, Window Shades, Drapery, Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Stoves and Ranges, Feathers, Feather Pillows, Spreads, Blankers,

And anything else in HOUSE FURNISHING, can be BENEFITED to the extent of the freight to their depot, by buying from us this month. We have always PREPAID THIS FREIGHT FROM OUR OWN PROFITS, as we have invariably made the price on the

Furniture, Carpets,

Etc., lower than could be bought for elsewhere. There has always been a great advantage derived by our prepayment of the freight because we in every instance GUARANTEE the SAFE DELIVERY of the goods, and if there has ever been a fight to make with the railroad, we have done it, or in other words if you have received a

CHAMBER SET, PARLOR SUIT, Chair, or Range,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

That was damaged by the railroad, we have replaced it with another piece, and taken our chances to get the breakage from the road. There are items worthy of our close consideration, and especially at this time of year, be wise and order during this month,

And Save Yourself the Freight from Portland to your Depot, no matter where it is located in the State of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

We believe we are the only HOUSE FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT IN NEW ENGLAND WHO HAVE ADHERED STRICTLY TO THIS PLAN OF PREPAYING THE FREIGHT ON EVERYTHING SHIPPED BY US. We mean by this that while some other houses have shipped the goods, and allowed you to pay freight and afterwards send them a bill and then dicker on it for some time, We have invariably paid out the cash before the article left our freight sheds at Portland. And now notwithstanding the fact that we expect to lose a great deal of business by this this year there seems to be no other way to convince some people of the difference between OUR PAYING THE FREIGHT before the articles leave here, AND OUR CUSTOMERS PAYING THE FREIGHT after the articles get to the depot, and then having to write backwards and forwards over the matter. We wish to deal with perfect fairness and frankness in this matter, consequently we give you another month to make your selection, and to fill orders that are already placed. Now if you want a

KITCHEN RANGE, or a CHAMBER SET, or PARLOR SUIT, or CARPETS, WINDOW SHADES, DRAPERY CURTAINS,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

Kindly come and see us at once, or if you can not come, please write us for Catalogues and Descriptions of these Goods, and we will do our very best to please you in every one. Remember we carry COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHINGS. There is scarcely a thing that you require for your homes that we do not keep, and we sell the same and shall continue to sell the same for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. This notice applies TO ALL OUR STORES, and we have written to each of our MANAGERS to this effect, consequently there will be no more freight prepaid from our Bangor Store, Rockland Store, Auburn Store, Bar Harbor Store, Biddeford Store, nor from the Headquarters at Portland, after the 31st day of May, 1888.

Kindly get your orders in before June 1st, if you wish to save this freight.

Respectfully, the Public's Ob't Servants,

THE ATKINSON HOUSE FURNISHING CO.,

Headquarters Cor. Pearl and Middle Streets, Portland, and Branches at Auburn, Rockland, Bangor and Biddeford, also Bar Harbor for a short time.

ISAAC C. ATKINSON, Gen. Manager.

PARISH MEETING.

At a meeting of the Universalist society on Thursday, May 10th, Henry M. Clark, George M. Ayers, Edward J. Moulton and Andrew P. Wendell were elected wardens. The announcement was made that the church is now out of debt.

Base Ball.

The Portsmouths were practising at the Plains on Friday.

The game scheduled for to-day with the Melrose team, has been cancelled by Manager Leonard, owing to the ground not being in fit condition.

Manager Leonard received a telegram from Manager Clarkson of the Phillips' Exeter men, wishing a game with the Portsmouths at Exeter to-day. He accepted, and the Portsmouths will play their first game of the season there.

The Portsmouth management has decided to have one day every week when ladies will be admitted free. Thursday of next week will be ladies' day. It is the intention of the association to have everything of such character that ladies may attend the games even without an escort.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

PORTSMOUTH, May 10, 1888.

We, the undersigned contractors and builders, do hereby agree that on and after May 12, 1888, nine hours shall constitute a day's work, on Saturdays, for the men in our employ.

THE EASTERN'S SINKING FUND.

A bill has been reported in the Massachusetts legislature which provides that the sinking fund, either as now or hereafter existing, shall be invested in the certificates of indebtedness of the Eastern railroad company for cancellation whenever the certificates can be bought at prices not exceeding their fair value as compared with that of securities in which the savings banks of the commonwealth are authorized to invest their funds, and also whenever the corporation shall so request and shall furnish the trustees the difference in money to be fixed by them, between the price at which the amount of certificates so requested to be purchased can be obtained and the par value thereof. The effect of the passage of this bill will be to retire at once some $500,000 bonds (par value) of the Eastern railroad company, and increase by $30,000 the amount available for dividends.

NAVY YARD ITEMS.

The steam launch which left the navy yard recently for Winow's island, Me., to be used there as a tender on the naval quarantine hospital, arrived in Portland harbor at four o'clock in the afternoon on the same day she started; no further report had been heard from her up to the evening of the 11th inst., but she has no doubt reached her destination all right.

William Pinkham of Kittery Point, foreman of the riggers' gang at the navy yard, has been discharged, and is now a rigger. Ethan Locke of the Point having his old position of foreman. Wm. H. Muir, watchman at the steamer and boat landing, this week received notice that if his resignation was headed in before May 15th it would be accepted; otherwise he would be removed. His place, it is understood, is to be given to Mr. Albert Rowe of this city. There are rumors in the air—some of them so near the ground that they seem to have pretty good foundation—of other changes which will put old-line democrats whose treatment by this administration has made them very shaky on Cleveland, in the places of republicans who do not pretend to be anything but republicans.

The injuries received by Gunner Wilson, through getting jammed between two guns at the navy yard on the 9th inst., we are glad to learn are not serious.

The U. S. S. Swatara sails from the lower harbor for Norfolk, Va., this morning. It is said about seventy of her men have deserted since she went down to the lower harbor from the navy yard.

MARITINE NOTES.

The steamer Winthrop, of the New York and Portland line of freight and passenger steamers, ran ashore on a ledge close to the point of Cape Porpoise at two o'clock Friday morning, the 11th inst., and hung on the rocks until 10:26 A. M., when she backed off, and proceeded to Portland. She laid in a very bad position, and was fortunate to get off. She was leaking some, but is not supposed to be very badly injured.

PERSONAL.

Police Officer Eastman is on a ten days' vacation.

Congressman McKinney of this district has appointed John Francis Mahoney of Manchester to be a cadet at West Point.

C. Bernard Johnson, who was stabbed by Daniel Stevens on Tuesday evening, the 8th inst., was out on the street Friday.

Mr. Charles March Stephens of Kalamazoo, Mich., owner of the March estate in Greenland, was at the Rockingham house on Friday.

T. M. Hodgdon, formerly of this city, who was graduated at the Hartford Theological seminary May 10th inst., accepts a call to the assistant pastorate of the First Church of Christ, Middletown, Conn.

Superintendent Morss and the principals of the High, Jones, and Walker schools, with their assistants, were in Great Falls on Friday in attendance at the session of the Strafford County Teachers' Institute.

Mr. Thomas J. Leckey, formerly manager of the Baltimore & Ohio telegraph office in this city, has taken the position of clerk at the Kearsarge house. He was a courteous and obliging gentleman when in the telegraph office, and will undoubtedly be popular in his new position.

The Chronicle appeared in enlarged and improved form Monday morning, and has received many deserved congratulations upon its evident prosperity and desire to keep in the van of modern journalistic progress. A most valuable purveyor of local happenings and general information, it has for years been a most welcome guest at the breakfast table of the reading public of Portsmouth. That it may so continue in the future, is the wish of the Journal.—Portsmouth Journal.

Do not forget the "Battle of Gettysburg" in Music hall to-night.

Col. Sise S. F. E. Co. have been measured for new fire hats by Griffin, the Market square hatter.

The choir of the South Parish for the ensuing year will be as follows: Mrs. Frank Williams, soprano; Miss Emma M. Becker of Roslindale, Mass., alto; Mr. Thomas Chase of Seabrook, tenor; Mr. Charles W. Gray of this city, bass.

The Rockingham Quarterly Meeting of Free Baptists meets in Epping on Tuesday, the 15th inst., to continue three days.

At the regular meeting of Strawberry Bank Lodge, I. O. G. T., held on Wednesday evening of this week, the following-named officers were installed by Lodge Deputy Mrs. Mary Taylor, assisted by Installing Marshal Andrew Anderson and Deputy Installing Marshal Mrs. F. E. H. Marden: C. T., Henry Cook; V. T., Mrs. Cora Cook; S., Vina McCallin; A. S., Andrew Anderson; F. S., Jesse Wilson; T., John Somerby; C., Mrs. Mary Taylor; M., Arthur Wilson; D. M., Emma Whitney; G., William McCallin; S., Carrie A. Pettigrew; P. C. T., Joseph C. Pettigrew.

Parents should not forget the matinee in Music hall this (Saturday) afternoon, of "The Battle of Gettysburg." It is instructive and is given for a good cause—the fund of Storer Post, G. A. R. Children fifteen cents, adults twenty-five cents.

The chimney of the new Jones brewery, which has reached a height of over 100 feet, is to be 140 feet high when finished; it is being built by Mr. A. Bracket Trefethen.

The location of the light at the foot of Daniel street has been changed, and the landing places of the steamers Mystic and Emerald now both receive the full benefit of the light. The change is a decided improvement.

A few more good seats for the "Battle of Gettysburg" can be obtained this morning at Goodrich's book store.

Forepaugh's circus will pitch its tents in Portsmouth in June, and in the following months Miller & Freeman's circus will do likewise.

Thursday morning last Daniel Dacey, who has been awarded the contract to lay the pipes for the public water works in Dover, filed his bond of $15,000 with the mayor of that city, which was perfectly satisfactory to the solicitor. The gentleman on the bond are Frank Jones of this city, and James F. Gay and N. Haywood Fuller of Boston.

The steamer Mystic will make extra trips between this city and Kittery tonight to accommodate those who wish to attend the "Battle of Gettysburg."

A large crowd collected on Congress street in front of Preston's drug store on Friday evening, to see the Lougee Medicine Co. artist exhibit his skill in picture drawing.

The Provident Mutual Relief association of Concord has paid to Mrs. Kent, widow of Col. J. Horace Kent, $2000, the amount for which Col. Kent was insured in the association.

"Battle of Gettysburg," in Music hall to-night. Tickets at Goodrich's.

Have you seen that lot of Challi Dress Goods at 10 cts. per yard? If not, go to Lewis E. Staples' dry goods store, No. 7 Market street.

Elmer Foote, a seventeen year old son of George Foot, of the firm of Foote & Snell of Dover, was accidentally drowned in the river on Thursday. The boat in some unaccountable way capsized, and he not knowing how to swim, sank to the bottom. His body was recovered Friday evening.

The Concord railroad locomotive W. A. Tower is to be rebuilt. A new boiler is to be put in, and when the repairs are completed the machine will be the exact counterpart of the new engine Anson S. Marshall, recently sent out from the shops.

The man that succeeds nowadays is the live man, who is up to the times; and no better evidence of this is needed than the fact that every go-ahead housekeeper is never without Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

Fr. Mortara, a Catholic priest, who has created a sensation by his preaching at Madrid, Spain, is the Edgar Mortara, a Jewish child, born in Italy, whose education and alleged forcible abduction from his parents by the papal authorities caused great excitement thirty years ago.

The body is more susceptible to benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla now than at any other season. Therefore take it now.

The American Tract society has elected Dr. Franklin Carter of Williams college president, to succeed the late Rev. Mark Hopkins.

A writ of mandamus has been served on the mayor of Gloucester, Mass., ordering him to sign liquor licenses.

The importance of purifying the blood cannot be overestimated, for without pure blood you cannot enjoy good health.

At this season nearly every one needs a good medicine to purify, vitalize, and enrich the blood, and we ask you to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. It strengthens and builds up the system, creates an appetite, and tones the digestion, while it eradicates disease. The peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation of the vegetable remedies used give to Hood's Sarsaparilla peculiar curative powers. No other medicine has such a record of wonderful cures. If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other instead. It is a Peculiar Medicine, and is worthy your confidence.

Peculiar To Itself

Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold by all druggists. Prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Dissolution of Partnership.

THE Copartnership heretofore existing between James R. Morrison, Edward W. Riley and Edward T. Morrison, under the firm name of Frye & Co.'s Express, is this day dissolved by mutual agreement.

JAMES R. MORRISON,
EDWARD W. RILEY,
EDWARD T. MORRISON.

PORTSMOUTH, May 1st, 1888.

COPARTNERSHIP NOTICE.

WE, the undersigned, have this day formed a partnership under the firm name of Frye & Co.'s Express to succeed the firm of the same name.

JAMES R. MORRISON,
EDWARD T. MORRISON.

PORTSMOUTH, May 1st, 1888.

ARE WE NOT RIGHT?

In asking you the question,—If it is not better to purchase medicines and household remedies generally from people you know, and whose reputation is for exactitude, are we not right? We guarantee the

PRESTON JAMAICA GINGER

To be in all ways worthy of your confidence,—and strongly advise that it be kept in every household.

PRESTON'S SARSAPARILLA

Is perhaps the best general spring medicine ever offered to the people;—We always advise anyone, who may ask for information, that a physician be consulted in case of illness,—but to meet the wants of those desiring a medicine to take especially during the spring, when the system is racked and torn by the constantly changing weather, Preston's Sarsaparilla was introduced, and we constantly and confidently recommend it.

ARE WE NOT RIGHT?

THE MANDARIN.

While seated in his palanquin,
Rode Ling Gum Foo, a mandarin;
Some laundry people working nigh
Were hanging garments out to dry.
He beckoned with his golden fan
And thus addressed the nearest man:
"Why do the robes upon your line
Like glaciers of Alaska shine?
Since we set out from Ning Po Keen,
A finer sight I have not seen!"
"We washed those garments," answered he,
"With soap that's made beyond the sea,
The IVORY SOAP they call it there,
We find it good beyond compare."
Then said the mandarin profound:
"Go order me a thousand pound,
And they who use another kind
Shall prison cell and scaffold find!"

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory'!" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS

$22 TO $1000.

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture in these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, the highest honors have been awarded to them, over all competitors, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS.

GRAND & UPRIGHT.

Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

A Horrible Inheritance

The transmission of the fearful effects of contagious blood poison is certainly the most horrible inheritance which any man can leave to his innocent posterity. The curse contained in the Scriptural declaration: "The sins of the fathers shall be visited upon the children unto the third and fourth generation," can be certainly mitigated, and in the majority of cases, prevented, by the use of the antidote to the contagious blood poison which Nature herself furnishes, and which is to be found in its native purity and infallible efficacy in the remedy known all over the world as Swift's Specific—commonly called "S. S. S." As illustrative of this fact we give the following evidence—they are test cases, taken at random from hundreds of others of similar character:

Mr. J. H. Brown, of Hornsellville, N. Y., writes: Three years I suffered with this horrible disease. Swift's Specific cured me completely.

Prof. Edwin Baar, 234 E. Twenty-second street, New York, writes: Swift's Specific cured me of a fearful case of Blood Poison.

Dr. B. F. Wingfield, of the Soldier's Home, Richmond, Va., writes: Swift's Specific cured me of a severe case of Blood Poison.

D. W. K. Hess, Brooklyn, N. Y.: I was a perfect wreck from Blood Poison. Specific restored health and hope, and I am well today.

C. W. Langhill, Savannah, Ga.: I have suffered a long time with Blood Poison. I tried Swift's Specific and am now a perfectly well man.

A. W. Buell, of Power's Hotel, Rochester, N. Y., writes: It is the best blood remedy on earth. I cured myself with it. I recommended it to a friend of mine, a well know business man, and it made him well.

Mr. F. L. Stanton, editor of the Smithville, Ga., News, writes that a friend of his was afflicted with a severe case of Blood Poison, and that two bottles of S. S. S. effected a complete cure. He tried every other remedy in vain.

Mr. J. R. Kellogg, Stamford, Conn., writes, December 16, 1887: Your S. S. S. is doing for me what ought to have been done long ago. It has done me more good in one week than all the medicines I have ever taken. Would I had gotten it before! But "all's well that ends well." It will make a new man of me, and I thank God that I have found it at last!

A DISTRESSING COUGH.

How many, especially during the Fall and Winter months, are troubled with a Cough, sometimes dry and hacking, sometimes loose causing the sufferer to raise a large amount of offensive matter; this can soon be cured by using Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific, which acts directly on the Throat and Lungs.

Cured her Cough.

MRS. JEREMIAH CLARK, Lowell, Mass., says: "Twelve years ago I first took a bottle of your Throat and Lung Specific. I had been troubled with a very bad Cough for months. A 50-cent bottle cured my Cough. Since then I have not been without it. I can heartily recommend it to any one who has a bad cough."

Saved his Life.

CHAS. A. WAITT, says: "No language can express the value I attach to your Specific. I believe it saved my life."

We would cite other testimonials did we think it necessary, but a trial bottle will convince you that it is all we represent. Give it a trial.

GLAMOUR LAND.

Ah, dim, lost Glamour land!
On whose confines I stand,
Longing for home that shall be home no more!
There stood my palace grand,
Where now, on either hand,
The fiery swords of seraphs guard the door.

There once I roamed to cull
Dear hopes more beautiful
Than siren thoughts that musing monks resist;
Nothing too far or fair
But its mirage was there,
Pictured upon the valley's rosy mist.

There each sweet day I heard
Songs of a brooding bird,
Telling of purest pleasures yet to be;
There, by the singing streams
Faint forms of darling dreams
Loitered and lingered hand in hand with me.

Ah! dim, dear Fancy land!
Thy welkin, rainbow-spanned,
The softest light of halcyon hours o'erpast,
Fading away, away,
All the expanse is gray—
As fades the summer moon, too fair to last.

Cremation and Embalming.

Thus heroic men were crystallized into imaginary figures of gods, and in time the notion was conceived of retaining the matter for the re-reception of the spirit. Thereupon sprang forth two methods of disposal of the dead—one, the subjection of the body to fire; the other, the subjection of it to a process that should save it from decay. Strange it may seem that two plans so different in effect should have the same origin. Yet the fact is so. The institution of the process of burning the body, from whatever source or suggestion it may have been derived, had no touch of materialistic feeling. The men who transformed their greatest men into gods, and who carried out their young dead to the funeral pile before sunrise, that the sun should not be the witness of so terrible a calamity as the cessation of life while yet it had not neared its perfected glory, were not men tainted with the doctrine of negation after death. Not at all! The burning to which they subjected the dead body was to them a process of purification for the soul, which, left unclean in its earthly state, required to be made perfect by the absolute purification of the casement in which it had been enshrined on the earth. They subjected it, therefore, to the pur, the great purifier—the fire. Further, they thought in this purification that that they sooner set free the indestructible principle of life, to enter the more speedily into the domains of the blessed. This was the Greek ideal of cremation, and it colors still many thoughts of man. It is the root of a faith to the present hour, though differently symbolized.

The process of embalming had its origin in a similar but in another current of development. The noblest human representation was by the Greek subjected to the most consummate purification, that it might be freed of dross of earth. By another intellectual process the effort was attempted to preserve the animal body so that it might, in the course of the suns and at some strange and eventful moment, be united with the principle that had left it and revivify. Again, in this ideal projection we see the origin of a thought that remains still in the many thoughts of mankind, the root of a faith symbolized differently, but a faith of millions of our race. The art of embalming, founded on this last named ideal, developed—gained a second hold—from the lower or instinctive interests of humanity. It led to the retainment of those who on earth had been loved and admired, nearer and longer, as it seemed, with those who lived to love, to remember, to admire. For this reason the practice of embalming great personages has retained its place, while recently, in a country among the most civilized and the most advancing—America—the practice has received advancement, not merely in its application to the great dead, but to the dead generally, among those in whom the tie of attachment is closest and most abiding.—Esclepiad.

In a Persian Vineyard.

Hassan and I rode out to a big vineyard near Gulack, in the foot hills of the Elburz mountains, to pick out the necessary quantity of grapes. Hassan said it was best to buy them on the vines and leave them there until we were ready for them. We found the vineyard inclosed within substantial mud walls twenty feet high. A little stream of water flowed beneath an opening in the wall at one side, and out again on the other. The water was used for irrigating the vines.

Instead of being trained up posts or trellis work, the vines were trailing over long ridges of dry earth. The soil of the vineyard was piled up in long mounds or ridges about four feet high. The vines were planted in the trenches, and grew over the ridges. These latter were made perpendicular on the south side, but slanting on the north. The vines are trailed up the northern slopes so as to benefit by the oblique rays of the sun, which are supposed to be better for the grapes than direct rays.

Several varieties of grapes were in the vineyard, from little white grapes called kishmish, from which are made the sultana raisins of commerce, to big black grapes almost the size of egg plums.—Thomas Stevens in New York Sun.

How Actors Should Speak.

On the question of articulation I sum up what I have to say in this axiom. The actor must not speak as people talk; he must recite.

Recite truly, recite naturally, and all will be well; but whatever you do, recite.

For to recite is, of course, a sort of speaking (it ought never to be a sort of singing); but at the same time it means the giving to essential phrases and words their proper value, passing lightly here, and in another place, on the contrary, laying stress with an inflection of the voice. To recite means to distribute the plane surfaces and the reliefs, the light and the shade. In other words, reciting is modeling.

The phrase which is quite plain and matter of fact when spoken in ordinary conversational tone becomes supple and warm when it is recited; it takes form, in short, and becomes a thing of art.—C. Coquelin in Harper's Magazine.

"Rough on Rabbits."

Pasteur's proposal to rid Australia of its rabbit plague by infecting the rabbits with chicken cholera has met with deservedly severe criticism on the ground that these lower organisms on which chicken cholera and other contagions depend develop objectionable peculiarities under Australian conditions. Another Frenchman has discovered that a parasite which causes wasting disease in man will produce tubercular disease in hares; and it is "on the cards" that he, too, may compete for the Australian rabbit prize by introducing this disease among the bunnies. The circle will be complete when the Australian rabbit, infected with strongylus by the sensational Frenchman, is unsuspectingly eaten by the Australian stockman only to find himself the victim of anchylostromosis.—Chicago News.

None but the contemptible are apprehensive of contempt.

The Earth Exhales Poison

To the air in localities where vegetation, rotted by freshets, is laid bare to the sun's rays by the retiring flood. Millions of square acres, in the vicinity of the great tributaries of the Mississippi and the Missouri in the South and Southwest, give forth this fever-laden miasmatic vapor, disseminating malarial pestilence broadcast. Not only throughout the great West, but wherever on this continent fever and ague makes its periodic appearance—and what locality is wholly exempt from it?—Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the recognized defense, the most highly accredited and popular means of cure. Fever and ague, billious remittent, dumb ague and ague cake are eradicated by it. Nor is it less potent when used to remove constipation, liver complaint and dyspepsia, kidney troubles, nervousness and rheumatic ailments. Use it upon the first appearance of these troubles, and with persistence.

A meeting has been called for the 17th inst., in Dublin, to discuss the pope's rescript.

We think we can cure a bad case of backache quicker with one of Carter's Smart Weed and Belladonna Backache Plasters, than by any other application, and after the backache is cured, you can still wear the plaster without discomfort for two or three weeks, or longer. This combination of Smart Weed and Belladonna is a great bit, and it is hard to find any pain or ache that will not yield to it. Price 25 cents. Sold by druggists everywhere.

Mayor Hewitt denies the assertion that he ever apologized to the British minister.

Ayer's Pills are the best cathartic for correcting irregularities of the stomach and bowels. Gentle, yet thorough in their action, they cure constipation, stimulate the appetite and digestive organs, and strengthen the system.

The Deleware democratic convention indorsed Cleveland, Bayard and the Mills tariff bill.

Not one in twenty are free from some little ailments caused by inaction of the liver. Use Carter's Little Liver Pills. The result will be a pleasant surprise. They give positive relief.

Nathaniel Hatch, a New York broker, in escaping from the house of a jealous husband, fell and was killed.

That feeling of weariness, so often experienced in the spring, results from a sluggish condition of the blood which, being impure, does not quicken with the changing season. Ayer's Sarsaparilla, by vitalizing and cleansing the blood, strengthens and invigorates the system.

Ex-Governor Downey, who is seventy years of age and a millionaire, has married Rose Kelley, his housekeeper, aged forty.

Benj. W. Patton, of Globe Village, Mass., says: "Having sold Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry for many years, and used it in my family with the most satisfactory results, I can with confidence say that in my estimation it is the best remedy in the market for coughs, colds and throat and lung diseases."

Fireburgs are at work at Sanford Station, Conn.

What a Mistake!

A careful examination would convince any one that two-thirds of all the people in New England have been or are now afflicted with the catarrh of the nose and throat.

No doubt more than half of these persons have tried every blood purifier they have seen, with the erroneous idea that catarrh is a constitutional disease and must be purged out of the blood.

What a greater mistake was never made! Stop for a moment and think or ask any reputable physician what common catarrh is, and what causes it, and the answer can be only this. "It is an irritation or inflammation of the mucous membrane of the nose and throat, caused by neglected colds, damp piercing irritable winds, foreign matter in the air which is poisonous to some persons and not to others; just as the bites of certain insects is a poisoned torture to some and has no unpleasant effect upon others." The reason for this is found in the different structure of the outer skin and its counterpart which lines all the inner organs of our bodies. Some people have chapped hands and chillblains and others are never so afflicted because of the peculiar structure of the skin of different individuals.

Therefore stop dosing. It is not blood purifiers you want, but good wholesome food, the plainer the better, then "keep your feet dry and warm, your head cool and bowels open," and use an external application, (Johnson's Anodyne Liniment is the best we know,) to allay the inflammation, cleanse the surface, heal the sores, and your catarrh will disappear like magic. We do not say never to return, because you may cure a severe cold and in three months catch another equally bad, so with catarrh and bronchical troubles. Exposure may bring it on again. We learned more about treating catarrh from the wrapper around a bottle of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, than we ever knew. Certainly this good old medicine deserves to be called "A universal family remedy." No matter how well you know this medicine it will pay you to send to I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass., for a pamphlet free, just to learn how to use the liniment economically. A teaspoonful properly used will often do more good than a half bottle as some people use it.

How to Catch $300,000 at Fortune's Hand.

As the sun rises and sets daily with equal regularity, so the drawings of The Louisiana State Lottery Company occur; so the 216th Grand Monthly Drawing was at New Orleans, La., on Tuesday (always Tuesday), April 10th, when large money prizes were sent hither and yon over the world. It may interest you to glance at the result: The First Capital Prize of $150,000 was won by No. 12,515 and was sold in two half tickets at $25 each, both through office at Washington, D. C., to M. A. Dauphin, New Orleans, La.; one $75,000 was paid through First Nat'l Bank of Fitsburg, Pa., to Col. W. H. Barclay, the U. S. Pension Agent there; the other half was sold in Adams Express for Geo. Grogg and three other workers in an India Rubber factory—neighbors—at No. 1,326 Aller St., Philadelphia, Pa. No. 10,562 drew the Second Capital Prize of $50,000, sold in fractional tenths at $1 each, sent to M. A. Dauphin, New Orleans, La.; one paid to Jno. Bohrer, Richmond, Va.; one to Chas. F. Morse, No. 880 Harrison, Ave., Bostyn, Mass.; one to the Nat'l Bank of the Republic, Washington, D. C.; one to R. J. Humphreys, Santa Rosa, through the Pacific Bank of San Francisco, Cal.; one to Thos. Fair, Philadelphia, Pa.; one to W. A. Francis, Salem, Va.; one to Wm. Severance, Lebanon, Ky.; one to a depositor through Wells, Fargo & Co., San Francisco, Cal.; one to a party in Detroit, Mich., etc., etc. No. 10,079 drew the Third Capital Prize of $20,000, which was sold to a party in New Orleans, La., whose name is withheld by request. Nos. 36,629 and 85,173 each drew one of the Fourth Capital Prizes of $10,0 0, which were scattered around promiscuously. Be sure to participate in the Grand Quarterly and 217th Grand Monthly Drawing at New Orleans, La., on Tuesday, June 12th, 1888. The Boisterous Atlantic

Is a terror to timid voyagers, scarcely less on account of the perils of the deep than the almost certainty of sea sickness. The best curative of mal de mer is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which settles the stomach at once and prevents its disturbance. To all travellers and tourists, whether by sea or land, it presents a happy medium between the nauseous or ineffectual resources of the medicine chest, and the problematical benefit derivable from an unmedicated alcoholic stimulant, no matter how pure. The jarring of a railroad car often produces stomachic disorders akin to that caused by the rolling of a ship. For this the Bitters is a prompt and certain remedy. The use of brackish water, particularly on long voyages in the tropics, inevitably breeds disorders of the stomach and bowels. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters mixed with impure water nullifies its impurities. Similarly it counteracts malarial and other prejudicial influences of climate or atmosphere, as well as the effects of exposure and fatigue. Use it for kidney complaints, rheumatism and debility.

The suit for a receiver of the Boston, Concord & Montrial railroad is withdrawn under a compromise agreement with the Boston & Maine road. The dispute is to be settled by arbitration.

That Tired Feeling

Season is here again, and nearly every one feels weak, languid and exhausted. The blood, laden with impurities which have been accumulating for months, moves sluggishly through the veins, the mind fails to think quickly, and the body is still slower to respond. Hood's Sarsaparilla is just what is needed. It is, in a peculiar sense, the ideal spring medicine. It purifies, vitalizes and enriches the blood, makes the head clear, creates an appetite, overcomes that tired feeling, and imparts new strength and vigor to the whole body.

THE COLONEL'S WATCH.

Sunday, July 7, 1877. A great crowd had assembled on Liberty street, in the city of Pittsburg. For squares nothing was visible on pavements or roadway but a sea of heads. Far up the broad thoroughfare came the glare of a conflagration, growing redder as the darkness fell. Over the crowd was a hush, as if loud words were treason. The first day of pillage and destruction in the great railway riots was over; but mob rule was still in the ascendant. What was to be the next lawless act?

The crowd was made up of all grades of men, called from their homes by the momentous events of the day. The wildest rumors passed from mouth to mouth. The red glare up the street might be the forerunner of the destruction of Pittsburg; none could tell. It was a period of uncertainty; of lawlessness. Little wonder that men gathered in knots to discuss the rumors, speaking low and earnestly.

A ragged boy came swaggering through the throng with some brooms on his shoulder, fruits of the pillage of the freight cars on the Pennsylvania railway tracks. Little attention was paid to the child, as the day just closing had been prolific of such sights, and he would have passed unnoticed had he not encountered an elderly gentleman, against whose broad and portly person a broom handle came in rude contact.

"Begone, you whelp!" exclaimed the old gentleman, turning savagely on the boy.

"I'm no whelp!" retorted the gamin. "Keep out of my way!"

"I'll hand you over to the police," growled the gentleman, indignantly.

"Police!" jeered the boy, grinning. "I wish you would. I'd like to see what a cop looks like. I feel 'bout as big as the mayor myself."

The gentleman looked at the child, amazed, indignant. The couple represented society's extremes. The gentleman, while not dressed extravagantly, had the air of a man of wealth and position. The child was scarcely 14 years of age, slightly built, raggedly clad, but with face impudent and triumphant. Mob rule was reflected in his every action.

"I tell you, old man," said he, with the same exasperating grin, "it was jolly! Did you see the cars burn? Did you see the depot and the grain elevator go down? Did you see 'm whack open the whisky barrels and scatter big boxfuls o' crackers? Talk about yer picnics!"

"Good!" cried a full bearded man, patting the boy on the back. "You're a brick, me lad."

"Aha!" growled the doughty old gentleman, anger getting the better of his judgment, "you're a pack of rioters—yes, sir; a pack of rioters."

A score of men crowded about the trio.

"Softly, softly!" said he of the full beard. "It's the poor man's turn now, old bond clipper!"

"Right enough," responded half a dozen voices.

"We'll get fair wages now," continued the full bearded man.

"You'll likely starve!" retorted the old gentleman.

"No fault of yours if we don't," cried the man, angrily planting himself directly in front of his opponent.

"Stand aside, sir!" said the old gentleman moving off.

"I'm no dog!" The man stood firm.

Unfortunately, and with no intention of provoking violence, the gentleman brushed the man rather roughly in passing. The result was a blow that felled him to the ground. Attracted by the loud words and the scuffle, men crowded in from all sides.

"Are you hurt, Col. Bond?" asked one, assisting the gentleman to rise.

"Hurt! Where is the scoundrel?"

"At your elbow, and no scoundrel, either!" cried the man, shaking a great red fist at the colonel. "It was the scoundrel that had to be picked up!"

A laugh ran through the crowd; some hooted.

"Of all the picnics!" laughed the boy with the brooms.

"Come, come, colonel," said the friend, leading him away; "this is no place for you."

"I reckon not!" jeered the boy.

Col. Bond's anger was at fever heat, but what recourse had he? The man who had struck him was an entire stranger, and had he been known there was no law to punish him. The sympathies of the crowd were all with the workman, for such he seemed to be. The colonel's language in such a crowd and on such an occasion had been foolish and inflammatory. Standing over a keg of powder, he had been unwise enough to drop fire into it.

"I'll go home," he said. "The town's going to the devil. A man's life is not safe in the streets."

And home he went in a towering rage. When dropping into an easy chair in his sitting room, he noticed for the first time that his watch chain dangled loose. He felt in his vest pocket for his timepiece; it was gone! Not only had he been knocked down, grossly insulted; he had also been robbed. The old heirloom, the watch that he had carried since he reached manhood, had been stolen. Grieved to the heart at the loss, he paced up and down the room unable to control himself.

"The scoundrel!" he said. "Who would have taken him for a thief? I said some cutting things to him, and he knocked me down. I half deserved it, I confess; but to rob me! I'd never have suspected the man of that. The query is, how can I find him, or get the watch?"

In a day or two the newspapers contained this advertisement:

"Lost—On Liberty street, near Sixth, July 7, an old fashioned gold timepiece, with name engraved on it. A liberal reward will be paid and no questions asked, if returned to No. 67 —— avenue."

On the morning of July 8 a man with a very red face sauntered into the colonel's private office at the mill, took aim at the cuspidore, missed it, but sat down in the utmost good humor. The colonel looked up from his desk, wonderingly.

"Col. Bond, I believe?" observed the red faced stranger.

"Yes, sir."

"I understand you sent for me, colonel."

"Sent for you?" Col. Bond's eyebrows arched in surprise.

"Certainly; I'm Sneakwell, the detective."

"Pardon me, Mr. Sneakwell, your face is new to me. There is a little matter I would like to have you look into."

"No harm done, colonel. What can I do for you?"

"Last evening about dusk I was knocked down on Liberty street and robbed of an old timepiece. The watch would only be worth old gold to a stranger; but I value it as a keepsake."

"I see, colonel. Describe the man that slugged you."

"He was dressed like a workman, had a full beard, and was about my own height, I should judge."

"Any peculiarities?"

"None that I observed."

"What color was his hair?"

"I really can't say."

"Blue eyes, black, brown?"

"There you have me, Mr. Sneakwell. Understand, I was angry and it was growing dark. I can recall very little of the man's appearance. The only striking thing about him was his fist."

Mr. Sneakwell cogitated, measured the distance to the cuspidore with his eye, and spat at it with official gravity, missing it as before.

"Did the man carry a dinner bucket?" he asked.

"No."

"You was in a big crowd?"

"Yes."

"Well, colonel, it's just this way: You was in a crowd, you can't describe the man closely, you don't know which way he went or whether he had any pals. All you know is he handled his fists like a good 'un. You couldn't testify that he robbed you. Very well; the clew is slight, but I'll work it up. You're in good hands, colonel; don't fret. Give me a little time and leave it all to me. I'll get your watch."

"I sincerely hope so, Mr. Sneakwell. Have a cigar?"

"Will I? Never known to refuse. Good day, colonel."

Col. Bond, albeit a little brusque and hasty at times, was a man of naturally generous impulses. He allowed Mr. Sneakwell abundance of time. That worthy man frequently called at his office in a hopeful frame of mind, expectorating freely on rugs and carpets, and in one instance deluging the office cat in mistake for the cuspidore. But the watch was not found. Clew after clew was worked up, but nothing came of it. The newspaper advertisement was quite as unsuccessful. Col. Bond grew discouraged.

Meantime law had resumed its sway in the Iron City, and business went on in its old chandels. The momentous days of the riots became a part of history, with less and less said about them.

On opening his mail one morning in August, Col. Bond found a curiously addressed letter, written in a crude and irregular hand. It said:

To Conl Bond:

DERE SUR—Mi Boy tom is sick of Feaver he talks About yo and ses hes got some Thing of yores hes very sick raves sometimes i wish yo could cum to see Him i liv at No. 23 —— Aly mi old man workkd in yore Mil ded now theas fore yers. with Grate respect, yore frend, NANCY WELSH.

Col. Bond was mystified. What did it mean? He had never heard of such a person as Nancy Welsh. He learned that a man named Welsh had worked in the mill; but it had been years before. He laid the letter aside in his desk, and, engrossed in other matters, soon forgot all about it.

In a few days the postman brought another letter, addressed in the same hand. Curiously he opened it and read:

DERE SUR, mi Boy is wors He wants to se yo cum Sune god Knows what I'l do if tom dies Dont tare this Leter up Conl Bond for tom's sake cum god wil bless yo for it.

yore frend, NANCY WELSH.

The colonel thought the matter over.

"Why shouldn't I go?" he said. "The poor woman is evidently in trouble. I'll walk up to the place and look at it."

In one of the meanest quarters of the city be found No. 23 —— alley. He stopped in front of the house, hesitating. Dirty children were playing in the alley; a venerable goat was chewing papers in the gutter. A woman appeared on the doorstep.

"God bless you, Col. Bond!" she said. "Come in."

He had never seen the woman before; but he went in. The room he entered was mean and small.

"Tom is up stairs, sir," said the woman. "He kept a saying you'd come, sir. Will you come up? He'll be so glad!"

With curiosity excited, the colonel followed her, as she led the way up a dark and narrow flight of stairs. He was ushered into a room darkened so that he could distinguish very little.

"Col. Bond is here, Tom," said the mother.

A weak voice answered:

"Let me see him, mother."

A blind was raised just a little, and Col. Bond saw the sick boy lying on a bed in a corner of the room. The thin and feverish face was that of a stranger; but there was a smile of welcome on it.

"I knew you'd come, sir," said the boy, with a breathing pause between each word. "Mother said no; but I looked for you."

"How long has the little fellow been sick?" asked the colonel.

"A long time, sir," answered the boy himself. "Sit down near me; I've something to—to"—the voice grew husky, choked.

"He's so weak," said the mother, bending over him.

"I'm near you, my boy," said the colonel.

"Do you know me, sir?"

"No, my boy."

"But you have seen me, sir. You were angry at me once."

"I don't remember; I think not."

"But you were, sir. Don't you mind the day of the riots, when—when?"—the voice grew very indistinct.

"I remember a boy carrying brooms ran against me on Liberty street," said the colonel.

"That was me, sir. That's what I wanted to see you about."

Light began to break in upon the colonel.

"I'm sorry to see you so sick, my boy. Maybe I can help you."

"I wish you could, sir. I want to get well. Mother needs me. But listen to me. I've got something of yours, Mother!"

"What is it, Tommy?"

"Get my box."

The mother fumbled in a bureau drawer, bringing forth a grimy pine box. She opened it and placed it on the bed at Tom's side. It was filled with boyish curiosities and keepsakes. Tom took out something bright and laid it in the colonel's hand. It was the treasured old timepiece! Mute with astonishment, Col. Bond looked at the boy in wonderment. Going to the window, he held the old watch up to the light, opened it, examined it critically and came back to the bedside firmly grasping it in his hand.

"I wanted to tell you, sir," said the boy, "I've had the watch ever since that night. I cribbed it, sir."

"You did nothing of the kind!" cried the colonel, warmly. "Nobody ever blamed you for taking it. It was the man that knocked me down!"

"No, sir," said the boy, positively. "He didn't do it. The watch fell out of your pocket in the fight. I picked it up, sir. Nobody saw me. I took it home with me."

"But he never intended to keep it," urged the mother.

"Certainly not," said the colonel, earnestly.

"But I did. I meant to keep it!"

"Oh, Tommy! Tommy!" moaned the mother, bursting into tears.

"I'll never believe it, Tom," cried Col. Bond, pressing the boy's thin hand. "I'll take care of you, my boy. What doctor have you, madam?"

"None, sir; the neighbors help us"——

"No doctor! The devil! Take this and get the best doctor you know. Give the boy whatever he needs. Don't worry about him, madam; he'll soon be about again. Look for me back to-morrow morning."

The colonel was gone. Under his brusqueness there was a big heart, and Tom had touched it. Next morning early a carriage stopped at the nearest point to 23 —— alley that a vehicle could reach. Col. Bond alighted from it and hurried to the little home. The wretchedness of the place, the suffering and poverty of Tom and his mother had excited his sympathies to the utmost. He had been a busy man of affairs, and charity was something that he had hitherto left to his wife. The mother answered his impatient knock.

"I want to take Tom to more comfortable quarters," he said. "He needs better care and better diet. He's got the making of a good man in him, and I'll take care of him. I'll not forget you, either, madam"——

He paused; the look of unutterable pain on the woman's face staggered him. There was an unnatural stillness in the house.

"What has happened, my good woman?"

"Tom is dead," she said, simply.—H. D. Mason in Pittsburg Bulletin.

The Books Worth Reading.

Go into a second hand book stall. Under the dust on the rows of dilapidated volumes you may by chance find some book with worn and faded cover, with stained and ragged leaves—a book long "out of print." Hidden by that miserable body there may be a heart of gold. The name on the title page may be one you never heard, and yet this book may record the stumbles in the dark of some bold adventurer who has dared to step out beyond the light. It may have its errors, its blunders, its follies, its absurdities, but if it is the record of the original thought of a thinker who turned the human mind to new directions, who gave new impulses to human energy, it will be worth more as a help to original thought than all the encyclopædias in all the libraries.

Such a book is not second hand. It never will be second hand. The second hand books stand gaudy in their newness, glittering with gold and color if they are "popular editions," chased in roan, calf, Russia and marble paper if they are for the "gentleman's library." But within them, what? Seldom anything but shreds and patches. Burton, the most honest of all retailers of second hand ideas, concluded, as the result of his own pilfering, that all books are second hand. It was a pilferer's conclusion. There is no lack of books which embody original thought, the result of original search. The trouble is to find them.—St. Louis Republican.

The Inventor of Dynamite.

The world has lost one of its greatest experimental chemists by the death of Alfred Nobel, the inventor of dynamite, and the man who made the wide use of nitro-glycerine practicable. The new explosive that Sombrero discovered in Paris forty-one years ago, by treating glycerine with sulphuric and nitric acid, was never practically applied until after years of experimenting. Nobel succeeded in producing nitro-glycerine in a form that admitted of comparatively safe handling.

The knowledge of which Nobel's long investigations were the fruit was not obtained without the sacrifice of some human lives. Among the victims of the terrible explosive he perfected was one of his brothers. Nobel was a Swede, and in the quarries of that country he first demonstrated the efficacy of nitro-glycerine in its improved form. It was not long, however, before the use of nitro-glycerine for blasting purposes was superseded by Nobel's later discovery of dynamite, which is now generally regarded as the safest as well as one of the most powerful of explosives.—New York Sun.

THE MOST WONDERFUL FAMILY REMEDY EVER KNOWN. LINIMENT

Paine's Celery Compound

WEAK NERVES

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND is a Nerve Tonic which never fails. Containing Celery and Coca, those wonderful nerve stimulants, it speedily cures all nervous disorders.

RHEUMATISM

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND purifies the blood. It drives out the lactic acid, which causes Rheumatism, and restores the blood-making organs to a healthy condition. It is the true remedy for Rheumatism.

KIDNEY COMPLAINTS

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND quickly restores the liver and kidneys to perfect health. This curative power, combined with its nerve tonics, makes it the best remedy for all kidney complaints.

DYSPEPSIA

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND strengthens the stomach, and quiets the nerves of the digestive organs. This is why it cures even the worse cases of Dyspepsia.

CONSTIPATION

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND is not a cathartic. It is a laxative, giving easy and natural action to the bowels. Regularity surely follows its use.

March April May

Are the best months in which to purify your blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best blood purifier.

At no other season does the human system so much need the aid of a reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla, as now. The impoverished condition of the blood, the weakening effects of the long, cold winter, the lost appetite, and that tired feeling, all make a good spring medicine absolutely necessary. Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiarly adapted for this purpose, and increases in popularity every year. It is the ideal spring medicine.

"I must say Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine I ever used. Last spring I had no appetite, and the least work I did fatigued me ever so much. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and soon felt that I could do as much in a day as I had formerly done in a week. My appetite is voracious." MRS. M. V. BAYARD, Atlantic City, N. J.

That Tired Feeling

Afflicts nearly every one in the spring. The system having become accustomed to the bracing air of winter, is weakened by the warm days of the changing season, and readily yields to attacks of disease. Hood's Sarsaparilla is just the medicine needed. It tones and builds up every part of the body, and also expels all impurities from the blood. Try it this season.

They Evidently Forget.

The democratic state conventions of Vermont and Maryland shouted long and loud for Cleveland, but forgot to cheer for, or even to mention, civil service reform. As the Vermont convention was run by Hiram Atkins, who had over eighty democratic postmasters and nearly every other federal officer in the state working under him as henchmen of this wonderful "reform" administration, and the the Maryland convention was controlled by the friends of Higgins, late appointment clerk and ballot-box thief, and of Gorman, Higgins' "patron," this omission of civil-service-reform endorsement must have been due to forgetfulness. Nobody knows better than those fellows the need of it.

A six-days go-as-you-please race in Madison Square Garden at New York last week resulted as follows: Littlewood 611 miles; Guerrero 590; Herty 572; Noremac 533; Golden 529; Hughes 495; Campana 380. The general interest in the race was very small.

We Don't Want Them.

A Vienna despatch of the 11th says: By order of the Austrian minister of justice, Chief Detective Baron Splenyi arrested at the railway station here to-day the chief Vienna agent of the Anchor Steamship company and another agent, named Eichhorn, who had charge of a batch of Hungarian peasants booked to America. Both are charged with abducting men liable to military service, and with extorting money under false pretences. The peasants have returned to their homes, and the agents have been imprisoned and their papers seized.

Reunion of Murderers.

Sixteen of Quantrell's old band of guerillas held a reunion at Blue Springs, Mo., May 11th. When the roll was called it was learned that but seventeen more of the infamous band than those present are living, among them being the noted thief Frank James. Mrs. Caroline Quantrell, mother of the savage ruffian, and now a resident of Canal Dover, Ohio, was present and answered for her son. The men spoke of their bloody murders and fiendish crimes without the slightest hesitancy, and as some particularly atrocious plot was unravelled by a good narrator, a voice would break in with a correction or a corroboration, ever anxious to be counted as one of the raiders. W. H. Gregg of Independence, Mo., the first lieutenant of the gang, was the highest officer present, and aided in many reminiscences. The war was waged over in all its bloody fury and fiendish cruelty, and the grizzly-haired men rivalled each

"A GREEN OLD AGE."

Few Men or Women Reach It, But Nearly All Might—The Remarkable Experience of an Octogenarian.

"There is only one thing I dread," said the late Charles Sumner, "and that is the coming on of old age."

Mr. Sumner was a brave man, and could face danger unflinchingly but to watch the hairs whiten, the lines of pain and care grow deep in the face, to feel the strength and activity going and death coming on, were more than he could bear. Alas! how many others feel the same today. Pains, loss of sleep, weakness, poor appetite, and feebleness, all break the spirit. Have you never heard of Mr. Nathan Chase, of New Bedford, Mass.? A man nearly four-score years old, and hale and hearty as in youth. And yet he was supposed to be dying of heart trouble less than two years ago. Here is what he says:

"A year ago or more I began to lose flesh and strength. I sent for my physician to know the cause. He examined me, and said it was my heart; that the old machinery was wearing out, and I must be careful. Still I grew worse. Finally I got so bad I could scarcely breathe; I could not lie in bed but had to sit up all night with possibly one hour's sleep out of twenty-four. And yet to-day, I am in fine condition; can go up three flights of stairs without inconvenience, and feel as well and about as young as ever in my life before. What accomplished this? Hunt's Remedy—nothing else. It has made a new man of me, and I bless God for it every day."

Such an experience should be a valuable lesson to all readers, both old and young. It shows that a long and happy life is possible. It shows that men or women need not despond. It shows that by care and the use of the right remedy health, happiness and long life may be secured by all.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Combines, in a proportion peculiar to itself, the active medicinal properties of the best blood-purifying and strengthening remedies of the vegetable kingdom. It will positively cure—when in the power of medicine—Spring Debility, Headache, Dyspepsia, Catarrh, Salt Rheum, Scrofula, and all Diseases caused by a low state of the blood.

"I suffered three years with blood poison. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and think I am cured." MRS. M. J. DAVIS, Brockport, N. Y.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla beats all others, and is worth its weight in gold." I. BARRINGTON, 130 Bank Street, New York City.

Is so vastly superior to any other sarsaparilla or blood purifier, that one has well said: "Its health-giving effects upon the blood and entire human organism, are as much more positive than the remedies of a quarter or a century ago, as the steam-power of to-day is in advance of the slow and laborious drudgery of years ago."

"While suffering from a severe bilious attack in March, 1883, a friend in Peoria, Ill., recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla. I tried the remedy, and was permanently cured." J. A. SHEPARD, travelling agent for Devoe & Co., Fulton Street, N. Y.

Purifies the Blood

"I tried a dozen articles to cleanse my blood, but never found anything that did me any good till I began using Hood's Sarsaparilla." W. H. PEER, Rochester, N. Y.

"My wife was troubled with dizziness and constipation, and her blood has been in a bad order—in fact she has been all run down. Hood's Sarsaparilla is doing her a wonderful amount of good." F. M. BALDWIN, druggist, Blanchester, Ohio.

"I was for five years a sufferer with boils, all run down, and was at one time obliged to give up work. Before taking all of two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, was entirely cured." R. M. LANE, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. Took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND, MAINE,

To those who are contemplating the purchase of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

GREETING:

On and after June 1st we shall STOP PREPAYING the FREIGHT on GOODS SOLD by us, and we respectfully request that those who have dealt with us, and who have been BENEFITED by the PAYMENT OF THIS FREIGHT which in itself in the past three years has amounted to some

30,000 DOLLARS,

Will order what GOODS they require for this SPRING, from us this month, and please order as early as possible. And to those who intend buying

Chamber Sets, Parlor Suits, Carpets, Lounges, Easy Chairs, Mattresses, Springs, Silver-ware, Window Shades, Drapery, Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Stoves and Ranges, Feathers, Feather Pillows, Spreads, Blankers,

And anything else in HOUSE FURNISHING, can be BENEFITED to the extent of the freight to their depot, by buying from us this month. We have always PREPAID THIS FREIGHT FROM OUR OWN PROFITS, as we have invariably made the price on the

Furniture, Carpets,

Etc., lower than could be bought for elsewhere. There has always been a great advantage derived by our prepayment of the freight because we in every instance GUARANTEE the SAFE DELIVERY of the goods, and if there has ever been a fight to make with the railroad, we have done it, or in other words if you have received a

CHAMBER SET, PARLOR SUIT, Chair, or Range,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

That was damaged by the railroad, we have replaced it with another piece, and taken our chances to get the breakage from the road. There are items worthy of our close consideration, and especially at this time of year, be wise and order during this month,

And Save Yourself the Freight from Portland to your Depot, no matter where it is located in the State of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

We believe we are the only HOUSE FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT IN NEW ENGLAND WHO HAVE ADHERED STRICTLY TO THIS PLAN OF PREPAYING THE FREIGHT ON EVERYTHING SHIPPED BY US. We mean by this that while some other houses have shipped the goods, and allowed you to pay freight and afterwards send them a bill and then dicker on it for some time, We have invariably paid out the cash before the article left our freight sheds at Portland. And now notwithstanding the fact that we expect to lose a great deal of business by this this year there seems to be no other way to convince some people of the difference between OUR PAYING THE FREIGHT before the articles leave here, AND OUR CUSTOMERS PAYING THE FREIGHT after the articles get to the depot, and then having to write backwards and forwards over the matter. We wish to deal with perfect fairness and frankness in this matter, consequently we give you another month to make your selection, and to fill orders that are already placed. Now if you want a

KITCHEN RANGE, or a CHAMBER SET, or PARLOR SUIT, or CARPETS, WINDOW SHADES, DRAPERY CURTAINS,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

Kindly come and see us at once, or if you can not come, please write us for Catalogues and Descriptions of these Goods, and we will do our very best to please you in every one. Remember we carry COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHINGS. There is scarcely a thing that you require for your homes that we do not keep, and we sell the same and shall continue to sell the same for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. This notice applies TO ALL OUR STORES, and we have written to each of our MANAGERS to this effect, consequently there will be no more freight prepaid from our Bangor Store, Rockland Store, Auburn Store, Bar Harbor Store, Biddeford Store, nor from the Headquarters at Portland, after the 31st day of May, 1888.

Kindly get your orders in before June 1st, if you wish to save this freight.

Respectfully, the Public's Ob't Servants,

THE ATKINSON HOUSE FURNISHING CO.,

Headquarters Cor. Pearl and Middle Streets, Portland, and Branches at Auburn, Rock-

A CHINESE CLASS.

Mr. John H. Hutchinson, superintendent of the Congregational Sunday school, has for some time been trying to get the Chinamen resident in this city, eight in number, to form a class in the school; and on Sunday last five of them came in, and were temporarily taken into Rev. Mr. McGinley's class, Mr. Hutchinson being absent in Hanover on a visit to his son, who is a student at Dartmouth college. The other three it is said will enter the school next Sunday. None of the eight can read English, but all except two can speak the language fairly well; they will be put in a class by themselves, and special instructions for the teaching of Chinese pupils, and papers to be used for that purpose, will be received from the headquarters of Congregational mission work this week.

PORTSMOUTH CADETS.

There was an enthusiastic meeting in Rechabite hall last Friday evening, of the boys who composed the finely-drilled company in the Cadets' Picnic Opera company, the object being to form a permanent organization of fifty members to participate in local processions, notably the monument-dedication parade on the fourth of July next. The following officers were chosen;

Eddie F. Kimball, captain;
William H. Ashe, 1st lieutenant;
Harry B. Prior, 2d lieutenant;
W. Herman Sides, 1st sergeant.

The other officers will be elected when the company is recruited to the full complement. The boys should and doubtless will receive the encouragement of our citizens.

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

On Sunday afternoon, the 6th inst., a meeting was held in the chapel of the Middle street Baptist church to make preliminary arrangements looking to the formation here of a Young Men's Christian Association, with suitable rooms, etc.

Another meeting was appointed for last Sunday afternoon at the same place, when all the evangelical churches of the city were represented excepting the Methodist, one of the parlors of the chapel being filled with the company. Lewis E. Staples was chosen chairman, and John Pickard secretary.

E. Scott Owen read communications from Biddeford, Nashua, Newburyport, Gloucester, Keene and Amesbury, in relation to the work of the association, and its organization. It was stated that E. A. Lawrence, state organizer of the Y. M. C. A. of New Hampshire, was in this city a few weeks ago, and consulted with Rev. Mr. McGinley and others, relative to the need of a branch of the association here, and of the prospects of being able to establish one. It was also said that Mr. Lawrence proposed to come here next fall and work up the matter; but the sentiment of the meeting seemed to be that by next fall, or before, the association rooms should be in good running condition.

A committee of one from each church was appointed to nominate an executive committee to consist of three from each church, the nominating committee being as follows: E. Scott Owen, Congregational; John E. Leavitt, Baptist; Charles Ham, Free Baptist; Joseph Philbrick, Christian; Frank J. Philbrick, Episcopal; Horace E. Frye, Advent; Clarence E. Parmenter, Methodist. A meeting of this committee was appointed to be held in the main hall of the Seaman's Home on Wednesday evening, the 16th inst., to nominate other members of the committee.

A press committee, consisting of Everett L. Marston, Lee H. Fisher and John Pickard, were appointed, and the meeting then adjourned to the call of the chairman.

TORNADO IN DOVER!

Fifteen Liquor Dealers Surrender.

The "Nuisance Act" Effective.

A FOOLISH THREAT.

The liquor traffic in Dover received on Saturday the heaviest blow ever dealt it, nineteen dealers having been on Friday afternoon served with warrants issued by County Solicitor Kivel under the nuisance act, on complaint of the Law & Order League, and each dealer notified to be at the police court at nine o'clock Saturday morning.

At the appointed hour the corridors of the city hall were crowded, and in consequence, court was held in the common council room. Fifteen of the accused parties pleaded nolo contendere, signing a paper acknowledging legal service, waiving all objections to the constitutionality of the nuisance law, and agreeing to go out of the business at once, and forever remain out of it in Dover. Solicitor Kivel gave notice that if any person pleading nol. con. and signing the waiver was again detected in engaging in the traffic, the full penalty of the law would be enforced, if he could compass it. Several of the dealers who at first pleaded not guilty subsequently retracted their pleas, and pleaded nol. con., on the court fixing bonds at $400 in each case, and the solicitor announcing that the Law & Order League proposed to follow up all who furnished bonds in case of subsequent violation of the law. Three cases were continued to Monday, the 14th, by request of defendants' counsel.

The movers in this matter announce themselves as being very much in earnest, and determined to crush out the liquor traffic in Dover if the law will enable them to do it, as they believe it will. They say it is not a spasmodic squall, which will blow over in a few days or weeks, and allow things to then resume their old status, but a steady gale which is blow the liquor business entirely out of town.

The names of the dealers who pleaded nol. con., and agreed to sign the waiver and permanently retire from the business, are John E. Kennedy, Frank P. Hussey, Frank E. Cassidy, Robert Broadbent, Patrick Devlin, Michael O'Donnell, John H. Grimes, Charles A. Dore, Peter Loughlin, Patrick Rossiter, Daniel D. Mahoney, Frank P. Plummer, Michael R. Kennedy, Thomas Sherry and James Hoye.

A despatch of Saturday, the 12th, from Dover to the Boston Sunday Globe, says: "Rev. Frank K. Chase, prosecuting officer of the Law & Order League, states that he has received a letter threatening that his life will be taken within the next forty-eight hours unless he publicly announces that he will abandon the prosecution of liquor sellers. One hundred and twenty warrants under the prohibitory law have been issued. Trials are to come off next Tuesday."

COMMISSIONERS' HEARING.

A special hearing will be held in the city clerk's office in this city on May 25th by the old board of county commissioners, in relation to placing gates at the crossing of the Concord railroad at the Creek, which was requested by the city councils in 1886. Mr. Joseph C. Burley will act in Ex-Commissioner Johnston's stead, the latter being incapacitated by being a resident of this city.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Emil C. Pfeiffer, lay reader, officiated at St. John's church Sunday forenoon.

Mr. Fred L. Smith, principal of the Newmarket high school, will be the Memorial day orator at Shapleigh, Me.

Mr. Francis W. Ham and family leave this city on Tuesday for Newcastle, where they have taken a cottage for the summer.

Rev. James Noyes, formerly paster of the Methodist church in this city, preached in that church on Sunday morning. Mr. Noyes is now superintendent of the New Hampshire Orphans' Home at Franklin, and is in this city in the interests of that worthy charity.

Rev. J. S. Harrington of this city, Rev. Mr. Wakely of Kittery and Rev. J. C. Osgood of South Berwick take part in the exercises at the Rockingham Quarterly Meeting of Free Will Baptists at Newmarket this week.

Rev. Lee H. Fisher of this city, Rev. J. A. Ross of Hampton and Rev. Lewis W. Phillips of Rye take part in the exercises at the 13th annual session of the Rockingham County Sunday School Convention at the Congregational church in Exeter on Tuesday.

The Great Falls Free Press says: "Edward Stickney of Portsmouth, the champion dumb-bell lifter of the world, gave an exhibition at Central hall last Friday evening. A collection was taken for his benefit at the conclusion of the entertainment. Stickney is a 'lifter' from the word go. Some of his feats are really wonderful."

The Fortress Monroe correspondent of the Army and Navy Register, writing under date of May 9th, announces the presence there of "Miss Mary Brooks, daughter of Chief Engineer John Brooks, of the Portsmouth navy yard, who is visiting her brother, Lieut. J. C. W. Brooks of the Fourth Artillery." [There is no John Brooks named in the Navy Register. Chief Engineer William B. Brooks, the only officer in the navy bearing that fancy dress german given by the officers and ladies of the garrison, in which Miss Brooks appeared as a milk-maid.

Mrs. Thomas S. Nowell gave an enjoyable dinner party at her residence in Boston on Saturday.

Geo. B. Chase, Esq., who generously gave to the Children's Home the fine old Chase mansion on Court street, at the corner of Washington, the home of his ancestors, has gone to Dublin, in this state, where he has an attractive summer residence with broad acres.

Among the lawyers in attendance upon the United States court in session in this city were present Ex-Judges Foster and Morrison of Concord, Ex-Judge Ladd of Lancaster, Wm. M Chase of Concord, A. T. Bachelder of Keene, Chas. F. Libbey of Portland and H. G. Wood of New York.

Instead of Mr. C. Bernard Johnson, who was stabbed by Daniel Stevens on the evening of the 8th inst., having been out on the street on the 11th, as reported to us, it is stated that he was worse on that day than at any time previous, raising blood all day Friday, an indication that the knife penetrated his lungs, and passing a very bad night Friday night, suffering great pain.

The Boston Sunday Globe of the 13th inst. says: "Mrs. Whiton-Stone's luncheon for her Browning class at her home on Independence square, South Boston, Tuesday, was a very handsome affair. Covers were laid for twenty ladies, the only outside guests being Miss Charlotte Fiske Bates, the poet, who occupied the seat of honor, Miss Lucia Peabody being seated on the hostess' left. The table was beautifully decorated with a quantity of the choicest roses. The luncheon of thirteen courses, which included every delicacy of the season, was served by Dooling, and the hostess' famous china was used in honor of the occasion."

NAVY YARD ITEMS.

The U. S. S. Swatara, announced to sail for Fortress Monroe at nine o'clock Saturday morning, was at anchor in the lower harbor at a late hour Saturday afternoon. Cautionary signals for a southeast wind were flying from the flagstaff of the signal station on Daniel street through the day.

Under the heading "Got there at Last" the Dover Democrat of Friday remarks: "Charles Everett last evening received his appointment as watchman at the Kittery navy yard. He expected this a long time ago, but has only just got it."

The report is current that the orders for the sailing of the U. S. S. Swatara from this port for Fortress Monroe specified the 11th inst. as the date, but that she remained until another day on account of the 11th being Friday, an unlucky day for sailing. We presume the rumor is all bosh. The "Friday" superstition among sailors became obsolete long ago, except with a very few old barnacle-backs, and among these few we do not believe any of our naval officers are to be found.

CIRCUIT COURT---COLT J.

SATURDAY, May 12th.

Hearing in case Twitchell (admr. of Noyes) vs. Grand Trunk railroad was continued. Court at 12:40 P. M. adjourned to Monday at 11:00 A. M., when the hearing will be resumed.

MARITIME NOTES.

The steamer Pinafore went from this port to the Isles of Shoals on Sunday with a fare of eighteen passengers, including Mrs. Thaxter and her son, Mr. Carl Thaxter.

The brickers Clara B Kennard, D. K. Ham and Lillie sailed from this port for Boston on the 11th.

The schooner B. Frank Nealley sailed from this port on Saturday, the 12th, for Lanesville, Mass., to load paving stones for Philadelphia, after discharging which she will take on board a cargo of coal to be discharged at Dover.

Capt. Duncan's new steamer Undine was launched at Kennebunkport on the 9th inst., and will be brought to this city on the 20th. On the 25th she will make a dedicatory trip to the Shoals with a party of invited guests, including representatives of the local press.

The Dover Democrat says: "William Courser has bought out Geo. W. Ford's shore in the schooner Estella. Mr. Ford owned one-third interest. Courser will carry all the brick he has himself, and then load for Isaac Lucas and do his work."

Base Ball.

The Dover high school nine went to Great Falls last Thursday and played the local high school nine; the Great Falls boys won, eighteen to five.

The clerk of the weather either has a spite against the Portsmouth ball club and its managers, or else he is shockingly careless in his manner of serving out rain.

The Congress street clerks and the Market street clerks are soon to play a game of base ball in the enclosed ball grounds on South street, for the benefit of the Cottage Hospital.

It was rumored on Sunday that a boat race had been arranged for to-day, to take place on the base ball grounds, and be followed by a swimming match between the champions of the north and the south ends. The rumor was entirely unfounded, not even the preliminaries having been arranged.

Five shares of Portsmouth Gas Light Co.'s stock for sale. For terms apply to Ilsley & Moore, No. 3 Pleasant street.

The body is more susceptible to benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla now than at any other season. Therefore take it now.

The will of Mrs. Eliza A. Brooks was admitted to probate Tuesday, the 8th. The local public bequests are $100 to the Howard Benevolent society, and a contingent sum that will probably amount to $500 to the Public library.

Peculiar

Many peculiar points make Hood's Sarsaparilla superior to all other medicines. Peculiar in combination, proportion, and preparation of ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses the full curative value of the best known remedies of the vegetable kingdom. Peculiar in its strength and economy—Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "One Hundred Doses One Dollar." Medicines in larger and smaller bottles require larger doses, and do not produce as good results as Hood's. Peculiar in its medicinal merits, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown, and has won for itself the title of "The greatest blood purifier ever discovered." Peculiar in its "good name at home,"—there is now more of Hood's Sarsaparilla sold in Lowell, where it is made, than of all other blood purifiers. Peculiar in its phenomenal record of sales abroad, no other preparation has ever attained such popularity in so short a time, and retained its popularity and confidence among all classes of people so steadfastly. Do not be induced to buy other preparations, but be sure to get the Peculiar Medicine,

BABY CARRIAGE FOR SALE.

The Makers of a Well Known Churn write:

"We have been often asked by dairymen: 'What is the very best soap to use to properly cleanse dairy utensils?' We have invariably replied, the 'Ivory,' but as for giving specific directions for washing dairy utensils, it is really summed up in making them thoroughly clean. Boiling water must be used, and that, in connection with IVORY SOAP, will thoroughly cleanse and deodorize the wood, leaving it clean and sweet for further use. Any dairy utensils half cleaned will spoil the delicate aroma of 'gilt edge butter,' which may be perfect in other respects."

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be 'just as good as the 'Ivory';' they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

PRESTON'S SARSAPARILLA

Is perhaps the best general spring medicine ever offered to the people;—We always advise anyone, who may ask for information, that a physician be consulted in case of illness,—but to meet the wants of those desiring a medicine to take especially during the spring, when the system is racked and torn by the constantly changing weather, Preston's Sarsaparilla was introduced, and we constantly and confidently recommend it.

PIANOS.

Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all GRAND & UPRIGHT others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvements introduced by them in the year 1862, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

PURIFY YOUR BLOOD.

Impurities in the blood produce diseases. Bodily and mental health depend upon a healthy condition of the blood. The blood, particularly in the spring and during the hot summer months, becomes clogged with impurities, which poison it and generate disease. A harmless blood purifier, without a particle of mineral poison in it, such as mercury or potash, is necessary to remove these impurities and to restore the healthy tone of mind and body. The best purifier and tonic known to the world is Swift's Specific (S.S.S.). In regard to its wonderful purifying and tonic powers we give a few testimonials as follows:

Mr. Wm. A. Siebold, with Geo. P. Rowell & Co., 10 Spruce Street, New York, writes March 8th, 1881: "I feel it my duty, for the benefit of others who may be afflicted as I was, to write you this letter, which you can use as my testimony in any way you choose. I will answer any inquiry from others in relation to the facts herewith stated. In February last I suffered great pain and inconvenience from boils, all over my neck; I could not turn my head without acute pain and my blood was in poor condition. After trying all the usual remedies in such cases, and finding no relief, by the persuasion of Mr. J. W. Fears, Manager of your New York Office, I used one bottle S. S. S., and I improved rapidly and very soon I was entirely relieved of my "Job's Comforters." Now not a sign of my affliction can be seen. I feel strong and cheerful. S. S. S. is a fine tonic as proved in my case. I sleep soundly and my appetite is good."

Dr. J. N. Cheney, a well-known physician writes from Ellaville, Georgia: "I use S. S. S. in convalescent fever cases with the best results. It will, in my judgment, prevent summer dysentery, if one will take a few bottles in the spring, thus preparing the bowels for the strains of summer."

Mrs. Scott Liston, 116 Zane street (Island), Wheeling, West Virginia, writes: "Having used S. S. S. for the blood, I can safely say that it beats anything I have used to cleanse the blood and make a new being out of a person."

Mr. M. S. Hamlin, Winston, N. C., writes: "I use it every spring. It always builds me up, giving me appetite and digestion, and enabling me to stand the long, trying, enervating hot summer days. On using it I soon become strong of body and easy of mind."

A DISTRESSING COUGH.

How many, especially during the Fall and Winter months, are troubled with a Cough, sometimes dry and hacking, sometimes loose causing the sufferer to raise a large amount of offensive matter; this can soon be cured by using Ingalls' Throat and Lung Specific, which acts directly on the Throat and Lungs.

Cured her Cough.

MRS. JEREMIAH CLARK, Lowell, Mass., says: "Twelve years ago I first took a bottle of your Throat and Lung Specific. I had been troubled with a very bad Cough for months. A 5-cent bottle cured my Cough. Since then I have not been without it. I can heartily recommend it to any one who has a bad cough."

Saved his Life.

CHAS. A. WAITT, says: "No language can express the value I attach to your Specific. I believe it saved my life."

We would cite other testimonials did we think it necessary, but a trial bottle will convince you that it is all we represent. Give it a trial.

IN A CHINESE HOSPITAL.

How Medical Science is Practiced in the Flowery Kingdom.

I recently visited the Tung Wa hospital at Hong Kong, and saw there many things of interest, the routine in a Chinese hospital being very different from that of a European one. In the early days of the colony the Chinese inhabitants used commonly to thrust out their sick and dying into the street, there to perish. To remedy so scandalous a state of things the government offered to provide a hospital for the exclusive use of the Chinese community, and this offer they accepted, with the proviso that it should be under their own management. A suitable building was accordingly erected and handed over to a Chinese committee in 1867. The medical staff are all Chinese, and their practice, I was informed, is quite uninfluenced by European science.

The hospital is a large two story building, with verandas, and it contains large, airy wards of the usual character. Each ward, however, is divided by incomplete wooden partitions into eight cells, in each of which is accommodation for two patients, who thus enjoy a certain degree of privacy. The Chinese have yet to learn the paramount importance in a hospital of cleanliness and good ventilation. The beds consisted of boards resting on trestles, and covered by a grass mat, with a bamboo pillow, and by each was an earthen pipkin containing medicine. Many of the sick were smoking—some tobacco, more of them opium. We heard that in cases which were considered hopeless patients were allowed to smoke opium ad lib.; if so, the percentage of hopeless cases must have been high, judging from the number of patients who gazed at us with lackluster eyes and listless expression. The other patients nodded pleasantly to us, and the present of a cigar or cigarette evoked numberless "Chin-chins." The wards themselves were fairly clean, but the patients as a rule were dirty, and among the surgical cases we observed many with undressed, unwashed wounds, and other evidences of neglect. In the women's quarter we came upon a group of some thirty or forty young girls, many of them really pretty, whose merry laughter and the vigor with which they plied their chop sticks, emptying bowls of rice, fish, etc., suggested that they could not be patients. We learned that they were kidnaped girls, mostly from the mainland, who had been rescued by the police and were lodged at the hospital until claimed by their friends.

The dispensary was the place of greatest interest, perhaps. It was most neatly and methodically arranged, and the staff were hard at work making up prescriptions. Round the walls were numberless drawers, mostly containing dried plants, shredded roots, minerals, etc.; also, vessels filled with bones, huge, nauseous looking boluses, as big as plums, etc. Among the bones some fragments of a tiger's frame were shown us as a great treasure—their use being to "makee trong," as the dispenser explained. As each prescription was read portions of various roots, leaves, etc., were weighed out, wrapped up in brown paper, and marked with a brush. In an adjoining room we saw the rest of the process. Each packet or drugs was placed in an earthen pipkin, with water, and set to simmer on a charcoal fire, and the resulting decoction was sent to the patient in the pipkin in which it had been made. We then glanced at the smallpox patients, each of whom was isolated in a large, dark stone cell. Vaccination is little practiced by the Chinese, and consequently smallpox is very prevalent. But the committee of the hospital have organized a staff of vaccinators, who are doing good work.

We found a few lunatics confined in strongly barred, padded cells, clean but dark; a few of the patients had chains on, but the majority were free. Our final visit was to the out patient department, where we found a very portly and cheery native physician, who greeted us courteously and showed us his implements, etc., consisting of pitch plasters. His last patient, a wizen faced, voluble old woman, was just going away, but she turned back and showed us a sore leg, with a plaster on it. Evidently she was improving, for, pointing to her doctor, she exclaimed: "He number one piece," and then, her English being too scanty to give expression to her gratitude, she proceeded to sound his praises in her own language, somewhat to the old gentleman's embarassment, though he smiled and nodded pleasantly at her. After glancing in at a somewhat tawdry joss house we departed.

On our way back we visited the Alice Memorial hospital, a new institution with a European medical staff. We were told that it was founded by a Chinese gentleman who had studied medicine in England, and found on his return that his countrymen were too prejudiced to afford him any scope for his western science. The wards were clean and well ordered and full of patients. Already it has drawn a good many patients away from the Tung Wa.—St. James Gazette.

Phrases the Girls Must Eschew.

The list of words, phrases and expressions to be avoided by young ladies of Wellesley college includes the following: "I guess so," for I suppose so or I think so.

"Fix things," for arrange things or prepare things.

The use of "ride" and "drive" interchangeably.

"Real good" or "real nice," for very good or really nice.

"I have studied some," for studied somewhat, or "I have not studied any," for not studied at all.

"Not as I know," for not that I know.

"Try an experiment," for make an experiment.

"Had rather," for would rather, and "had better," for would better.

"Right away," for immediately or now.

"Well posted," for well informed.

"Try and do," for try to do, or "try and go," for try to go.

"It looks good enough," for it looks well enough, or "does it look good enough," for does it look well enough.

"Somebody else's," for somebody's else.—Philadelphia Times.

An Interesting Collection.

An interesting collection of commercial products made by Dr. Forbes Watson, has been acquired by University college, Dundee. It contains some 7,500 samples, embracing between 700 and 800 fibers, over 500 dye and dye stuffs, 500 oils and oil seeds, 600 or 700 gum, resins and guttas, nearly 2,000 medicinal substances and more than as many samples of food stuffs.—Arkansaw Traveler.

What a Mistake!

A careful examination would convince any one that two-thirds of all the people in New England have been or are now afflicted with the catarrh of the nose and throat.

No doubt more than half of these persons have tried every blood purifier they have seen, with the erroneous idea that catarrh is a constitutional disease and must be purged out of the blood.

Why a greater mistake was never made! Stop for a moment and think or ask any reputable physician what common catarrh is, and what causes it, and the answer can be only this. "It is an irritation or inflammation of the mucous membrane of the nose and throat, caused by neglected colds, damp piercing irritable winds, foreign matter in the air which is poisonous to some persons and not to others; just as the bites of certain insects is a poisoned torture to some and has no unpleasant effect upon others." The reason for this is found in the different structure of the outer skin and its counterpart which lines all the inner organs of our bodies. Some people have chapped hands and chillblains and others are never so afflicted because of the peculiar structure of the skin of different individuals.

Therefore stop dosing. It is not blood purifiers you want, but good wholesome food, the plainer the better, then "keep your feet dry and warm, your head cool and bowels open," and use an external application, (Johnson's Anodyne Liniment is the best we know,) to allay the inflammation, cleanse the surface, heal the sores, and your catarrh will disappear like magic. We do not say never to return, because you may cure a severe cold and in three months catch another equally bad, so with catarrh and bronchical troubles. Exposure may bring it on again. We learned more about treating catarrh from the wrapper around a bottle of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, than we ever knew. Certainly this good old medicine deserves to be called "A universal family remedy." No matter how well you know this medicine it will pay you to send to I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass., for a pamphlet free, just to learn how to use the liniment economically. A teaspoonful properly used will often do more good than a half bottle as some people use it.

The man that succeeds nowadays is the live man, who is up to the times; and no better evidence of this is needed than the fact that every go-ahead housekeeper is never without Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

Daniel Dougherty is thought to be the man who will nominate Cleveland at St Louis.

Our druggists keep for sale Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer, the best preparation ever made for restoring the vitality and color of the hair.

By a fall of rock in a mine near Stassfurt, in Prussian Saxony, eighteen persons were killed and many injured.

It is no wonder that invalids lose faith in all specifics, when so many worthless medicines are advertised to cure various diseases, but which, when tried, are "found wanting." We have yet to learn, however, of the first failure of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry to cure coughs and pulmonary disease.

The German police have found thousands of socialistic documents in Breslau, and many arrests have been made.

Those persons who do not need iron, but who are troubled with nervousness and dyspepsia, will find in Carter's Little Nerve Pills a most desirable article. They are mostly used in combination with Carter's Little Liver Pills, and in this way often exert a most magical effect. Take just one pill of each kind immediately after eating and you will be free from indigestion and dyspepsia in vials at twenty-five cents. Try them.

honestly admit that they can't cure Rheumatism and Neuralgia. Others say they can but—don't. Athlophoros says nothing but—cures. That's the secret of its success. Years of trial have proved it to be a quick, safe, sure cure.

Concord, N. H., Sept. 3, 1887

In my own family Athlophoros was used as a last resort, the user having suffered from rheumatism for years and having been treated for the disease by different physicians in this State and Massachusetts without even temporary relief. Upon my recommendation scores of people have used this remedy with the same results claimed for it. C. H. WILSON.

The Boisterous Atlantic

Is a terror to timid voyagers, scarcely less on account of the perils of the deep than the almost certainty of sea sickness. The best curative of mal de mer is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which settles the stomach at once and prevents its disturbance. To all travellers and touists, whether by sea or land, it presents a happy medium between the nauseous or ineffectual resources of the medicine chest, and the problematical benefit derivable from an unmedicated alcoholic stimulant, no matter how pure. The jarring of a railroad car often produces stomachic disorders akin to that caused by the rolling of a ship. For this the Bitters is a prompt and certain remedy. The use of brackish water, particularly on long voyages in the tropics, inevitably breeds disorders of the stomach and bowels. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters mixed with impure water nullifies its impurities. Similarly it counteracts malarial and other prejudicial influences of climate or atmosphere, as well as the effects of exposure and fatigue. Use it for kidney complaints, rheumatism and debility.

Sailmaker Garrett Van Mater is detached from the Vermont, and ordered to the New York navy yard.

That Tired Feeling

Season is here again, and nearly every one feels weak, languid and exhausted. The blood, laden with impurities which have been accumulating for months, moves sluggishly through the veins, the mind fails to think quickly, and the body is still slower to respond. Hood's Sarsaparilla is just what is needed. It is, in a peculiar sense, the ideal spring medicine. It purifies, vitalizes and enriches the blood, makes the head clear, creates an appetite, overcomes that tired feeling, and imparts new strength and vigor to the whole body.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. REPORTING CONGRESSIONAL DOINGS.

The Graphaphone Coming Into Use as an Aid to the Stenographers.

Few people away from Washington are aware of the fact that every word uttered upon the floor of either house or senate, when addressed to either speaker or president, is taken down and appears in The Congressional Record. It is true that much time, money, paper and printer's ink is wasted by this, but nevertheless it is a fact. But to do this, of course, requires the employment of the most rapid and experienced stenographers. Five of these are employed upon the floor of the house simply to take down the speeches, debates, etc. The chief of the corps receives a salary of $6,000, while the other four are paid $1,000 less. These men simply take down the words in shorthand, working for fifteen minutes each in succession. When each one's fifteen minutes expires he repairs to the official reporter's room, where ten more stenographers are employed—two to each man—to whom are read the reports taken on the floor, and who take a copy in shorthand. They then translate this into long hand, using a typewriter to prepare the copy for the printer. These men are paid by space, getting $1 per column in The Record. The same is also gone through with in the Senate daily.

The stenographers have recently secured a machine to facilitate work which has already proven of inestimable value. It is one of Edison's inventions, and is called the graphaphone. The machine very much resembles a lady's sewing machine and is worked in the same manner—by a pedal. The instrument is used in this wise: When one of the principal stenographers concludes his floor report, he goes to this machine, reads his report into a funnel connecting with the main cylinder, which is gutta percha coated, and revolves while the point of the needle connecting with the tube from the funnel mouthpiece rests against it. The cylinder envelops a screw which prevents the needle tracing a firmer line. When the stenographer finishes reading his report another operator attaches tubes to the cylinder, connecting with his ears, works the machine, and the words of the stenographer are repeated to him in the same tone of voice of the previous talker. The rapidity of the talk can be regulated, and the operator can thus with ease take down the exact words by the use of a typewriter or an ordinary pen. The machine is certainly wonderful and enables a person with the assistance of a typewriter to do the work of two ordinary stenographers, who first have to take the report in shorthand and then translate it.

These gutta percha cylinders, I neglected to mention above, can be stored away, and years after, if placed upon the machine, the same words used today will be repeated in the exact tone of the speaker of today. Thus should any record become destroyed these cylinders may be resorted to. Another thing about this machine is that a person here can talk for an hour into one, mail the cylinder to Athens, where by the use of a machine the exact words used here will be repeated, thus saving the labor of writing long communications.—Atlanta Constitution.

The Tyro and the Alligator.

There is, of course, the inevitable alligator. You may buy him alive, from six inches to a foot long, and carry him to the north enveloped in cotton wool and tied up in a small box, especially made for that purpose and costing alarmingly. When you get him there he is sure to scare all your relatives and expire immediately afterward, and your fond plans of taking him out to walk o' fine mornings on Commonwealth avenue, to the astonishment and horror of Boston, are rudely nipped in the bud. The dealers in this peculiar sort of live stock can always tell if a visitor is in Florida for the first time. The tyro believes implicitly in the biggest alligator yarns, invests lavishly in alligator tooth jewelry, orange wood canes upon which the alligator is carved sprawlingly and conspicuously, alligator skin pocketbooks and card cases (made in New York), and last, but not least, sends at least a dozen home to his friends in the north by express; experientia docet. The second year he lets all these things severely alone, having incurred the wrath and displeasure of his relatives and friends, and earned an everlasting reputation for a want of good taste, which will cling to his bones when they molder in the grave.—Jacksonville (Fla.) Cor. Boston Herald.

Celibacy for Unhealthy People.

Health of body, freedom from so much as a proclivity to organic disease, is a consideration so important to one who anticipates marriage that the wonder grows in thoughtful minds at the habitual disregard of the question. It may be chivalric to undertake the charge of an ailing woman, and benevolent to smooth her pathway to the tomb, but the childless widower who has dwelt for the best years of his life in the valley of the shadow of death, or the frantic father who sees the development in his offspring of the dread malady that cursed their mother's existence, may well deplore the early madness that has borne such fruit. A man has but one life. That spoiled there is no redress. Without full acquiescence in Darwin's dogma that legislation should step in here to protect the race, we can hardly state too forcibly the fundamental fact that no diseased man or woman has a moral right to marry.—Marion Harland.

At the time Gen. Grant was besieging Vicksburg, I was in northern Texas, about, or a little over, 800 miles away in a direct air line. I was provided with a Smithsonian institution standard barometer, reading to the 1,000th of an inch. One morning, about 9 o'clock, I noticed the column of mercury was vibrating. It continued trembling through the day, quieting down at night. At the time of taking observations the next morning it was very quiet, but began trembling shortly after, and continued as the day before. This was repeated several days, and we subsequently learned that on those very days there was heavy cannonading at Vicksburg. No other cause could be assigned than the pulsations in the air produced by the heavy discharges. At what distance the actual sound could be heard, we had no means then nor since to ascertain.—Cor. Albany Argus.

REMINISCENCES OF DICKENS

His Composing Mood—An Example of His Love of Mischief.

One day Millie and I were standing on the balcony of our house when Dickens came sauntering by. On seeing us he promptly struck an attitude, with one hand pressed to his heart, and the other thrown out aloft, as he spouted dramatically:

"'Tis my lady! 'tis my love! Oh, that I were a glove upon that hand, that I might touch that cheek!"

"Which of us do you intend to be Juliet to your Romeo?" inquired Millie.

"Whichever you choose, my little dears!" he answered, touching his hat airily and strolling on. Next morning we were there again as he passed, this time with merely an ungracious "How do!" He was weaving his ideas, and naturally was bored by interruption. Afterward, when his face bore this abstracted look, I always pretended not to see him. It saved him the trouble of being obliged to recognize me, did not encroach on his composing mood, and altogether pleased him. I was horribly afraid of him sometimes, and told him so once, greatly to his amusement.

Seeing him then, calm and solemn as the Sphinx, it was difficult to imagine the amount of mischievous fun of which he was capable. To give an example. We were on the pier one evening, having been amusing ourselves by dancing a quadrille, in a railed-off space which Dickens had named the Family Pew, because it contained seats on two sides. He was in high spirits, as he enjoyed being here at dusk, where he escaped the scrutiny of the "gaping throng." He condescended to perform on his pocket comb and a piece of paper, while Fred whistled, the two thus doing duty as "band." After our caperings we strolled toward the end of the little pier, to watch the tide rippling in under the fading light. The scene had become weird and uncanny, the night seeming to drop suddenly down without a star or moon; the only light a lingering phosphorescent gleam on the crest of the waves.

All at once the spirit of the hour—a demon of mischief evidently—seemed to take possession of Dickens. He flung his arm around me and whirled me with him down the inclined plane of the jetty, toward a tall upright pole fixed at the extreme end. To this pole he clung with his other arm, while he informed me in theatrical accents that he intended to hold me there until the wild waves overwhelmed us.

"Think!" he cried, mouthing every word. "Think of the sensation we shall create! Think of the road to celebrity which we are about to tread—no, I mean, not exactly to tread, but to flounder into!"

Here I entreated him to let me go, while I struggled desperately to free myself.

"Let your mind dwell on the column in The Times, where will be vividly described the fate of the lovely Emma P——, drowned by Dickens in a fit of dementia! Don't struggle, poor little bird! you are powerless in the claws of such a kite as this child!"

The last glimmer of light was now gone, and close to us was the dark mystery of the surging water, very black, very cold, and above all coming nearer very rapidly. With a horrid plash it dashed over my feet! I screamed out:

"Oh! my dress; my best dress, my only silk dress will be ruined!"

He was not softened in the least by this tragic appeal, but continued ranting nonsensically and panting with his exertions to hold me, and with his suppressed laughter. Then I gave a wild shriek.

"Mrs. Dickens! help me!—make Mr. Dickens let me go. The waves are up to my knees!"

"Charles!" Mrs. Dickens called in frantic accents. "How can you be so silly? You will both be carried off by the waves (then falling from pathos to bathos) and you'll spoil the poor girl's silk dress."

"Dress!" shouted Dickens with scorn. "Talk not to me of dress! When the pall of night is enshrouding us in Cimmerian darkness, when we already stand on the brink of the great mystery, shall our thoughts be of such vanities? Am I not immolating a brand new pair of patent leathers still unpaid for? Perish such low born thoughts! In this hour of abandonment to the voice of destiny, shall we be held back by the puerilities of silken raiment? Shall leather or prunella (whatever that may be) stop the bolt of fate!" The sudden parenthetical change from high flown rant back again to ordinary accents was most ridiculous.

Here I succeeded in struggling out of his grasp, and fled to my friends, almost crying with vexation, my only silk dress clinging round my saturated limbs, and leaving a watery track as I stumbled on.—New York Tribune.

Concerning the Word "Blizzard."

Respecting the word 'blizzard,'' a correspondent writes to London Notes and Queries: "The word blizzard is well known through the Midlands, and its cognates are fairly numerous. I have known the word and its kin fully thirty years. Country folk used the word to denote blazing, blasting, blinding, dazzling or stifling. One who has had to face a severe storm of snow, hail, rain, dust or wind would say on reaching shelter that he has 'faced a blizzer,' or that the storm was 'a regular blizzard.' A blinding flash of lightning would call forth the exclamation, 'My! that wor a blizzomer!' or 'That wor a blizzer!' 'Put towthry sticks on th' fire, an' let's have a blizzer'—a blaze, 'A good blizzom'—a good blaze. 'That tree is blizzared'—blasted, withered. As an oath the word is often used, and 'May I be blizzered' will readily be understood."—New York Home Journal.

P. T Barnum on Riches.

I believe that a rich man is only a steward of the gifts of the Almighty. These gifts must be used for the good of mankind, and if a man will not use his wealth for the good of others he has no business to have it. I take great pleasure in acquiring money, but quite as much in disposing of it. My plan has been, so far as I could, to help those who help themselves, but this suggestion applies to friends and acquaintances, not to strangers. Men are not to live like young robins with their mouths wide open and have some one feed them; they must help themselves. P T Barnum in Epoch.

The Manufacture of Macaroni.

Macaroni is a preparation of fine wheat flour made into a peculiar paste or dough and then manufactured into pipes or tubes. Macaroni is of Italian invention and has long been known as a delicacy among the sons and daughters of sunny Italy. The chief places of the Old World in which this article of food is manufactured are Naples and Genoa, but it is now a recognized industry in New York.

To a reporter the largest manufacturer in New York and in fact in the United States recently stated that the process was simple and that the amount of capital required to establish and conduct the manufacture of macaroni was very limited. After the wheat has been properly ground the flour is mixed into dough. This is then thoroughly kneaded. After the dough has been rendered perfectly smooth it is next to be reduced to thin cylinders, ribbons or tubes, according as it is to be converted into vermicelli or macaroni. For the latter, however, a somewhat less compact dough is required than for the former.

In either case a hollow cylindrical vessel of cast iron is required, having its bottom perforated with large or small holes or slits as may be needed. When the cylinder is filled with paste a piece of wood or a plate of iron that exactly fits it is forced in by means of a powerful press and the paste is thus driven through the perforated bottom of the cylinder, taking the shape of the perforations. Macaroni is sometimes forced through the holes in the form of pipes, but it is oftener in fillets, which are formed into tubes by joining their edges together before they have time to become dry. The macaroni is partially baked during this manufacture. In a few days it is dry enough for use. For vermicelli the holes in the cylinder are smaller and the dough is more tenacious. The paste is forced slowly through the holes, and when the threads have reached the length of a foot they are broken off and twisted into any desired shape on a piece of paper. It is used at most hostelries in thickening soups and for puddings, but is invariably eaten by Italians in its original state. Whereas in the past large quantities of it were imported, now New York exports macaroni in large quantities, and the demand for the American article is growing.—New York Mail and Express.

Concerning Unconscious Cerebration.

Under the somewhat fanciful title, "The Antechamber of Consciousness," Mr. Francis Speir, Jr., contributes to The Popular Science Monthly the result of some carefully planned investigations in psychology for the purpose of weighing anew the argument for unconscious cerebration. He distributed printed questions, to be answered from personal experience. The question in which the inquiry centered was: "Does there exist in man the power to exert intellectual activity during unconsciousness?"

The answers are grouped and summarized under four heads: (a) When the effort is simple, by reproducing past experiences in obedience to a mandate of the will, as in the familiar experience of recalling a lost name or fact while consciously devoting the attention to something entirely different; (b) by comparing related facts and arriving at a settled judgment, as in the case of awaking from a sound sleep at a predetermined hour; (c) when the effort is more complex, by continuing old trains of thought began in consciousness, and proceeding logically, step by step, to a relative settled conclusion, as in dreaming out the solutions of problems in chess, mathematics, etc., or in reaching the solutions while working at something totally different; (d) when the effort is most complex by commencing and continuing new trains of thought without having voluntarily undertaken or continued them, and arriving at results of original creations, as inventions, literary and musical creations, etc. Of the first 91 per cent. of those answering had had such experiences; of the second 40 per cent. claim this power in a strongly marked degree; about 85 per cent. claim the possession of the power defined in "(c)," and about 30 per cent. claim the unconscious creative power.—Chicago News.

The Dial of the Face.

What's in a nose?

Shakespeare might better have propounded that question than the one he did, for a nose is of infinitely greater importance than a name. Truly a rose by any other name would smell as sweet, but would a beauty with any other nose look as sweet?

Not much.

Add but a trifle to the end of your nose and see what a change it makes. Shave off but the thinnest slice from either edge, and behold the altered appearance. Flatten it with the slightest pressure and watch the result. Twist it to right or left the shadow of a millionth part of a degree and your handsome man's beauty is forever destroyed. It has been called, and rightly, too, the rudder or the dial of the face. An authority on physiognomy says: "If the beauty of the nose depends on its shape, its power is regulated by its length, which ought never to be less than one-third of the profile, measured from the roots of the hair to the tips of the chin. Should it exceed that proportion so much the better, for we are assured that whenever two persons, the one having a large nose and the other a small one, come into collision, the latter must yield, unless it is of the feminine gender and takes an upward turn."—Chicago Times.

Telegraphy by the Clouds.

A remarkable experiment in signaling with electric lights was recently made by the officers of two vessels of the British navy, the Orion and the Espoir, off the port of Singapore. The Espoir had sailed from that port for Hong Kong, leaving the Orion in the harbor of Singapore. When the Espoir was sixty miles distant the Orion sent her a message by means of the electric light.

But can a light be seen sixty miles at sea? Certainly not, in its direct rays; but the Orion threw a brilliant blaze of light upon the clouds, and the reflection of this light was distinctly seen on board the Espoir. More than this, the Orion, having thrown upon the clouds a regular message by means of successive flashes, this message was read and understood on board the Espoir. The question has been asked whether this means of communication might not be made of practical advantage. Youth's Companion.

March April May

At no other season does the human system so much need the aid of a reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla, as now. The impoverished condition of the blood, the weakening effects of the long, cold winter, the lost appetite, and that tired feeling, all make a good spring medicine absolutely necessary. Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiarly adapted for this purpose, and increases in popularity every year. It is the ideal spring medicine.

Are the best months in which to purify your blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best blood purifier.

"I must say Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine I ever used. Last spring I had no appetite, and the least work I did fatigued me ever so much. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and soon felt that I could do as much in a day as I had formerly done in a week. My appetite is voracious." MRS. M. V. BAYARD, Atlantic City, N. J.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to buy any other.

Were all wise enough to heed this advice in season, a world of suffering would be avoided. If you suffer from impure blood, scrofula, dyspepsia, biliousness, headache, take Neuralgic paroxysms are often of extreme violence, and brought on by the slightest provocation, such as a draught of cool air. The skin is swollen and inflamed, and even after the attack has abated feels stiff and tender. On the first intimation of such an attack rub with Salvation Oil. 25 cents.

Mr. Henry Shirk, of Baltimore, has given real estate to the value of $68,000 for the use of the new woman's college in that city.

That Tired Feeling

Afflicts nearly every one in the spring. The system having become accustomed to the bracing air of winter, is weakened by the warm days of the changing season, and readily yields to attacks of disease. Hood's Sarsaparilla is just the medicine needed. It tones and builds up every part of the body, and also expels all impurities from the blood. Try it this season.

The will of Mrs. J. S. Waterman, of Sycamore, Ill., leaves her residence and sixty acres of land for a school for girls, with a fund amounting to $20,000 for its maintenance.

NEWS AND NOTES.

Miss Linda Gilbert has devoted fifteen years and most of her fortune to prison reform. She has established twenty-two libraries in the prisons of different states, and found employment for six thousand ex-convicts.

"Old Bill Davis, the Sheriff," who fought Mike McCool for the championship of America, is now the United States marshal for the consul at Amoy, China.

Llewellyn H. Quimby, who murdered the old man, William Kenniston, at Boothbay, Me., in his confession says he did not intend to kill him, but only to steal his money. The old gentleman's brave resistance forced the young ruffian to kill him.

The Luske canning establishment in San Francisco, said to be the largest cannery in the world, has suspended, with liabilities of $200,000.

Many lives and much property have been destroyed by floods in the west.

A railroad collision near Fountain, Col., on the 14th inst., exploded a car of powder, killing ten men and wounding many others.

Governor Waterman of California will not permit paid attorneys to appear before him in the interest of those seeking pardons.

Walter C. Camp, the Yale college athlete, will be married on June 30th to Miss Alice G. Sumner, sister of Professor Sumner of Yale.

Confederate Memorial day was generally observed at Charleston, S. C. Speeches were made, and the graves of the confederate and union dead were decorated.

Mrs. Ormiston Chant, the little English lady whose addresses on reformatory topics have stirred up so much enthusiasm in this country, comes honestly by her eloquence. She is a great grandniece of Edmund Burke.

The French authorities have released two of the men in the army claimed to be United States citizens. There is a dispute as to the citizenship of the other man. Amicable negotiations will follow.

Archbishop Lynch of Toronto, one of the most noted Catholic clergymen of America, died May 12th.

Thomas Murphy, eighteen years old, was instantly killed in Utica, N. Y., last week, through touching a broken electric-light wire.

A mob of men last week hanged a negro farm hand, near Rich Pond, Ky., who had been suspected of poisoning twenty horses belonging to a former employer.

Books, Magazines, Etc.

A catalogue of the School of Expression, Freeman place, Beacon street, Boston, has been received. The trustees of the school appeal for endowment for stammering, vocal training, Bible reading, and for scholarships. No school has ever been endowed in this country for this department of education, and every one is interested in the outcome of these endeavors. The methods of the school recitals" of the school, and practical work in training, have received high commendation on account of the simplicity and naturalness that have always been manifested by the students. A summer term will open July 9th in Boston, for clergymen, speakers, teachers in colleges, readers, and others. Last year the session was held at Saratoga. Among the students in attendance were professors from eight different colleges, teachers from sixteen high and normal schools, clergymen from many different denominations, and many public speakers. S. S. Curry, Ph. D., has resigned his professorship of oratory in Boston university, and will devote his time to the school. Catalogues giving full information of the courses, and summer circulars, are sent on application.

"George Riddle's Readings." A representative collection of prose sketches and poems read, for the most part, by Mr. Riddle only, and inaccessable in any form, including an adaptation from the German by Miss Genevieve Ward, entitled "Come Here!" and three humorous sketches specially written for Mr. Riddle by Mr. John T. Wheelwright, namely, "A Cure for Dudes," "A Sewing School for Scandal," and "Uncle Micajah's treat at Slambasket Beach." Price in cloth (uncut) $1.00, net; by mail, $1.10. Published by Walter H. Baker & Co., No. 23 Winter street, Boston.

Wedding in a Greek Church.

The prettiest wedding procession I have seen was in Constantinople—a stately and rejoicing march, though without music. Fancy a narrow street of high stone houses with projecting balconies, latticed with slats so close together that persons within can see without being seen. A long line of sedan chairs, cushioned and curtained with satin, each borne by two men holding poles, and keeping step together like trained horses; their uniform braided jackets, baggy trousers and scarlet fez made festal by a bunch of lilacs on the bosom—for it was rejoicing spring, and the gardens of the Bosphorus were radiant with color and bloom.

At the head of the column an armed attendant, in gorgeous costume, with whip in hand, cleared away dogs and gaping idlers. They were en route for the Greek church outside Pera, and the beauty of the beautiful race was on the bride. The shining face at the window was like some lovely human flower, too tender for exposure, blossoming under glass. On the classic head a wreath of orange flowers, to be laid away on the morrow and carefully kept for her burial.

As they near the church door a bridal chorus rules the slow steps of the carriers; and when the bride, lovely all in her white, steps from the silken seat bonbons are showered on her by waiting friends. The bridegroom, also crowned with a wreath, joins her, and they stand with clasped hands at the altar while the long ritual is read by the priest. Three times the wreaths are interchanged by the priest in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost. Three times the pair is led by him round the altar; a glass of consecrated wine is offered first to the bridegroom, then to the bride, afterward to the best man and first bridemaid, whose duty it is to be godfather and godmother to the children. The ceremony ends with kisses, congratulations and leave takings, much the same as in our own country.—Susan Wallace in Sunday School Times.

The Shah's Finest Charger.

The Persians of today, as those of old, are a "horsey" race, born riders, fond of their horses, looking never complete till seen in the saddle, with all the luxurious trappings and ornaments they love to bestow upon their persons and their quadrupeds. The beauty and superior breed of a horse, together with the costliness of his apparel, are an unfailing indication of the owner's wealth and station. And such harness, such saddles, girths and blankets! It is the Arabian Nights redivivus.

On race day last spring, after the contests were over, the shah caused his finest charger, a Turcoman of magnificent proportions, to be brought in front of the huge pavilion tent wherein the whole European and American diplomatic corps was assembled. What a fine fellow the animal was, and how he was admired and caressed by the ladies! But what was especially noticeable about him was the splendor of his accoutrements. A saddle blanket of the finest cashmere, every square inch of which was worth several gold pieces; his broad bridle thickly incrusted with diamonds and emeralds and rubies, each the size of a hazelnut; the bit of pure gold, and the saddle straps and other pieces made of velvet and embossed with artistic lumps of gold and precious stones. The whole outfit was worth a large fortune; and this was but one of many.—Wolf von Schierbrand in The Cosmopolitan.

In the United States there is one minister to 700 people; in China, one ordained missionary to 1,000,000. Of the 200,000,000 of Africa, 140,000,000 have not been touched by Christian teachers. The United States has 80,000 preachers, while India, with five times the population, has 700 ordained missionaries.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Don't Wait

Until your hair becomes dry, thin, and gray before giving the attention needed to preserve its beauty and vitality. Keep on your toilet-table a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor—the only dressing you require for the hair—and use a little, daily, to preserve the natural color and prevent baldness.

Thomas Munday, Sharon Grove, Ky., writes: "Several months ago my hair commenced falling out, and in a few weeks my head was almost bald. I tried many remedies, but they did no good. I finally bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and, after using only a part of the contents, my head was covered with a heavy growth of hair. I recommend your preparation as the best hair-restorer in the world."

"My hair was faded and dry," writes Mabel C. Hardy, of Delavan, Ill.; "but after using a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor it became black and glossy."

THE LATEST DISCOVERY.

A Prominent Physician Reveals Some New and Startling Secrets.

"Do you know," said Dr. Bodilch, of Boston, at the club, one evening recently, "what the starting point of most physical troubles is?"

"No, indeed," replied a circle of anxious enquirers, as they crowded about the doctor.

"Tea and coffee," answered the eminent physician.

There was a look of horror on the faces of his listeners. The doctor continued:

"Men, and women even more, drink tea and coffee constantly, and wonder why they feel dull and stupid, have headaches, a bad taste in the mouth, pains in the limbs and about the body and irregularity of the secretions. Nine cases out of ten these things are caused by too free a use of tea and coffee. These drinks clog the system, weaken the tissues and destroy the most important organs. Few men or women who indulge in tea and coffee regularly have clear urine, but on the contrary, sediment, scum and brick dust, all of which invariably mean coming disease or death."

"But what are we to do, Doctor? Shall we give up tea and coffee altogether?"

"No. I do not advise that, but regulate it. Keep the kidneys clear and active. There is nothing in the world so good for this as the well known and popular Hunt's Remedy. Any one who uses this medicine regularly can drink tea and coffee moderately without fear. The reason is that Hunt's Remedy flushes or washes out the kidneys, and keeps them free and healthy. Any number of prominent men and women can confirm what I say, among the number scores of doctors and ministers, Gen. Butler, Gen. Monroe and Miss Alcot."

It was plain that the warning and advice of the doctor had made a deep impression on his listeners, as it also should upon the millions of men and women who are shortening their lives by the use of these drinks.

Coughs, Sore Throat, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Croup, Bronchitis, Asthma, and every affection of the Throat, Lungs and Chest are speedily and permanently cured by the use of which does not dry up a cough and leave the cause behind, but loosens it, cleanses the lungs, and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint. CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED by a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials. The genuine is signed "I. Butts" on the wrapper. SETH W. Hood's Sarsaparilla

Combines, in a proportion peculiar to itself, the active medicinal properties of the best blood-purifying and strengthening remedies of the vegetable kingdom. It will positively cure—when in the power of medicine—Spring Debility, Headache, Dyspepsia, Catarrh, Salt Rheum, Scrofula, and all Diseases caused by a low state of the blood.

"I suffered three years with blood poison. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and think I am cured." MRS. M. J. DAVIS, Brockport, N. Y.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla beats all others, and is worth its weight in gold." I. BARRINGTON, 130 Bank Street, New York City.

Is so vastly superior to any other sarsaparilla or blood purifier, that one has well said: "Its health-giving effects upon the blood and entire human organism, are as much more positive than the remedies of a quarter or a century ago, as the steam-power of to-day is in advance of the slow and laborious drudgery of years ago."

"While suffering from a severe bilious attack in March, 1883, a friend in Peoria, Ill., recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla. I tried the remedy, and was permanently cured." J. A. SHEPARD, travelling agent for Devoe & Co., Fulton Street, N. Y.

Purifies the Blood

"I tried a dozen articles to cleanse my blood, but never found anything that did me any good till I began using Hood's Sarsaparilla." W. H. PEEK, Rochester, N. Y.

"My wife was troubled with dizziness and constipation, and her blood has been in a bad order—in fact she has been all run down. Hood's Sarsaparilla is doing her a wonderful amount of good." F. M. BALDWIN, druggist, Blanchester, Ohio.

"I was for five years a sufferer with boils, all run down, and was at one time obliged to give up work. Before taking all of two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, was entirely cured." R. M. LANE, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. Took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

OFFICIAL NOTICE!

—— OF ——

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co.

—— FROM THE ——

HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND, MAINE,

To those who are contemplating the purchase of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

GREETING:

On and after June 1st we shall STOP PREPAYING the FREIGHT on GOODS SOLD by us, and we respectfully request that those who have dealt with us, and who have been BENEFITED by the PAYMENT OF THIS FREIGHT which in itself in the past three years has amounted to some

30,000 DOLLARS,

Will order what GOODS they require for this SPRING, from us this month, and please order as early as possible. And to those who intend buying

Chamber Sets, Parlor Suits, Carpets, Lounges, Easy Chairs, Mattresses, Springs, Silver-ware, Window Shades, Drapery, Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Stoves and Ranges, Feathers, Feather Pillows, Spreads, Blankers,

And anything else in HOUSE FURNISHING, can be BENEFITED to the extent of the freight to their depot, by buying from us this month. We have always PREPAID THIS FREIGHT FROM OUR OWN PROFITS, as we have invariably made the price on the

Furniture, Carpets,

Etc., lower than could be bought for elsewhere. There has always been a great advantage derived by our prepayment of the freight because we in every instance GUARANTEE the SAFE DELIVERY of the goods, and if there has ever been a fight to make with the railroad, we have done it, or in other words if you have received a

CHAMBER SET, PARLOR SUIT, Chair, or Range,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

That was damaged by the railroad, we have replaced it with another piece, and taken our chances to get the breakage from the road. There are items worthy of our close consideration, and especially at this time of year, be wise and order during this month,

And Save Yourself the Freight from Portland to your Depot, no matter where it is located in the State of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

We believe we are the only HOUSE FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT IN NEW ENGLAND WHO HAVE ADHERED STRICTLY TO THIS PLAN OF PREPAYING THE FREIGHT ON EVERYTHING SHIPPED BY US. We mean by this that while some other houses have shipped the goods, and allowed you to pay freight and afterwards send them a bill and then dicker on it for some time, We have invariably paid out the cash before the article left our freight sheds at Portland. And now notwithstanding the fact that we expect to lose a great deal of business by this this year there seems to be no other way to convince some people of the difference between OUR PAYING THE FREIGHT before the articles leave here, AND OUR CUSTOMERS PAYING THE FREIGHT after the articles get to the depot, and then having to write backwards and forwards over the matter. We wish to deal with perfect fairness and frankness in this matter, consequently we give you another month to make your selection, and to fill orders that are already placed. Now if you want a

KITCHEN RANGE, or a CHAMBER SET, or PARLOR SUIT, or CARPETS, WINDOW SHADES, DRAPERY CURTAINS,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

Kindly come and see us at once, or if you can not come, please write us for Catalogues and Descriptions of these Goods, and we will do our very best to please you in every one. Remember we carry COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHINGS. There is scarcely a thing that you require for your homes that we do not keep, and we sell the same and shall continue to sell the same for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. This notice applies TO ALL OUR STORES, and we have written to each of our MANAGERS to this effect, consequently there will be no more freight prepaid from our Bangor Store, Rockland Store, Auburn Store, Bar Harbor Store, Biddeford Store, nor from the Headquarters at Portland, after the 31st day of May, 1888.

Kindly get your orders in before June 1st, if you wish to save this freight.

Respectfully, the Public's Ob't Servants,

THE ATKINSON HOUSE FURNISHING CO.

ONE OF THEM CARED FOR.

In New York, on the 11th inst., Frederick Lawther, who was convicted the previous week of picking a man's pocket in a street car five years ago, was arraigned for sentence in the general sessions. Lawther was arrested a short time ago, and confessed to Inspector Byrnes that he went to Bangor under the name of Mr. Emerson of New York, not long since, and succeeded in getting several impressions of locks on the Bangor jail, and that he was about to revisit Bangor to deliver the keys in order to release James Foster and Clarence Whitney, who were confined there under conviction of having robbed miser Peter Bennett of Newport, Me., of $32,000. It is on the evidence of Foster and Whitney that Dr. Weed of Newport, formerly of this city, is now in jail awaiting trial on a charge of complicity in the robbery, a charge which Dr. Weed's friends maintain is wholly false. Lawther got nine years and ten months in the New York state prison.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Charles Penhallow of Boston was in this city on Monday.

Col. Simon R. Marston has been appointed chief marshal for Memorial day.

Mr. John Stavers and wife, of Taunton, Mass., are visiting relatives in this city.

Prof. David Penhallow, professor of botany in a western college, is with his wife at Wingate's, on State street.

Mr. John Goodall, for several years past manager of the March farm in Greenland, has entered the employ of Frye & Co.'s express as messenger.

Rev. Daniel Rollins, of Pittsfield, N. H., has received a call from the Episcopal society at Linden, Mass. Mr. Rollins is a cousin of William H. Rollins, Esq., and Capt. Charles H. Rollins, of this city.

Dr. H. B. Burnham of Epping has resigned the office of county physician of Rockingham county after a continual service of nearly seventeen years. He is succeeded by Dr. A. W. Mitchell, who has recently moved to Epping from Harriaville.

Mr. Woodbury H. Wingate, wife and two children, will start the first of June for New Bedford, Mass., where they will pass the summer. The popular boarding house on State street will be carried on during their absence by Mr. Wingate's mother.

Mr. W. P. Brown, principal of the Haven school, went to his home in Worcester, Mass., last Saturday afternoon, suffering from a very severe cold on the lungs, with which he had been troubled for several days. On Monday it was reported that pneumonia had developed, and he was a very sick man. Miss Garrett is supplying his place temporarily.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner Mary Willey, Capt. [illegible] took a cargo of fish spawn, oil, etc., from Kittery Point to Boston, and there took on a general cargo for Bangor, where she loaded with lumber. She left Portland at six o'clock Monday morning, and though she found the sea very rough, arrived here shortly after noon.

The U. S. S. Swatara sailed from the lower harbor for Fortress Monroe at ten o'clock Sunday forenoon.

The secretary of the navy has ordered the Jamestown to Baltimore as a receiving ship. It has not been determined how long she will remain in that locality.

The U. S. S. Pensacola, Capt. A. R. Yates of this city commanding, arrived at New York on Sunday, the 13th inst., twelve days from Aspinwall, with the former crew of the U. S. S. Omaha on board.

Peremptory orders have been received at the navy yard for the practice ship Constellation, for some time past (and at present) undergoing repairs at the yard, to sail for Annapolis, Md., on Monday, the 21st inst. The tug Leyden, attached to the yard, was on Monday ordered to sail this (Tuesday) morning for Boston, under command of Comdr. Charles J. Barclay, ordnance officer at the yard, to bring around the seamen detailed from the receiving-ship Wabash at Boston to serve on board the Constellation.

The New York Times says: "Captain Howard Patterson, having been disappointed in his attempts up to the present time to secure a vessel suitable for his training ship for yachtsmen interested in the naval reserve project, went to Washington last week to have an interview with the secretary of the navy. His object was to secure, if possible, one of the numerous government vessels which are laid up in 'Rotton Row.' The secretary listened to him and appeared to be favorably disposed, but informed him that nothing could be done without the authorization of Congress. The captain then had an interview with Congressman Whitthorne, who said that a resolution authorizing the secretary to lend the captain a vessel would have to be passed. Mr. Whitthorne promised to introduce the resolution at once, and do all in his power to secure the passage. Captain Patterson regards his chances of success in the matter as exceedingly good."

BASE BALL.

The Portsmouth club played their first game in the Interstate League contest on Monday at Haverhill, Mass., and beat the Haverhill club, eight to five. In the evening the boys paraded around town with the fife and drum band, each member of the club carrying a broom.

SEASIDE NOTES.

The Marshall house at York harbor will be open for guests on the 15th of June.

The Boar's Head hotel at Hampton, Col. Steb. H. Dumas landlord, will open on Saturday, June 16th.

The Oceanic hotel at Star island, O. L. Frisbee proprietor, will open for the season on Wednesday, June 27th.

The Pepperrell house at Kittery Point will open for the season early in June, under the able management of Mr. M. F. Safford, its proprietor.

DEATH OF JAMES ODIORNE.

Mr. James Odiorne, of No. 5 Union street, died quite suddenly on Sunday afternoon at five o'clock, in an invalid chair at his home. He sustained a shock of paralysis about two years ago, and since then has been an invalid; and since last fall has not been able to leave the house. To a friend who called upon him early Sunday afternoon he said he was feeling better than for some time before, and hoped with the advent of warm weather to soon be able to get out of doors. He was of the old Odiorne stock which was prominent in the first settlement of the Piscataqua colony; was one of the old-style house carpenters, and a good one; and was in all respects a worthy man and a good citizen. He was long a member of the Middle street Baptist church, and was an Odd Fellow; his age was seventy-eight years and six months. He leaves one daughter, and an adopted daughter, the latter being the wife of Dr. Samuel F. Ham.

AFFAIRS IN KITTERY.

KITTERY POINT, ME., May 12th.

The rains of the week have started the grass and buds on trees along finely. In one of the sunny gardens of this place may be seen a beautiful bed of hyacinths now in full bloom. There are nine shades of these delicate flowers prettily mingled, and their fragrance may be perceived at quite a distance. The pansies, "heart's-ease," are coming into bloom in the open air.

Mr. Noah Eaton lost a valuable cow last week. It is thought her death was caused by taking a violent cold.

In the old Gerrish's island schoolhouse, mentioned in this paper some time ago, our highly esteemed doctor, Col. Mark F. Wentworth, taught his first school. He was a teacher in our public schools for a number of years in his younger days. In the first house of worship occupied by the First Christian society of Kittery on Tenney's hill, he and his brother, John Wentworth of North Kittery, attended Sabbath school with their mother.

Mr. Edwin Phillips of Raymond, N. H., [illegible] His wife, who accompanies him, is a native of Rye, N. H.

Miss Lizzie Thomas began her school in district No. 6 last Monday morning, and Miss Carrie Haley begins her school in No. 5 next Monday morning. The spring term in No. 5 will begin in the primary room, as the grammar school house is being repaired.

Mrs. Jennie Amee is quite ill with erysipelas in her face and neck.

Mrs. Sarah P. Mitchell has erysipelas in one arm quite badly.

Dandelion greens are quite the thing now, but they are not very plenty yet. We have a nosegay of blue violets, the first of the season. The woodland paths are bordered with anemones, or wind flowers as the children call them, and dog-tooth violets, called adder-tongue lilies. The little liverwort blossoms made their appearance this week, and the pussy willows are full grown.

We once knew a little fellow, who was standing near an older playmate when a mischievous younger one crept up behind and slyly pinched the little fellow. He turned quickly, and without investigating the matter gave his innocent playmate a pretty hard blow. Moral: when you strike make sure of your man, for "things are not always what they seem."

AUNT MOLLY.

Music Hall.

Abbey's Double Mammoth Uncle Tom's Cabin company opened their week's engagement last evening at the Globe theatre to an overflowing house, standing-room not being available after eight o'clock. The larger portion of the audience was composed of ladies and children, who, as usual, cried over the death of Eva. But the comicalities of the two Topsys and the eccentricities of the two lawyers, Marks, Sr. and Jr., brought forth screams of delight. The remarkable sagacity exhibited by the trained Russian bloodhounds was a complete surprise and elicited a perfect storm of applause.—Boston Globe.

At Music hall Wednesday evening. Seats on sale at Goodrich's; see advertisement.

Boyle & Norton, grocers on Penhallow street, have failed.

The officers of Osgood Lodge, I. O. O. F., of this city, accompanied by many members of the lodge, went to Kittery on Monday evening in barges, and exemplified the work of the order before Riverside Lodge of that town. The visitors were entirely satisfied with their treatment by the Kittery brethren.

A portion of the fine grounds of H. Fisher Eldredge, Esq., on Miller avenue, are being laid out for lawn tennis for the use of Miss Nellie Eldredge and a number of young friends, who have formed a club, and will practice the popular and beneficial game under the instructions of a skilled teacher. The young ladies of the club have been presented with racquets by Mrs. Eldredge.

Leavitt's Almanac for this year makes Whitsuntide fall on Sunday last, May 13th. We regret this, not only because it shows that Mr. Leavitt's early religious education was neglected, but because it misled several of our professional brethren, and caused them to announce last Sunday as Whitsuntide, whereas that festival always occurs ten days after Ascension day, on Holy Thursday, which this year fell on the 10th inst. Next Sunday, May 20th, is Whit Sunday.

Peculiar

Many peculiar points make Hood's Sarsaparilla superior to all other medicines. Peculiar in combination, proportion, and preparation of ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses the full curative value of the best known remedies of the vegetable kingdom. Peculiar in its strength and economy—Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "One Hundred Doses One Dollar." Medicines in larger and smaller bottles require larger doses, and do not produce as good results as Hood's. Peculiar in its medicinal merits, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown, and has won for itself the title of "The greatest blood purifier ever discovered." Peculiar in its "good name at home"—there is now more of Hood's Sarsaparilla sold in Lowell, where it is made, than of all other blood purifiers. Peculiar in its phenomenal record of sales abroad, no other preparation has ever attained such popularity in so short a time, and retained its popularity and confidence among all classes of people so steadfastly. Do not be induced to buy other preparations, but be sure to get the Peculiar Medicine,

One of the delegates-at-large to the convention at Chicago will be Hon. R. W. Thompson, ex-secretary of the navy. In 1840, in the great Tippecanoe campaign, he was on the stump for William Henry Harrison; and now he goes to Chicago as a delegate to cast his vote for Indiana's favorite, Gen. Benjamin Harrison, grandson of old Tippecanoe. Gen. Benjamin Harrison, by the way, has quite an array of eminent ancestors. His father was a whig congressman, his grandfather was the ninth president of the United States, and his great-grandfather, also named Benjamin Harrison, was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence and a politician of note in his day.

PRESTON'S SARSAPARILLA

Is perhaps the best general spring medicine ever offered to the people;—We always advise anyone, who may ask for information, that a physician be consulted in case of illness,—but to meet the wants of those desiring a medicine to take especially during the spring, when the system is racked and torn by the constantly changing weather, Preston's Sarsaparilla was introduced, and we constantly and confidently recommend it.

ARE WE NOT RIGHT?

The Makers of a Well Known Churn write:

"We have been often asked by dairymen: 'What is the very best soap to use to properly cleanse dairy utensils?' We have invariably replied, the 'Ivory,' but as for giving specific directions for washing dairy utensils, it is really summed up in making them thoroughly clean. Boiling water must be used, and that, in connection with IVORY SOAP, will thoroughly cleanse and deodorize the wood, leaving it clean and sweet for further use. Any dairy utensils half cleaned will spoil the delicate aroma of 'gilt edge butter,' which may be perfect in other respects."

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be 'just as good as the 'Ivory';' they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS. Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all GRAND & UPRIGHT others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

CAPTURING A MAN EATER.

Hunting the Shark in Hawaii—Nooing the Monster While Asleep.

Though it did not take us long to reach the spot where the man eater was known to be, yet night had fallen on them, and it was by the light of torches made of the baked kernels of the candle nut strung upon cocoa leaf fiber that we drew near the fleet. As we did so the dip of paddles was noiseless, and it was by signs alone that the "luna," or head fisherman, gave directions to the rest. By the smoky, red light of the torches we could see men busily scattering about the baked meat they had brought, and also half chewed morsels of the awa root. As they did so there was the gleam of the fins and tails of hundreds of fish darting to and fro for the food.

The old fisherman stationed near us suddenly crouched down, and, touching the doctor with one lean, brown hand, pointed to the water near the stern of the canoe next to us. We there saw, gleaming in the opalescent depths, two bright spots that shone with a malignant, greenish light. They were set in a monstrous, shadowy head, beyond which we could dimly see a huge brown body. Below the cool, cruel eyes were traced the outlines of a formidable mouth, that, even as we looked, opened slowly, disclosing row upon row of strongly hooked, pearly white teeth with deeply serrated edges. As this frightful mouth opened the monster rolled half over and viciously snapped at a bundle of food sinking near him. It was the niuhi, the fiercest and most voracious of his tribe, and as he moved along the crowd of fish darted away in terror. Even the great white shark sullenly gave place to this tiger of the sea, who swam slowly about, swallowing the food the fishermen kept throwing to him. As he thus moved from place to place his whole body seemed to exhale a peculiar light, that streamed from the tips of his fins and long, unevenly lobed tail. By the gleam of this peculiar phosphorescence his motion could be closely watched, and finally the experienced fisherman saw that he was becoming gorged. So intent had we been watching his movements that we had not noticed that while he was being fed the fleet of canoes had been silently moved in nearer the shore. Now, looking down, we could dimly see the white, sandy bottom, and in a few minutes were in quite shallow water, opposite an opening in the reef where the surf did not break. Our progress had been very slow, and now for a while the canoes halted, while hovering beneath them was the man eater, evidently somewhat stupefied by the awa he had swallowed with the food so freely given him.

The old Kahuna had, during the whole performance, kept up his pantomimic display, though in a guarded, quiet manner, while the fishermen kept close watch upon the shark. He gorged to repletion, evidently intended to take a nap, and so settled slowly down on the white sandy bottom. He was the perfect (sub-marine) picture of overfed helplessness, and it seemed as though we could almost hear him snore.

And then commenced a curious exhibition of skill and daring. A noose had been made in the end of a long, strong rope, and this was taken by an experienced old fisherman, who quietly slid overboard from his canoe and allowed himself to sink to where the man eater was resting, his body enveloped in that strange weird light. That was the moment when, if the shark had been shamming sleep, he would with one vigorous sweep of his tail and a snap of his jaws have earned his name of "man eater." But no; he was the time being powerless, and with infinite dexterity and skill the native succeeded in passing the noose over the brute's head and about his middle. He then quickly rose to the surface and clambered into his canoe, and the fleet was again set in motion. The canoe to which the line about the shark's body was attached moved very slowly and carefully, just enough strain being kept on the line to raise the captive's body clear of the bottom. Sometimes the shark would be a little restive, and then we all waited "until," as the doctor said, "he rolled over and went to sleep again."

At length we were close in to the beach, and all but two canoes were drawn up on the sands to wait for daylight. The two remaining ones lay over the sleeping niuhi, the end of the line to which he was secured being taken on the beach, and then all hands took turns in watching and sleeping. The job might have been completed that night, but this the Kahuna forbade.

"We have the right to snare the man eater in the night, while he is drunk," he said, "but we must wait for daylight, when he is sober, before we kill him."

By daylight a crowd of people had assembled on the beach, and the signal was given from the canoes that the niuhi was awake and getting restive. So the long line was seized by a hundred hands; it straightened out, and then, amidst the triumphant song of the Kahuna (who took immense credit to himself for the capture) and the yells and laughter of the crowd tramping away with the rope, the enraged man eater, thrashing and plunging about, was drawn out of the water and over the yellow sands. As his huge body plunged hither and thither he snapped savagely at everything, but in vain. A crowd of the fishermen were always about him, raining a shower of blows on his ugly head, until he lay, beaten to death, on the shore.—F. L. Clarke in San Francisco Chronicle.

Measurement of Electricity.

Electricity is no longer used in a haphazard way, as it was a few years ago, but it is accurately measured out for the work required of it, its quantities, according to Professor William A. Anthony, being comparable to those of more ponderable gas, oil or water. Its quantity, measured in units called coulombs, may be considered as analogous to pounds of a gas or liquid; potential, measured in volts, analogous to pounds per square inch of fluid pressure; capacity, measured in farads, analogous to cubic feet of a vessel for holding fluids; while the strength of current, measured in amperes, finds no close analogue in fluid measurements, though this is perhaps the most important of all, and furnishes the fundamental unit of the whole system. Another very important quanity is the resistance of bodies to the flow of electricity, which may be compared, qualitatively, to the frictional resistance which fluids experience in flowing through pipes and is measured in ohms. —Boston Budget.

Manufacture of Artificial Ivory.

A very good quality of artificial ivory can be manufactured from bones and the hides of animals. The bones are macerated and bleached in chloride of lime for two weeks; then are heated by steam together with the hides until a fluid mass results, and to this a small quantity of alum is added. After filtering the mass and drying in the air it is allowed to harden in an alum bath, yielding white, tough plates, which closely resemble ivory, and are more [illegible] than the natural product.

A story that seems to be circulated for advertising purposes places on John Wilkes Booth the paternity of Harry Lacy, now playing in "The Still Alarm." The story is probably without foundation. Mr. Lacy was clerk in a shoe store before he turned actor.

What a Mistake!

A careful examination would convince any one that two-thirds of all the people in New England have been or are now afflicted with the catarrh of the nose and throat.

No doubt more than half of these persons have tried every blood purifier they have seen, with the erroneous idea that catarrh is a constitutional disease and must be purged out of the blood.

Why a greater mistake was never made! Stop for a moment and think or ask any reputable physician what common catarrh is, and what causes it, and the answer can be only this. "It is an irritation or inflammation of the mucous membrane of the nose and throat, caused by neglected colds, damp piercing irritable winds, foreign matter in the air which is poisonous to some persons and not to others; just as the bites of certain insects is a poisoned torture to some and has no unpleasant effect upon others." The reason for this is found in the different structure of the outer skin and its counterpart which lines all the inner organs of our bodies. Some people have chapped hands and chilblains and others are never so afflicted because of the peculiar structure of the skin of different individuals.

Therefore stop dosing. It is not blood purifiers you want, but good wholesome food, the plainer the better, then "keep your feet dry and warm, your head cool and bowels open," and use an external application, (Johnson's Anodyne Liniment is the best we know,) to allay the inflammation, cleanse the surface, heal the sores, and your catarrh will disappear like magic. We do not say never to return, because you may cure a severe cold and in three months catch another equally bad, so with catarrh and bronchical troubles. Exposure may bring it on again. We learned more about treating catarrh from the wrapper around a bottle of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, than we ever knew. Certainly this good old medicine deserves to be called "A universal family remedy." No matter how well you know this medicine it will pay you to send to I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass., for a pamphlet free, just to learn how to use the liniment economically. A teaspoonful properly used will often do more good than a half bottle as some people use it.

The Boisterous Atlantic

Is a terror to timid voyagers, scarcely less on account of the perils of the deep than the almost certainty of sea sickness. The best curative of mal de mer is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which settles the stomach at once and prevents its disturbance. To all travellers and tourists, whether by sea or land, it presents a happy medium between the nauseous or ineffectual resources of the medicine chest, and the problematical benefit derivable from an unmedicated alcoholic stimulant, no matter how pure. The jarring of a railroad car often produces stomachic disorders akin to that caused by the rolling of a ship. For this the Bitters is a prompt and certain remedy. The use of brackish water, paiticularly on long voyages in the tropics, inevitably breeds disorders of the stomach and bowels. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters mixed with impure water nullifies its impurities. Similarly it counteracts malarial and other prejudicial influences of climate or atmosphere, as well as the effects of exposure and fatigue. Use it for kidney complaints, rheumatism and debility.

That Tired Feeling

Season is here again, and nearly every one feels weak, languid and exhausted. The blood, laden with impurities which have been accumulating for months, moves sluggishly through the veins, the mind fails to think quickly, and the body is still slower to respond. Hood's Sarsaparilla is just what is needed. It is, in a peculiar sense, the ideal spring medicine. It purifies, vitalizes and enriches the blood, makes the head clear, creates an appetite, overcomes that tired feeling, and imparts new strength and vigor to the whole body.

CHILD LABOR IN INDIA.

Babies Weave Their Beautiful Carpets and Children Carve Exquisite Friezes.

By the way, in every shop we have visited the most costly articles were for the American market. In this shop we saw a score or more of men at work on friezes and entablatures for a Mr. Forrest, of New York. I would like that he should see this letter, for it would be a pleasure when he sips his wine and looks upon his elaborate sideboard of teawood to know that some of the most exquisite of its rich carvings was done by a father and son, the little fellow being only 7 years old. How his taper little fingers would handle the tiny chisel and how accurate was his eye when he wrought from the hard, meaningless wood a flower that almost had an odor, so soft were its petals. The child had inherited the talent of its father, as he had done from his parent, and so through a long line, perhaps far back to those people whose handicraft made the rich relics in marble and wood of four centuries ago.

Here children follow the father's craft. It is deemed a sort of family disgrace for the children to permit the profession of their father to die out in their generation. A boy steps from his mother's arms, aye, from her very breast (for children are not weaned until 4 or 5 years old), into a companionship with the father and a partaker of his toil and a copier of his art. We have been in several small carpet weavers' houses at Amritsir and Lahore and other places, and everywhere a large part of the weaving was done by little boys. Carpets are not woven with a shuttle, but each thread or yarn of the woof is put into the warp with deft fingers, the left hand opening the one for the right to insert the other. A piece of yarn is run through and then cut off with a knife to make the even, velvety tuft.

The weaver does not have a design before him, but another boy sits in front with the design and calls out the next color to be inserted in a sort of chant. The weaver repeats this as he runs the color in. The first boy calls out for one or more who are on the other side of the web, and thus dictates for them all. To one not understanding the thing the chant would be taken for a sort of religious exercise. In one shop in the Punjab there was no fixed design at all. There were four weavers on a rug, say ten by fifteen feet. They had a common idea in their heads, but each worked out his portion of the carpet simply with a free hand as he went. There were in the shops named above two beautiful fabrics being woven for New York. There were two dictators and, I think, five weavers. They progress only a few inches a day. The manager, to my inquiry as to the cost of these, simply replied, "They are very costly. That is what the Americans want."—Carter Harrison's Bombay Letter.

Jones meets his friend Turner on the train. They are both going to Janesville, and stop at the same hotel. Turner registers his name thusly:

"E. K. Phthogmyrrh."

Jones, noticing it, exclaims: "Here! what are you assuming such a foreign, outlandish name for? Are you in any trouble?"

"Not a bit of it," replies Turner, "and I am not assuming any foreign name."

"Well, what kind of a name is that?" demands Jones.

"That is my identical old name," persists Turner, "and it is English, too—pronounced plainly 'Turner.'"

"I can't see how you get 'Turner' out of those thirteen letters, and, besides, what is your object in spelling it that way," asks Jones.

"Well, you see, nobody ever noticed my name on the register when I wrote it Turner," explains the latter, "but since I commenced writing it 'Phthogmyrrh' I put them all to guessing. They wonder what nation I am from and what my name is. I can now hear people talking about me all around. It is as I said before; it is English spelling. 'Phth,' there is the sound of 't' in 'phthisic;' 'olo,' there is the sound of 'ur' in 'colonel;' 'gn,' there is the 'n' in 'gnat;' 'yrrh' is the sound of 'er' in 'myrrh.' Now, if that don't spell 'Turner,' what does it spell?"—Chicago Herald.

Thirty Millions a Year.

"There is hardly a trade in the world that has grown so rapidly during the past few years as the cloak trade," said a manufacturer to a reporter. "A few years ago it was a trade almost entirely unknown on this side of the Atlantic. In this country alone now there are hundreds of houses devoted to its interest."

"Can you give me any figures as to its progress?"

"According to returns made at the last census, we find that the amount of business transacted in the matter of women's clothing footed up nearly $30,000,000, and it is likely that the greater part of this was for outer garments. About two-thirds of this, or $19,000,000, is credited to New York; to Philadelphia, $2,500,000; Boston, $1,800,000; Chicago, $1,500,000; Cincinnati and San Francisco about $1,000,000 each. According to the same returns the amount of capital employed was about $7,500,000; now it must be about $10,000,000."—New York Mail and Express.

Elbow Room in Wall Street.

Strangers who visit Wall street and its purlieus during those hours of the day when crowds used to be seen there, are surprised at the dull appearance of the locality and the fewness of the people on the trottoirs. In times when speculation used to be active, Wall, Broad, New and Nassau streets were thronged between 10 and 3 o'clock; but nowadays all this is changed, and there is plenty of room on the pavements of the financial center of the country.—New York Sun.

THE WORDS WE USE.

Contradiction of a Popular Notion—Notes of a Close Observer.

At an educational meeting held in this state a few years ago, the conductor, a noted professor, made the following statement: "The best educated person in this room will not use more than 600 or 700 words." He also assigned a smaller number to persons of limited education, stating that an ignorant man would not use more than 200 or 300 words. I had before seen statements of similar import in public print, and to test their correctness I began an investigation of the matter.

The subject was brought anew to my mind by observing an article in The Chautauquan some months ago, in which Professor Bancroft remarked: "It has been estimated that an English farm hand has a vocabulary limited to 300 words. An American workman who reads the newspapers may command from 700 to 1,000 words. Five thousand is a large number, even for an educated reader or speaker." This assertion is much nearer the truth than that of the institute conductor mentioned. For the benefit of those who may be interested I offer the results of my study on the subject. An intelligent person can make the same examination and will arrive at substantially the same results.

I took Webster's high school dictionary, edition 1878, containing 434 pages of vocabulary, and examined each word in the book. I made a note of those words which I supposed I had used at some time either in speaking or writing. I counted the primitive words and those derivatives whose meaning is most at variance with the primitive. Thus, I count fright and fruit, but not frighten, frightful, frightfully nor fruitage, fruiterer, fruitful, fruitfulness, fruition and fruit tree. I omitted most of the compound words, especially when the component parts directly indicated the meaning, as milk-pail, meeting-house, rag-man, but counted those whose significance was not directly indicated, as crowbar, quicksand, tinfoil. As the result of this examination, I had 7,928 words, which, I think, I myself have used.

There were 419 in A, 528 in B, 766 in C, 455 in D, 235 in E, 369 in F, 279 in G, 286 in H, 330 in I, 81 in J, 49 in K, 290 in L, 476 in M, 144 in N, 217 in O, 715 in P, 55 in Q, 397 in R, 954 in S, 454 in T, 47 in U, 148 in V, 202 in W, 23 in X and Y and 10 in Z.

Had I counted the various derivatives in common use, it is probable the number would be nearly double.

To make a further test of words at my command, I spent about two hours in writing from memory words in A. I was able to note down 587 words that I could use if occasion required. This is 85 per cent. more than I had counted from the dictionary. Should the same proportion hold good in all the letters, it would follow that I can recall from memory 10,700 words, all of which are familiar.

I made another count and came to the conclusion that I could give a fair definition of at least 25,000 words in that book and would understand their signification in a printed article or spoken address.

The above estimates are based upon my own experience and knowledge because it was convenient to make the experiment with myself. Every well informed man will be as competent, or more so. Either professor mentioned will have a more extended vocabulary than I have.

I then took at random, in the same dictionary, a page in each letter, and counted the words in very common use. On twenty-four pages there were 254 such words. This would give 3,300 words in use by persons of the most ordinary intelligence. None of these lists include any proper names.

At the time of making this study, one of my children was 3 years and 2 months of age. I noted down (and still have the lists) 218 words used by her in one day. They were words that any intelligent child would use, chiefly names of household articles and common things, with the most ordinary verbs and participles. I did not hear all she said during the day, nor do I think she used all the words she knew. I estimated her vocabularly at 400 words, and she did not know enough to carry on any except childish conversation.

From all of the foregoing observations I drew the following conclusions:

Every well read man of fair ability will be able to define or understand 20,000 or 25,000 primitives and principal derivative words.

The same man in his conversation and writing will use not less than 6,000 or 7,000 words. If he be a literary man he will command 2,000 or 3,000 more.

Common people use from 2,000 to 4,000 words, according to their general intelligence and conversational power.

An "illiterate man" (one who cannot read) will use from 1,500 to 3,500 words.

A person who has not at command at least 1,000 words is an ignoramus and will find difficulty in expressing his thoughts, if, indeed, he have any to express.—George Fleming in Literature.

A Pickpocket's Handy Tool.

Among the curiosities which Chief Speers keeps in his desk at the Central police station is a little pasteboard box filled with pieces of greenbacks. They were once parts of five, ten, twenty, fifty and one hundred dollar bills. At the time they were mutilated they were part of a roll of $5,000 in the pistol pocket of a wealthy stockman. He was on a train coming into Kansas City, and when he got off at the Union depot the pieces in the little box at the Central station were all that was left of the $5,000. A pickpocket had cut his pocket and in doing it had cut some of the bills, but he got all the rest.

When Chief Speers shows the scraps of greenbacks he also shows a sample of the instrument used by the pickpocket who secured the $5,000 minus the bills which had been mutilated. It is a curious little round steel affair, about six inches in length. The knife end of it is turned at right angles to the handle and is only about one-half an inch long. It is hammered as thin as paper and sharpened until it cuts cloth as noiselessly as it would butter. When a pickpocket locates "a roll" he watches his opportunity and cuts

BLONDE AND BRUNETTE.

Two Leading Types of Female Beauty—Various Intermediate Complexions.

A blonde should have a fair skin, blue eyes and light hair. Her lashes may be dark, and so, of course, would be her eyelashes; but this seldom happens when the eyes are blue. A brunette should have a clear olive skin, dark eyes, black hair and brows and lashes. The general woman is a blonde-brune—that is, she has brown hair, which is neither very dark nor very light; she has blue eyes, a complexion that is not absolutely clear pink and white, and dark brows and lashes, usually not very heavy. The special woman has the skin of a blonde, light hair, verging on the yellow, dark eyes and brows and lashes. A typical American woman has a fair skin that lacks color, dark gray or deep brown eyes, either looking absolutely black, and hair that, while it is light, has not the slightest tint of yellow in it.

The blonde cendree has the same dull skin, dark eyes and hair that seems close akin to gray, and yet never becomes so. Somebody said that Mrs. Langtry was a blonde cendree. Now, this is perfect nonsense. Her hair is a warm brown, her eyes a very deep hazel, and her skin absolutely blonde, the warm blood underneath showing through the white skin. She is the opposite—a blonde-brune. The blonde type predominates, but there is sufficient color in her hair and eyes to suggest the brunette. A perfect blonde is seldom a beautiful woman for many years. The pink and white skin becomes rather doughy with them; blue eyes will fade, and gray hairs, charming as they are among black, make yellow look very passee. The blonde has not always much staying power; she is apt to grow limp after a very little worry, and too often becomes fretful. Mankind ought to be thankful that there are so many bleached blondes, as they do not lose their energy as a natural born one would.

Some of the prettiest women in the world are the Irish girls, with their deep blue eyes, very black hair, and wonderfully clear skin. French women are seldom beautiful—they realize they are going to be old some day and they cultivate the art of dressing and of being chic in word and manner. A perfect brunette is seldom seen in this country, the average one, as noted in the Russian baths, loses decidedly by contrast with the blonde-brune. Her skin looks sallow and she is much apter to turn to angles than to curves—a something not at all in the line of beauty.

Here's a word of advice to the blondes: If you want to keep your skin looking as if it were alive, take as much exercise as you can; drive, ride or walk, and don't be afraid occasionally to bathe your face in a strong mixture of gin and water. You will feel brighter and fresher, and really one is cleaner after its use.—"Bab" in New York Star.

The Pope and His Guards.

Leo XIII talks willingly with the gentlemen of his guard, because they are young and living in the world and in high society they know everything that is going on. As the pope never goes outside the Vatican this furnishes him a means of knowing what passes in the city and what is done and said. He is much interested in building and likes to know how the public works that are now in course of erection go on and how the city of the popes is being transformed. Besides, Leo XIII likes the noble guard to be as active as possible. When the last batch of gentlemen were admitted to the guard—there were twelve of them—he made them a little address, urged them not only to be true gentlemen, but also to emulate the example of Count Soderini, who has gained much honor by important literary and political works. All the great questions treated by Leo XIII, all the difficulties that have arisen between the Holy See and Italy or the other powers have furnished to Count Soderini occasion for bringing out pamphlets or larger works, which have displayed lively intelligence and solid learning.—Rome Cor. Chicago Times.

Triumphs of Modern Chemistry.

English swindlers are treating yellow diamonds by some process by means of which they palm them off as pure white gems. This fraud may be ingenious, but the process by which artificial rubies were evolved two years ago by fusing aluminate of lead with silica and a little chromium added for coloring matter was something more; it was a triumph of modern chemistry. The Paris syndicate of diamonds and precious stones sat in solemn judgment upon the new product, decided that the stones must be sold as artificial and not as precious gems, and required Paris dealers to cancel the sales and return nearly $200,000 received for artificial stones that had been sold as natural rubies.

Mr. Kunz says the color of these stones is good, though not so brilliant as that of very fine rubies. Since he read his paper on these manufactured gems before our Academy of Science, it is reported from Europe that by another chemical combination still, apparently perfect specimens of rubies have been artificially produced. Modern chemistry is working out the wonders the alchemists of old dreamed of achieving.—New York Sun.

Carefulness in Old Age.

A medical man compares an old man to an old wagon; with light loading and careful usage it will last for years, but one heavy load or sudden strain will break it or ruin it forever. Many people reach the age of 50, 60 or 70 measurably free from most of the pains and infirmities of age, cheery in heart and sound in health, ripe in wisdom and experience, with sympathies mellowed by age, and with reasonable prospects and opportunities for continued usefulness in the world for a considerable time.

Let such persons be thankful, but let them also be careful. An old constitution is like an old bone, broken with ease, mended with difficulty. A young tree bends to the gale, an old one snaps and falls before the blast. A single hard lift, an hour of heating work, an evening of exposure to rain or damp, a severe chill, an excess of food, the unusual indulgence of an appetite or passion, a sudden fit of

Are the best months in which to purify your blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best blood purifier.

At no other season does the human system so much need the aid of a reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla, as now. The impoverished condition of the blood, the weakening effects of the long, cold winter, the lost appetite, and that tired feeling, all make a good spring medicine absolutely necessary. Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiarly adapted for this purpose, and increases in popularity every year. It is the ideal spring medicine.

"I must say Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine I ever used. Last spring I had no appetite, and the least work I did fatigued me ever so much. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and soon felt that I could do as much in a day as I had formerly done in a week. My appetite is voracious." MRS. M. V. BAYARD, Atlantic City, N. J.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to buy any other.

Were all wise enough to heed this advice in season, a world of suffering would be avoided. If you suffer from impure blood, scrofula, dyspepsia, biliousness, headache, take

A Complete Answer.

The argument that protection is simply embodied and organized selfishness was well answered by Senator Morrill in his recent speech on the tariff. No other people, said he, seek our markets to confer favors upon Americans, but altogether for their own pecuniary benefit. These markets, in their wide extent and in the superior ability of the consumers, dwarf and surpass all other markets on the globe, and should be guarded by the utmost vigilance of the nation. In the world's history our diplomatic arrangements have not always contributed to the maintenance of the markets, and it would be an infinitely greater mistake, a more far-reaching mischief, if Congress should voluntarily, and as a free gift, surrender these golden home markets to those who do not care for us, or to that empire which after their unconditional surrender, might well afford no longer to regret the loss of any American colonies.

A New House of Pears.

Commerce is king in this nineteenth century, at all events with English-speaking nations; commerce fulfills all the old kingly functions; it is the patron of art, the builder of architectural wonders, the benefactor of the working masses, the friend of the inventor, of the designer, of the clever handicraftsman. These are large statements, but let anyone who is inclined to dispute them first visit the palace of Messrs. Pears in New Oxford street, which is one of the finest of the pieces of work finished in honor of the Jubilee year. In paying this visit, try the experiment at first of removing the immediate associations of the building and its objects. Suppose yourself in the future, well into the next century, and imagine that you are a visitor to England, exploring its "shows" for the first time. Entering 71 to 75 New Oxford street, you would be more likely to imagine yourself in the hall of a royal palace than anywhere else. Keeping to the present day, and picturing yourself as a modern Gulliver wandering uninstructed in a strange country, would you not suppose you were with Alice in Wonderland if, when you had entered the gorgeous Pompeian court, of which this hall consists, you were told that this is nothing more nor less that the entrance hall to a soapmaker's office? True, the soap is the most wonderful soap in the world, and this is the great central depot for a business which has its branches and ramifications all over the surface of the globe. Nevertheless, it is strange to survey these statues, these many colored marbles and exquisitely patterned mosaics, and realize that you are in, perhaps, the finest reproduction of a Pompeian court in existence, and that such an every-day necessity as soap has supplied the giant fortune which has accomplished all this. It is from the very fact of soap being an every-day necessity that the power comes; the first axiom in modern commerce being to devote attention to those things which people must use constantly. Messrs. A. and F. Pears have done this, making soap a thing of beauty and delight, and they have reaped their reward. I say beauty and delight advisedly; for everybody knows that soap can make or destroy the skin, that most necessary part of beauty; and pure soap, made from fine oils and scented with otto of roses, is a delight to use. Messrs. Pears should be looked upon as benefactors to the race, for their colossal system of advertising—involving the stupendous outlay of 70,000*l.* and sometimes approaching 100,000*l.* a year—affords endless amusement and pleasure to the mass of persons almost all over the world. The "Dirty Boy" has been as good as a play for the million, and the great windows in New Oxford street, where stand the statuettes of the "Dirty Boy" and the "Clean Boy" and other pieces of sculpture, are crowded every night, like the pit of a theatre. The magnificent building itself is an advertisement; and it is a daily and hourly delight to all classes, from artists, critics, and connoisseurs, who visit the beautiful vestibule, to the street crowd, which is forever gazing in upon the grand display of art it contains. On the top floor of the building, above the Pompeian court, is a magic-lantern room, where, from six to nine every night, slides are shown, taken from the various picture advertisements. These are exhibited to the street in very large size, and some of them are automatic; the Dirty Boy, for instance, is actually scrubbed. The whole street is crowded every evening to see this show, and the difficulty is to prevent the crowd from interfering with the traffic.

* * * * *

The waiting room is made especially interesting by being in fact a picture-gallery, where hang the originals of the various works of art reproduced by the firm as advertisements. It is surprising to see what a striking collection they compose. But they are both crowned and entirely thrown into the shade by "Bubbles," Sir John Millais' lovely picture, for which Messrs. Pears have given two thousand two hundred pounds. The giant advertising of the firm has given amusement and interest to the mass, and now it is giving the fine arts. In May we shall have "Bubbles" all over the country, measuring eleven feet by nine; the only addition to the original picture being a cake of soap lying on the floor beside the child. The pretty figure, the lovely little face, will add a much-needed beauty to our railway stations.

The show-rooms of advertisements and show cards are like galleries of pictures, and very interesting and amusing. We are pretty well used to these wonderful advertisements, but it is curious to see them together, and try to measure the amount of ingenuity and brain-power that has been lavished on them. They are sent far afield, to America, Africa, to India and Australia. The portraits of pretty women, the innumerable devices, from the Japanese handkerchief, which had such a success in its day, to "Bubbles," the last new thing, are placed side by side.

In the actual working of the establishment the most modern scientific appliances are used, and this is one of the best possible places to study how such things should be done. The engine-room is always a fascinating place where electricity is at work; one must visit the familiar demon who makes the power. On this floor the lift is worked from the storage of electricity. The work has been well and admirably carried out in its every detail under the care of the architect, and it may indeed be safely asserted that a veritable fairy palace of commerce has been erected by Messrs. Pears, which is unexampled in splendor in this great metropolis.—The World, London, England, March 28th, 1888.

Pears' soap is undoubtedly the purest and most luxuriant bathing and complexion soap made. It has been established in London 100 years, has received fifteen international awards, and is sold in every city in the world. Ask for it of druggists in this vicinity, and look out for imitations.

Want of Sleep

Is sending thousands annually to the insane asylum; and the doctors say this trouble is alarmingly on the increase. The usual remedies, while they may give temporary relief, are likely to do more harm than good. What is needed is an Alterative and Blood-purifier. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is incomparably the best. It corrects those disturbances in the circulation which cause sleeplessness, gives increased vitality, and restores the nervous system to a healthful condition.

Rev. T. G. A. Coté, agent of the Mass. Home Missionary Society, writes that his stomach was out of order, his sleep very often disturbed, and some impurity of the blood manifest; but that a perfect cure was obtained by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Frederick W. Pratt, 424 Washington street, Boston, writes: "My daughter was prostrated with nervous debility. Ayer's Sarsaparilla restored her to health."

William F. Bowker, Erie, Pa., was cured of nervousness and sleeplessness by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla for about two months, during which time his weight increased over twenty pounds.

Lost, Strayed or Stolen.

Mrs. John B. Murray, a pretty brunette, twenty-two years old, complained at the Jefferson Market court in New York on the 14th inst. that her husband, John B. Murray, seventy years old, and blind, had been abducted by his sister, Agnes Murray, a spinster, sixty years old, who lives on a stock farm at Morristown, Greenfield Hill, Conn. The Murrays are rich, and Murray hill was named after their family. Till 1886 Mr. Murray lived as a recluse in New York. Then he rented part of his house to Dr. Frederick Leiss, and soon after took a fancy to and married Leiss' daughter, against the wishes of Miss Agnes Murray, who is now charged with carrying him off.

THE LATEST DISCOVERY.

A Prominent Physician Reveals Some New and Startling Secrets.

"Do you know," said Dr. Bodlich, of Boston, at the club, one evening recently, "what the starting point of most physical troubles is?"

"No, indeed," replied a circle of anxious enquirers, as they crowded about the doctor.

"Tea and coffee," answered the eminent physician.

There was a look of horror on the faces of his listeners. The doctor continued:

"Men, and women even more, drink tea and coffee constantly, and wonder why they feel dull and stupid, have headaches, a bad taste in the mouth, pains in the limbs and about the body and irregularity of the secretions. Nine cases out of ten these things are caused by too free a use of tea and coffee. These drinks clog the system, weaken the tissues and destroy the most important organs. Few men or women who indulge in tea and coffee regularly have clear urine, but on the contrary, sediment, scum and brick dust, all of which invariably mean coming disease or death."

"But what are we to do, Doctor? Shall we give up tea and coffee altogether?"

"No. I do not advise that, but regulate it. Keep the kidneys clear and active. There is nothing in the world so good for this as the well known and popular Hunt's Remedy. Any one who uses this medicine regularly can drink tea and coffee moderately without fear. The reason is that Hunt's Remedy flushes or washes out the kidneys, and keeps them free and healthy. Any number of prominent men and women can confirm what I say, among the number scores of doctors and ministers, Gen. Butler, Gen. Monroe and Miss Alcot."

It was plain that the warning and advice of the doctor had made a deep impression on his listeners, as it also should upon the millions of men and women who are shortening their lives by the use of these drinks.

MONTANA HEARD FROM.—Recent railroad extensions have developed exceptionally fine mineral, stock and farming districts. Maps and full particulars, free, upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

NEW BUSINESS CENTERS.—The building of railroads in a new and fertile country creates many new towns, affording excellent business opportunities. Particulars regarding such opportunities in Montana, Minnesota and Dakota will be sent upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

STOCK IN MINNESOTA.—From an exclusive grain country, Minnesota is being rapidly transformed into the finest stock and dairy state in the Union. Cheap lands still obtainable, convenient to railroad. Particulars free upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

SUCCESS. Are you mortgaged, paying heavy rent, or railing beh ind? Excellent lands, cheap, which will increase in value several fold in five years. No other such opportunities existing. Full particulars, free, upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

FAILURE OF CROPS is an unknown experience in Central and Northern Dakota and Minnesota. Maps and full particulars regarding lands, prices, etc., sent free. Address C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

PROSPEROUS North Dakota never had better crops than those just harvested. Many opportunities to secure fine Government lands recently surveyed, near excellent coal fields and adjacent to railroad. Maps and full particulars, free, upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

WHY WORK FOR ANOTHER, or on small salary? Why continue working on a worn-out farm? Why try to secure a living from such high-priced or heavily mortgaged farms? Why work on rented land? Why not start for yourself? Why not secure at once some of the low-priced but very fertile and well located lands adjacent to railroads now to be obtained by those going to Northern Dakota and Minnesota, where you can make a larger net profit per acre than on the high-priced or worn-out land you now occupy? Why not go and look the situation over, and see for yourself, or at least obtain further information, which will be sent free, if you will address C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Combines, in a proportion peculiar to itself, the active medicinal properties of the best blood-purifying and strengthening remedies of the vegetable kingdom. It will positively cure—when in the power of medicine—Spring Debility, Headache, Dyspepsia, Catarrh, Salt Rheum, Scrofula, and all Diseases caused by a low state of the blood.

"I suffered three years with blood poison. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and think I am cured." MRS. M. J. DAVIS, Brockport, N. Y.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla beats all others, and is worth its weight in gold." I. BARRINGTON, 130 Bank Street, New York City.

Is so vastly superior to any other sarsaparilla or blood purifier, that one has well said: "Its health-giving effects upon the blood and entire human organism, are as much more positive than the remedies of a quarter of a century ago, as the steam-power of to-day is in advance of the slow and laborious drudgery of years ago."

"While suffering from a severe bilious attack in March, 1883, a friend in Peoria, Ill., recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla. I tried the remedy, and was permanently cured." J. A. SHEPARD, travelling agent for Devoe & Co., Fulton Street, N. Y.

Purifies the Blood

"I tried a dozen articles to cleanse my blood, but never found anything that did me any good till I began using Hood's Sarsaparilla." W. H. PEER, Rochester, N. Y.

"My wife was troubled with dizziness and constipation, and her blood has been in a bad order—in fact she has been all run down. Hood's Sarsaparilla is doing her a wonderful amount of good." F. M. BALDWIN, druggist, Blanchester, Ohio.

"I was for five years a sufferer with boils, all run down, and was at one time obliged to give up work. Before taking all of two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, was entirely cured." R. M. LANZ, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. Took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

OFFICIAL NOTICE!

—— OF ——

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co.

—— FROM THE ——

HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND, MAINE,

To those who are contemplating the purchase of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

GREETING:

On and after June 1st we shall STOP PREPAYING the FREIGHT on GOODS SOLD by us, and we respectfully request that those who have dealt with us, and who have been BENEFITED by the PAYMENT OF THIS FREIGHT which in itself in the past three years has amounted to some

30,000 DOLLARS,

Will order what GOODS they require for this SPRING, from us this month, and please order as early as possible. And to those who intend buying

Chamber Sets, Parlor Suits, Carpets, Lounges, Easy Chairs, Mattresses, Springs, Silver-ware, Window Shades, Drapery, Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Stoves and Ranges, Feathers, Feather Pillows, Spreads, Blankers,

And anything else in HOUSE FURNISHING, can be BENEFITED to the extent of the freight to their depot, by buying from us this month. We have always PREPAID THIS FREIGHT FROM OUR OWN PROFITS, as we have invariably made the price on the

Furniture, Carpets,

Etc., lower than could be bought for elsewhere. There has always been a great advantage derived by our prepayment of the freight because we in every instance GUARANTEE the SAFE DELIVERY of the goods, and if there has ever been a fight to make with the railroad, we have done it, or in other words if you have received a

CHAMBER SET, PARLOR SUIT, Chair, or Range,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

That was damaged by the railroad, we have replaced it with another piece, and taken our chances to get the breakage from the road. There are items worthy of our close consideration, and especially at this time of year, be wise and order during this month,

And Save Yourself the Freight from Portland to your Depot, no matter where it is located in the State of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

We believe we are the only HOUSE FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT IN NEW ENGLAND WHO HAVE ADHERED STRICTLY TO THIS PLAN OF PREPAYING THE FREIGHT ON EVERYTHING SHIPPED BY US. We mean by this that while some other houses have shipped the goods, and allowed you to pay freight and afterwards send them a bill and then dicker on it for some time, We have invariably paid out the cash before the article left our freight sheds at Portland. And now notwithstanding the fact that we expect to lose a great deal of business by this this year there seems to be no other way to convince some people of the difference between OUR PAYING THE FREIGHT before the articles leave here, AND OUR CUSTOMERS PAYING THE FREIGHT after the articles get to the depot, and then having to write backwards and forwards over the matter. We wish to deal with perfect fairness and frankness in this matter, consequently we give you another month to make your selection, and to fill orders that are already placed. Now if you want a

KITCHEN RANGE, or a CHAMBER SET, or PARLOR SUIT, or CARPETS, WINDOW SHADES, DRAPERY CURTAINS,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

Kindly come and see us at once, or if you can not come, please write us for Catalogues and Descriptions of these Goods, and we will do our very best to please you in every one. Remember we carry COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHINGS. There is scarcely a thing that you require for your homes that we do not keep, and we sell the same and shall continue to sell the same for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. This notice applies TO ALL OUR STORES, and we have written to each of our MANAGERS to this effect, consequently there will be no more freight prepaid from our Bangor Store, Rockland Store, Auburn Store, Bar Harbor Store, Biddeford Store, nor from the Headquarters at Portland, after the 31st day of May, 1888.

Kindly get your orders in before June 1st, if you wish to save this freight.

Respectfully, the Public's Ob't Servants,

THE ATKINSON HOUSE FURNISHING CO.,

Headquarters Cor. Pearl and Middle Streets, Portland, and Branches at Auburn, Rockland, Bangor and Biddeford, also Bar Harbor for a short time.

ISAAC C. ATKINSON, Gen. Manager.

CIRCUIT COURT---COLT J.

The court was occupied Monday and Tuesday in hearing further evidence in case Twitchell (admr. of Noyes) vs. Grand Trunk railroad.

OBITUARY.

Mr. Wellington Chickering, for over thirty years a resident of Chelsea, Mass., died on the 13th inst., aged seventy-two. He was a native of this city, and served two years in the navy during the war, being on board the Niagara when she experienced the great cyclone.

A telegram was received here on Tuesday from Philadelphia, announcing the death of Mr. Moses P. Stacey in that city on Monday evening. The deceased was son of the late Major S. S. Stacey of Greenland, this state; he married a daughter of the late Wm. M. Shackford of this city, and has for many years resided in Philadelphia, being superintendent of the Mercantile Agency of R. G. Dun & Co. His age was about sixty-five years.

Albert J. Merrill, surviving member of the trailoring firm of Merrill Bros., Washington street, Boston, died suddenly in that city on Sunday evening, the 13th inst., of apoplexy, aged about fifty-seven years. The junior member of the firm, James A. Merrill, was lost in the wreck of the steamship City of Columbus on the Devil's Bridge in January, 1884. The brothers were born in South Hampton, this county, but moved to Boston when young men.

PERSONAL.

Hall T. Varrell, D. D. S., left this city on Tuesday for the west, with a view to locating there for the practice of his profession. He has not as yet made selection of any particular place, but will look around for one which seems to offer a good apportunity.

Elder George W. Sederquist, who has preached in the Advent church in this city many times during the past few years, was stricken with apoplexy on Sunday forenoon last during divine service in the Walnut street Advent church in Haverhill, Mass., and was taken to his home in that city.

Mr. John Pryor of Stratham was eighty-five years old on Wednesday of last week, and nearly a hundred relatives and friends went to his home, at the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. Eben F. Brackett of Stratham, and gave him a birthday surprise party. Numerous gifts were bestowed by the intruders upon the venerable gentleman, among them being an elegant easy chair. A collation was served about half-past nine o'clock, after which the time was happily passed in the expression of congratulations and the interchange of kindly wishes until about one, when the pleasant party broke up.

MARITINE NOTES.

The steamer Pinafore, Capt. Oscar Laighton, came in from Appledore on Tuesday forenoon. Capt. Laighton reported the ocean literally covered with tens of thousands of bay birds, feeding on the surface of the waters.

The steamer Pottsville, from Philadelphia with 1660 tons of coal, and the schooner Commonwealth, from Rockland with 800 barrels of lime, both to J. Albert Walker, arrived at this port on Tuesday.

The United States training ship Portsmouth, Commander White, arrived at Newport, R. I., May 14th, from St. Thomas, from which place she sailed April 26th. She will be joined soon by other vessels of the squadron, and they will probably remain several weeks.

The keeper of the Tillamook Rock (Oregon) lighthouse reports to the lighthouse board a wave which broke at a height of 160 feet above high water mark. His calculation is made as follows: The rock upon which the lighthouse tower stands rises ninety-six feet above high water; the focal plane of the light itself is thirty-eight feet above the base of the the tower; and the crest of the wave was at least twenty-five feet above the light. The windows of the tower were broken, and the lamp extinguished.

The steamship Gate City, from Boston for Savannah, collided with an unknown vessel 200 miles northeast of Cape Hatteras at two o'clock Friday morning, in a dense fog, the sailing vessel driving her bowsprit through the steamer's side, and doing considerable damage. The barque Rebecca Crowell arrived at New York on the 14th from New Zealand, badly damaged, having been in collision on Friday morning with an unknown steamer bound south, probably the Gate City.

The staunch little steamer Pinafore will run between Appledore and Star islands, Isles of Shoals, during "the season" now nigh at hand, as for a number of years past; but she will be sold by the Laighton Bros. next fall, and a larger and much more powerful boat purchased to do the winter business between the islands and the main land.

The U. S. S. Swatara, which was to have sailed Monday but laid over on account of the weather, cleared this morning for Norfolk, Va.—Times of Monday, May 14th.

Wrong again; she cleared Sunday morning.—Penny Post of Tuesday, the 15th.

The Swatara did not "clear" for Norfolk, either Sunday or Monday; she sailed for that port on Sunday. National vessels do not have to "clear."

A PETTY THIEF.

Last Friday night D. S. Marshall, a Canadian, who had been at work on the base ball fence, went to Mr. Marden, the gentleman in charge of the building of the fence, and asked for the money due him, stating that he had just received a message announcing the death of his mother in Concord. Mr. Marden paid him, and he departed. During that night, or later, five saws, four hammers, two hatchets and a steel square were stolen from the barn where the tools were kept. The weather being rainy on Saturday no work was done on the fence, and the tools were not missed till Monday, when suspicion at once rested on this man, and one of the workmen was sent to the north end to look for any trace of the tools. On inquiring at a store there, the messenger was informed that the proprietor had purchased three saws, a hammer and the steel square from a man of Marshall's description. The police were notified and soon learned that the man left for Dover on the 12:20 train Monday afternoon. The north end storekeeper returned the tools to Mr. Marden on receipt of the small sum that he had paid for them. Mr. Marden is willing to pay anyone who may have come into possession of any of the tools all the money advanced for them.

MUSIC HALL.

An immense audience witnessed a very creditable rendition of Uncle Tom's Cabin, by Abbey's Double Mammoth company at the Globe theatre, last night. The introduction of two Topsys and two Marks is a decided novelty, and kept the spectators in one continual roar of laughter. But no small share of praise was awarded to Eva's pony, "Prince," and the æsthetic donkey, "Oscar," the latter animal being ridden by Marks, Sr. The scenic effects were perfectly magnificent. —Boston Herald.

This company will play in Music hall to-night, with all the scenic accessories used in Boston and the other large cities. Tickets at Goodrich's; see advertisement in another column.

ELIOT ITEMS.

ELIOT, ME., May 15th.

Mr. F. J. Paul died Monday morning after a long and severe illness, during which he suffered excruciating pain. He leaves a wife and two children, the latter aged respectively twelve and fourteen years. He and his wife were both members of the Congregational church, which mourns the loss of one of its most active and devoted members, while the church triumphant has gained. Mr. Paul was treasurer of this town for a number of years, and a finer man could not be found nor asked for; he always had a smile and a pleasant word for all whom he met. As a husband and father, a brother in the church, a citizen and a neighbor, he was a pattern, and his loss is sorely felt.

Emma Huntress died on Sunday last, after a long sickness of consumption, which was borne with exemplary patience and fortitude. Her mother passed away about four years ago, and the mother and daughter are now waiting on the other shore to meet the father, sister and brother who so sadly mourn their departure.

Dr. J. L. M. Willis has been confined to his house for the past week with a severe cold and a light form of diphtheria; he is however now recovering, and will soon be able to attend to his patients.

Rev. W. F. Marshall, the Methodist pastor, has his household goods at the parsonage, and will soon be duly settled down. We hope the people will all call upon his family, and make things as pleasant as possible.

Fred L. Paul is having a new barn erected close to his house.

Any one desiring to buy a nice pig, or a number of them, can find what they want at George E. Ireland's, near Eliot depot. People on "the Neck" who wish to get their spring plowing done, can effect their object by applying to Messrs. Paul and Staples, who will do the work in the best style.

If there is anything in the old adage that "a wet May fills the barn with hay" there should be a grand hay crop this season, as we are having an abundance of wet so far. It is good for the grass, no doubt, but rather discouraging for the farmers who wish to plant, as the ground is in most cases too moist to cultivate.

HARRY.

SEASIDE NOTES.

The coming summer will be the 40th that a hotel has been kept at Appledore. The season of 1887 was the most prosperous one the popular, home-like resort had ever enjoyed, and a similar report was made by Landlord Frisbee of the Oceanic after the season had closed. This year the proprietors of both hotels anticipate something still better, the advance engagements of rooms at both houses being unprecedented, and many of the prospective visitors having announced their intention of being at the islands as soon as the season opens.

The Penacook cottage at Union Bluff, York beach, was purchased last week by A. W. Gale of Concord. The lot on which it stands is finely located, and the cottage will be considerably improved by its new owner before occupying the same.

Neuralgic paroxysms are often of extreme violence, and brought on by the slightest provocation, such as a draught of cool air. The skin is swollen and inflamed, and even after the attack has abated feels stiff and tender. On the first intimation of such an attack rub with Salvation Oil. 25 cents.

Have you seen that lot of Challi Dress Goods at 10 cts. per yard? If not, go to Lewis E. Staples' dry goods store, No. 7 Market street.

Five shares of Portsmouth Gas Light Co.'s stock for sale. For terms apply to Ilsley & Moore, No. 3 Pleasant street.

The Penny Post of Tuesday says encouragingly: "A look at the base ball grounds at the south end to-day, discloses tufts of grass here and there sticking above the water of the lake."

Storer Post, G. A. R., will attend divine service at the Methodist church on Sunday, May 27th, by invitation of the pastor, Rev. O. S. Baketel.

The supreme judicial court of Maine for York county came in at Alfred on Tuesday, Hon. L. A. Emery of Ellsworth on the bench. The grand jurors are: William R. Parker, Kittery; Willis G. Moulton, York; Leonard Andrews, 2d, and James F. B. Waterhouse, Biddeford; Herbert Jacobs, Kennebunk; James O. Rowell, Berwick; Eliot Fernald and Albert C. Manson, Saco; Joseph Stackpole, North Berwick; James Waterhouse, Dayton; Samuel Batchelder, Shapleigh; Hiram Walker, South Berwick; James W. Grant, Lebanon; John Tennant, Lyman; Asa Davis, Parsonsfield; Roscoe Stuart, Hollis; Jeremiah Moulton, 2d, Sanford; Henry C. Maddox, Newfield. Among the petit jurors are John Wentworth of Kittery, George Shapleigh of Eliot, Wilbur F. Norton of York, William Bedell of South Berwick, Mead Hopkins of Berwick, Stephen M. Roberts of North Berwick, Mark Farnham of Wells, Enoch Mitchell and Sylvanus Day of Kennebunk.

Private Joseph Fifer, the republican candidate for governor of Illinois, is evidently a character in his way. At the outbreak of the war he was a mere lad, and very poor. He walked barefoot to the recruiting place and volunteered. In the Mississippi campaign he was shot through the lungs and liver, and the wound was long deemed mortal But after a long and painful illness he returned to his regiment, and not only remained with it to the end, but served three months beyond his term of enlistment. Coming home from the war as poor as when he enlisted, still Private Fifer, he made up his mind to educate himself. In this task he succeeded so well that he was admitted to the bar and began to practise law. His wounds troubled him greatly, and he obtained a pension. Colonel Dudley, at the intercession of Senator Cullom, granted an increase of pension. Gen. Black said the increase was fraudulent, and obtained solely by political influence. Private Fifer retorted in a letter, in which he told General Black that the latter owed his position as commission of pensions to circumstances over which his [Black's] abilities had small control. Evidently Private Fifer wields a trenchant pen, or knows one when he sees it. Private Fifer has the support of many democrats among the Illinois veterans.

Stevenson's Great $10,000 Story.

BOSTON, May 15.—Robert Louis Stevenson's new story, about which there was so much talk, and for which he was paid $10,000, will begin in the Boston Daily Globe next Saturday, the 19th. Everybody who has read "Treasure Island," "Kidnapped," or "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" knows that there is no greater writer in the world to-day than Stevenson. The title of this story which the Globe has secured is "The Outlaws [of Tunstall Forest." In brief, the story is that of a most remarkable series of adventures, with the thread of a love romance running through it. The story will be illustrated by the best known American artists. Remember it begins next Saturday, and will continue each week day until completed.

The bill to exempt the case of Thomas S. Hopkins, formerly of Maine, now a resident of Washington, from the limitations presented in the pension arrearages law, so that he may be entitled to arrearages, has just become a law without the president's approval.

To preserve the richness of color or delicacy of tint of your summer dresses, make suds of hot water and IVORY SOAP, allow to cool until lukewarm, then wash your dresses in the solution. Ordinary soaps contain too much alkali, which in a short time bleaches the color and destroys its beauty. Prof. Silliman, of Yale College, says, "The IVORY SOAP can not injure the most delicate fabric."

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory'!" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

Distress After Eating

Sick Headache

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." ARE WE NOT RIGHT?

In asking you the question,—If it is not better to purchase medicines and household remedies generally from people you know, and whose reputation is for exactitude, are we not right? We guarantee the

PRESTON JAMAICA GINGER

To be in all ways worthy of your confidence,—and strongly advise that it be kept in every household.

PRESTON'S SARSAPARILLA

Is perhaps the best general spring medicine ever offered to the people;—We alwaye advise anyone, who may ask for information, that a physician be consulted in case of illness,—but to meet the wants of those desiring a medicine to take especially during the spring, when the system is racked and torn by the constantly changing weather, Preston's Sarsaparilla was introduced, and we constantly and confidently recommend it.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.

$22 TO $900.

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS

Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all GRAND & UPRIGHT others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

Kleptomania Does Not Exist.

Two skilled detectives agree in the theory that the disease known as kleptomania does not exist. "When a rich woman steals $50 worth of goods she has kleptomania," said one of them, "and when a poor woman steals fifty cents' worth of bread to feed her starving children she is a thief. Show me a pauper with a real bad attack of kleptomania and I will believe that there is such a disease, for if there is why should not the poor be as susceptible to it as the rich! My impression at present is that people are born thieves, as they are born musicians or singers—it is a gift, though a deplorable one, and is accompanied by great cunning and sagacity. Another fact which disproves the kleptomania theory is that never in my experience of many years have any goods been returned or paid for by the friends of people afflicted with this imaginary malady—it is only when discovered stealing something that they and all their friends call them kleptomaniacs.

"When a woman comes in here and buys a new bonnet and walks off boldly with it on her head without paying for it, or takes a waterproof off a figure and puts it on herself before us all, I know she is a victim of mental aberration and treat her accordingly. If, however, there are kleptomaniacs, one of the best known remedies for them is found in a police court—it is almost a sure cure. Many rich women who have large accounts at stores, and are apparently unlimited as to money, will take a twenty-five cent article surreptitiously if they can, and the clerks make up the deficit in their bills or accounts. A wagon load of goods was recovered in the house of a rich woman by one firm, the goods being stowed away under the servant girl's bed, and never having been used or cut into. But the peculiarity among rich shoplifters lies in the cheapness of the articles they pilfer, which would signify a rather diseased mental condition and a desire simply to steal."—New York Sun.

Safes Are No Longer Safe.

At a recent meeting of the Liverpool section of the Society of Chemical Industry, Mr. Thomas Fletcher, F. C. S., gas engineer, of Warrington, gave a demonstration of the application of some new gas heating appliances, devised by himself for workshop emergencies, one of the feats of the evening being the fusion of a large hole in a plate of one-quarter inch thick wrought iron, in a few seconds, without preparation, and with apparatus which could be carried by a man up a ladder and used in any position.

The secretary, in the discussion which followed the experiments, raised a very serious point that with such apparatus as Mr. Fletcher had exhibited and used, a burglar proof safe no longer existed, as it was simply a question of minutes to fuse a hole large enough for a man to enter in any wrought iron or steel door in existence. Chilled iron or steel was powerless to resist the small blowpipe Mr. Fletcher used, which would penetrate thick iron and steel plates as readily as ordinary carpenter's tools would penetrate wooden doors. The apparatus was devised by Mr. Fletcher for works repairs, and was noisy in action; but, as he explained, the apparatus could be made silent and small enough to carry in a hand bag. This is a very serious matter for bankers and others who have valuable property, and one which will have to be taken up at once by the safe and strong room makers.—Warrington Guardian.

Slang Names for Coins.

Probably every country possesses peculiar or "slang" terms in every day use for its coins. For instance, a "nickel" very well defines the five cent piece of currency and a "red cent" is equally expressive. In Scotland the man who "flies kites" is probably not worth a "boodle," which is an imaginary coin slightly differing from the same term here. In England the same person would not be worth a "mag." A "kite" is an accommodation bill; a "mag" is the smallest copper coin of the realm. On the race course one hears talk of betting a "pony," which is £25, or winning a "monkey," which is £500. This latter, however, is somewhat rare.

A "quid" only has reference to tobacco when the term is used by sailors. Among landsmen it means £1. Small gamblers play for "bulls" and "half bulls;" in other words, five shillings and half crowns. Little boys occasionally toss for "joeys" or fourpenny pieces, and a hansom cab driver will expect you to tip him with a "tanner," which is what he calls a sixpence, while the common appellation of a shilling is a "bob." These terms are commonly in use all over England.—New York Press.

Sails for the Tricycle.

China, which has got ahead of the western world in a good many other things, preceded it in the use of a certain invention, which, in a rather impractical way, is beginning to be introduced into Europe. When the first European travelers visited China they found the natives in certain districts using a kind of wheelbarrow or hand cart which was provided with a large sail. The sail was spread when the wind was favorable, and made the journey of the human propeller much easier and swifter than it would otherwise have been. These land vessels have been in use in China from time immemorial.

The use of land sailboats has also prevailed, to a small extent, in Holland, where one of the princes of Orange once won fame for a "flying chariot" which he had provided with sails. It is the principle of these land sailing craft which an Englishman has lately applied with great success to a large tricycle. Not long ago this gentleman and his wife arrived at the French city of Rouen on their winged machine, which excited great curiosity.

On the front part of the tricycle, which was an unusually long one, there was a sort of swinging easy chair, made of willow ware; and in this chair, made very comfortable by cushions, was the Englishman's wife. Her husband was seated behind on an ordinary tricycle saddle, and was working the treadles swiftly and easily. Above the two was spread a large sail, rigged to a light but stout bamboo mast. When the wind was in his back, the tricycler put up his his mast and spread his sail; when it was unfavorable, he took in the sail and "housed" his mast, placing it lengthwise along the machine.

The Englishman and his wife had traveled that day from Honfleur to Rouen, a distance of eighteen leagues. As they carried considerable baggage, the feat would have been impossible without the assistance of the sail. The Englishman said that for a part of the way, with a smooth road and a favorable breeze, he did not have to work the treadles at all, and found it delightful traveling. The

What a Mistake!

A careful examination would convince any one that two-thirds of all the people in New England have been or are now afflicted with the catarrh of the nose and throat.

No doubt more than half of these persons have tried every blood purifier they have seen, with the erroneous idea that catarrh is a constitutional disease and must be purged out of the blood.

Why a greater mistake was never made! Stop for a moment and think or ask any reputable physician what common catarrh is, and what causes it, and the answer can be only this. "It is an irritation or inflammation of the mucous membrane of the nose and throat, caused by neglected colds, damp piercing irritable winds, foreign matter in the air which is poisonous to some persons and not to others; just as the bites of certain insects is a poisoned torture to some and has no unpleasant effect upon others." The reason for this is found in the different structure of the outer skin and its counterpart which lines all the inner organs of our bodies. Some people have chapped hands and chilblains and others are never so afflicted because of the peculiar structure of the skin of different individuals.

Therefore stop dosing. It is not blood purifiers you want, but good wholesome food, the plainer the better, then "keep your feet dry and warm, your head cool and bowels open," and use an external application, (Johnson's Anodyne Liniment is the best we know,) to allay the inflammation, cleanse the surface, heal the sores, and your catarrh will disappear like magic. We do not say never to return, because you may cure a severe cold and in three months catch another equally bad, so with catarrh and bronchical troubles. Exposure may bring it on again. We learned more about treating catarrh from the wrapper around a bottle of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, than we ever knew. Certainly this good old medicine deserves to be called "A universal family remedy." No matter how well you know this medicine it will pay you to send to I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass., for a pamphlet free, just to learn how to use the liniment economically. A teaspoonful properly used will often do more good than a half bottle as some people use it.

The Boisterous Atlantic

Is a terror to timid voyagers, scarcely less on account of the perils of the deep than the almost certainly of sea sickness. The best curative of mal de mer is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which settles the stomach at once and prevents its disturbance. To all travellers and tourists, whether by sea or land, it presents a happy medium between the nauseous or ineffectual resources of the medicine chest, and the problematical benefit derivable from an unmedicated alcoholic stimulant, no matter how pure. The jarring of a railroad car often produces stomachic disorders akin to that caused by the rolling of a ship. For this the Bitters is a prompt and certain remedy. The use of brackish water, particularly on long voyages in the tropics, inevitably breeds disorders of the stomach and bowels. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters mixed with impure water nullifies its impurities. Similarly it counteracts malarial and other prejudicial influences of climate or atmosphere, as well as the effects of exposure and fatigue. Use it for kidney complaints, rheumatism and debility.

HE WHO LOVES.

For him God's birds each merry morn
Make of wild throats melodious flutes
To thrill each love from brush and thorn
As night grim eyes of brutes
Who would believe of such a thing,
That 'tis her heart that makes them sing?

For him the faultless skies of noon
Grow farther in eternal blue
As heavens that quoy the balanced moon
And sow the stars and dew;
Who would believe that such deep skies
Are miracles only through her eyes?

Send golden globules radiant,
Or giant green transient trails of lights
Spin from their orbs and slant;
Who would believe a soul were hers
To make for him a universe?

HIS CHILD FRIEND.

I.

It caused a good deal of wonder among the officers of Jack Amyatt's regiment when he suddenly loomed" out in a new character, that of a literary man.

The Red Horse was a very popular regiment in the service, and Jack Amyatt was, as indeed he had been ever since he joined, one of its most popular officers. Through the various grades of cornet, lieutenant and captain, he had made no enemies, while he had gathered many friends. He was essentially a good all round man, popular with his men, who would have followed him into the jaws of death and back again, and good at sport of any and every kind.

"What a fuss you make about Maj. Amyatt," cried a fair beauty one day to one of the youngsters, who had been extolling his accomplishments.

"Oh, the major's such an out and out good sort," returned the lad, blushing a fine scarlet all over his handsome face at thus being caught at hero worship.

"Is he?" responded the lady, who had tried every fascinating art in her power on Amyatt, but without avail. "What does he do to win him so much adulation?"

"I don't know about adulation," said the lad rather curtly. "But I know he is the best soldier I ever knew, and the most popular. Why, the regiment would follow him to the dev— to the end of the world, that is," correcting himself hastily. "He's good, that is among the best of any sport you like to mention; and he's the best army writer there is, in spite of the shoals of women who have tried their hand at putting us on paper, and only succeeded in making their soldiers look like bagmen out for a holiday in a blazer and a pair of tennis shoes."

The beauty drew herself up with a little more dignity than she usually displayed. "Dear me, Mr. Arlington, you are severe—almost as severe as Maj. Amyatt looks when he goes to a ball, and stands regarding us frivolous and faulty women as stiff and straight as if he had swallowed his ramrod as well as bringing the other parts of his uniform with him."

It was on the tip of young Arlington's tongue to remind the beauty that a ramrod is not a part of a cavalry officer's equipment—but, as he had done a minute or so before, he remembered his manners in time and let the remark pass without further notice.

"Well, I don't think the major cares much about ladies," he admitted.

"I'm sure they don't care much about him," returned the beauty, sharply.

He wondered at the tartness of her tone, if that was indeed the case; but, as she was a beauty, and somewhat of a power in the neighborhood of the station at which they were quartered, he did not want to offend her more than was necessary in taking up the cudgels in his major's defense. "I never heard him say a word against a woman in my life," he said, eagerly; "never. Only he don't seem to be very keen on dancing and afternoon teas, and so on. By the way, Miss Vane, will you come and have a cup of tea or anything?"

The beauty thought she would have an ice, and took the lad's arm with alacrity; glad, perhaps, to get away from the subject of a man who remained blind and deaf to the attractions and fascinations—liberally set forth for his benefit from time to time—of the beauty of the county. The name of the major was not mentioned again; but, all the same, the conversation had set young Arlington thinking about it.

"I say," he said that evening to Moore, the senior subaltern, "is Amyatt what you'd call a woman hater?"

"Not a bit of it," returned Moore, promptly; "I don't believe he thinks enough about 'em to hate them."

"But that's sailing pretty near the wind, eh?" inquired Arlington, laughing.

"No, I don't think so. Amyatt doesn't dance, nor go to tea much; but then he has plenty else to do. To me he never seems to think of getting married; but then he's only six and thirty, and what fellow in his senses would think of getting married before that?"

"A good many do," Arlington ventured to say. He felt guiltily that this thrust had gone home, for he at 22 had thought fondly of the marriage state more than once; for the matter of that, indeed, he had thought of it many a time and oft.

"Yes, a good many do," responded Moore, who had never known what it was to feel a qualm at his heart such as threatened to ruin all his peace of mind, "and a good many fellows wish to the devil they'd let it alone."

"Well, I'm not altogether so sure about that," returned Arlington, who, in spite of his modest air, was as well able to stick to his own opinions as any man in the regiment.

Now this conversation no more enlightened him as to the state of the major's affections or natural inclinations than the one with the beauty had done, so Arlington put his question to some one else, choosing this time the senior captain, one George Trevor; and when Trevor heard it, he stared hard at him.

"Amyatt a woman hater! Whatever put such an idea in that into your head?"

"Well, I can hardly say; but is he, do you think?"

"A woman hater—no, of course he isn't."

"But, Trevor, he never has anything to do with women at all—never goes to teas or bazaars, or garden parties, or even balls if he can get off it—and when he does go he never dances."

"No more he does! He never did dance, even as a cornet."

"Was he the same then?"

"I fancy he was certainly he never hung about the women much," Trevor admitted.

"Did he have a let down any time, do you think?" Arlington persisted

"A let down no. The women were always too jolly eager to have him at any price. Lord, I've seen hundreds of women try for Amyatt hundreds of 'em!"

"That's just it," put in Arlington, eagerly. "They all try—but they just have to try. It's queer, for Amyatt's a handsome chap, and as rich as a Jew."

"Can't say. I'm sure. Just now he's so taken up with his novel writing, and every spare minute seems to go to that."

"But why did he take up novel writing?" cried the lad.

"Faith, and I can't say," Trevor laughed. "But his lovemaking's mighty pretty for a woman hater, don't you think?"

Meantime the object of all this thought was in the sitting room of his comfortable quarters overlooking the green, which occupied part of the barrack square. It was a pretty room, with walls of dark olive green, relieved only by four or five pictures in plain gilt frames, all of them originals of the illustrations of the story which had made his name famous—no, not his name, but that by which he chose to be known to the world.

For Maj. Amyatt did not write under his own name, preferring for many reasons to be known as "John Dawes," the chiefest of which was that as a beginner he had scarcely dared to contemplate the possibility of other than failure, and he had no wish to appear before the regiment in the light of a non-success. So, although for some time his intimates had known him as the popular author who stood second to none as a faithful delineator of army men and manners, to the world at large he was still John Dawes, and but few knew that the name was not his own.

A handsome man was Maj. Amyatt, and looking at him as he sat at the table, one could not wonder at young Arlington's curiosity concerning his past life. It would be hard to say positively that any trace of a disappointment—what Arlington calls a "let down"—marked his pleasant fresh face, or lurked in the steady gray eyes that were as clear and cool and undisturbed as the eyes of a lad of 16.

He had a frank and tender smile, too, and he was smiling then over a letter which lay open upon the table before him, a letter which had been forwarded by his publishers, through whom it had been sent, a letter written in a clear, unformed child's hand, on paper which had been ruled with pencil lines.

"My dear Mr. John Dawes," it said, "I have read all your books and like them very much. But, please, I do want to know if Laura is going to marry Gerard King. I do hope you won't go and marry her to any one else, because I am very, very fond of him. So I am of nearly all the others, but I like Gerard best.

"Laura is my name, too. I hope you won't mind my writing to you, though I am still rather little. I am 9, or at least nearly 9, and have no brothers or sisters, so that I read a good deal. But I have a dog called Gyp, and my mother is not very old, so that she plays with me a good lot.

"With best love, I am your loving little friend, LAURA HOLT.

"P. S.—It was quite my own idea to write."

Like most writers who have won a hold upon the hearts of the people, Amyatt was accustomed to receiving many letters from all sorts and conditions of men and women who were utter strangers to him, expressing all manner of sentiment about his work. Nor was this the first letter he had had from a child; but it was the first that had touched him so deeply as this one did. There was a quaintness about its phrases, a brave frankness about its sentiment, a freshness in his tone which won his heart.

"I hope you won't go and marry her to any one else, because I am very, very fond of him." "Laura is my name, too." "I am 9, or at least nearly 9." And "It was quite my own idea to write." Amyatt read the letter again with a feeling which, if he had been a woman, would have brought tears into his eyes, but which, as it was, gave him a suspicious lump in his throat and that tender smile on his lips.

"Dear little soul," he said, softly, "I must write to her"—and forthwith he drew some paper before him and wrote a long and charming letter to the new little friend who was 9, or (scrupulous little soul that she was) "at least nearly 9."

Then he, too, added a postscript, which was, "Write to me again."

Amyatt's little friend did write to him again, a letter full of glee caused by his. Then Amyatt answered that, for he couldn't leave the poor little woman's pretty words unanswered, don't you know; and so, before long, quite a brisk correspondence passed to and fro between them.

He still kept up his nom de plume, though for no particular reason other than he wished to avoid the trouble of an explanation, and it was all the same to her; and long letters filled with accounts of her child's life or with her opinions of his characters came to him regularly and were as regularly answered. Sometimes he would send her a book, and often she would send him a little box of flowers which adorned his buttonhole.

"Rather a new departure for you, eh, old chap?" Trevor hinted.

"Better late than never," returned the major, cheerfully.

"I always thought Amyatt would take it badly if he did take it," confided the senior captain to Arlington.

"Ah, but you didn't think he ever would take it," Arlington said by way of a reminder.

"Well, that's true," Trevor admitted.

Amyatt, however, knew nothing of the gossip in the regiment concerning him other than what Trevor had actually said to him; for, in spite of his great popularity, there was a certain something about him which effectually prevented even that familiarity which usually exists among officers of the same regiment. And the days passed on until they grew into weeks, as the days of busy men do, when one day he realized that it was more than six weeks since he had heard from his child friend, Laura Holt. "How odd that the little soul has not written," he thought; "perhaps, she, too, has forgotten."

However, as he had just got some numbers of a magazine in which a short story of his was appearing that month, he put a wrapper round one and addressed it to "Miss Laura Holt;" and by return of post there came for him a letter in a strange handwriting bearing the post mark of the town in which she lived.

Ay, but was it so strange? Amyatt stared at it for a full minute before he opened it, his memory going back, back, back—Oh! to the days of his boyhood, gone never to come again, never any more. And then, when he tore the cover and found that it contained a little note in his friend's round handwriting, that memory straightway vanished.

"Dear Mr. John Dawes," it said, "thank you so much for sending me the story. Mother is just going to read it to me, but I wanted to write to you first. You must have thought it odd I didn't write so long. I have been very ill, and can only sit up for a few minutes and write with a pencil now. I think I am rather better. I have been five weeks in bed already. Ever your loving friend,

"LAURA."

Naturally, Amyatt knew but little about the ailments of children, but it seemed to him that for a child of 9 years old to be in bed five weeks at a stretch, with no immediate prospect of getting up again, was a very bad sign, and in his anxiety he appealed to the regimental surgeon.

"What's the matter with the child," he asked.

"I don't know."

"Then you'd better make the illness shorter, or give it scarlet fever," he said, thinking that Amyatt was merely stating a case for one of his stories.

"But it is a real child," the major explained.

"Very bad look out, then," returned the doctor, decidedly.

Then Amyatt wrote to the mother.

"I shall be grateful if you will tell me how my little friend is," he said. "I assure you if I had known her for twenty years I could not feel more anxious than her letter has made me feel this morning." Yet even when this was gone, he still could not take his thoughts away from the dear little friend whom he had never seen, lying prostrate—for the handwriting told him she must be indeed very ill—on a bed of sickness and pain.

In two days the reply came—written in the same hand as the cover of the child's last letter, handwriting which set every nerve in his body throbbing, every pulse beating like a steam engine.

"My little girl is very, very ill," Mrs. Holt wrote; "much worse since she wrote to you, and the doctors told me last night that I must be ready to face the worst. When I tell you that she and I are quite alone in this world, you will know what my agony is. I can't write about it. I can only thank you and bless you for all the pleasure you have given her, and beg you, utter stranger that you are, to pray that this blow may not fall upon me. Yours gratefully,

"LAURA ST. MARY HOLT."

"Utter stranger that you are!" Why, even in his concern and distress, Amyatt almost laughed out aloud. A stranger to her—a stranger! Why, the letter, the handwriting, the name, had all brought back the self same memory that the cover of the child's letter had called back only the other day! The memory of what? Well, just this—of the only woman that he had ever asked to be his wife, the only woman he had ever loved.

She had told him frankly and simply that she was engaged to another man, and Amyatt had rushed away, never asking, in his misery, so much as his rival's name.

So it had been Holt! And he was dead. Yes, evidently he was dead, for she had said that she and the child—the child who was dying—were quite alone in the world.

But he could help her there! She should be alone in the world no longer, for he would go to her—he would stand between her and the world, he would offer her his strong arm and his true heart to guard her from all evil, to keep her so that trouble should not come nigh her.

Ay, but could he help her so that trouble should not come nigh her! No; no, alas! for when he reached her side, her little child was—dead.—John Strange Winter in London Ladies' Pictorial.

Communication Between Deaf Mutes.

The modes of communication between deaf mutes have received a most important advance from a method recently devised, which consists in each letter of the alphabet being represented by some portion of the palm of the hand. For instance, the eminence between the first and second joints of the index finger corresponds to W, the one between the second and third to M, and so on. The hand thus alphabetically divided is placed palm downward in a mold, whose bottom is perforated with holes which correspond to the lettered parts of the hand. Each of these holes permits of the passage of a small hammer, which is pressed upward by the passage of an electric current. These various hammers are connected with an apparatus similar to the key board of the piano, each key representing a letter, and being connected by wires with the corresponding hammer in the mold. A teacher can spell out the words on the key board, when the hammers fly up through the openings in the bottom of the mold and spell the words by touching the lettered eminences of the hand of a pupil. Any number of molds may be attached to the instrument, and a like number of pupils be simultaneously instructed.—Globe-Democrat.

A Scared Gambler.

Speaking of the late German emperor, M. Albert Wolff says in Le Figaro: "Army officers are not allowed to gamble at Baden-Baden. One evening the king was visiting the tables when he noticed a subordinate in civilian dress trying his luck at trente et quarante. He had placed two or three louis on the table and had won a nice little sum, when he saw the king opposite. He turned pale, trembled and hesitated to take possession of his money. Thereupon King William approached and whispered in his ear: 'Don't be afraid. Take in your money, but don't do it again.'"—New York Tribune.

March April May

Are the best months in which to purify your blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best blood purifier.

At no other season does the human system so much need the aid of a reliable medicine as Hood's Sarsaparilla, as now. The impoverished condition of the blood, the weakening effects of the long, cold winter, the lost appetite, and that tired feeling, all make a good spring medicine absolutely necessary. Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiarly adapted for this purpose, and increases in popularity every year. It is the ideal spring medicine.

"I must say Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine I ever used. Last spring I had no appetite, and the least work I did fatigued me ever so much. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and soon felt that I could do as much in a day as I had formerly done in a week. My appetite is voracious." MRS. M. V. BAYARD, Atlantic City, N. J.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to buy any other.

Were all wise enough to heed this advice in season, a world of suffering would be avoided. If you suffer from impure blood, scrofula, dyspepsia, biliousness, headache, take

That Tired Feeling

Afflicts nearly every one in the spring. The system having become accustomed to the bracing air of winter, is weakened by the warm days of the changing season, and readily yields to attacks of disease. Hood's Sarsaparilla is just the medicine needed. It tones and builds up every part of the body, and also expels all impurities from the blood. Try it this season.

He Loves The Dear People.

Signs are increasing that William L. Scott, the Pennsylvania free trader who aspires to the leadership of the democrats in Congress, is liable to prove a millstone around the administration's neck. John Flannery, a laber leader in the mining district, says that Scott "is more dreaded by coal operators than any other man in the business. The operators fear him not only because he pays less wages to his miners than any of the other associations, but because he runs a large 'Pluck me' store. The miners are compelled to deal there, if they want to retain their situations. There have been several attempts by the men to compel Scott to pay the prices paid by other operators, but these have always failed. Scott pays five cents less per ton for mining than any other operator in the Pittsburg district, or along the line of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. In that particular he has always proven an enemy to labor organizations."

The Humor of Today.

Coincidently with the decadence of poetry, another phase of the human mind has put itself forward with marked emphasis; and that is what we call humor. Humor, in fact, is one of the most resolute and dreaded enemies of the modern poet. The humorist will take a poem and put it in such a light that we begin to see something ludicrous or affected in what was till now beautiful and profound. Of course, the humor that does this is a humor not of the larger sort; it is the cheap humor of parody and ridicule, the humor of literal interpretations and grotesque comparisons, such as is rife just now in this country. When we wish to express our admiration of it, we call it the humor of common sense; it is at any rate "common" in so far as it is easily come by, and is low and material in its point of view. But nothing exists without a cause, and the cause of this humor is the hypocrisy, humbug and pretense which characterize so much of our social and moral and intellectual behavior, and which it is the end and aim of our "humorists" to show up and discredit.—Julian Hawthorne in American Magazine.

Conkling and Matthew Arnold.

Roscoe Conkling in New York and Matthew Arnold in Liverpool met death in modes thoroughly characteristic of their natures. The poet and man of letters had taught the virtue of physical culture throughout his life. He believed in athletics, believed in his own teachings, believed in practicing what he professed. And so, at 66 years of age, he must needs leap a fence because, for the athlete, fences are made to be leaped.

The statesman and jurist had been in the habit of walking down Broadway from his office, regardless of wind or weather. Brooking no opposition from his fellowmen his imperious temper refused to bend even to the elemental forces; and so he shouldered his way magnificently through the blinding snow storm and successfully defied the blizzard at its worst. But for his temporary triumph he has paid the penalty of his life, and now a nation mourns his untimely taking off.

What fools, indeed, what fools we mortals be.—Chicago News.

Unchivalric Germans.

In a social aspect I may be allowed to add one word condemning German men as a whole, premising exceptions which make the rule. They are totally devoid of that chivalry toward women so conspicuous among American gentlemen. Each man proceeds like a crown prince in his own right, and pays his addresses, with no fear of refusal, to the woman chosen by others for him, or to one who has caught his eye, or whose "dot" is sufficient to attract him. The engagement is sudden and proclaimed with vast eclat and ceremony. It has been said that Germans make the best lovers and worst husbands in the world; but it is a marvel that an American girl finds them attractive in either relation.—Cor. Boston Transcript.

Conkling's Word Was Sufficient.

It is told that a person came to him and asked him to do something in the way of looking up a claim or a bill. Mr. Conkling said that he would do so; the man felt gratified, but unfortunately happened, as he left the room, to say: "Now, Mr. Conkling, I will rely upon you, sir." "Rely upon me for nothing, sir," exclaimed the senator, and forthwith paid no further interest to the man's concern. The man had said just one word too much, and yet how natural it was for a constituent, with a care on his mind, to have said that last word.—"Gath" in Cincinnati Enquirer.

Persian and Arab Brass Work.

Connoisseurs in brass readily recognize the distinction between Persian work and Arab work. The best Persian is done at Bagdad, Teheran and Ispahan, and is mostly repousse. The worst is what is sold at Cairo, and is chiefly imported from Damascus. A certain amount of Persian work is done at Damascus itself by a colony of Persian artifices who have settled there. But all this inferior work is destined for the English, or at least for the European market.

There is one clear distinction between the two kinds, intelligible even to the least learned fancier. In Persian brass work you frequently find figures—whether of birds, or animals, or men—introduced into the pattern. In Arab work this scarcely ever occurs. The reason is that the Arabs are much stricter Mohammedans, and literally interpret and obey the injunction of the koran, which forbids the reproduction of images of what is in the heavens above, or in the earth beneath, or in the waters under the earth.—London Globe.

A SCIENTIST'S WARNING.

Extracts From a Remarkable Lecture Delivered by Dr. R. E. Hammond, Before the National Scientist's Convention.

"We are startled constantly by the sudden death of some man who seemed the picture of health. He thought he was well. He had felt strange pains shooting through his body, but as they did not remain, he forgot them. His head pained him periodically, he was somewhat paler than common and unaccountably tired, but he felt comparatively well and vigorous. And yet, he suddenly died! It is a shame to our boasted civilization."

"Look at the list of women who die in childbirth, and why is it? Simply because their maternal organs have been so weakened by the most terrible of diseases that they cannot withstand the fearful, sudde strain that is brought to bear upon them. How many women escape monthly agonies? And yet nature never intended that pain or inconvenience should attend the operation of her natural laws. The solemn and terrible fact is, that men and women drag along, die, and are buried, and their friends and the doctors say heart disease, apoplexy, pneumonia, congestion, convulsions, when the cause lay far back of all these things. The truth is that weakened kidneys are the cause of most of our troubles. The great question, therefore, is: 'How shall I preserve my kidneys, or, if diseased, how can they be restored?' I have seen numbers of cases and learned from unquestionable sources of many others, where the preparation, Hunt's Remedy, has been almost remarkable in its results. I use it freely among my patients, and shall continue to do so. It is a wonderful and invaluable remedy."

The remarks of the learned doctor should be carefully considered, and acted upon by all who desire long life, and freedom from pain and the danger of sudden death.

MONTANA HEADED FROM.—Recent railroad extensions have developed exceptionally fine mineral, stock and farming districts. Maps and full particulars, free, upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

NEW BUSINESS CENTERS.—The building of railroads in a new and fertile country creates many new towns, affording excellent business opportunities. Particulars regarding such opportunities in Montana, Minnesota and Dakota, will be sent upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

STOCK IN MINNESOTA.—From an exclusive grain country, Minnesota is being rapidly transformed into the finest stock and dairy state in the Union. Cheap lands still obtainable, convenient to railroad. Particulars free upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

SUCCESS, Are you mortgaged, paying heavy rents, or running behind? Excellent farm lands, cheap, which will increase in value several fold in five years. No other such opportunities existing. Full particulars, free, upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

FAILURE OF CROPS is an unknown experience in Central and Northern Dakota and Minnesota. Maps and full particulars regarding lands, prices, etc., sent free. Address C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

PROSPEROUS, North Dakota never had better crops than those just harvested. Many opportunities to secure fine Government lands recently surveyed, near excellent coal fields and adjacent to railroad. Maps and full particulars, free, upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

WHY WORK FOR ANOTHER, or on small salary? Why continue working on a worn-out farm? Why try to secure a living from such high-priced or heavily-mortgaged farms? Why work on rented land? Why not start for yourself? Why not secure at once some of the low-priced but very fertile and well located lands adjacent to railroads now to be obtained by those going to Northern Dakota and Minnesota, where you can make a larger net profit per acre than on the high-priced or worn-out land you now occupy? Why not go and look the situation over, and see for yourself, or at least obtain further information, which will be sent free, if you will address C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Combines, in a proportion peculiar to itself, the active medicinal properties of the best blood-purifying and strengthening remedies of the vegetable kingdom. It will positively cure—when in the power of medicine—Spring Debility, Headache, Dyspepsia, Catarrh, Salt Rheum, Scrofula, and all Diseases caused by a low state of the blood.

"I suffered three years with blood poison. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and think I am cured." MRS. M. J. DAVIS, Brockport, N. Y.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla beats all others, and is worth its weight in gold." I. BARRINGTON, 130 Bank Street, New York City.

Is so vastly superior to any other sarsaparilla or blood purifier, that one has well said: "Its health-giving effects upon the blood and entire human organism, are as much more positive than the remedies of a quarter of a century ago, as the steam-power of to-day is in advance of the slow and laborious drudgery of years ago."

"While suffering from a severe bilious attack in March, 1883, a friend in Peoria, Ill., recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla. I tried the remedy, and was permanently cured." J. A. SHEPARD, travelling agent for Devoe & Co., Fulton Street, N. Y.

Purifies the Blood

"I tried a dozen articles to cleanse my blood, but never found anything that did me any good till I began using Hood's Sarsaparilla." W. H. PEER, Rochester, N. Y.

"My wife was troubled with dizziness and constipation, and her blood has been in a bad order—in fact she has been all run down. Hood's Sarsaparilla is doing her a wonderful amount of good." F. M. BALDWIN, druggist, Blanchester, Ohio.

"I was for five years a sufferer with boils, all run down, and was at one time obliged to give up work. Before taking all of two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, was entirely cured." R. M. LANE, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. Took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

OFFICIAL NOTICE!

— OF —

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co.

— FROM THE —

HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND, MAINE,

To those who are contemplating the purchase of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

GREETING:

On and after June 1st we shall STOP PREPAYING the FREIGHT on GOODS SOLD by us, and we respectfully request that those who have dealt with us, and who have been BENEFITED by the PAYMENT OF THIS FREIGHT which in itself in the past three years has amounted to some

30,000 DOLLARS,

Will order what GOODS they require for this SPRING, from us this month, and please order as early as possible. And to those who intend buying

Chamber Sets, Parlor Suits, Carpets, Lounges, Easy Chairs, Mattresses, Springs, Silver-ware, Window Shades, Drapery, Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Stoves and Ranges, Feathers, Feather Pillows, Spreads, Blankers,

And anything else in HOUSE FURNISHING, can be BENEFITED to the extent of the freight to their depot, by buying from us this month. We have always PREPAID THIS FREIGHT FROM OUR OWN PROFITS, as we have invariably made the price on the

Furniture, Carpets,

Etc., lower than could be bought for elsewhere. There has always been a great advantage derived by our prepayment of the freight because we in every instance GUARANTEE the SAFE DELIVERY of the goods, and if there has ever been a fight to make with the railroad, we have done it, or in other words if you have received a

CHAMBER SET, PARLOR SUIT, Chair, or Range,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

That was damaged by the railroad, we have replaced it with another piece, and taken our chances to get the breakage from the road. There are items worthy of our close consideration, and especially at this time of year, be wise and order during this month,

And Save Yourself the Freight from Portland to your Depot, no matter where it is located in the State of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

We believe we are the only HOUSE FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT IN NEW ENGLAND WHO HAVE ADHERED STRICTLY TO THIS PLAN OF PREPAYING THE FREIGHT ON EVERYTHING SHIPPED BY US. We mean by this that while some other houses have shipped the goods, and allowed you to pay freight and afterwards send them a bill and then dicker on it for some time, We have invariably paid out the cash before the article left our freight sheds at Portland. And now notwithstanding the fact that we expect to lose a great deal of business by this this year there seems to be no other way to convince some people of the difference between OUR PAYING THE FREIGHT before the articles leave here, AND OUR CUSTOMERS PAYING THE FREIGHT after the articles get to the depot, and then having to write backwards and forwards over the matter. We wish to deal with perfect fairness and frankness in this matter, consequently we give you another month to make your selection, and to fill orders that are already placed. Now if you want a

KITCHEN RANGE, or a CHAMBER SET, or PARLOR SUIT, or CARPETS, WINDOW SHADES, DRAPERY CURTAINS,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

Kindly come and see us at once, or if you can not come, please write us for Catalogues and Descriptions of these Goods, and we will do our very best to please you in every one. Remember we carry COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHINGS. There is scarcely a thing that you require for your homes that we do not keep, and we sell the same and shall continue to sell the same for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. This notice applies TO ALL OUR STORES, and we have written to each of our MANAGERS to this effect, consequently there will be no more freight prepaid from our Bangor Store, Rockland Store, Auburn Store, Bar Harbor Store, Biddeford Store, nor from the Headquarters at Portland, after the 31st day of May, 1888.

Kindly get your orders in before June 1st, if you wish to save this freight.

Respectfully, the Public's Ob't Servants,

THE ATKINSON HOUSE FURNISHING CO.,

Headquarters Cor. Pearl and Middle Streets, Portland, and Branches at Auburn, Rockland, Bangor and Biddeford, also Bar Harbor for a short time.

ISAAC C. ATKINSON, Gen. Manager.

MINERAL SPRING AT RYE.

Visitors to Rye Beach the coming season will find an additional attraction in the shape of a mineral spring. It is located upon the farm of G. H. Jenness, the postmaster at Rye beach, and the water has already achieved quite a local reputation for its superior qualities. It has been known for several years, but the proprietor did not consider it of special value until informed by a well known Boston physician that it would pay to have it analyzed. In accordance with the suggestion Mr. Jenness sent a sample to Dr. Wolff of the Jefferson Medical college of Philadelphia, who is one of the finest chemists in America, and is also the chemist of the Pennsylvania State Board of Health. A most careful and complete analysis was made, and the report shows the water to be one of the very finest in the whole country. The water will be put upon the market as soon as arrangements can be perfected, and a roadway built for the convenience of those who desire access to the spring itself.

ANOTHER AVALANCHE.

Another large party of alleged liquor dealers were summoned into court at Dover on Wednesday, the 16th inst., under the nuisance act, and at two o'clock in the afternoon they appeared. Patrick Cragin, David Flynn, John McCooey, Patrick McManus, John S. McArdle, James Bennou, John Mahoney, Edward Leonard, Jeremiah Goggin, George Wesley, David F. Bradley, George H. Wentworth, Ezra Gordon, Daisy Blanchard, Nell Sheehan, Ann Smith and Bridget Carbury waived the reading of the warrant, pleaded nolo contendere, agreed to sign a paper like that signed by the others, and had their cases continued to the 17th. Simon Carver, George Abbott and Kate Cosker had their cases continued on their request for more time.

MUSIC HALL.

Mr. Charles L. Davis will appear in Music hall on Friday evening in his world-renowned impersonation of "Alvin Joslin," with his old and excellent company, strengthened by the addition of new talent, and new scenery and stage accessories. The operatic solo and $10,000 challenge band travels with the company. The play and the leading actor are too well known here to need any special mention of either; there is excellent acting and an abundance of fun. Tickets at Goodrich's; see advertisement.

OBITUARY.

Thomas D. Palmer died at his home, No. 3 Winter street, on the evening of the 15th inst., of pneumonia. He was father of William H. Palmer, agent of the Portsmouth Brewing Co.

Mrs. Mary Ann Pettigrew died very suddenly at her home in North Kittery on Sunday, May 13th, and was buried from her late residence on Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. W. F. Marshall, pastor of the First Methodist church, officiating. Mrs. Pettigrew was one of the oldest members of the church, and one of the oldest residents of Kittery. She leaves a number of sons and daughters, all long since grown up and settled in life. Among them are Owen E. Pettigrew, with whom she has lived on the home farm in Kittery for many years past; Mrs. Hurd, wife of Mr. Thomas Hurd, for the past ten or twelve years a resident on the Pacific coast; and Mr. Thomas J. Pettigrew, a draughtsman in the navy department at Washington, D. C. The latter came on to attend his mother's funeral, returning to Washington the next day.

Mrs. Martha Blaney, wife of Oscar E. Blaney of Kittery, died at the home of her uncle, Leonard C. Cook, in that town, on the 12th inst., and was buried from the 1st Methodist church, North Kittery, on Monday afternoon, the 14th, Rev. Dr. Alden officiating. She leaves one child, a daughter about five years old.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Joseph A. Meloon, register of deeds of Sully county, Dakota, is visiting his father, Mr. Nathaniel L. Meloon, of Middle street.

Capt. Albert Emery of New York, formerly of Portsmouth, arrived in this city on the 16th inst. to pass a few days with relatives and friends here.

Mr. Frank Marden of Kittery Point, late of this city, leaves on Monday of next week for Montana territory, where he has been offered a very favorable business engagement.

Mrs. Kate E. Miller and Mrs. Mary A. Brooks, who have been passing the winter in Newtonville, Mass., arrived at their home, Lincoln Hill cottage, on Wednesday.

At the annual meeting of the Grand Lodge of New Hampshire, A. F. & A. M., held in Concord on Wednesday, the 16th inst., Bro. John Pender of this city was elected grand senior warden.

Rev. Henry E. Hovey of this city was this week elected a grand chaplain of the Grand Royal Arch Chapter of Masons of New Hampshire.

BASE BALL.

The base ball grounds at the south end dried up finely on Wednesday, and Manager Leonard reports that they will be in good condition this afternoon for the opening here of the Interstate League contest, when the Rochesters will play the home club. The managers of the Portsmouth club have brought together some good players, and they have commenced by holding up a handsome sample of ball, winning their first game, at Haverhill, Mass., on the 14th inst., beating the Haverhill club by a score of eight to five; and on the 16th, at Dover, they beat the home club by a score of eight to six, in ten innings. If the club receive encouragement in the form of generous patronage, it is quite possible that the Interstate pennant may come to this city at the close of the season; all lovers of the manly game should be at the grounds this afternoon.

Williams college defeated Dartmouth, nine to six, at Hanover on the 15th inst. Yale defeated Amherst the same day, five to four.

The game between the Portsmouth and Dover clubs on the grounds of the latter on the 16th inst. was closely contested, ten innings being played. At the end of the 9th inning the score stood six to six. The Dovers failed to score in their half of the 10th inning, and then Canovan of the Portsmouths made a home run, bringing one man in ahead of him and making the score eight to six.

Play will be called at three o'clock this afternoon, between the Rochesters and the home club on the Portsmouth grounds.

NAVY YARD ITEMS.

Twelve shipwrights, ten joiners, and all the caulkers but two, employed in the construction department at the navy yard, were discharged on the evening of the 15th inst.

The United States tug Leyden, Comdr. Barclay commanding, arrived at this navy yard at two o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, the 16th inst., from Boston, with sixty-four seamen for the practice-ship Constellation.

Mr. James A. Rand is to erect a dwelling for his own occupancy, on Miller avenue, between the houses of John H. Flagg and Charles M. Laighton.

A house is being built on Cass street, near its junction with State street.

Hon. Frank Jones, Hon. Ezra H. Winchester and Col. Charles A. Sinclair of this city, and James P. Cook of Salem, have been added to the board of directors of the Burton Stock Car company of Boston, having taken a large interest in the enterprise. The company will now proceed to furnish the large equipment of cars which have been ordered for western railroads. The cars will be built at the extensive works of the company at Wichita, Kansas.

The sun was visible for a time on Wednesday of this week. We could not perceive that it looked any different from what it did on its last previous appearance in this part of the country.

The work of planking over the Wentworth bridge at Little Harbor with planks running lengthwise of the bridge was commenced on Tuesday morning, the 15th inst.

The wooden overcoats of the drinking fountains were taken off some time ago, but there is no water to be procured from the fountains yet—or was not on Wednesday evening of this week. Mr. James Miller's pump and trough on Miller avenue were set up and put in working order a month or more ago, and many hundreds of thirsty animals have refreshed themselves there since that time.

Piscataqua Lodge, No. 6, I. O. O. F., will celebrate the 44th anniversary of the lodge and the 69th of American Odd Fellowship on Monday evening next. Bro. Wm. W. Cotton is the historian of the occasion.

The parade of Abbey's Double Mammoth Spectacular Uncle Tom's Cabin Co. about town on Wednesday forenoon, the 16th, was a great delight to a large number of small boys and girls, a throng of whom a ccompanied the procession all through its march. The two uniformed bands, one white and the other colored, a pretty little girl, and the "esthetic trained donkey," whose countenance gave faint indication of the giant intellect shaded by his umbrageous ears, were a source of the purest delight to the little people for about two hours.

Parker Post, G. A. R., of Kittery, and the Woman's Relief Corps auxiliary thereto, will by special invitation of the pastor attend divine service in the Methodist Episcopal church at Kittery Foreside on Sunday, May 27th.

The Boston & Maine railroad managers have ordered twenty new locomotives, ten from the Portland company and ten from the Manchester company, to be delivered this summer. The engineers of the company have received notice that until further orders there will be no more water for locomotives at Conway Junction, and they must govern themselves accordingly as to water.

J. P. Morse, real estate agent, has sold four houses and the lots on which they stand, situated on Madison street, to Josiah H. Morrison, who it is said proposes to remove the old buildings and put up in their stead two handsome two-tenement blocks. Mr. Morse informs us that real estate is moving very actively this spring, and that he now has on his books seven tenements for sale.

During the week ending May 10th the Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York paid death claims amounting to $143,459.57, and endowments of $47,422.90; total claims paid, $190,882.47; average daily payment, $31,813.74.

Seventeen of the parties charged upon by the Law & Order League of Dover, armed with the "nuisance act," appeared in court (by continuance) in that city on the 15th inst., and signed papers acknowledging legal service of the petition, waiving all objections to the constitutionality of the law, and acknowledging the issuing of the injunction prayed for, and its due service. The cases against the several defendants were placed on file on the payment by them of the costs, which ranged from $5.74 to $9.04, the total amounting to $125.65. James Hoye, landlord of Chase's hotel, Thomas K. Cushman, of the American house, and Jacob H. Twombly, of the Railroad house, were among those who signed the papers. Charles A. Dore, of the Kimball house, had his case continued to the 16th.

The Bellamy, Cocheco and Salmon Falls rivers are on a tear this week, in consequence of the heavy rains and the rapid melting of the snow at the head waters. Milton Three Ponds, the source of the Salmon Falls river, was on Monday higher than had been known for years, and the river a roaring torrent. At East Rochester all work in the Cocheco woollen mills was suspended, and water was rushing through the two saw mills there like a raceway; it was expected that both would go down stream. At Great Falls, Berwick side, the high water stopped the saw mill, while at Salmon Falls all work on the Boston & Maine bridge was suspended. Willand's pond, the source of Dover's proposed public water works supply, is higher than for twenty-five years.

As a remedy for accidents common to every day life, such as cuts, bruises, sprains, burns, scalds, frostbites, and bites of poisonous insects, Salvation Oil has no equal in the market. It literally annihilates pain. Price twenty-five cents a bottle.

Have you seen that lot of Challi Dress Goods at 10 cts. per yard? If not, go to Lewis E. Staples' dry goods store, No. 7 Market street.

Five shares of Portsmouth Gas Light Co.'s stock for sale. For terms apply to Ilsley & Moore, No. 3 Pleasant street.

It is reported that the liquor dealers who have been forced out of the business in Dover propose to themselves form a league for closing the sixty or more kitchen and bed-room bar-rooms in that town. They say that if the places which have been openly but decorously conducted are "nuisances" under the law, the "sly grog" places are such in fact, and are to be credited with a large part of the incidents which have made the business obnoxious.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

Distress After Eating — Sick Headache — Heart-burn — Sour Stomach

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." GEORGE A. PAGE, Watertown, Mass.

What you need is a medicine which is pure, efficient, reliable. Such is Hood's Sarsaparilla. It posesses peculiar powers.

John W. Ricker, late keeper of the United States hotel on Third street, Dover, closed his house "for good" on Tuesday, May 15th, and has moved to Meriden, Conn., where he says personal liberty is recognized and he can do business. Ricker was not included in the batch of alleged liquor dealers who were recently brought up under the "nuisance act," but perhaps feared his name would appear in the next list.

Nos. 42 and 44 Market Street.

For "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated school teachers, milliners, seamstresses, housekeepers, and over-worked women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best of all restorative tonics. It is not a "Cure-all," but admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most potent Specific for all those Chronic Weaknesses and Diseases peculiar to women. It is a powerful, general as well as uterine, tonic and nervine, and imparts vigor and strength to the whole system. It promptly cures weakness of stomach, indigestion, bloating, weak back, nervous prostration, debility and sleeplessness, in either sex. Favorite Prescription is sold by druggists under our positive guarantee. See wrapper around bottle. Price $1.00, or six bottles for $5.00.

A large treatise on Diseases of Women, profusely illustrated with colored plates and numerous wood-cuts, sent for 10 cents in stamps. Address, WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

ARE WE NOT RIGHT?

In asking you the question,—If it is not better to purchase medicines and household remedies generally from people you know, and whose reputation is for exactitude, are we not right? We guarantee the

PRESTON JAMAICA GINGER

To be in all ways worthy of your confidence,—and strongly advise that it be kept in every household.

PRESTON'S SARSAPARILLA

Is perhaps the best general spring medicine ever offered to the people;—We always advise anyone, who may ask for information, that a physician be consulted in case of illness,—but to meet the wants of those desiring a medicine to take especially during the spring, when the system is racked and torn by the constantly changing weather, Preston's Sarsaparilla was introduced, and we constantly and confidently recommend it.

ARE WE NOT RIGHT?

To preserve the richness of color or delicacy of tint of your summer dresses, make suds of hot water and IVORY SOAP, allow to cool until lukewarm, then wash your dresses in the solution. Ordinary soaps contain too much alkali, which in a short time bleaches the color and destroys its beauty. Prof. Silliman, of Yale College, says, "The IVORY SOAP can not injure the most delicate fabric."

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

$22 TO $900.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS

Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all GRAND & UPRIGHT pianos made by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1859, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

THIS PAPER is on file in Philadelphia at the Newspaper Advertising Agency of Messrs. N. W. AYER & SON, our authorized agents.

What a Mistake!

A careful examination would convince any one that two-thirds of all the people in New England have been or are now afflicted with the catarrh of the nose and throat.

No doubt more than half of these persons have tried every blood purifier they have seen, with the erroneous idea that catarrh is a constitutional disease and must be purged out of the blood.

Why a greater mistake was never made! Stop for a moment and think or ask any reputable physician what common catarrh is, and what causes it, and the answer can be only this. "It is an irritation or inflammation of the mucous membrane of the nose and throat, caused by neglected colds, damp piercing irritable winds, foreign matter in the air which is poisonous to some persons and not to others; just as the bites of certain insects is a poisoned torture to some and has no unpleasant effect upon others." The reason for this is found in the different structure of the outer skin and its counterpart which lines all the inner organs of our bodies. Some people have chapped hands and chilblains and others are never so afflicted because of the peculiar structure of the skin of different individuals.

Therefore stop dosing. It is not blood purifiers you want, but good wholesome food, the plainer the better, then "keep your feet dry and warm, your head cool and bowels open," and use an external application, (Johnson's Anodyne Liniment is the best we know,) to allay the inflammation, cleanse the surface, heal the sores, and your catarrh will disappear like magic. We do not say never to return, because you may cure a severe cold and in three months catch another equally bad, so with catarrh and bronchical troubles. Exposure may bring it on again. We learned more about treating catarrh from the wrapper around a bottle of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, than we ever knew. Certainly this good old medicine deserves to be called "A universal family remedy." No matter how well you know this medicine it will pay you to send to I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass., for a pamphlet free, just to learn how to use the liniment economically. A teaspoonful properly used will often do more good than a half bottle as some people use it.

The man that succeeds nowadays is the live man, who is up to the times; and no better evidence of this is needed than the fact that every go-ahead housekeeper is never without Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

It is no wonder that invalids lose faith in all specifics, when so many worthless medicines are advertised to cure various diseases, but which, when tried, are "found wanting." Mechanism of the Heart.

In the human subject the average rapidity of the cardiac pulsation of an adult male is about seventy beats per minute. These beats are more frequent as a rule in young children and in women, and there are variations within certain limits in particular persons owing to peculiarities of organization. It would not necessarily be an abnormal sign to find in some particular individuals the habitual frequency of the heart's action from sixty to sixty-five or from seventy-five to eighty per minute. As a rule, the heart's action is slower and more powerful in fully developed and muscular organizations, and more rapid and feebler in those of slighter form.

In animals the range is from twenty-five to forty-five in the cold blooded, and fifty upward in the warm blooded, except in the case of a horse, which has a very slow heart beat, only forty strokes a minute. The pulsations of men and all animals differ with the sea level also. The work of a healthy human heart has been shown to be equal to the feat of raising five tons four hundredweight one foot per hour, or 125 tons in twenty-four hours.

A curious calculation has been made by Dr. Richardson, giving the work of the heart in mileage. Presuming that the blood was thrown out of the heart at each pulsation in the proportion of sixty-nine strokes per minute, and at the assumed force of nine feet, the mileage of the blood through the body might be taken as 207 yards per minute, seven miles per hour, 168 miles per day, 61,320 miles per year, or 5,150,880 miles in a lifetime, 84 years. The number of beats of the heart in the same long life would reach the grand total of 2,869,776,000.—Medical World.

Superstitions of the Navajoes.

The Navajoes, now the strongest and richest tribe of Indians in the country, are all enormously superstitious. Their oddest terror, perhaps, is that which they cherish for the photographic camera. Plant a tripod within a quarter of a mile of a Navajo hogan and the dusky inhabitants will flee as from the plague. It is their solemn belief that a picture is actually subtracted from the entity of the sitter—that he is so much the less by the operation. How many pictures they think it would be necessary to take before the person would be all gone, and his whole being diverted into the counterfeit presentments, I have never been able to learn, but apparently they deem the fatality as rapid as it is certain.

The snake they hold in holly abhorrence. Of the violence of their prejudice against it I had a striking proof some years ago. Chit-chi, brother of old Mannelito, the boss silversmith of the tribe, is a very good friend of mine and has made me some remarkable specimens of native jewelry. On one occasion I employed him to make me a bracelet in the form of a snake. He had it about half finished when some of his fellows chanced to call at the hogan. To say that they were horrified when they saw what he was about is putting it very mildly. They fell upon the obnoxious figure and destroyed it, and then reported Chit-chi to the elders of the tribe, who promised him an artistic stoning to death if he ever dabbled again in such tabooed workmanship.—New Mexico Cor. Globe-Democrat.

A "Special" Artist Under Fire.

In the Ashantee war of 1873, Mr. Prior's first field work, occurred one of those fortunate events which brave men ascribe to luck and fair men to pluck. The Forty-second regulars were attacking the Ashantees in the bush. Prior, right in the thick of it, made a hasty sketch, showing the gleam of bayonets through the rifle smoke, the flash of the blacks' guns from the undergrowth, the tips of British muskets emerging here and there from the fiery vapor of battle, the assailants firing in all sorts of attitudes, some running to the front, others lying under a protecting tree, others still kneeling by the horses from which they had just dismounted. These were the hazy outlines or bold dashes of an artist soldier under fire. There was no time to make a picture before the mail left for the coast. So he forwarded the sketch, still reeking with rifle smoke, to the home office, with a hasty note asking The Illustrated News to work it up into a finished cartoon. But the home office did nothing of the sort. Instead, they published the sketch just as it left his pencil. And it is conceded to this day to be one of the greatest triumphs of a special's work under difficulties, and one of the most thrilling battle pictures ever seen.—John Paul Bocock in New York World.

An Invention for the Hospital.

The recent introduction in some of the hospitals of a simple contrivance for the comfort and convenience of patients is noted. Two iron sockets are firmly attached to the sides of a bedstead by screws, and into these are fitted short poles, between the latter being suspended a horizontal bar, also fitted into clamps and adjustable to any height above the patient lying on the bed. From this bar hangs a pair of strong straps with grips, add these may be moved from right to left at will. By grasping these straps the sick man is enabled to utilize the strength of his arms to lift himself up, to change his position, to turn over and to allow the bedding to be changed.

There are likewise a variety of attachments to the mechanism which extend its usefulness in a number of ways, one of these being a rest for the leg, in which a broken limb can be placed while it is being dressed, it being only necessary to unscrew the sockets attached to the bedstead and change their location to utilize this; another is a curtain rod, likely to be especially serviceable in hospital wards to avoid a draft, to shut out the light or to attain a degree of privacy; another is a small table for medicines, etc.—New York Tribune.

Mrs. Penn—William, I read an advertisement in one of the papers stating that for $1 in stamps the advertiser would send by return mail a sure way to get rid of rats in the house.

A Sneak Thief's Nerve.

A Connecticut man tells this story of a remarkable exhibition of nerve by a professional sneak thief: "One day he walked quietly into a bank, took off his hat and coat, hung them on a nail, put on an office coat that hung there, and walked into the rear room which contained the vaults. The directors were holding a meeting, and one sat in front of a door blocking the passage. The thief politely asked him to move, and when the obliging director did so the man went through the door, picked up two of the largest bags of gold in sight, coolly walked out with them, and thief and gold were seen no more there."—New York Sun.

DON'T SCOLD

a man for groaning when he has Rheumatism or Neuralgia. The pain is simply awful. No torture in the ancient times was more painful than these twin diseases. But—oughtn't a man to be blamed if, having Rheumatism or Neuralgia, he wont use Ath-lo-pho-ros, when it has cured thousands who have suffered in the same way? It has cured hundreds after physicians have pronounced them incurable.

"The skill of five physicians could not cure me of Rheumatism which had settled in the hips, neck and shoulders. So intense was the pain that sleep was almost impossible. The first dose of Athlophoros gave me relief, and the third enabled me to sleep for four and a half hours without waking. I continued its use, and am now well."

The Boisterous Atlantic

Is a terror to timid voyagers, scarcely less on account of the perils of the deep than the almost certainty of sea sickness. The best curative of mal de mer is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which settles the stomach at once and prevents its disturbance. To all travellers and tourists, whether by sea or land, it presents a happy medium between the nauseous or ineffectual resources of the medicine chest, and the problematical benefit derivable from an unmedicated alcoholic stimulant, no matter how pure. The jarring of a railroad car often produces stomachic disorders akin to that caused by the rolling of a ship. For this the Bitters is a prompt and certain remedy. The use of brackish water, particularly on long voyages in the tropics, inevitably breeds disorders of the stomach and bowels. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters mixed with impure water nullifies its impurities. Similarly it counteracts malarial and other prejudicial influences of climate or atmosphere, as well as the effects of exposure and fatigue. Use it for kidney complaints, rheumatism and debility.

HER MAJESTY, MY QUEEN.

With Fancy's brush a portrait of my queen
I paint, as now in memory she stands
Her form, a poem from a master's hands;
An oval face with innocence serene.
Whose dimpled cheeks, though snowy in their sheen,
Flush like the shells on Coromandel's sands;
Eyes, blue as those in far Circassian's lands,
Beneath a brow that wears a royal mien,
Moon tinted like Alhambra's palace wall,
And fully framed in strands of Orient gold;
A rose and chin Rome's sculptors might adore;
Lips, clear cut rose buds, from whose portals fall
Soft, ripplling music—never could they scold.
As time rolls on I love her more and more.

HIS MATCH.

Everybody said that Orphies French was crazy to think of marrying Hector Hunter In the first place he was too old. (He was 35 and Orphies only 18.) In the next he was a widower with four children. (Orphies, being an only child, was unused to children.) And lastly, he was the crossest grained, most miserly man that ever existed.

Every one in Hillwood knew him. They knew he had been the means of his first wife finding an early grave; and now he wanted to break Miss French's heart pretty dimpled, brown eyed Orphies, the pride of the village and the admiration of all.

How she came to choose a surly, selfish man like Hector Hunter was a wonder to everybody It was well known that blue eyed, sunny faced Charlie Chester stood ready to lay down his life for her sake, and that James Singleton had offered himself to her at least three times.

Either would have been considered a good match, and yet it was quite evident that Hector Hunter was the man she loved, and she had been known to watch beside him day and night when he was ill, and refuse all food till she was sure he was out of danger.

Yes, Miss French did love him. She was engaged to him, too, and that sunny morning in June was to witness her bridal.

She was to be married in the little church where she had been baptized, in the presence of those who had known and loved her from a child.

So what was really nobody's business was everybody's business, and proved the topic of conversation throughout the entire village.

All her girl friends pitied her; all her male acquaintances envied Hector Hunter All the matrons bewailed her fate; all the sires hinted that the bridegroom was a lucky man.

Finally came the organ peals, then the solemn service—for it was solemn—and then pretty Orphies went down the aisle leaning on the arm of her sour looking husband as smilingly as if her path was strewn with roses, and her future as clear as a lake at even, when the glory of the setting sun rests upon its placid bosom.

"I can't afford to take a wedding trip, Orphies," Mr. Hunter had said the night he slipped the engagement ring on her finger and listened to the shy "yes" whispered under the tree that grew back of her home.

"It costs a good deal to live nowadays. The children need clothes, and 'twill take a $5 bill right out of my pocket to pay the minister You won't care, will you? You had just as soon settle down as a sensible woman, hadn't you? That is the way my first wife did."

And Orphies said "yes, she'd do anything he liked," like the dear little thing she was.

So as soon as her gray haired pastor had made her Mrs. Hector Hunter, she walked quietly across the village common to the large gloomy looking house built on its edge, and closed the door in the faces of those looking after her with a world of commiseration in their eyes.

"She'll regret this act of hern, or my name is not Miranda Highflyer," said one narrow minded spinster to another.

"She'll look like a wilted rose by the time she has lived three weeks with those children," said Miss Dean, the village dressmaker, to her customer, Mrs. Flint. "I know all about them. I once made a dress for the first Mrs. Hunter, and I had a chance to see some of their actions."

"We've lost our pretty Orphies forever" said gray haired Farmer Slocum. "Rude hands have picked our sweet briar rose, and there is none other so fair."

"We are going to have Orphies French for a step mother," said the Hunter children, pressing up to the window which commanded a view of Hillswood common and church. "She's awful pretty but it's a mystery how she came to marry father."

"You know the young folks so well, Orphies, that there is no need of an introduction," said Mr Hunter, as his young bride kissed one rosy face after another and sat down in his dead wife's rocking chair with the youngest on her knee.

"When you are rested we will go over the house and take a look at things, then we will have some dinner. I dismissed the housekeeper today, as I knew we should not need her after you came. Her month was up, and as a penny saved is a penny earned I let her go. Rosa Bell is large enough to help you about the house She is 16, and as tall as you are. I guess you will pull together first rate."

Pretty Orphies looked at her step daughter questioningly.

"I hope so," she said, quickly. "Yes," kissing her, "I am quite sure that we shall."

That kiss won Rosa Bell.

"Arthur," she said to her 12-year-old brother the moment the door closed behind her new mother, "take heart. I do believe there is a change coming. The second Mrs. Hunter is very sweet and smiling, but I should not be surprised if father had found his match. She doesn't say a great deal, but there is a look in her eye which makes me feel funny."

"He'll tame her before long," answered Arthur, with a knowing shake of his head. "She'll have to knock under the same as the rest of us. I wonder if he'll let me go out on the common tonight? The boys are getting up a baseball match. Tom Jones was here this morning and made me promise I'd come. The Skinflints are going to play against the Ironsides, but I'll bet on the"——

"Hush! mustn't bet at all," interrupted Rosa Bell, tying on her apron and bustling about the poorly spread table in the room adjoining.

"This is father's wedding day, and is isn't at all likely he'll let you go off. Come Kathie, peel three potatoes for me Then set the chairs up and tell the folks dinner is ready I wish I had something better to offer her," she added, looking ruefully at the platter of fried pork in the center of the table flanked on either side with a dish of apple sauce and a huge loaf of wheat bread

"I wish we had silver forks and glass goblets, like Hattie Andrew's folks," said Kathie, hurriedly removing their brown jackets, and tumbling them into the blue earthen dish which Lettie brought from the closet.

"Well, if Mrs. Hunter is as hungry as I am, she won't think of anything but her dinner," exclaimed Arthur, bringing up the chairs with a good deal of noise. "That apple sauce is scorched Rosa Bell. I smell it. Father won't relish that."

"Well, I can't help it," answered the girl, in a discouraged tone. "He needn't have sent Martha off just at this time."

"It's all right, dear," said a pleasant voice behind her, and Orphies slipped into her seat at the head of the table

She had changed her wedding dress for a simple calico, and a white apron was tied about her trim waist. "Martha was getting old, Rosa Bell. We want a younger maid of all work. Never mind the forks, Kathie. I have some better ones in my trunk. Hector, it strikes me this dining room is rather small," looking about the dingy, poorly furnished apartment. "It must be enlarged in some way. You must see Dunbain about it at once, as it must be attended to before warm weather sets in. Dog days are so trying in Hillswood."

"My dear Orphies" — Mr. Hunter turned his severe eye on the dimpled face opposite—"it would cost a mint of money to enlarge this room."

"Not so very much," said Mrs. Hunter, composedly. "We had ours done at home. I think papa said the cost was $150."

"One hundred and fifty dollars!" cried Mr. Hunter, staring at his young wife as if he thought her crazy.

"Why, my dear Orphies, you speak as if money grew on bushes, and could be picked as easily as berries. Besides, I never heard the first Mrs. Hunter complain that this room was close."

"Poor thing," said Orphies, pityingly, "perhaps she didn't dare to. What were you saying, Arthur? A baseball match on the common? Why, that's delightful. Don't stay at home on my account, I beg of you. Go and enjoy yourself while you can. Were I a boy I'd go with you. As it is I will sit by the window with papa and watch the game. Oh, Hector, I forgot to tell you! Florence Freeman was married yesterday, and who do you think the bridegroom was? Oh, you would never guess, so I might as well tell you. It was Percy Whitman, and such a display as was made. Not at all like our humble union."

"Why didn't you take him, then?" growled Mr. Hunter, whose feelings were somewhat "riled" by the proposed change in his house. "He wanted you at one time, didn't he?"

Orphies laughed gleefully.

"I didn't want him," she said. "I had rather have you than a dozen Percy Whitmans."

And then, springing up, she threw her arms around her husband's neck, greatly to the children's astonishment and, if the truth be told, to his own as well.

"We will need some wood for the morning, Hector," said Orphies, that night, as her husband was preparing to change his boots for the comfortable slippers he had commanded Kathie to bring him.

She had found so much to do, and had entered so heartily into the duties awaiting her, that her wedding day had passed very much the same as those spent under her father's roof.

"Father never chops the wood," ventured Rosa Bell, seeing the look of surprise on her father's face. "Mamma always did it, and when she died I looked after the kindlings."

Orphies gave the batch of dough she was kneading a vigorous turn.

"That isn't a woman's work," she said, with a determined shake of her head. "Come, Arthur, help papa in with the wood, and then we will hear all about the baseball match. Hurry, Hector, my dear. No, no, Arthur isn't strong enough to cut those great logs. That is your work. He will bring it in as fast as you get it ready, and baby and I will come and see tha you do it properly."

Catching the little one in the round, white arms bare to the elbow, and dotted here and there with patches of flour, Orphies danced out into the woodshed, followed by the grumbling Hector and the amused children.

"Didn't I tell you father had found his match?" whispered Rosa Bell to her brother. "He never did this in his life, and yet he doesn't say a word; I'm glad she's come."

"If she keeps on the way she has begun, I'll stand a chance of getting out to play once in a while," answered doubting Arthur. "I had just a jolly good time this afternoon, thanks to her, and if I never get another, I can look back on that."

Orphies had been married a week when people began to look for open war, but if there was any the young wife kept it to herself.

To be sure, life was not all sunshine, but she had expected a few rainy days would creep in.

She had married Hector Hunter in spite of the reputation he had. Why she had done so no one knew, but probably Orphies did, for in spite of the apparent dreariness of her lot, she was sunny, sweet tempered and happy in her new home, just as she had been in her old.

True to her word, Orphies went to work to enlarge the dining room. She had painters and carpenters, masons and plumbers, till Mr. Hunter was beside himself with rage, and threatened to go away if that state of affairs continued.

Orphies calmly listened to all his speeches; and when the room was finished to her satisfaction, pulled his easy chair into the most comfortable corner, brought out a new pair of slippers and foot stool, then presented him with the bill and the most charming kiss in the world. Strange to say, he paid the former without a word, and returned the latter with interest.

Still holding her tight but invisible rein, and atoning for her harsh measures by the most loving caresses, Orphies at length succeeded in subduing her unruly steed and getting him to bend to the yoke.

But her ideas of improvement did not end with the enlargement of the dining room. A two story L was added the following spring. The parlor was refurnished and a great piano for Arthur's special use was brought from the city.

"My children shall be taught to love their home," said the determined little mother when her husband battled against what he called a foolish piece of extravagance. "Rosa Bell is quite old enough to go into society. Young Tomlinson is partial to her, and I had rather have him feel free to call where I can have a chance of judging of his character than to endeavor to meet her on the street corners or at the village postoffice. Books and music have an ennobling influence over the young, and I had rather have Arthur master of the piano than of the billiard table. In order to keep our boys and girls we must exert ourselves to please them. Give the husks at home, and they will most assuredly seek the wheat elsewhere."

To this speech Mr. Hunter replied in curt but decisive words. He guessed he was master of his own children, and as to having his house filled with company from morning till night, he would not. It was out of the question. He couldn't afford it. Gas was expensive, and the wear and tear of carpets and furniture was something to be thought of.

But, after following Rosa Bell about from corner to corner a few evenings, and breaking up a few private interviews with young Tomlinson, after listening to Arthur's boyish bets over a game of billiards, and breaking up Kathie's intimacy with the girls employed as "cash" in Blind & Co.'s store, he gave in, and quietly put all the responsibility on his little wife.

Though young in years, Orphies was a wise little woman. Never as much as "I told you so" passed her lips. Calmly accepting the burden, she carried it along as she had intended to do when fate gave her Hector Hunter for a husband. And the man whom all the villagers had feared on account of his crabbedness said never a word. Books, papers, music and paintings found their way into his home. His house was always open to the young, and the old always welcome to the warmest place beside his hearth.

When Rosa Bell's engagement with young Tomlinson became public, and people congratulated him on his enterprising son-in-law, he smiled quietly. When Arthur came home from college loaded with honors, he blushed with pride; and when Kathie received her diploma and was pronounced capable of taking a high rank as public school teacher, he hugged himself with great satisfaction.

Though always thoughtful and considerate of his young wife, he was never known to acknowledge her superiority by word of mouth. Manlike he refused to give her her dues, and the only praise she ever received for her trial and care was from the lips of her son Arthur the day he was admitted to the bar.

"I tell you, Tomlinson," he said to that interested brother-in-law, "all I am I owe to my plucky little stepmother. My father probably meant well, but I should never have reached the place I occupy today if he had not met his death."—Boston Budget.

Early Life in Arizona.

The first settlers underwent untold suffering and privation, without adequate provision against the cold weather, illy provided with eatables, the roughest of cabins or tents for shelter and fifty-five miles from a railroad. They seem to have borne it all cheerfully, and the wife did much to lessen the burden of her husband's cares. Her sister of the east could scarcely form an idea of the difficulties under which these brave women contended to make home decently comfortably. Often with only two small rooms for a family of four or six persons, the cook stove doing double duty for cooking and heating, with boxes for chairs, tin buckets and cans for cooking utensils, any odd and end procurable for tableware, no tables but of an improvised kind, domestic order and comfort were difficult ends to reach. But most of these places were scrupulously clean, the children well kept, the meals well cooked and served. It was a marvel how it was done.

It is claimed anything in the fruit and vegetable line can be grown successfully in the Montezuma valley. The climate is delightful. Being at an altitude of over 6,000 feet, with no large body of water near, it is dry and mild, and the sun shines with great power and for about 350 days of the year. The soil is sandy and light, and will grow anything without fertilizing. Large yields have already been made in crops planted without irrigation, which will be greatly increased when the water comes.—Baltimore Sun.

A Queer Barometer.

It is not generally known that the rendered fat of a woodchuck is as good a barometer as any we have today. While in the country a short time ago the writer had occasion to travel though the lower part of Berks. At the house of a friend he pressed me to take an umbrella with me. There were no signs of a storm. I asked why he persisted in so dogged a manner for me to accept the article. "Why," said he, "look at my barometer." There upon the shelf stood a bottle sealed with beeswax. It was all cloudy. The old gentleman said that he had used this one for most twenty years, and if a storm was brewing the barometer got cloudy twelve hours before the rain or snow began to fall. In clear weather the oil was always clear.—Reading Herald.

A Sneak Thief's Nerve.

A Connecticut man tells this story of a remarkable exhibition of nerve by a professional sneak thief: "One day he walked quietly into a bank, took off his hat and coat, hung them on a nail, put on an office coat that hung there, and walked into the rear room which contained the vaults. The directors were holding a meeting, and one sat in front of a door blocking the passage. The thief politely asked him to move, and when the obliging director did so the man went through the door, picked up two of the largest bags of gold in sight, coolly walked out with them, and thief and gold were seen no more there."—New York Sun.

March April May

Are the best months in which to purify your blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best blood purifier.

At no other season does the human system so much need the aid of a reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla, as now. The impoverished condition of the blood, the weakening effects of the long, cold winter, the loss of appetite, and that tired feeling, all make a good spring medicine absolutely necessary. Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiarly adapted for this purpose, and increases in popularity every year. It is the ideal spring medicine.

"I must say Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine I ever used. Last spring I had no appetite, and the least work I did fatigued me over so much. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and soon felt that I could do as much in a day as I had formerly done in a week. My appetite is voracious." MRS. M. V. BAYARD, Atlantic City, N. J.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to buy any other.

Were all wise enough to heed this advice in season, a world of suffering would be avoided. If you suffer from impure blood, scrofula, dyspepsia, biliousness, headache, take Workmen on a mail car, which is being repaired at the Northern railroad shop in Concord, on Tuesday, the 15th inst., found a large envelope, postmarked Milton, N. H., Dec. 31, 1884, and directed to George Runnels, Lowell, Mass. It was re-mailed on the 16th, and will reach its destination, after being three years 4 1-2 months on the way. It appeared to be a New Year's or Christmas card.

Those persons who do not need iron, but who are troubled with nervousness and dyspepsia, will find in Carter's Little Nerve Pills a most desirable article. They are mostly used in combination with Carter's Little Liver Pills, and in this way often exert a most magical effect. Take just one pill of each kind immediately after eating and you will be free from indigestion and dyspepsia. In vials at twenty-five cents. Try them.

That Tired Feeling

Afflicts nearly every one in the spring. The system having become acoustomed to the bracing air of winter, is weakened by the warm days of the changing season, and readily yields to attacks of disease. Hood's Sarsaparilla is just the medicine needed. It tones and builds up every part of the body, and also expels all impurities from the blood. Try it this season.

The Tennessee Democracy.

A despatch of the 16th from Nashville, Tenn, to the Boston Post, says: "On the fortieth ballot yesterday the democratic convention renominated Governor Robert L. Taylor, who made a telling speech. He said that if the democracy of the state would bring together all the elements and fight for the principles of the party they would roll off a majority of 30,000, and say to the republican party that the question that Tennessee is a doubtful state was forever settled. He declared that he indorsed the platform, and would make a good fight for it. The recomination of Governor Taylor is not pleasing to the rank and file of the party, although despatches from points throughout the state indicate that many anti-Taylor men will forget the past and support the nominee. Republican leaders who are in the city say that with a good candidate against Governor Taylor the party has a fine fighting chance. The convention was the most bitter ever held by the democrats of Tennessee. The action of nearly 300 delegates in declining to vote for Taylor on the final ballot shows the spirit manifested by many leading democrats who believed it would be detrimental to the best interests of the party to select him as its standard bearer." The platform heartily endorses President Cleveland and his free trade message.

Prohibition Convention of Maine.

The prohibition state convention of Maine was held in Portland on the 16th inst. Volney B. Cushing was nominated for governor. Neal Dow, N. F. Woodbury, E. T. Burrows, and Mrs. Hannah J. Bailey of Winthrop, were elected delegates-at-large to the national convention.

Tough Bird --- or Story.

If the editor of the Riverside Press of California tells the truth, the white wild goose of the Pacific slope is a remarkable bird. He says that he once killed one. It took four bullets from a 44-calibre Sharp's rifle to bring the bird down at a range of seventy-five yards. Each cartridge contained ninety-two grains of powder. All the bullets passed through the heart of the goose and lodged in the skin on the side opposite from where they went in. An attempt was made to boil this bird. "Strange to say, the bullets were cooked to a jelly before any impression was made on the goose."

The "Poor Circumstances" Explained.

The Baltimore American says: "Mrs. Robert Milligan of Bridgeport gave birth to her twenty-fifth child to-day. The mother is forty-eight years old, and was married at the age of fourteen. Her children include five sets of twins. Of the twenty-five, twenty-one are now living. The oldest is thirty-three, and there are nine grandchildren. The family are in poor circumstances."

Equal Rights Convention.

The national convention of the Equal Rights party met at Des Moines, Iowa, May 16th, and nominated Belva A Lockwood of Washington for president and Alfred H. Love of Philadelphia for vice president. A platform was adopted favoring woman suffrage; pensions for needy soldiers and sailors; a protective tariff, with free sugar and lumber, and the repeal of the tax on whiskey and tobacco; and opposing unrestricted emigration. Many worse platforms than that have been passed by national conventions of older parties.

Dr. Gage and Associate Physicians, and Their Great Work.

Probably no physician in New England is better and more favorably known, says a New Hampshire exchange, than is Dr. Gage, the gifted specialist, who has treated more than fifteen thousand patients in this state, the announcement of his visits each month being the signal for a grand rally of a multitude of invalids. His success is indeed phenomenal and the reports of marvellous cures would fill this entire paper, the like of which was never known in the history of medical practice. The following is a fair sample:

Mr. Editor: A few months ago my daughter was laying at the point of death. She had a complication of troubles, a terrible cough, raising an immense quantity, a discharging sore upon her hip which rendered her perfectly helpless. Our family physician gave us no hope, but with a mother's will and determination to save her perishing child if possible, I hastened to consult Dr. Gage. Although he did not see her he nevertheless understood the case and his remedies have wrought a miracle—almost—by restoring my child to perfect health. I thank God that I consulted Dr. Gage.

Want of Sleep

Is sending thousands annually to the insane asylum; and the doctors say this trouble is alarmingly on the increase. The usual remedies, while they may give temporary relief, are likely to do more harm than good. What is needed is an Alterative and Blood-purifier. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is incomparably the best. It corrects those disturbances in the circulation which cause sleeplessness, gives increased vitality, and restores the nervous system to a healthful condition.

Rev. T. G. A. Coté, agent of the Mass. Home Missionary Society, writes that his stomach was out of order, his sleep very often disturbed, and some impurity of the blood manifest; but that a perfect cure was obtained by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Frederick W. Pratt, 424 Washington street, Boston, writes: "My daughter was prostrated with nervous debility. Ayer's Sarsaparilla restored her to health."

William F. Bowker, Erie, Pa., was cured of nervousness and sleeplessness by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla for about two months, during which time his weight increased over twenty pounds.

A SCIENTIST'S WARNING.

Extracts From a Remarkable Lecture Delivered by Dr. R. E. Hammond, Before the National Scientist's Convention.

"We are startled constantly by the sudden death of some man who seemed the picture of health. He thought he was well. He had felt strange pains shooting through his body, but as they did not remain, he forgot them. His head pained him periodically, he was somewhat paler than common and unaccountably tired, but he felt comparatively well and vigorous. And yet, he suddenly died! It is a shame to our boasted civilization."

"Look at the list of women who die in childbirth, and why is it? Simply because their maternal organs have been so weakened by the most terrible of diseases that they cannot withstand the fearful, sudden strain that is brought to bear upon them. How many women escape monthly agonies? And yet nature never intended that pain or inconvenience should attend the operation of her natural laws. The solemn and terrible fact is, that men and women drag along, die, and are buried, and their friends and the doctors say heart disease, apoplexy, pneumonia, congestion, convulsions, when the cause lay far back of all these things. The truth is that weakened kidneys are the cause of most of our troubles. The great question, therefore, is: 'How shall I preserve my kidneys, or, if diseased, how can they be restored?' I have seen numbers of cases and learned from unquestionable sources of many others, where the preparation, Hunt's Remedy, has been almost remarkable in its results. I use it freely among my patients, and shall continue to do so. It is a wonderful and invaluable remedy."

The remarks of the learned doctor should be carefully considered, and acted upon by all who desire long life, and freedom from pain and the danger of sudden death.

MONTANA HEARD FROM.—Recent railroad extensions have developed exceptionally fine mineral, stock and farming districts. Maps and full particulars, free, upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

NEW BUSINESS CENTERS.—The building of railroads in a new and fertile country creates many new towns, affording excellent business opportunities. Particulars regarding such opportunities in Montana, Minnesota and Dakota, will be sent upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

STOCK IN MINNESOTA.—From an exclusive grain country, Minnesota is being rapidly transformed into the finest stock and dairy state in the Union. Cheap lands still obtainable, convenient to railroad. Particulars free upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

SUCCESS, Are you mortgaged, paying heavy rents, or franking hob ind? Excellent farm lands, cheap, which will increase in value several fold in five years. No other such opportunities existing. Full particulars, free, upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

FAILURE OF CROPS is an unknown experience in Central and Northern Dakota and Minnesota. Maps and full particulars regarding lands, prices, etc., sent free. Address C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

PROSPEROUS, North Dakota never had better crops than those just harvested. Many opportunities to secure fine Government lands recently surveyed, near excellent coal fields and adjacent to railroad. Maps and full particulars, free, upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

WHY WORK FOR ANOTHER, or on small salary? Why continue working on a worn-out farm? Why try to secure a living from such high-priced or heavily-mortgaged farms? Why work on rented land? Why not start for yourself? Why not secure at once some of the low-priced but very fertile and well located lands adjacent to railroads now to be obtained by those going to Northern Dakota and Minnesota, where you can make a larger net profit per acre than on the high-priced or worn-out farms you now occupy? Why not go and look the situation over, and see for yourself, or at least obtain further information, which will be sent free, if you will address C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn. ?

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Combines, in a proportion peculiar to itself, the active medicinal properties of the best blood-purifying and strengthening remedies of the vegetable kingdom. It will positively cure—when in the power of medicine—Spring Debility, Headache, Dyspepsia, Catarrh, Salt Rheum, Scrofula, and all Diseases caused by a low state of the blood.

"I suffered three years with blood poison. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and think I am cured." MRS. M. J. DAVIS, Brockport, N. Y.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla beats all others, and is worth its weight in gold." I. BARRINGTON, 130 Bank Street, New York City.

Is so vastly superior to any other sarsaparilla or blood purifier, that one has well said: "Its health-giving effects upon the blood and entire human organism, are as much more positive than the remedies of a quarter or a century ago, as the steam-power of to-day is in advance of the slow and laborious drudgery of years ago."

"While suffering from a severe bilious attack in March, 1883, a friend in Peoria, Ill., recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla. I tried the remedy, and was permanently cured." J. A. SHEPARD, travelling agent for Devoe & CO., Fulton Street, N. Y.

Purifies the Blood

"I tried a dozen articles to cleanse my blood, but never found anything that did me any good till I began using Hood's Sarsaparilla." W. H. PERR, Rochester, N. Y.

"My wife was troubled with dizziness and constipation, and her blood has been in a bad order—in fact she has been all run down. Hood's Sarsaparilla is doing her a wonderful amount of good." F. M. BALDWIN, druggist, Blanchester, Ohio.

"I was for five years a sufferer with boils, all run down, and was at one time obliged to give up work. Before taking all of two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, was entirely cured." R. M. LANE, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. Took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

OFFICIAL NOTICE!

OF

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co.

FROM THE

HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND, MAINE,

To those who are contemplating the purchase of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

GREETING:

On and after June 1st we shall STOP PREPAYING the FREIGHT on GOODS SOLD by us, and we respectfully request that those who have dealt with us, and who have been BENEFITED by the PAYMENT OF THIS FREIGHT which in itself in the past three years has amounted to some

30,000 DOLLARS,

Will order what GOODS they require for this SPRING, from us this month, and please order as early as possible. And to those who intend buying

Chamber Sets, Parlor Suits, Carpets, Lounges, Easy Chairs, Mattresses, Springs, Silver-ware, Window Shades, Drapery, Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Stoves and Ranges, Feathers, Feather Pillows, Spreads, Blankers,

And anything else in HOUSE FURNISHING, can be BENEFITED to the extent of the freight to their depot, by buying from us this month. We have always PREPAID THIS FREIGHT FROM OUR OWN PROFITS, as we have invariably made the price on the

Furniture, Carpets,

Etc., lower than could be bought for elsewhere. There has always been a great advantage derived by our prepayment of the freight because we in every instance GUARANTEE the SAFE DELIVERY of the goods, and if there has ever been a fight to make with the railroad, we have done it, or in other words if you have received a

CHAMBER SET, PARLOR SUIT, Chair, or Range,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

That was damaged by the railroad, we have replaced it with another piece, and taken our chances to get the breakage from the road. There are items worthy of our close consideration, and especially at this time of year, be wise and order during this month,

And Save Yourself the Freight from Portland to your Depot, no matter where it is located in the State of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

We believe we are the only HOUSE FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT IN NEW ENGLAND WHO HAVE ADHERED STRICTLY TO THIS PLAN OF PREPAYING THE FREIGHT ON EVERYTHING SHIPPED BY US. We mean by this that while some other houses have shipped the goods, and allowed you to pay freight and afterwards send them a bill and then dicker on it for some time, We have invariably paid out the cash before the article left our freight sheds at Portland. And now notwithstanding the fact that we expect to lose a great deal of business by this this year there seems to be no other way to convince some people of the difference between OUR PAYING THE FREIGHT before the articles leave here, AND OUR CUSTOMERS PAYING THE FREIGHT after the articles get to the depot, and then having to write backwards and forwards over the matter. We wish to deal with perfect fairness and frankness in this matter, consequently we give you another month to make your selection, and to fill orders that are already placed. Now if you want a

KITCHEN RANGE, or a CHAMBER SET, or PARLOR SUIT, or CARPETS, WINDOW SHADES, DRAPERY CURTAINS,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

Kindly come and see us at once, or if you can not come, please write us for Catalogues and Descriptions of these Goods, and we will do our very best to please you in every one. Remember we carry COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHINGS. There is scarcely a thing that you require for your homes that we do not keep, and we sell the same and shall continue to sell the same for cash, or a quarter cash, and the bálance by the week or month. This notice applies TO ALL OUR STORES, and we have written to each of our MANAGERS to this effect, consequently there will be no more freight prepaid from our Bangor Store, Rockland Store, Auburn Store, Bar Harbor Store, Biddeford Store, nor from the Headquarters at Portland, after the 31st day of May, 1888.

Kindly get your orders in before June 1st, if you wish to save this freight.

Respectfully, the Public's Ob't Servants,

THE ATKINSON HOUSE FURNISHING CO.,

Headquarters Cor. Pearl and Middle Streets, Portland, and Branches at Auburn, Rockland, Bangor and Biddeford, also Bar Harbor for a short time.

ISAAC C. ATKINSON, Gen. Manager.

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, May 17th, Mayor Hodgdon in the chair; present the full board.

Petitions of Charles E. Boynton for sewer on Lincoln avenue, and of Charles E. Walker for repairs to sewer on McDonough street, were referred to the committee on sewers with power.

Requests of Mrs. A. J. Badger for permission to open Vaughan street to repair drain, and of F. B. Coleman for leave to encumber Congress street for building purposes, were granted under the usual restrictions.

Requests of Charles E. Walker for brick sidewalk in front of his house on Cabot street, of Moses H. Goodrich for relay of part of sidewalk corner of Market and Hanover streets, and of Stephen L. Marston for a brick sidewalk in front of his residence on State street, were referred to the committee on streets, with power.

Bills to the amount of $2663 were ordered to be paid.

The committee on streets recommended that the petitions of B. F. Webster and Gardner J. Greenleaf, for sidewalks, be granted; adopted.

The committee on laying out and widening streets and repairing drains were authorized to purchase a steam drill for the use of the city.

Mary E. Prescott and William H. Sise were appointed by the mayor, and confirmed by the board, as trustees of the Public Library for three years.

Adjourned to Friday morning, the 18th, at 6:45 o'clock, at Sagamore bridge.

BASE BALL.

The first Interstate League game played on the Portsmouth base ball grounds came off on Thursday afternoon, and resulted in an overwhelming defeat for the Rochesters, who made but four runs against fifteen made by the home club. Rudderham of the Portsmouths was badly hurt in the first inning in sliding to third, and was replaced by Kitteredge. The grounds were in a very bad condition, and fine play was impossible. The battery work of Willis and Canavan of the home team was first class. Six hundred people witnessed the game, and Portsmouth can be counted as a good ball town. Only seven innings were played, the Rochester club having to catch a train. The following is the score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
Portsmouth	5	2	1	1	0	2	4	—15
Rochester	0	1	0	3	0	0	0	— 4

Base hits, Portsmouth 9, Rochester 4. Earned run, Portsmouth. Struck out, by Willis 7, by Condon 4. Wild pitch, Condon. Errors, Portsmouth 9, Rochester 9. Base on balls, Portsmouth 3, Rochester 1. Time, 2 hours. Umpire, M. Mahoney of Lowell.

"ALVIN JOSLIN."

This evening, at Music hall, "Alvin Joslin" will be presented by Mr. Charles L. Davis' Comedy Co., with Mr. Davis himself in the title role, of course. The Troy Telegram says: "Mr. Davis is one of the most ingenious of actors. He does so much to amuse an audience that it would be simply impossible to give even a partial description of his comicalities in a review of moderate length. You should go and see him and enjoy the fun yourself. His company is good, the scenery and stage appointments unusually appropriate, and the music furnished by his own orchestra enchanting." Tickets at Goodrich's; see advertisement.

CIRCUIT COURT—COLT J.

Case Twitchell (adm. of Noyes) vs. Grand Trunk railroad was given to the jury shortly after five o'clock on the 16th inst., and at one o'clock A. M. on the 17th an agreement was reached, awarding plaintiff $4449.91.

PERSONAL.

Miss Nellie M. Freeman is visiting her sister, Mrs. William J. Mendum, at Winchester, Mass.

Miss Lizzie Pearson, daughter of the late Rear Admiral Pearson, U. S. N., is visiting friends in this city.

Mr. T. Salter Tredick and family returned on Thursday evening from a visit of several weeks at Lakewood, N. Y.

Mr. Edward H. Hall and wife, of Fort Collins, Colorado, arrived in this city on Thursday afternoon for a stay of several weeks.

Capt. A. R. Yates, U. S. N., who has been on a trip to Central America in command of the U. S. S. Pensacola, will arrive home in this city to-day.

Mrs. George L. Treadwell and daughter, Miss Carrie Treadwell, of State street, who have been visiting in Hagarstown, Maryland, for some time, have returned home.

Elder Bryant McLellan, for some time pastor of the Advent church, preached his farewell sermon there on Sunday, the 13th inst., and will join the Baptist church next Sunday.

Mrs. Edward Dorr, of Cambridge, Mrs. George Perkins, of Gloucester, and Mrs. Henry Tilden, of Mansfield, Mass., are in this city, their former home, visiting their relatives the Misses Shaw, on Pleasant street.

Mrs. Lizzie P. Seavey, of Lincoln Hill cottage, South road, arrived home on Wednesday afternoon of this week from Kennebunk, Me., at which place and in Newtonville, Mass., she has passed the time since last fall.

The family of Mr. Cedric Laighton, and servants, went to Appledore for the season on Wednesday of this week, going out in the steamer Pinafore. The steamer came in for them the day before, but Capt. Oscar reported the sea so heavy that day that they concluded to wait for a more convenient season.

MARITINE NOTES.

The brick schooners D. K. Ham, Satellite, Frances Ellen, Wilson & Willard, Clara B. Kennard, Sadie A. Kimball, Hattie Lewis and Lillie, and the sloop Samoset, arrived at this port on the 16th inst. from Boston, and proceeded up river to load at the brickyards of Eliot, Dover point and Durham.

Capt. Samuel Robinson on Thursday caught on a trawl, set outside of the Isles of Shoals, a salmon weighing 16 1-2 pounds. The fish was placed on exhibition at the store of J. O. Downs & Co. This is the first instance of a salmon being taken on a trawl within our knowledge.

The schooner J. W. Hine, Saunders master, arrived from Boston on the 16th inst., to load at the navy yard with old iron for New York.

The schooner Mary Willey, Capt. Zach. Williams, sailed from this port for Bangor, via Portland, on the 17th.

The famous English schooner yacht Cambria, which came to this country for America cup fame, was sold at auction the other day.

The sloop yacht Puritan is to be fitted with a new mainsail, and will be seen in some of the important eastern regattas during the coming season. The Mayflower will also be among the racers this year. The Volunteer was put into the water April 23d, at South Boston, by the order of Gen. Paine. The Boston journals have been saying lately that Gen. Paine wishes to sell the latest cup defender, but the report so far is without direct confirmation from the general himself.

The four-masted schooner Lucy H. Russell, from Baltimore with 1761 tons of coal, to J. Albert Walker, came up from the lower harbor on Thursday morning, the 17th inst., and took a berth at Jones' wharf to discharge part of her cargo, the balance to be discharged into cars for transportation to Concord. She is as handsome a four-master as ever entered this port.

FREE ENTERTAINMENT.

Just after noon on Thursday the people of this city enjoyed a musical treat. A steam whistle commenced to blow, and kept on for a long time, after which it continued to blow without stopping. During the first five or ten minues of this steam recital the general sentiment of the hearers throughout the city was one of amused curiosity; this gradually changed to wonder as to whether it could possibly be the last trump, and then to a hope that it was—for the man who was blowing the whistle; the last sentiment aroused was one of devouring wrath, which found expression in many instances in the utterance of fervid hopes for the future welfare of the musician. After having continued for about half an hour, the concert suddenly ceased, and "silence like a poultice came, to heal the blows of sound." The cause of this very effective if not particularly pleasing performance was the breaking of the connection between the engineer and the whistle of the locomotive on the outward-bound freight train on the Concord railroad, which deprived the engineer of all control of the noisy concern, and he was obliged to let it blow itself out before he could approach it to repair the trifling defect.

An exchange remarks: "It is proposed to erect a hotel at Sorrento, a growing summer resort, six miles across the bay from Bar Harbor. Congressman Frank Jones, Dr. Moore of the Manchester Union, and Charles Sinclair of the Wentworth hotel, Newcastle N. H., are supposed to be interested in the enterprise."

New Dress Goods at Ayers & Locke's; 500 yards pin-head dress goods, manufactured to retail for 50 cents, which they have recently purchased and will place on their counters at the extremely low price of 25 cents per yard. It is safe to say that they are the best value in a dress fabric ever shown in Portsmouth.

The net receipts from the "Battle of Gettysburg" illustrated lectures were a little rising $50, which sum has been turned into the relief fund of Storer Post.

A leading New York physician says, that three fourths of the deaths during this trying weather are due to diseases of the lungs. Take warning and secure at once a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, a sure cure for all lung troubles.

A very tiresome show was that given by Abbey's Uncle Tom's Cabin company in Music hall last night. The orchestra, Little Eva and Topsy, are deserving of mention; the others should let themselves out as mill hands.—Penny Post.

Ayers & Locke have a full line of gloves and hosiery; excellent values in black and colored taffeta gloves at 25 cents. Also ladies' fast-black silk-finish hosiery at 25 cents per pair.

Have you seen that lot of Challi Dress Goods at 10 cts. per yard? If not, go to Lewis E. Staples' dry goods store, No. 7 Market street.

Ayers & Locke have ladies' Jersey vests from 25 cents upward; also lisle and silk ditto, equally good values.

The heaviest blast of rock ever fired in this vicinity will be fired this morning between 6:45 and 7:00 o'clock, at Sagamore bridge. Several fifteen-foot holes have been put down in a ledge, and the blow-up is expected to be worth seeing.

Ayers & Locke have a full line of tinsel braids and sets at popular prices.

At the spring meeting of the Dartmouth Athletic Association the one mile walk was won by C. S. Humphreys of this city in nine minutes and fifty-two seconds. J. W. Kelly of this city was a member of the successful tug-of-war team. Dartmouth will be well represented in the tournament at Worcester next week, and it is confident of winning the cup again this year.

What you need is a medicine which is pure, efficient, reliable. Such is Hood's Sarsaparilla. It posesses peculiar powers.

Ayers & Locke have a new stock of furniture and drapery fringes; also Florentine silks of the latest designs.

Mr. C. W. Taylor wishes to state that his charges for work and prices for goods are to suit himself and his patrons, and not his neighbors; and further, he has never reached that deplorable condition of some people as to think that to gain custom he must depreciate others. Yet we feel very sorry that they feel so sore; but if they have anything to say, why not say it in a manly way. We will meet competitiors every time, at 42 and 44 Market street.

The city of Dover has purchased for $10,000 eight and a half acres of the top of Garrison hill; three acres will be occupied by the reservoir of the new water works, and the remainder will be laid out as a public park.

Louis Stuart of Biddeford has been appointed a deputy sheriff for York county by Sheriff Hamilton.

The following are among the recent transfers of real estate in York county; Kittery—Samuel A Jackson to Augustus Stevenson, land and buildings for $120; Horace M. Seaward to Sarah D. Marden, land and buildings for $1000. York—Hazen Z. Ellis of York to George A. Procter of Boston, real estate in York for $100. South Berwick—Susan M. Oakes of South Berwick to James B. Walker of North Berwick, real estate in South Berwick for $1; James B. Walker to James C. Jellison of South Berwick, real estate in South Berwick for $175. Wells—Mary H. Pope of Kennebunk to Thomas G. Jameson of Somersworth, N. H., real estate in Wells for $450.

The Dover board of aldermen on Tuesday evening, May 15th, voted to appoint a town agent for the sale of liquor, and elect John P. Lowell agent. A committee was appointed to draft an ordinance for the regulation of the business of the agent, to report at the next meeting of the board.

"Dissolving Views in the History of Judaism," by Rabbi Solomon Schindler, of the Temple Adath Israel, in Boston. The author is distinguished for his erudition, and is now to give to the public, in book form, the series of popular and profound lectures delivered at the Temple Adath Israel, the past season. The mere mention of Rabbi Schindler's themes gives an ample idea of the great historic value of his scholarly researches: "Moses and His Time;" "Ezra and His Time;" "Simon, the last of the Maccabees;" "Rabbi Jochanan Ben Saccai and His Time;" "The Talmud;" "Anan Ben David and His Time;" "Saadia and His Time;" "Abulhassan Jehuda Helevi and His Time;" "Moses Maimonides;" "Joseph Albo and His Time;" "Reuchlin and Pfefferkorn;" "Joseph, Prince of Naxos, and His Time;" "Josep Karo;" "Manasse Ben Israel and His Time;" "Baruch Spinoza and His Time;" "Jonathan Eibeschuetz and His Time;" "Moses Mendelssohn and His Time;" "Bverne and Heine and Their Time;" "Abraham Geigher and His Time;" "Rabbi Isaac M. Wise and His Time;" and "The Present Hour." The lectures have been prepared with much care, and each epoch, and each personage is ushered before the reader with skill, in language easily grasped and understood, yet forceful in import, and graceful in expression. For sale by M. Goodrich; price $1.50.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

Distress After Eating — Sick Headache

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." GEORGE A. PAGE, Watertown, Mass.

AGNES—"He praised my tresses, in his rhyme,
My shining hair, my golden hair;
He sang that sunshine lingered there,
The sunshine of the summer-time;
He told me love had hid a lair,
In tangles of my shining hair."

LOUISE—"Yes, Agnes, you have caught a beau,
With those blond tresses fair;
Because you cleanse them, oft, you know,
With IVORY SOAP, as pure as snow;
The soap without compare."

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

ARE WE NOT RIGHT?

In asking you the question,—If it is not better to purchase medicines and household remedies generally from people you know, and whose reputation is for exactitude, are we not right? We guarantee the

PRESTON JAMAICA GINGER

To be in all ways worthy of your confidence,—and strongly advise that it be kept in every household.

PRESTON'S SARSAPARILLA

Is perhaps the best general spring medicine ever offered to the people;—We always advise anyone, who may ask for information, that a physician be consulted in case of illness,—but to meet the wants of those desiring a medicine to take especially during the spring, when the system is racked and torn by the constantly changing weather, Preston's Sarsaparilla was introduced, and we constantly and confidently recommend it.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

$22 TO $1000.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS

Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all GRAND & UPRIGHT pianos made by other makers. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGS," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

THIS PAPER is on file in Philadelphia at the Newspaper Advertising Agency of Messrs. N. W. AYER & SON, our authorized agents.

EXPANSION OF THE LUNGS.

An Important Factor in the Cure of Consumption—A Physician's Theory.

Dr. Thomas J. Mays, of Philadelphia, in a paper read before the Philadelphia County Medical society, elaborates the theory which he has repeatedly expressed, that an insufficient expansion of the lungs, especially of their apices, has more to do with the development of consumption than the breathing of impure air, and that, for the prevention of the disease, complete expansion of these organs is more important than the breathing of pure air. The title of his paper is "Apex Expansion versus Pure Air in Pulmonary Consumption."

Although Dr. Mays acknowledges that wholesome air is of value in the prevention and treatment of consumption, still he is convinced that the purity of the atmosphere plays but a small part in the result. He cites the almost complete exemption from pulmonary consumption of the inhabitants of Iceland, Greenland and Lapland, whose habitations are notoriously wanting in ventilation, as proof that this disease is not the result of breathing a vitiated and impure atmosphere. On the other hand, people living in tropical regions, who are out of doors most of the time, are by no means free from consumption. Miners and laborers in coal mines, although continually respiring an atmosphere loaded with impurities, and damp and musty, suffer but very little from this disease.

That which had been an important factor in establishing the belief that pure air is such an essential element in limiting the ravages of consumption, is that those who occupy elevated or mountainous regions are less liable to this disease than those who live near the sea level. In reference to this fact, Dr. Mays says that it is estimated that at an elevation of 6,000 feet the surface of the body is relieved of nearly 7,000 pounds' pressure. When such an enormous weight is lifted from the body, it is quite evident that its interior must also be markedly affected; the pulse is accelerated from fifteen to twenty beats per minute; the respiration is quickened from ten to fifteen breaths, and evaporation from the skin and lungs is increased. These are some of the immediate effects. Protracted residence in such a high region enlarges the chest capacity. The Outchua Indians, who dwell on the elevated tablelands of Peru, have enormous sized chests, containing capacious lungs with large air cells. The Mexican Indians possess chests which are out of proportion to the sizes of the individuals. Dr. Denison says that children born in the Rocky mountains have chests of unusually large capacity, and M. Jaccoud states that at St. Moritz the respirations are not only more frequent, but fuller.

The reason why the number of respirations increases while ascending a high elevation becomes clear when we take into consideration the fact that at the sea level a cubic foot of dry air contains about 130 grains of oxygen, while at an elevation of 6,000 feet it contains only about 106 grains—nearly 25 per cent. less than the body is accustomed to breathe at or near the seaboard.

Professor Mosso has recently proven experimentally that man possesses a lung capacity which is nearly one-fourth larger than the actual necessities of life at the sea level demand; hence by employing his whole lung capacity he can secure a sufficient amount of oxygen from this attenuated atmosphere without difficulty. And herein lies the secret why so many consumptives, and others with weak lungs, derive such a great benefit when they resort to a mountain climate. Every available space in the chest is brought into requisition to furnish the needed amount of oxygen, the apices are called out of their lethargic state, and the alveoli are inflated; and, if the infiltrated areas are not dispersed, the surrounding alveoli are kept permeable, and so the disease is at least limited and called into abeyance.

In concluding his paper, Dr. Mays says: "Now, after reviewing the whole subject, we are driven to the conclusion that the line of immunity from consumption, which in the early history of our country was located at the Atlantic seaboard, and which has gradually receded westward with the tide of civilization, until at present it has reached the latitude of Colorado, will not stop in its course until it touches the shores of the Pacific; that the question of curing the disease does not depend on the purity or freshness of the air, or upon the number of bacilli which the atmosphere may contain, or upon the amount of oxygen which may be introduced into the body, for these are all secondary considerations; but it is simply a mechanical question—a question as to the best mode of expanding the lungs, and especially the apices of our round shouldered and flat chested patients, of removing the infiltrated products already existing, and of enhancing the constitutional resistance." —Science.

The Modern English Girl.

A rather severe writer in The Saturday Review condemns the modern English girl in the following terms: "Neither the moral nor physical training of modern English girl is such as to justify the hope that she will be invariably above reproach. The lives they lead, the aim set before them, all lead to degeneracy and deterioration. They are permitted, as they grow up, to develop all the vainer elements, to study to show off to traffic on their charms for charity, for popularity, for notoriety, and their ambition is to become professional beauties or something equally poor and objectionable, ultra fast and fashionable women."

This is as severe as anything that Bishop Coxe or Rev. Morgan Dix could say. It all shows that if morals are not bad, manners certainly are.—Mrs. M. E. W. Sherwood in Philadelphia Times.

"Bird Talk Matinees."

Chicago is nothing if not original. She is credited with inaugurating Turkish bath "parties" as a diversion to young ladies, and now comes another innovation. According to The Inter Ocean, the new entertainments are "bird talk matinees." These consist of a lecture "replete with pretty stories and unheard of facts, coupled with bits of verse and snatches of biography. On a stand near the lecturer are birds in variety—wrens, jays, ravens, bobolinks, robins and larks—illustrative of the lecture." The ladies attend in "pretty carriage and street dresses."—Frank Leslie's.

QUESTIONINGS.

Daisies in the summer meadow,
Fern leaves in the woodland shadow—
Why they grow and why they blow,
Know'st thou why?
Nay, not I!

Dreams of happy days and places,
Visions of fond hearts and faces—
Why they come and why they roam,
Know'st thou why?
Nay, not I!

Wouldst thou stay the flowers from blooming?
Wouldst thou stay thy heart from roaming
Where the beams of sunlit dreams
Charm the eye?
Nay, not I!

—Willis Fletcher Johnson in The Open Court.

What a Mistake!

A careful examination would convince any one that two-thirds of all the people in New England have been or are now afflicted with the catarrh of the nose and throat.

No doubt more than half of these persons have tried every blood purifier they have seen, with the erroneous idea that catarrh is a constitutional disease and must be purged out of the blood.

Why a greater mistake was never made! Stop for a moment and think or ask any reputable physician what common catarrh is, and what causes it, and the answer can be only this. "It is an irritation or inflammation of the mucous membrane of the nose and throat, caused by neglected colds, damp piercing irritable winds, foreign matter in the air which is poisonous to some persons and not to others; just as the bites of certain insects is a poisoned torture to some and has no unpleasant effect upon others." The reason for this is found in the different structure of the outer skin and its counterpart which lines all the inner organs of our bodies. Some people have chapped hands and chilblains and others are never so afflicted because of the peculiar structure of the skin of different individuals.

Therefore stop dosing. It is not blood purifiers you want, but good wholesome food, the plainer the better, then "keep your feet dry and warm, your head cool and bowels open," and use an external application, (Johnson's Anodyne Liniment is the best we know,) to allay the inflammation, cleanse the surface, heal the sores, and your catarrh will disappear like magic. We do not say never to return, because you may cure a severe cold and in three months catch another equally bad, so with catarrh and bronchial troubles. Exposure may bring it on again. We learned more about treating catarrh from the wrapper around a bottle of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, than we ever knew. Certainly this good old medicine deserves to be called "A universal family remedy." No matter how well you know this medicine it will pay you to send to I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass., for a pamphlet free, just to learn how to use the liniment economically. A teaspoonful properly used will often do more good than a half bottle as some people use it.

The man that succeeds nowadays is the live man, who is up to the times; and no better evidence of this is needed than the fact that every go-ahead housekeeper is never without Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

It is no wonder that invalids lose faith in all specifics, when so many worthless medicines are advertised to cure various diseases, but which, when tried, are "found wanting." The Boisterous Atlantic

Is a terror to timid voyagers, scarcely less on account of the perils of the deep than the almost certainty of sea sickness. The best curative of mal de mer is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which settles the stomach at once and prevents its disturbance. To all travellers and tourists, whether by sea or land, it presents a happy medium between the nauseous or ineffectual resources of the medicine chest, and the problematical benefit derivable from an unmedicated alcoholic stimulant, no matter how pure. The jarring of a railroad car often produces stomachic disorders akin to that caused by the rolling of a ship. For this the Bitters is a prompt and certain remedy. The use of brackish water, particularly on long voyages in the tropics, inevitably breeds disorders of the stomach and bowels. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters mixed with impure water nullifies its impurities. Similarly it counteracts malarial and other prejudicial influences of climate or atmosphere, as well as the effects of exposure and fatigue. Use it for kidney complaints, rheumatism and debility.

LITTLE WESLEY.

Since little Wesley went, the place seems all so strange and still—
It makes us yell at "Gran'pap" as I'd miss the s'upperest!
And to think I got to scold him for his everlastin' noise,
When I only rickollect him as the best o' little boys!
I wish a hundred times a day 'at he'd come trompin in,
And all the noise he ever made was twice as loud ag'in
It 'u'd seem like some soft music played on some fine instrument,
'Longside o' this loud lonesomeness, sence little Wesley went!

Of course the clock don't tick no louder than it got to do—
Yit now they 's time it 'pears like it 'u'd bu'st itself in two!
And, jest a rooster, suddent like, crow som'ers close't around,
And scares 's of, mighty nigh it, it 'u'd lift me off the ground!
And same with all the cattle when they bawl around the bars,
In the red o' airly mornin', or the dusk and dew and stars,
When the neighbors' boys 'at passes never stop, but jest go on,
A-whistlin' kind o' to theirse'v's—sence little Wesley's gone!

And then, o' nights when mother's settin' up on common late,
A bilin' pears or somepin, and I set and smoke and wait,
Tel the moon out through the winder don't look bigger 'n a dime,
And things keep gittin' stiller—stiller—stiller all the time—
I've ketched myse'f a wishin' like—as I clumb on this chair
To wind the clock, as I hev done fer more 'n fifty year'—
A wishin' 'at the time hed come fer us to go to bed,
With our last prayers, and our last tears, sence little Wesley's dead!

—James Whitcomb Riley in The Century.

A VERY YOUNG THIEF.

Gloriously bright rose the sun one June morning years ago. Long, warm rays shone across the spotless floor and touched the rows of shining dishes on the dresser in Mrs. Prime's cozy kitchen. The little maid who stood at the open window was thinking of something far less pleasant than the peaceful scene before her. Her cheeks were pale and her eyes swollen with weeping as she stood there looking languidly out. Only yesterday she had thought herself the happiest girl in the world, when out there under the lilacs she had promised to be Robin Moore's wife. Today she was the most miserable, for she was accused of a crime and was about to lose her only means of support. Yes, she, Molly Gowen, whose character had always been the best, was accused of theft by the employer whom she had served faithfully these four years.

It came about in this wise: The day before our story opens Capt. Prime brought home thirty silver dollars and placed them away in the desk that stood in one corner of the keeping room. Before doing so, however, he showed them to his wife and Molly, and allowed little Hitty to play with them awhile. In the afternoon he went to the neighboring village, leaving the desk unlocked, as he often did. It was sunset when he returned, and just as he entered the house he saw Molly come out of the keeping room. She started and turned pale at sight of her master, who asked her with a smile:

"Did I frighten you, Molly?"

Molly laughed nervously as she replied: "Yes, sir; I did not hear you come in, and you startled me."

The captain thought no more of the occurrence then, though it surprised him to see Miss Molly so nervous. Presently Mrs. Prime came in with Hitty in her arms. "Oh, it was your voice that woke me," she said to her husband. "I had one of my headaches this afternoon, and I think Hitty and I both have slept nearly two hours."

In the evening, after her work was done, Molly came in, dressed for a walk, and asked permission to visit a friend who worked for a neighboring family. It was granted, and Molly started out, but had not gone far before she met Robin, and instead of visiting her friend she strolled down by the river with him.

Shortly after the captain came in and went to the desk for something. On opening the drawer, he found that his money was not where he left it in the morning. He searched each drawer in turn, then called his wife. "Hannah, have you moved my money?"

"Why, no," responded Mrs. Prime, coming to the door and looking in. Again they searched the desk, but with the same result.

"Call Molly," said the captain.

"She has gone over to Mr. Ford's to see Eunice," responded his wife.

"Has any one been here today?"

"No, I asked Molly that question when I woke up, and she said she had not seen any one this afternoon."

"What was she doing in the keeping room today when I came home?"

Mrs. Prime looked surprised. "I did not know she was in there," she replied.

The captain then told his wife of Molly's confusion that afternoon.

"But, Ezra," she replied, "you surely don't suspect Molly? Why, I would as soon think of Hitty as of her."

"What else can have become of the money?" he queried.

This was a problem that Mrs. Prime could not solve, so she remained silent.

Just then Molly came in, looking flushed and tired from her rapid walk.

"Where have you been?" demanded the captain.

Molly looked confused. She was not used to being asked such a question, and the captain's manner was so stern it frightened her. She could not tell him about Robin, so she remained silent.

The captain's brow grew stern. If Molly had answered him frankly he would have believed her, but her silence strengthened his suspicions.

"Have you been to see Eunice?" he continued.

Molly hung her head and answered faintly, "No."

"What were you doing in the keeping room this afternoon?"

There was such a lump in Molly's throat that she could not answer at first, but after a moment she said: "I went in to see if it needed dusting."

"It took you some time to make the answer," said the captain sarcastically. "It is of no use, Molly, you may as well tell me at once where my money is!"

Molly turned pale and looked helplessly at him. Even Mrs. Prime's faith began to waver, and she said gently: "Tell him, dear. He won't be hard on you."

This was too much for the poor girl, who burst into tears and cried out vehemently: "I don't know anything about your money! What do you mean?"

"Come, come!" said the captain, angrily, "this won't do, for you see you are found out. I wouldn't have believed it of you! I would have trusted you anywhere! I suppose I ought to send you to jail; but I won't on your mother's account. If you will restore the money I'll forgive you; but if you do not I shall send you home without your pay, and everybody shall know why, so that they may not get deceived in you as I have."

Poor Molly crept off to bed with a bursting heart and wept through the long hours of the night. Not only the thoughts of her disgrace, which was terrible to the proud girl, kept her sleepless; but the thoughts of her mother and sister, who were dependent upon her for support. How would they live now?

As Molly turned from the window Mrs. Prime came in. Her mother's heart was filled with pity at sight of the girl's pallid face, and taking her cold hand she said, "Keep up good courage, child. I believe in your innocence, and some time the money will be found. I am sure."

Tears sprang in Molly's eyes at the kind words. One at least believed in her and trusted her still. How the thought comforted her.

That night, when all her preparations were made for leaving, she took Hitty up to kiss her good-by. The child was very dear to Molly, who took a great deal of care of her; but Hitty struggled angrily, crying out: "Go 'way! Oo s'an touch me! Oo's a bad, wicked girl, for my daddy says so!"

A hard, rebellious feeling crept into Molly's heart as she set the child down and took up her bundle. She found Mrs. Prime waiting for her in the hall and the gentle woman kissed her cheek and pressed something into her hand.

"Don't give up, Molly," she whispered; "remember I trust you." "God bless you for that!" said Molly fervently as she turned away to hide the falling tears.

When she had reached the highway, she opened her hand, and there lay two shining gold dollars, her month's wages. Somehow, the little gold pieces warmed the girl's heart and assured her again that the whole world was not against her.

How merrily she had tripped along this road a week ago, singing as she went; but now she walked with lagging steps, dreading to tell the folks at home her trouble, yet longing for their sympathy. The air was filled with the melody of the birds, and the sound of distant water at the mill, but Molly heeded not the sweet sounds, nor saw the blue hills penciled against the summer sky.

The great rose bush beside her mother's door was flaming with red roses, and a light breeze scattered the petals all around her as she went up the path. Little Betty went out to meet her, crying joyfully, "Oh, Molly! have you come home to make a visit? How glad I am!"

Molly could not answer, but taking her sister's hand in hers, she went into the room where her mother sat. What a feeling of comfort and rest her mother's presence gave the poor girl; she had one friend at least who would love and trust her, come what might.

Without a word she threw herself down at her mother's feet, and burying her face in her lap, burst into tears. Mrs. Gowen stroked her daughter's hair silently and waited for her to grow calmer. At length she told her story, much to her mother's indignation.

"Did they not know you better than that?" she asked. "You who have worked for them so long and so well! Don't be afraid, Molly! God is with the innocent and he will overrule this for your good, child. 'Behind a frowning Providence, God hides a smiling face.'"

"And, oh mother," continued Molly, "I was so happy before this happened, for I had promised Robin Moore to marry him; but now I never can unless that money is found, for people shan't say Robin has married a thief."

The news of Molly's disgrace spread like wildfire. Those who envied her her pretty face and the marked preference which handsome Robin Moore showed for her, pretended to believe her guilty, and treated her with coldness when they met, but the majority of her neighbors were very indignant, and pronounced Capt. Prime a "purse proud old Pharisee." These sympathizing friends gave many proofs of their good will, and helped Molly in every way they could.

"One thing I am learning, mother," she said with a smile, "and that is to know my friends."

The next evening after Molly's dismissal, Robin came to see her and was very bitter towards Capt. Prime, whom Molly defended stanchly. "Circumstances were all against me," she said, "and it is no wonder he thought so. If ever the truth is known he will feel badly enough, for he is a just man."

Robin urged a speedy marriage, but Molly would not hear of it. "No," she replied, "I will never marry you till this is cleared." In vain he protested; she remained firm and he was forced to submit, vowing vengeance, however, when the truth would be known.

Drearily the weeks crept by, and still Molly was without work. Day after day she sought employment, but the scandal outran her and she was looked upon with suspicion. If any one did hire her for a day, she had the mortification of knowing she was watched. She kept all these things from her mother's knowledge; but they weighed on her proud spirit and she grew pale and thin. Their little hoard of money was all gone, and the meal was getting low, so poor Molly's reflections were gloomy enough as she sat by the window one afternoon knitting and watching the dusky road. Suddenly she dropped her work, crying: "Oh, mother! Capt. Prime is coming up the lane. What if—oh, can it be he has found his money?" "Very likely he has," replied her mother calmly.

The captain rode up to the door, and springing from his horse rapped loudly. "Please go to the door, mother," said Molly faintly; "I can't."

Mrs. Gowen opened the door and greeted her visitor with quiet dignity. He asked for Molly and was invited in. Going straight to the trembling girl, he took both her hands in his and began: "Molly, the real thief is found. Will you forgive me for unjustly accusing you?"

For a moment Molly felt as if the solid earth were slipping from beneath her feet, and she would have fallen if he had not caught her. She revived immediately and cried out: "Thank God! Oh, thank God!" Then her tender heart went out toward the real culprit. "Are you quite sure this time, sir?" she asked, earnestly.

"Quite sure," he answered, "for she has confessed."

"Oh, sir," said Molly, "don't be hard on her! Think of all she has suffered, for if I who am innocent, have suffered so keenly, what must the guilty one have endured?"

Capt. Prime was deeply touched by this appeal, though he answered lightly; "Oh, I shan't hurt her, though I don't think her crime has cost her much sorrow; but you haven't said you forgive me, Molly. Do you?" "Freely!" she replied, "you are so good yourself that it makes you angry with wrong doers."

The captain winced. "Say rather I was too uncharitable and harsh; but I have learned a lesson I shall not forget. Why don't you ask me who the thief is?"

"I would like to know if you wish to tell me," she replied simply.

"Well, then, it was no other than Hitty. Yesterday I had occasion to go into the parlor, which, as you know, Mrs. Prime opens only on great days. Hitty was with me, and she ran up to the sofa and said, 'Don't touch my moneys, daddy!' 'Where are your moneys, daughter?' I asked. 'In here,' said Hitty, crawling under the sofa. I looked under, and there in the dark corner was my money in three neat piles. As nearly as I can find out, Hitty took the money from the drawer some time that afternoon and carried it into the parlor, where she played with it awhile and then hid it under the sofa and forgot all about it till she went into the room with me yesterday. So you see, my own daughter was the thief after all."

"I remember finding her in there, now," responded Molly, "though I had forgotten it before."

"Well, Molly," said the captain, rising, "Mrs. Prime misses her swift handmaiden. When will you come back?"

"Never!" said a new voice, and Robin, who had entered unobserved, came forward and stood beside the blushing girl. "She is going to be married as soon as she gets her wedding finery made."

"Oho!" laughed the captain, "that is the way the wind blows, is it? Well, well! I shall give you a wedding present when the time comes." And with these words and a bow to Mrs. Gowen, he left the house.

Robin would take no denial this time, so Molly consented to be married on the first of the following December, and in spite of what he had said, she went back to her work the following day. Mrs. Prime and Hitty were overjoyed to see her, and she was happy once more.

When, in November, she finished work and went home to get ready for the wedding, Mrs. Prime gave her a gold eagle besides her wages, then calling her into the keeping room showed her a beautiful silk dress lying on the table.

"There, dear," said she, "is your wedding dress."

Molly gazed at it for a moment in speechless admiration, then turning to her mistress with swimming eyes she cried out:

"Oh, Mrs. Prime! how good you all are to me! This is too lovely!"

"Nothing is too good for you, Molly," said Mrs. Prime, fondly.

The wedding day dawned bright and fair. Capt. and Mrs. Prime were present, and after the ceremony the captain put a slip of paper into Molly's hand, saying: "Here's your wedding present, my dear." The paper proved to be a check for $500, a great fortune for the simple girl.

Molly often visited her friends, the Primes, and in a few years a little girl named Hannah went with her. Hitty grew up to be a good woman, and always loved Molly dearly.—Dora Annis Chase in Boston Budget.

Vulgarity Is in the Air.

The whole relation of master and servant is today corrupt and vulgar. At home in England it is the master who is degraded; here in the states, by a triumph of inverted tact, the servant often so contrives that he degrades himself. He must be above his place; and it is the mark of a gentleman to be at home. He thinks perpetually of his own dignity; it is the proof of a gentleman to be jealous of the dignity of others. He is ashamed of his trade, which is the essence of vulgarity. He is paid to do certain services, yet he does them so gruffly that any man of spirit would resent them if they were gratitous favors; and this (if he will reflect upon it tenderly) is so far from the genteel as to be not even coarsely honest.

Yet we must not blame the man for these mistakes; the vulgarity is in the air. There is a tone in popular literature much to be deplored; deprecating service, like a disgrace; honoring those who are ashamed of it; honoring even (I speak not without book) such as prefer to live by the charity of poor neighbors instead of blacking the shoes of the rich. Blacking shoes is counted (in these works) a thing specially disgraceful. To the philosophic mind, it will seem a less exceptionable trade than to deal in stocks, and one in which it is more easy to be honest than to write books.—Robert Louis Stevenson in Scribner's Magazine.

Colored Citizens' Excursion.

With the running of the first excursion train in the spring the old nomadic instinct awakes in the bosom of the colored citizens. They must go somewhere. The destination is of little moment, the journey is everything. To the pine woods of Mississippi, among the villages of the Gulf coast, even to the penitentiary at Baton Rouge, they swarm upon the regular excursion days. No matter how sultry the weather, they pack into the cars, an indiscrimmate mass of shouting men, struggling women and shrieking babies; and, wherever their journey may terminate, they are allowed for that day almost exclusive possession of the town. Evening comes. The whistle sounds, and all who purpose returning crowd upon the train. Few, however, are the parties of excursionists who do not leave some of their number in durance, souvenirs to the town which they have visited of an exciting day.—Cor. New York Post.

March April May

Are the best months in which to purify your blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best blood purifier.

As no other season does the human system so much need the aid of a reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla, as now. The impoverished condition of the blood, the weakening effects of the long, cold winter, the lost appetite, and that tired feeling, all make a good spring medicine absolutely necessary. Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiarly adapted for this purpose, and increases in popularity every year. It is the ideal spring medicine.

"I must say Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine I ever used. Last spring I had no appetite, and the least work I did fatigued me ever so much. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and soon felt that I could do as much in a day as I had formerly done in a week. My appetite is voracious." MRS. M. V. BAYARD, Atlantic City, N. J.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to buy any other.

Were all wise enough to heed this advice in season, a world of suffering would be avoided. If you suffer from impure blood, scrofula, dyspepsia, biliousness, headache, take

NEW YORK FASHION LETTER.

MORNING COSTUMES — LACE DRESSES — DRESSY TOILLETTES—NOTES.

Popular taste for morning wear in summer runs to satines and ginghams, the former usually with dark surfaces, enlivened by light colored figures. The general effect however is dark, and therefore the more serviceable, since they can be worn an entire season without being done up. Velvet is much used for collars and cuffs: white embroidery or Yak lace may outline draperies, and ribbon bows are a favorite completion to any trimming. Ginghams afford scope to the present rage for plaids and stripes, and are trimmed in the same way as satines. Both are extremely practical styles of dress, and stylish people are having cotton parasols to match, which with Milan or rough straw shade hats dyed in corresponding colors and trimmed with net or ribbon and jaunty bouquets of flowers, will form attractive outfits at watering places or in the city, where bonnets may be more suitably worn.

LACE DRESSES,

Or those of drapery net over thin silk, are popular, and the net dresses not expensive, because cheap quality silk will answer and the upper fabric is not costly. A pretty all-silk drapery net, double width, may be bought for $1.50 per yard, and all-silk lace of fair quality for three times that price. Fine cotton laces may be substituted for young people. A new finish given to net dresses is that of narrow ribbon run in three rows and upwards, and sometimes extremely narrow ribbon is set on in numerous rows so as to form quite a wide border. There is hardly a limit to the usefulness of these net and lace dresses, and such fact must account for their continued favor. In black, over colored silk, or over black silk and trimmed with colored ribbon, they are jaunty for evening, or may be made sober by black or darker ribbon bows. Elderly people can wear them as advantageously as the young, but the latter class have the advantage where cotton laces come in, since being in white, they are the special property of the youthful.

DRESSY COSTUMES.

Velvet is a very fashionable material this season, and it is used to a remarkable extent in millinery, and at summer resorts entire dresses of it will be stylish. No one knows, moreover, how largely the new fabric, Velutina, is used as a substitute. It comes in all the pale evening shades, and with its lovely finish, is an admirable dress fabric, giving the effect of velvet at much less cost. Beautiful afternoon dresses are made of flowered lawn combined with silk, the shade hat and parasol of shirred lawn to match. Shirring, indeed, is quite a feature in new costumes, and every day becomes more noticeable. Tournures are perceptibly smaller, and nothing is now more outre than a large one.

NOTES.

New toilet bottles are three-sided, and brought out in many diffrent grades, the most expensive being of fine cut glass or decorated china. But plain glass bottles can be made handsome by satin covers.

Pretty bureau covers have a foundation of pinked Silesia, and show a centre piece of plain muslin bordered with insertion and wide edging of lace, narrow ribbon being laid over the seams and crossing at the coners.

Colgate's Glycerine Lotion is the first choice of summer travelers who look for an antidote to sun and dust, while for children's use, the Dermal soap prepared with a special view to their tender skins, is also in great favor. Ladies of leisure, who study the graces of the toilet, are still partial to the Cashmere Bouquet perfume, which however is not more exquisite than Colgate's Violet toilet water. Everything manufactured by the firm, however, is done with the utmost care and can be used without fear of injurious consequences.

Draperies of thin China silk are beautiful and cool looking for summer. Thirty-two inches wide, they cost $1 per yard; the China crape draperies come a little higher, while plain drapery is shown which may be cut into scarfs and adorned according to taste. Ready made scarfs run from $1.50 upwards.

Beautiful jewelry baskets are of gilded or variously burnished straw in fanciful shapes, and are finished with satin bags attached at the bottom and drawn up by strings. Sometimes there are two bags in one basket, which renders possible a convenient separation of trinkets.

A SCIENTIST'S WARNING.

"We are startled constantly by the sudden death of some man who seemed the picture of health. He thought he was well. He had felt strange pains shooting through his body, but as they did not remain, he forgot them. His head pained him periodically, he was somewhat pale' he ate common and unacountably tired, but he felt comparatively well and vigorous. And yet, he suddenly died! It is a shame to our boasted civilization."

"Look at the list of women who die in childbirth, and why is it? Simply because their maternal organs have been so weakened by the most terrible of diseases that they cannot withstand the fearful, sudde strain that is brought to bear upon them. How many women escape monthly agonies? And yet nature never intended that pain or inconvenience should attend the operation of her natural laws. The solemn and terrible fact is, that men and women drag along, die, and are buried, and their friends and the doctors say heart disease, apoplexy, pneumonia, congestion, convulsions, when the cause lay far back of all these things. The truth is that weakened kidneys are the cause of most of our troubles. The great question, therefore, is: 'How shall I preserve my kidneys, or, if diseased, how can they be restored?' I have seen numbers of cases and learned from unquestionable sources of many others, where the preparation, Hunt's Remedy, has been almost remarkable in its results. I use it freely among my patients, and shall continue to do so. It is a wonderful and invaluable preparation."

The remarks of the learned doctor should be carefully considered, and acted upon by all who desire long life, and freedom from pain and the danger of sudden death.

BABY CARRIAGE FOR SALE.

A BABY CARRIAGE of modern pattern, straw, hood top, in perfect order, for sale. Enquire at this office.

MONTANA HEARD FROM.—Recent railroad extensions have developed exceptionally rich mineral, stock and farming districts. Maps and full particulars, free, upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

NEW BUSINESS CENTERS.—The building of railroads in a new and fertile country creates many new towns, affording excellent but these opportunities. Particulars regarding such opportunities in Montana, Minnesota and Dakota will be sent upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

STOCK IN MINNESOTA.—From an exclusive grain country, Minnesota is being rapidly transformed into the finest stock and dairy state in the Union. Cheap lands still obtainable, convenient to railroad. Particulars free upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

SUCCESS. Are you mortgaged, paying heavy rents, or running behind? Excellent farms cheap, which will increase in value several fold in five years. No other such opportunities existing. Full particulars, free, upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

FAILURE OF CROPS is an unknown experience in Central and Northern Dakota and Minnesota. Maps and full particulars regarding lands, prices, etc., sent free. Address C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

PROSPEROUS. North Dakota never had better crops than those just harvested. Many opportunities to secure fine Government lands recently surveyed, near excellent coal fields and adjacent to railroad. Maps and full particulars, free, upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

WHY WORK FOR ANOTHER, or on small salary? Why continue working on a worn-out farm? Why try to secure a living from such high-priced or heavily-mortgaged farms? Why work on rented land? Why not start for yourself? Why not secure at once some of the unsurpassed but very fertile and well located lands adjacent to railroads now to be obtained by those going to Northern Dakota and Minnesota, where you can make a larger net profit per acre than on the high-priced or worn-out land you now occupy? Why not go and look the situation over, and see for yourself, or at least obtain further information, which will be sent free, if you will address C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn. ?

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Combines, in a proportion peculiar to itself, the active medicinal properties of the best blood-purifying and strengthening remedies of the vegetable kingdom. It will positively cure—when in the power of medicine—Spring Debility, Headache, Dyspepsia, Catarrh, Salt Rheum, Scrofula, and all Diseases caused by a low state of the blood.

"I suffered three years with blood poison. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and think I am cured." MRS. M. J. DAVIS, Brockport, N. Y.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla beats all others, and is worth its weight in gold." I. BARRINGTON, 130 Bank Street, New York City.

Is so vastly superior to any other sarsaparilla or blood purifier, that one has well said: "Its health-giving effects upon the blood and entire human organism, are as much more positive than the remedies of a quarter or a century ago, as the steam-power of to-day is in advance of the slow and laborious drudgery of years ago."

"While suffering from a severe bilious attack in March, 1883, a friend in Peoria, Ill., recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla. I tried the remedy, and was permanently cured." J. A. SHEPARD, travelling agent for Devoe & Co., Fulton Street, N. Y.

Purifies the Blood

"I tried a dozen articles to cleanse my blood, but never found anything that did me any good till I began using Hood's Sarsaparilla." W. H. PEER, Rochester, N. Y.

"My wife was troubled with dizziness and constipation, and her blood has been in a bad order—in fact she has been all run down. Hood's Sarsaparilla is doing her a wonderful amount of good." F. M. BALDWIN, druggist, Blanchester, Ohio.

"I was for five years a sufferer with boils, all run down, and was at one time obliged to give up work. Before taking all of two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, was entirely cured." R. M. LANE, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. Took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

OFFICIAL NOTICE!

— OF —

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co.

— FROM THE —

HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND, MAINE,

To those who are contemplating the purchase of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

GREETING:

On and after June 1st we shall STOP PREPAYING the FREIGHT on GOODS SOLD by us, and we respectfully request that those who have dealt with us, and who have been BENEFITED by the PAYMENT OF THIS FREIGHT which in itself in the past three years has amounted to some

30,000 DOLLARS,

Will order what GOODS they require for this SPRING, from us this month, and please order as early as possible. And to those who intend buying

Chamber Sets, Parlor Suits, Carpets, Lounges, Easy Chairs, Mattresses, Springs, Silver-ware, Window Shades, Drapery, Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Stoves and Ranges, Feathers, Feather Pillows, Spreads, Blankers,

And anything else in HOUSE FURNISHING, can be BENEFITED to the extent of the freight to their depot, by buying from us this month. We have always PREPAID THIS FREIGHT FROM OUR OWN PROFITS, as we have invariably made the price on the

Furniture, Carpets,

Etc., lower than could be bought for elsewhere. There has always been a great advantage derived by our prepayment of the freight because we in every instance GUARANTEE the SAFE DELIVERY of the goods, and if there has ever been a fight to make with the railroad, we have done it, or in other words if you have received a

CHAMBER SET, PARLOR SUIT, Chair, or Range,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

That was damaged by the railroad, we have replaced it with another piece, and taken our chances to get the breakage from the road. There are items worthy of our close consideration, and especially at this time of year, be wise and order during this month,

And Save Yourself the Freight from Portland to your Depot, no matter where it is located in the State of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

We believe we are the only HOUSE FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT IN NEW ENGLAND WHO HAVE ADHERED STRICTLY TO THIS PLAN OF PREPAYING THE FREIGHT ON EVERYTHING SHIPPED BY US. We mean by this that while some other houses have shipped the goods, and allowed you to pay freight and afterwards send them a bill and then dicker on it for some time, We have invariably paid out the cash before the article left our freight sheds at Portland. And now notwithstanding the fact that we expect to lose a great deal of business by this this year there seems to be no other way to convince some people of the difference between OUR PAYING THE FREIGHT before the articles leave here, AND OUR CUSTOMERS PAYING THE FREIGHT after the articles get to the depot, and then having to write backwards and forwards over the matter. We wish to deal with perfect fairness and frankness in this matter, consequently we give you another month to make your selection, and to fill orders that are already placed. Now if you want a

KITCHEN RANGE, or a CHAMBER SET, or PARLOR SUIT, or CARPETS, WINDOW SHADES, DRAPERY CURTAINS,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

Kindly come and see us at once, or if you can not come, please write us for Catalogues and Descriptions of these Goods, and we will do our very best to please you in every one. Remember we carry COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHINGS. There is scarcely a thing that you require for your homes that we do not keep, and we sell the same and shall continue to sell the same for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. This notice applies TO ALL OUR STORES, and we have written to each of our MANAGERS to this effect, consequently there will be no more freight prepaid from our Bangor Store, Rockland Store, Auburn Store, Bar Harbor Store, Biddeford Store, nor from the Headquarters at Portland, after the 31st day of May, 1888.

Kindly get your orders in before June 1st, if you wish to save this freight.

Respectfully, the Public's Ob't Servants,

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS.

The board of Mayor and Aldermen met at Sagamore bridge at 6:45 o'clock Friday morning, in accordance with the adjournment the previous evening. They made an inspection of the work on the bridge and the ledge above, and were perfectly satisfied with the progress being made. On the bridge nearly all the piles were found driven, and many of the ties and stringers already on. The bridge will be about ten feet higher than the old one. The board also inspected the work of the steam drill. Some of the men had been at work during the night, drilling in the high point of the solid ledge at the bend of the road, and about seven o'clock one of the heaviest blasts ever fired in this region was set off, reducing what had been a solid wall of rock to a mass of broken stone; it was estimated that 300 tons of stone were thrown out by the blast, and seams were made in the ledge many feet away. The board, after viewing the effects of the blast, and satisfying themselves that the work on the ground was being pushed with all practicable speed, adjourned to Thursday evening, May 31st, at 7:45 o'clock.

PRESENTATION.

A very pleasant surprise occurred on Friday evening last, at the residence of Joshua B. Marston, No. 24 Deer street, in the shape of a presentation to Miss Lottie L. Blaney of an elegant lady's rocker, from her many friends in the shoe shop, she being soon to enter the estate of matrimony. It was presented to her in the following well chosen words:

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., May 18th.

Miss Lottie L. Blaney: We, your associates of the Portsmouth Shoe Co., desiring to confer on you some expression of our esteem of our pleasant relations, beg that you will accept this chair, with the best wishes for your future happiness; we are sincerely yours—

Mrs. L. F. Gurney, Mrs Jennie Catlin, Mrs. Gentleman, Mrs. Ella Etheridge, Mrs. Florence Watson, Mrs. C. H. Carr, Mrs. Eva Hersey, Mrs. Herbert Hall, Mrs. Shute, Misses S. Eliot, Maria Goodwin, Addie Bartlett, Carrie Merby, Jennie Cate, Edith Jellison, Fannie Jellison, Minnie Wright, Alma Staples, Bertha Kimball, Mary Noble, Sadie Mason, Cora Hutchins, Fannie Thompson, Sadie Davidson, Lizzie Johnson, Mary Carty, Nellie Sullivan, Mary Neal, Mira Spinney, Mamie Fields, Clarinda Waterhouse, Jennie Glines, Linnie Weber, Nellie McGraw, Lizzie Entwistle, Mamie Keefe, Carrie Emery, Alice Fletcher, Ella Varrell, Ida Spinney, Ella Hanscom, Emma Berry, Ida Stickney, Marcia Randall, Mary Payne, Hattie Thombly, Mary Barsantee, Gertie A. Bell, Emma Pickering.

THE "I'LL TRY" ENTERTAINMENT.

The following was the very excellent programme of the I'll Try Band at the Methodist Episcopal vestry on Thursday night:

Singing, "The Try Company," band; opening address, Hazen Philbrick; piano solo, Cora Foote; recitation, Edith Horrocks; recitation, "Little Foxes," little people; singing, "Welcome May," choir; recitation, Leon Baketel; recitation, Bertha Frost; piano duet, Hazen Philbrick, Roy Baketel; recitation, Flossie Coffin; song, "The Old Blacksmith," Minnie Hutchins; recitation, Flossie Curtis; piano solo, Josie Kelley; recitation, ten "Temperance Boys."

President of the evening, Johnnie Tilton; Treasurer, Roy Baketel.

The managers of this delightful and successful entertainment were Mrs. John S. Tilton, Mrs. George P. Philbrick and Miss Edith Paul, who deserve the congratulations of the society for the excellents were perfected and carried out. All the children did admirably and many received encores.

MEMORIAL DAY ORDER.

The following is General Order No. 5, issued from Headquarters Department of New Hampshire, Grand Army of the Republic:

"Wednesday, the thirtieth day of May, instant, will the twentieth anniversary of the first general observance of Memorial day. That day was then appointed in general orders from National Headquarters to be thereafter observed by the Grand Army of the Republic and all other citizens in strewing flowers upon the graves of their fallen comrades and friends.

"For twenty years this beautiful custom has been annually observed with appropriate ceremonies. On this twentieth anniversary, Post officers are urged to make a special effort to have every comrade in the ranks, and to include all veterans within their jurisdiction, who are members of the Grand Army of the Republic, to assist them in the sacred services of the day.

"Let all Woman's Relief Corps, all camps of Sons of Veterans, all military and civil organizations, all fraternities and brotherhoods, all Sunday schools and public schools, and all citizens be invited to join us. Let there be a full attendance at the Sunday services preceding Memorial day. Let everything be done decently, becomingly, reverently.

"Let us remember that our comrades whose mortal lives are ended, and to perpetuate whose memories we lay these floral offerings on their graves, have not lived and died in vain."

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Loring Jones of Brooklyn, N. Y., is visiting relatives in this city.

Mr. Ernest Johnson, mail carrier on route two, is on a two weeks' vacation.

Mayor Hodgdon and wife arrived home from their trip to the west on Thursday.

Capt. James Burke, assistant keeper of Boon Island light, came in on Thursday for a stay of several weeks.

Miss Lizzie Senter of Boston, formerly of this city, is visiting Mrs. B. F. Webster and daughter on Highland street.

Mr. Edwin S. Muchmore left town Thursday for New Haven, Conn., where he is about to locate with his family.

Mrs. Carrie P. Stevens and daughter, of Salem, Mass., are visiting at Mrs. Pickett's on Pleasant street for the summer.

Mr. Fred T. Slater left town Friday morning for Cleveland, Ohio, on a several months' visit to his brother in that city.

Mr. W. J. Rockwood, principal of the Jones school, has hired the Brooks house on Cabot street for a residence, and will shortly move in.

Mr. Herbert White of Haverhill, Mass., son of Joseph B. White of this city, was in town this week, on account of the serious illness of his father.

Mr. W. F. Payson, formerly connected with the old Marine band at this naval station, was in town Friday. He is a member of the Alvin Joslin band.

Gunner Thomas R. Wilson, U. S. N., who was quite severely jammed between two guns at the navy yard some days ago, was able to be on duty again on Thursday last.

Mr. Charles W. Neal, of Newcastle, had one of his big toes jammed out of joint Thursday, at the store of George B. French on Market street, by the falling of a box upon it. The wound was dressed by Dr. Folsom. Mr. Neal will be laid up for several weeks.

BASE BALL.

The base ball grounds were being rolled Friday and otherwise put in condition for to-day's game, which will be an exciting one—Portsmouth vs. Nashua.

The game between the Nashua club and the home team, on the south end grounds this afternoon, will be a warm one, and all lovers of the game should be there, to give generous applause to whichever side and whatever player does the best work.

Something entirely new. Allen's Novelty Hair Crimper, for waving, curling, montaguing and crimping the hair; the best and cheapest in the world; fifteen cents per dozen, at John P. Sweetser's. Try them, and you will use no others.

The committee on the anniversary exercises of Piscataqua Lodge, I. O. O. F., to take place next Monday evening, held a meeting Thursday night and completed arrangements for that occasion. The celebration promises to be one of the most notable in the history of the lodge, and those who attend are sure to have a good time.

Architect Henry S. Paul of this city is making sketches preparatory to making plans for a pavilion for a headquarters for the National Temperance Encampment association, to be held at Laconia, in this state. Mr. Paul also has plans nearly completed for a block of buildings for Charles H. Mendum, Esq., to be erected on High street, to consist of two stores and four tenements.

The Parkfield hotel at Kittery Point will be opened to the public by Landlord Frisbee on the 15th of June. A large number of rooms have already been engaged for this season by guests of last year.

The roof of Ira C. Seymour's blacksmith shop on Bow street took fire on Friday about one o'clock, but the fire was put out without an alarm being

The R. R. Club of this city gave an assembly in Union hall at Hampton on Friday evening, in return to the U. K. & I. K. club. The party went out in barges. There were twelve numbers on the order of dances; the floor director was Bert Entwistle, and he had as aids William Fernald, Thomas McCarty, Frank Hickey, Hayden Wood and Arthur Freeman. Supper was served at intermission, consisting of lobster salad, turkey, ham, hot rolls, jellies, ice cream, fruits, tea and coffee. The occasion was a very pleasant one.

New Dress Goods at Ayers & Locke's; 500 yards pin-head dress goods, manufactured to retail for 50 cents, which they have recently purchased and will place on their counters at the extremely low price of 25 cents per yard. It is safe to say that they are the best value in a dress fabric ever shown in Portsmouth.

The street sprinklers were out on Friday, for the first time in about two weeks.

Ayers & Locke have a full line of gloves and hosiery; excellent values in black and colored taffeta gloves at 25 cents. Also ladies' fast-black silk-finish hosiery at 25 cents per pair.

The Wadley house on Islington street is being raised from its foundation about two feet, and large blocks of dressed granite put in for underpinning.

Have you seen that lot of Challi Dress Goods at 10 cts. per yard? If not, go to Lewis E. Staples' dry goods store, No. 7 Market street.

Ayers & Locke have ladies' Jersey vests from 25 cents upward; also lisle and silk ditto, equally good values.

If pleasant, Capt. Duncan's new steamer Undine will make her dedicatory trip next Friday by carrying a large party of invited guests to the Shoals.

Ayers & Locke have a full line of tinsel braids and sets at popular prices.

Hon. Frank Jones on the 14th inst. gave Rev. James Noyes, superintendent of the New Hampshire Orphans' Home, $250 for the benefit of that institution.

Ayers & Locke have a new stock of furniture and drapery fringes; also Florentine silks of the latest designs.

An elm tree on State street, near Greenleaf's hay scales, was taken down, cut into pieces and removed, on Friday. It was a thrifty and handsome tree, but its removal was necessitated by the erection of the laundry building on the lot.

The is no danger to human life more to be dreaded than that which arises from vitiated blood. Dyspepsia, rheumatism, headache, and general debility, all result from it, and are cured by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Take it this month. Six bottles, $5.

Twenty-one members of the honorable artillery company of London, including a number of field and staff officers, sailed on the steamer Trave from South Hampton for New York. They will be the guests of the ancient and honorable artillery company of Boston.

Boils, pimples, hives, ringworm, tetter, and all other manifestations of impure blood are cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

A terrific explosion of 125 kegs of powder and 200 pounds of dynamite occurred in a Stockton, N. J., quarry; three men were killed and many others injured.

A despatch from Chicago says: At the annual meeting of Chicago, Burlington & Quincy stockholders the old board of directors was elected without change, and the action of the board during the past year ratified. Resolutions were adopted sustaining the management in the course pursued in regard to the strike. No meeting of directors will be held here; 527,000 shares of stock were represented.

Be Sure

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation, curative power superior to any other article. A Boston lady who knew what she wanted, and whose example is worthy imitation, tells her experience below:

To Get

"In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me their's would last longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I knew what Hood's Sarsaparilla was. I had taken it, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other.

Hood's

When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was feeling real miserable, suffering a great deal with dyspepsia, and so weak that at times I could hardly stand. I looked, and had for some time, like a person in consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me so much good that I wonder at myself sometimes, and my friends frequently speak of it." MRS. ELLA A. GOFF, 61 Terrace Street, Boston.

Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

NOTICE.

WE have now on hand and for Sale a large lot of Yorkshire and Chester White Pigs, in sound condition and free from all disease.

Dr. Gage and Associate Physicians, and Their Great Work.

Probably no physician in New England is better and more favorably known, says a New Hampshire exchange, than is Dr. Gage, the gifted specialist, who has treated more than fifteen thousand patients in this state, the announcement of his visits each month being the signal for a grand rally of a multitude of invalids. His success is indeed phenomenal and the reports of marvellous cures would fill this entire paper, the like of which was never known in the history of medical practice. The following is a fair sample:

Mr. Editor: A few months ago my daughter was laying at the point of death. She had a complication of troubles, a terrible cough, raising an immense quantity, a discharging sore upon her hip which rendered her perfectly helpless. Our family physician gave us no hope, but with a mother's will and determination to save her perishing child if possible, I hastened to consult Dr. Gage. Although he did not see her he nevertheless understood the case and his remedies have wrought a miracle—almost—by restoring my child to perfect health. I thank God that I consulted Dr. Gage.

MRS. B. F. WILSON,
Derry Depot, N. H.

Mrs. Orrin Webber, Bedford, N. H., a cripple and on crutches 14 years with terrible ulcers on her limbs; soundly cured.—Geo. H. Stevens, North Lyndeboro, N. H., cured of terrible burning and itching humor which covered the entire body.—Mrs. Wm. E. Russ, North Hartland, Vt., given up by counsel, with a large ovarian tumor, heart disease and dropsy; perfectly cured and tumor disappeared. Doctor did not see her.—Oliver Pelren, Concord, N. H., wife cured of ovarian and female difficulties after she had been made worse by the usual treatment.—C. L. Buffum, North Monroe, helpless with spinal disease, involving liver, kidneys and bladder; perfectly cured and the Doctor did not see him.—Isaac Buttrick, Londonderry, N. H., son cured of discharging ears and deafness.—Mrs. A. L. Celty, West Andover, N. H., given up in the last stage of consumption; is now well.—Mrs. L. A. Sawyer, Keene, N. H., terrible bleeding from lungs; cured.—Amos Young, Derry Depot, N. H., catarrh had eaten a hole through roof of mouth; cured.—Miss Lizzie Williams, 76 Blodgett st., Manchester, N. H., blindness cured.—Dr. Levi B. Dodge, Waterford, Vt., kidney disease with frightful hemorrhage; given up by counsel; cured, and the Doctor did not see him.—Thomas Tuke, Levi Burt, Littleton, N. H., and hundreds of other cases, cured of nervous debility in its various stages.—Mrs. J. E. Fields, Milford, N. H., cured of a complication of female difficulties after she had doctored 9 years with others.—Son of W. R. Hill, Pittsfield, N. H., was a most terrible case of heart disease, dropsy and epileptic fits; got well, went to work and has not had a fit for two years.—C. Ambrose, No. Londonderry, N. H., cured of cancer.—C. C. PRESTON'S SARSAPARILLA

This is the time of the year when the system needs a toning medicine, and we confidently claim that Preston's Sarsaparilla is one of the most valuable remedies before the people. Ask for a descriptive circular, and read about it. You will be convinced we speak truly.

ONE MOMENT MORE

We wish to remind you that for ten cents you can obtain of nearly all the dealers in this vicinity a bottle of Preston's Tooth Ache Drops, which are guaranteed to relieve the worst cases.

ALSO

We wish to say that for Backache, Sprains, Rheumatism, and aches generally, the Preston Plaster is often used with beneficial results. We mail on receipt of price, 15 cents.

ANDREW P. PRESTON, APOTHECAR

AGNES—"He praised my tresses, in his rhyme,
My shining hair, my golden hair;
He sang that sunshine lingered there,
The sunshine of the summer-time;
He told me love had hid a lair,
In tangles of my shining hair."

LOUISE—"Yes, Agnes, you have caught a beau,
With those blond tresses fair;
Because you cleanse them, oft, you know,
With IVORY SOAP, as pure as snow;
The soap without compare."

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.

$22 TO $900. The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS

Mason & Hamlin do not hesitate to make the extraordinary claim for their pianos, that they are superior to all others. They recognize the high excellence achieved by other leading makers in the art of piano building, but still claim superiority. This they attribute solely to the remarkable improvement introduced by them in the year 1882, and now known as the "MASON & HAMLIN PIANO STRINGER," by the use of which is secured the greatest possible purity and refinement of tone, together with greatly increased capacity for standing in tune, and other important advantages.

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

CURE OF

CANCER and ULCERS.

Judge T. C. McLendon writes to the Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga., under date of February 14, 1888: "About three years ago, Jerry Bradley, a colored man, had a cancerous sore on his face, near the right eye. It caused him a great deal of pain, and he lost the sight of the eye, but was finally cured of the cancer by the use of Swift's Specific. This case is well known in Wilkes Co., Ga, where he lived (near Danbury), and, of this case, I, myself, had personal knowledge."

Mr. L. Cox, of Arkabutla, Tate Co., Miss. writes, February 24, 1888: "I suffered a great deal from old ulcers for six years. Your medicine was recommended to me, and after using six bottles, I was completely cured. I never saw its equal as a Blood Purifier. My neighbors will use no other. Your medicine does even more than you claim for it. I have known it to cure cases which were thought to be hopeless. It is the best medicine made."

Mrs. A. E. Goldsmith, No. 674 Warren St., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes, February 22, 1888: "I commenced using S. S. S. about three years ago. I had suffered with a sore throat for over a year, when I commenced using your remedy. I used a great many other remedies with no good results. My little girl, also, had sore fingers; it commenced from the quick, and then the nails would come off. We doctored her for over two years, and when I commenced using S. S. S. I thought I would see what it would do for her. I am thankful to say that it entirely cured her. It is the best remedy I know of for the blood. I ally believe it was the means of saving my life. The doctor told me I had a throat disease similar to General Grant's. I cheerfully recommend it to all suffering from disordered blood. I use it now as a tonic whenever I think I need it."

Mr. B. F. George, Milford P. O., Ellis Co., Texas, writes: "I had a cancerous wart or mole on my eyelid, as large as the end of my thumb, which had the appearance of cancer, causing me much pain and inflammation, from which I suffered a long time. Seeing the S. S. S. advertised I commenced using it, and after the use of a few bottles the sore dropped out, my cancer was gone, and I was entirely relieved."

Mr. G. W. Pettis, of Aiken, S. C., writes: "I was a sufferer from cancer of the breast, and had been under the treatment of three physicians, but it did me no good. It was so bad that I had to stop work. After taking a course of S. S. S. I was entirely cured."

Asthma a Symptom.

Asthma is not a disease per se as is popularly supposed, but a symptom of disease. It is spoken of by different names—as, for instance, hay asthma, rose or June asthma, and ipecac asthma. Some people will get asthma from sleeping on a feather pillow; others as soon as they come in contact with certain animals, as a dog, a cat, or a squirrel. Professor Austin Flints cannot sleep on a feather pillow without getting asthma, and so susceptible is he to it that he is able to detect the feathers when they are placed under his pillow by persons whose design it is to catch him on his theory. Cases have come to notice where the asthmatic symptom was developed in men who happened to get hold of a blanket upon which a dog had been sleeping the previous day. Asthma may be a symptom of emphysema of the lungs, and may last for weeks or even months. Two men who were treated by me, one having nasal polypus and the other stone in the bladder, both had asthma. To persons susceptible to it asthma is developed from working in the dust around thrashing machines, and others suffer from it as soon as they enter an apothecary's shop where ipecac is kept. Nor is drugs anything but a symptom of disease or a result of it. Defined, generally, asthma is a manifestation of disease of the nervous system which causes contraction of the bronchial tubes. It may be seen as a spasmodic contraction of the nerves, and of course may be a symptom of heart disease or some other disease.—Dr. B. V. Steinmetz in Globe-Democrat.

A Vast Fortune in Furs.

"No one will ever be able to tell the real wealth of Alaska," said a furrier to a reporter. "It consists of the abundance of its skinned animals. The Russians used to value the country for its furs, and it was mainly for the furs that this country acquired it from Russia. The trade has grown very much since its annexation to this country. The shipments of sea otter and fur sealskins alone have more than doubled during the past ten years, and now average annually $1,500,000 in value. The list of furs produced in that part of the country is a long one. The land furs comprising otter, beaver, brown bear, black bear, red fox, silver fox, blue and white fox, mink, martin, polar bear, lynx and musk rat. Rabbits, marmots and wolverines are also common, but their skins are retained by the natives. The annual value of the furs, sea and land, now obtained from Alaska is estimated to average $3,000,000, and there is no sign of decrease in the yield. The competition of the traders for skins has stimulated the natives to greater industry in hunting, and the prices now paid to the hunters are from four to ten times more than were current during the Russian rule."—New York Mail and Express.

Death in a Blizzard.

Dr. Smith, the health officer of this port, a day or two ago spoke of death in a blizzard as being the result of suffocation, and explained his meaning by saying; "One of my clerks was two hours in coming to me on one of the days of the furious blizzard in this city. He was three hours and a half, he told me, in going back over the same distance, something like two miles. He felt no inconvenience beyond the exhaustion consequent on the fight with the wind. He tipped into doorways to catch his breath, and when the wind blew too sharply in his face turned around with his back to it. Death in a blizzard comes too often from attempting to breast the storm. The wind takes away one's breath. Suffocation follows. A man doubles up and drops down and is dead. He does not even know what ailed him. If he had turned his back to the blast for a moment he might have faced it again and have gone on for another struggle unharmed."—New York Tribune.

The Quaker's Peculiar Ideas.

The Quaker never makes oath. He avoids as far as possible coming where such procedure is necessary, but if obliged to make a declaration, the falsity of which would subject him to legal penalty, he affirms. Nor does he observe any holy days or feast days. He believes that the obligation to regard one day more than another ceased with the Mosaic dispensation. The visiting of theatres, race courses, dancing halls, or the investment in any kind of lotteries—grab bags in church fairs included—are declared to be incompatible with the teachings of the society, and are forbidden. No matter what station in life you occupy, a Quaker does not use the prefix "Mr." As soon as your Christian name is given you are addressed by it whenever necessary. All these things are of course known to the Quakers themselves, but not to the average Philadelphian.—Philadelphia Cor. Globe-Democrat.

The Colored Poulterer's Charm.

When a nestful of fluffy little chickens are taking their first peep at the world from under the mother hen's wings, the careful poulterer on the watch for such welcome event will run hastily to the nest with an empty sifter. This she will shake over the brood; the empty sifter lets through nothing, nor does it catch anything, but shaken thus over the "hatching nest" will be an efficacious charm against all hawks or other birds of prey; "Dem sifter sluck chickens 'll be too spry ter be cotch!"—Eli Shepard in The Cosmopolitan.

For a Good Mucilage.

For a strong mucilage pulverize separately about equal parts of gum arabic and gum tragacanth; mix thoroughly while dry, and then add sufficient water. This is a better mucilage than you can get at the stationer's, is cheap, and will keep for a long time without anything to preserve it. Gum arabic is too weak and brittle for good mucilage, and gum tragacanth, if used alone, only partly dissolves, and remains in lumps.—"D. T. P." in The Writer.

What a Mistake!

A careful examination would convince any one that two-thirds of all the people in New England have been or are now afflicted with the catarrh of the nose and throat.

No doubt more than half of these persons have tried every blood purifier they have seen, with the erroneous idea that catarrh is a constitutional disease and must be purged out of the blood.

Why a greater mistake was never made! Stop for a moment and think or ask any reputable physician what common catarrh is, and what causes it, and the answer can be only this. "It is an irritation or inflammation of the mucous membrane of the nose and throat, caused by neglected colds, damp piercing irritable winds, foreign matter in the air which is poisonous to some persons and not to others; just as the bites of certain insects is a poisoned torture to some and has no unpleasant effect upon others." The reason for this is found in the different structure of the outer skin and its counterpart which lines all the inner organs of our bodies. Some people have chapped hands and chilblains and others are never so afflicted because of the peculiar structure of the skin of different individuals.

Therefore stop dosing. It is not blood purifiers you want, but good wholesome food, the plainer the better, then "keep your feet dry and warm, your head cool and bowels open," and use an external application, (Johnson's Anodyne Liniment is the best we know,) to allay the inflammation, cleanse the surface, heal the sores, and your catarrh will disappear like magic. We do not say never to return, because you may cure a severe cold and in three months catch another equally bad, so with catarrh and bronchical troubles. Exposure may bring it on again. We learned more about treating catarrh from the wrapper around a bottle of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, than we ever knew. Certainly this good old medicine deserves to be called "A universal family remedy." No matter how well you know this medicine it will pay you to send to I. S. Johnson & Co., Boston, Mass., for a pamphlet free, just to learn how to use the liniment economically. A teaspoonful properly used will often do more good than a half bottle as some people use it.

It is no wonder that invalids lose faith in all specifics, when so many worthless medicines are advertised to cure various diseases, but which, when tried, are "found wanting." An Assurance of Health.

Among the assurances of health afforded us by the regular discharge of the bodily functions, none is more important and reliable than that which regularity of the bowels gives us. If there is any—even a temporary interruption of this—the liver and the stomach suffer conjointly with inactive organs, and still greater mischief ensues if relief is not speedily obtained. A laxative, above all cavil on the score of mineral composition or violent effect, is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, approved by the medical profession and a most important item of the family materia medica of American households. It is botanic, painless in action, and if persisted in, effectual. The stomach and liver, in no less degree and no less promptly and throughly than the bowels, are regulated and toned by it, and it is an admirable defense against malarial and rheumatic ailments, and a benign remedy for kidney complaints, nervousness and debility.

In Paris there are people who make a living waking people up in the morning. There are plenty of people who do the same thing in this country, but they don't get paid for it.

In some sections of the west the country is all flooded. And yet the prohibitionists call for more water.

Facts Worth Knowing.

In all diseases of the nasal mucous membrane the remedy used must be non-irritating. The medical profession has been slow to learn this. Nothing satisfactory can be accomplished with douches, snuffs, powders, syringes, astringents, or any similar application, because they are all irritating, do not thoroughly reach the affected surfaces and should be abandoned as worse than failures. A multitude of persons who have for years borne all the worry and pain that catarrh can inflict, testify to radical and permanent cures wrought by Ely's Cream Balm.

Washington county, Maine, has an area of about 2700 square miles. Rhode Island has 1306 square miles.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. A New House of Pears.

Commerce is king in this nineteenth century, at all events with English-speaking nations; commerce fulfills all the old kingly functions; it is the patron of art, the builder of architectural wonders, the benefactor of the working masses, the friend of the inventor, of the designer, of the clever handicraftsman. These are large statements, but let anyone who is inclined to dispute them first visit the palace of Messrs. Pears in New Oxford street, which is one of the finest of the pieces of work finished in honor of the Jubilee year. In paying this visit, try the experiment at first of removing the immediate associations of the building and its objects. Suppose yourself in the future, well into the next century, and imagine that you are a visitor to England, exploring its "shows" for the first time. Entering 71 to 75 New Oxford street, you would be more likely to imagine yourself in the hall of a royal palace than anywhere else. Keeping to the present day, and picturing yourself as a modern Gulliver wandering uninstructed in a strange country, would you not suppose you were with Alice in Wonderland if, when you had entered the gorgeous Pompeian court, of which this hall consists, you were told that this is nothing more nor less that the entrance hall to a soapmaker's office? True, the soap is the most wonderful soap in the world, and this is the great central depot for a business which has its branches and ramifications all over the surface of the globe. Nevertheless, it is strange to survey these statues, these many colored marbles and exquisitely patterned mosaics, and realize that you are in, perhaps, the finest reproduction of a Pompeian court in existence, and that such an every-day necessity as soap has supplied the giant fortune which has accomplished all this. It is from the very fact of soap being an every-day necessity that the power comes; the first axiom in modern commerce being to devote attention to those things which people must use constantly. Messrs. A. and F. Pears have done this, making soap a thing of beauty and delight, and they have reaped their reward. I say beauty and delight advisedly; for everybody knows that soap can make or destroy the skin, that most necessary part of beauty; and pure soap, made from fine oils and scented with otto of roses, is a delight to use. Messrs. Pears should be looked upon as benefactors to the race, for their colossal system of advertising—involving the stupendous outlay of 70,000*l.* and sometimes approaching 100,000*l.* a year—affords endless amusement and pleasure to the mass of persons, almost all over the world. The "Dirty Boy" has been as good as a play for the million, and the great windows in New Oxford street, where stand the statuettes of the "Dirty Boy" and the "Clean Boy" and other pieces of sculpture, are crowded every night, like the pit of a theatre. The magnificent building itself is an advertisement; and it is a daily and hourly delight to all classes, from artists, critics, and connoisseurs, who visit the beautiful vestibule, to the street crowd, which is forever gazing in upon the grand display of art it contains. On the top floor of the building, above the Pompeian court, is a magic-lantern room, where, from six to nine every night, slides are shown, taken from the various picture advertisements. These are exhibited to the street in very large size, and some of them are automatic; the Dirty Boy, for instance, is actually scrubbed. The whole street is crowded every evening to see this show, and the difficulty is to prevent the crowd from interfering with the traffic.

The waiting room is made especially interesting by being in fact a picture-gallery, where hang the originals of the various works of art reproduced by the firm as advertisements. It is surprising to see what a striking collection they compose. But they are both crowned and entirely thrown into the shade by "Bubbles," Sir John Millais' lovely picture, for which Messrs. Pears have given two thousand two hundred pounds. The giant advertising of the firm has given amusement and interest to the mass, and now it is giving the fine arts. In May we shall have "Bubbles" all over the country, measuring eleven feet by nine; the only addition to the original picture being a cake of soap lying on the floor beside the child. The pretty figure, the lovely little face, will add a much-needed beauty to our railway stations.

The show-rooms of advertisements and show cards are like galleries of pictures, and very interesting and amusing. We are pretty well used to these wonderful advertisements, but it is curious to see them together, and try to measure the amount of ingenuity and brain-power that has been lavished on them. They are sent far afield, to America, Africa, to India and Australia. The portraits of pretty women, the innumerable devices, from the Japanese handkerchief, which had such a success in its day, to "Bubbles," the last new thing, are placed side by side.

In the actual working of the establishment the most modern scientific appliances are used, and this is one of the best possible places to study how such things should be done. The engine-room is always a fascinating place where electricity is at work; one must visit the familiar demon who makes the power. On this floor the lift is worked from the storage of electricity. The work has been well and admirably carried out in its every detail under the care of the architect, and it may indeed be safely asserted that a veritable fairy palace of commerce has been erected by Messrs. Pears, which is unexampled in splendor in this great metropolis.—The World, London, England, March 28th, 1888.

Pears' soap is undoubtedly the purest and most luxuriant bathing and complexion soap made. It has been established in London 100 years, has received fifteen international awards, and is sold in every city in the world. Ask for it of druggists in this vicinity, and look out for imitations.

AM AMERICAN WOMAN'S STORY

Of What She Saw in Mexico—Characteristics of the People.

It is said of the Mexicans, as of the Russians, that in repose a deep sadness is expressed in their eyes. The Mexicans are good character readers, and especially note the bearing of strangers. They are very polite and hospitable, and very proud. The higher classes of society in Mexico are almost as exclusive as the court circles of Europe. A middle class is growing up in Mexico. Mexican salutations are exceedingly cordial. "Men fall into each other's arms and remain thus for several minutes, patting each other on the shoulder and indulging in all sorts of endearing epithets." Another salutation, even between friends of opposite sex, is thus described: "In the quickest, most spirited manner, the arms of both parties are outstretched, they rush together for a second, their breasts barely touch, and while the observer is watching for a kiss to follow this ardent salute, they separate and the abrazo is finished. The extreme frankness accompanying it compels one to admire the custom; for it means no more than hand shaking among the Americans." If friends meet twenty times a day they must pause to shake hands.

At the capital one day there was seen two splendid carriages, each occupied by one man. The carriages halted, both men alighted, "removed hats, shook hands, embraced, talked for a few moments, again embraced, shook hands, bowed, took off hats, and each entered his carriage and went his way." The formal salutation between women is a tap of the right hand on the left shoulder, and then a generous shake of the hand. Women who are intimate friends not only tap the shoulder, but lay their cheeks softly together for an instant. A lady traveler commends this sort of feminine salutation, and evidently prefers it greatly to the American form of greeting on the lips.

The Mexican makes really as many gestures as a Frenchman, and has quite an extensive social sign language. Their blowing of kisses from the fingers is a graceful demonstration. A certain position of the thumb and forefinger signifies "stop a moment." One arm held half upright, with the elbow in the other hand, means "he is too stingy to pay his debts;" one hand rubbed across the forearm, "he plays on the credulity of his friends;" the palm held outward, with thumb and forefinger forming a circle, "she is very rich;" the fingers of one hand closed, except the thumb and little finger, "he's a sharper." Educated Mexican men are great skeptics in religious matters—except when they are very sick. The people are temperate. Young girls are called "pullete;" marriageable men, "young or old roosters," and the street arabs who ogle ladies are known as "lizards." Americans who have married Mexican women find it necessary to live in Mexico, for their wives are very unhappy elsewhere. Mexican children are never struck. Corporal punishment in schools is prohibited by law. Correction takes the form of persuasion and appeal. The result is that in all classes a gentle courtesy and consideration for others prevail.

Hoodlum children are unknown in Mexico. A hoodlum child is one who has been cuffed and abused until he naturally (that is, according to the examples set him) begins to kick and pound others who are weaker than himself. The step from this to other deeds of violence is short.

One cannot tell half of the graces and courtesies of the Mexican children. "In the alamda, with kindly deference, they will always yield to elderly and infirm persons their own cozy and shady seats. On entering a sala, where there are few or many guests, these exquisitely polite little gentlemen will go all around, shaking hands with every one present. They never break into the conversation, but when addressed will modestly join it; then, wishing to retire, will say, 'with your kind permission,' and, again shaking hands, move gracefully from the company. Girls are no less imbued with the same spirit of courtesy. A Mexican boy never thinks himself too near manhood to pay the compliment to his mother of kissing her hand every time he comes into her presence."

The Mexican flowers are very deeply colored. "If red, it is the most glowing and intense; if yellow or purple, the richest; if white or pink, the purest and most delicate." Fresh flowers are abundant and cheap throughout the year, including roses, pansies, sweet peas, heliotropes, camellias and magnificent poppies. "Calla lilies, the size of a fan, bloom luxuriant in every ditch," and the geraniums are as tall as a man. The most remarkable flower is the "tree of the little hands," a native of the colder region. The bright red flowers are well defined miniature hands. It is slow of growth, not reaching full size in 100 years. In the Valley of Mexico fifty varieties of lilies, no two alike, bloom on mountain, crag and plain.

The mortality of the City of Mexico is fearful and half of it is due to lung and diarrheal diseases. The Mexican capital can hardly be said to have any system of drainage and sewerage. Catarrh is common among the Mexicans, and when they have colds they do not allow water to touch their faces. They have very few nervous diseases. The cadence of their lives is too measured for that.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette Book Review.

Source of Pure Water.

The best water is that which has gone deepest in the earth, where there is the tightest pressure, atmospheric and telluric. Continued and intensified filtration has refined it; but it is here, and not in its open air exposure, before or after, that the water gets effective oxidation. The remarkable fact that water absorbs oxygen in something like a geometrical ratio to the increase of pressure, coupled with the other equally important fact that under a certain pressure and temperature organic germs cease to exist; both these conditions, protracted for the water by a long detention in the depths of the earth, secure the rarest refinement and also vitalization of the element.—Sanitary Era.

The Irish giant (7 feet 5 inches) is dead. An appropriate epitaph would seem to be: Gone to his long home.

THE MOST WONDERFUL FAMILY REMEDY EVER KNOWN.

Paine's Celery Compound

WEAK NERVES

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND is a Nerve Tonic which never fails. Containing Celery and Coca, those wonderful nerve stimulants, it speedily cures all nervous disorders.

RHEUMATISM

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND purifies the blood. It drives out the lactic acid, which causes Rheumatism, and restores the blood, making organs to a healthy condition. It is the true remedy for Rheumatism.

KIDNEY COMPLAINTS

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND quickly restores the liver and kidneys to perfect health. This curative power, combined with its nerve tonics, makes it the best remedy for all kidney complaints.

DYSPEPSIA

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND strengthens the stomach, and quiets the nerves of the digestive organs. This is why it cures even the worst cases of Dyspepsia.

CONSTIPATION

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND is not a cathartic. It is a laxative, giving easy and natural action to the bowels. Regularity surely follows its use.

March April May

Are the best months in which to purify your blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best blood purifier.

At no other season does the human system so much need the aid of a reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla, as now. The impoverished condition of the blood, the weakening effects of the long, cold winter, the lost appetite, and that tired feeling, all make a good spring medicine absolutely necessary. Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiarly adapted for this purpose, and increases in popularity every year. It is the ideal spring medicine.

"I must say Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine I ever used. Last spring I had no appetite, and the least work I did fatigued me ever so much. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and soon felt that I could do as much in a day as I had formerly done in a week. My appetite is voracious." MRS. M. V. BAYARD, Atlantic City, N. J.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to buy any other.

Were all wise enough to heed this advice in season, a world of suffering would be avoided. If you suffer from impure blood, scrofula, dyspepsia, biliousness, headache, take

WALDEN'S

JOB PRINTING OFFICE,

NO. 7 PLEASANT ST. CHRONICLE BUILDING

Why is it the girl with the biggest feet always wants to play Cinderella? "We don't know;" but we do know the best remedy for coughs and colds is the far-famed Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

F Anstey, the author of "Vice Versa," "The Tinted Venus," etc., contributes a long humorous story in his best vein to the June "Wide Awake."

Whether on land or at sea, on the prairie or in the crowded city, Ayer's Pills are the best cathartic, being convenient, efficacious, and safe. For torpid liver, indigestion, and sick headache, they never fail.

Mary Bradford Crowninshield, wife of Commander Crowninshield of the school ship St. Mary's, begins a serial in the June "Wide Awake."

A Great Battle

Is continually going on in the human system. The demon of impure blood strives to gain victory over the constitution, to ruin health, to drag victims to the grave. A good reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla is the weapon with which to defend one's self, drive the desperate enemy from the field, and restore peace and bodily health for many years. Try this peculiar medicine.

Edward Everett Hale begins in the June "Wide Awake" his long-promised series, "The Story of Boston Common."

More than twenty years ago Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam was introduced generally throughout New England as a remedy for coughs, colds and pulmonary complaints. Since its introduction it has constantly won its way into public favor, until now it is the universal decision that it is the best remedy for curing coughs, colds and asthma.

This country has but one ex-president, Hayes, and one ex-vice president, Hamlin, living.

An Ex-Governor's Views.

The New York Tribune says that "Ex-Governor P. C. Cheney of New Hampshire, who is one of the large manufacturers of New England, was in New York to see a party of friends off for Europe on the day the republicans of his state met and elected him a delegate to Chicago. In conversation he disclosed the fact that the republicans of New Hampshire anticipate a hard battle on the part of the administration forces to carry that state this fall. Said he:

'Frank Jones and A. W. Sullcway have control of the federal patronage, and are determined to carry the state if possible. There is more at stake in the election than the presidency, because both our senatorships will depend upon the legislature which is to be elected. Our courts have decided that Mr. Chandler's election is for the unexpired term of Senator Pike, and Senator Blair's term also expires, so that there will be two senators to elect. The election of a democratic legislature would give the democrats the United States senate. If we should then lose the presidential election the United States supreme court would also go to the democrats. You may be sure that the republicans of New Hampshire feel the importance of the situation, and if there is any possibility of carrying the state we will carry it. It has always been republican, and we have no doubt it is yet."

"How do the republicans stand on the presidential nomination?"

'We will send delegates to Chicago who will endeavor to select a candidate who can carry the doubtful states of New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Indiana. We do not believe that it is a time to indulge in personal feeling of any kind. The situation is such that any man who is at heart a republican will vote for any candidate that the wisdom of the convention shall select. That is the way we feel about it. Our people will, I think, be inclined to the judgment of the delegates from the doubtful states in the choice of a ticket. We can carry our state for any republican, if we can carry it at all, and therefore we are willing that they should select whoever they may think is the man for whom they can carry their states.'"

Mills Shows His Littleness.

The Boston Traveller's Washington despatch of the 18th inst. says: "Premier Mills saw an opportunity to make a gigantic blunder in the house to-day, and promptly embraced it with both arms. Mr. Randall had the floor, and was making a strong protective speech, exposing the fallacies and inconsistencies of the Mills bill, with an argument for his own measure, when his time expired. It is customary for the house to extend the time for such a prominent man as Mr. Randall, and Mr. Biggs of California Randall's lash, promptly ran down the aisle and objected. Sunset Cox, McMillan, the two Breckenridges and other leading democrats rushed towards Mr. Mills, imploring him to withdraw his objection, but the shining light from Texas wouldn't do it. Amid confusion came the clear, ringing voice of Mr. McKinley of Ohio, from the republican side, saying: 'I yield five minutes of my time to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.' Then there was a shout, and cheer after cheer. Mr. Randall, who has recently undergone a number of severe surgical operations, stood pale, but cool and dignified. He thanked Mr. McKinley for the courtesy, and was about to resume, when Mr. Breckenridge of Kentucky attempted to pull Mr. Mills out of the hole, but it was no use. Mr. Mills had put on the cover and was holding it down from the inside."

The Free Trade Debate Ended.

The discussion in the national house of the Cleveland-Mills tariff bill closed on Saturday, Hon. Thomas B. Reed of Maine being the last speaker in favor of retaining the American market for the American people, and Hon. John G. Carlisle of Kentucky, speaker of the house, closing the debate with a long argument in favor of the theory that the best method of advancing the interests of the American workingman is to place those interests at the disposal of the British manufacturers.

The trial of Detective Lewis Naegel of Montreal, on a charge of complicity in the robbery of the Grand Trunk safe at Bonaventure depot, has brought out evidence which apparently implicates Harry Phillips of Montreal, Slugger Sullivan's backer, as one of the organized gang of thieves of which several members are now in prison. Phillips belongs to one of the "first families" of Montreal.

Attorney General Baker of Maine and his law partner, Mr. L. C. Cornish, counsel for the government, and Mr. E. T. Barker, counsel for the defence in the celebrated Stain-Cromwell case, were in Medfield, Mass., May 18th, taking the depositions of some of the witnesses who will be unable to appear in Maine on July 3d, when the hearing on the petition for a new trial will take place.

A powerful novel by a new writer, Emmy M. Connelly, is announced by D. Lothrop Co. It is called "Tilting at Windmills: A Story of the Blue Grass Country," and treats of a Bostonian settling in Kentucky at the end of the war, and trying to Puritanize the people, with a pretty Kentucky girl as a foil.

A Famous Doctor

Once said that the secret of good health consisted in keeping the head cool, the feet warm, and the bowels open. Had this eminent physician lived in our day, and known the merits of Ayer's Pills as an aperient, he would certainly have recommended them, as so many of his distinguished successors are doing.

The celebrated Dr. Farnsworth, of Norwich, Conn., recommends Ayer's Pills as the best of all remedies for "Intermittent Fevers."

Dr. I. E. Fowler, of Bridgeport, Conn., says: "Ayer's Pills are highly and universally spoken of by the people about here. I make daily use of them in my practice."

Dr. Mayhew, of New Bedford, Mass., says: "Having prescribed many thousands of Ayer's Pills, in my practice, I can unhesitatingly pronounce them the best cathartic in use."

The Massachusetts State Assayer, Dr. A. A. Hayes, certifies: "I have made a careful analysis of Ayer's Pills. They contain the active principles of well-known drugs, isolated from inert matter, which plan is, chemically speaking, of great importance to their usefulness. It insures activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. Ayer's Pills contain no metallic or mineral substance, but the virtues of vegetable remedies in skillful combination."

Daniel W. Shea of Manchester has been fined $50 and costs, and sent to jail for six months, for selling liquor. He was one of the men recently brought up under the "nuisance act," and let off on payment of costs and signing a paper agreeing to go out of the business. He went straight back from the court and reopened his bar.

A drummer named H. G. Spofford was assaulted and robbed in Manchester on the night of May 18th, by three unknown thieves, who got a gold watch and a small sum of money.

As the west-bound Boston express went on the drawbridge at South Norwalk, Conn., May 18th, the rails spread, and the locomotive and five cars ran the length of the bridge on the ties. The locomotive stopped within six inches of the edge of the bridge rails. The escape from a terrible disaster was miraculous. The ties on the bridge were destroyed. It was at this bridge that a train went through the open draw thirty-five years ago, when forty-seven people lost their lives. The drawtender who was on duty at the time of the disaster still tends the draw.

COPARTNERSHIP NOTICE.

WE, the undersigned, have this day formed a

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Combines, in a proportion peculiar to itself, the active medicinal properties of the best blood-purifying and strengthening remedies of the vegetable kingdom. It will positively cure—when in the power of medicine—Spring Debility, Headache, Dyspepsia, Catarrh, Salt Rheum, Scrofula, and all Diseases caused by a low state of the blood.

"I suffered three years with blood poison. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and think I am cured." MRS. M. J. DAVIS, Brockport, N. Y.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla beats all others, and is worth its weight in gold." I. BARRINGTON, 130 Bank Street, New York City.

Is so vastly superior to any other sarsaparilla or blood purifier, that one has well said: "Its health-giving effects upon the blood and entire human organism, are as much more positive than the remedies of a quarter or a century ago, as the steam-power of to-day is in advance of the slow and laborious drudgery of years ago."

"While suffering from a severe bilious attack in March, 1883, a friend in Peoria, Ill., recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla. I tried the remedy, and was permanently cured." J. A. SHEPARD, travelling agent for Devoe & Co., Fulton Street, New York City.

Purifies the Blood

"I tried a dozen articles to cleanse my blood, but never found anything that did me any good till I began using Hood's Sarsaparilla." W. H. PEER, Rochester, N. Y.

"My wife was troubled with dizziness and constipation, and her blood has been in a bad order—in fact she has been all run down. Hood's Sarsaparilla is doing her a wonderful amount of good." F. M. BALDWIN, druggist, Blanchester, Ohio.

"I was for five years a sufferer with boils, all run down, and was at one time obliged to give up work. Before taking all of two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, was entirely cured." R. M. LANE, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. Took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

OFFICIAL NOTICE!

— OF —

The Atkinson House Furnishing Co.

— FROM THE —

HEADQUARTERS AT PORTLAND, MAINE,

To those who are contemplating the purchase of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

GREETING:

On and after June 1st we shall STOP PREPAYING the FREIGHT on GOODS SOLD by us, and we respectfully request that those who have dealt with us, and who have been BENEFITED by the PAYMENT OF THIS FREIGHT which in itself in the past three years has amounted to some

30,000 DOLLARS,

Will order what GOODS they require for this SPRING, from us this month, and please order as early as possible. And to those who intend buying

Silver-ware, Window Shades, Drapery, Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Stoves and Ranges, Feathers, Feather Pillows, Spreads, Blankers, Chamber Sets, Parlor Suits, Carpets, Lounges, Easy Chairs, Mattresses, Springs,

And anything else in HOUSE FURNISHING, can be BENEFITED to the extent of the freight to their depot, by buying from us this month. We have always PREPAID THIS FREIGHT FROM OUR OWN PROFITS, as we have invariably made the price on the

Furniture, Carpets,

Etc., lower than could be bought for elsewhere. There has always been a great advantage derived by our prepayment of the freight because we in every instance GUARANTEE the SAFE DELIVERY of the goods, and if there has ever been a fight to make with the railroad, we have done it, or in other words if you have received a

CHAMBER SET, PARLOR SUIT, Chair, or Range,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

That was damaged by the railroad, we have replaced it with another piece, and taken our chances to get the breakage from the road. There are items worthy of our close consideration, and especially at this time of year, be wise and order during this month,

And Save Yourself the Freight from Portland to your Depot, no matter where it is located in the State of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

We believe we are the only HOUSE FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT IN NEW ENGLAND WHO HAVE ADHERED STRICTLY TO THIS PLAN OF PREPAYING THE FREIGHT ON EVERYTHING SHIPPED BY US. We mean by this that while some other houses have shipped the goods, and allowed you to pay freight and afterwards send them a bill and then dicker on it for some time, We have invariably paid out the cash before the article left our freight sheds at Portland. And now notwithstanding the fact that we expect to lose a great deal of business by this this year there seems to be no other way to convince some people of the difference between OUR PAYING THE FREIGHT before the articles leave here, AND OUR CUSTOMERS PAYING THE FREIGHT after the articles get to the depot, and then having to write backwards and forwards over the matter. We wish to deal with perfect fairness and frankness in this matter, consequently we give you another month to make your selection, and to fill orders that are already placed. Now if you want a

KITCHEN RANGE, or a CHAMBER SET, or PARLOR SUIT, or CARPETS, WINDOW SHADES, DRAPERY CURTAINS,

Or anything else in the matter of

HOUSE FURNISHINGS,

Kindly come and see us at once, or if you can not come, please write us for Catalogues and Descriptions of these Goods, and we will do our very best to please you in every one. Remember we carry COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHINGS. There is scarcely a thing that you require for your homes that we do not keep, and we sell the same and shall continue to sell the same for cash, or a quarter cash, and the balance by the week or month. This notice applies TO ALL OUR STORES, and we have written to each of our MANAGERS to this effect, consequently there will be no more freight prepaid from our Bangor Store, Rockland Store, Auburn Store, Bar Harbor Store, Biddeford Store, nor from the Headquarters at Portland, after the 31st day of May, 1888.

Kindly get your orders in before June 1st, if you wish to save this freight.

Respectfully, the Public's Ob't Servants,

THE ATKINSON HOUSE FURNISHING CO.,

THOSE TIN BOXES.

Our courteous and obliging postmaster seems to have been induced to sign a circular recommending residents to affix to their door posts a most repulsive-looking tin box for the reception of mail matter, delivered by carriers. Compared with the neat inside box, into which can be slipped, through a little aperture in the door, mail matter which in cold or stormy weather can be seen and received with no trouble to the householder, this monstrosity is inconvenient, unsightly and troublesome. While we have no objection to the postmasters under this administration endorsing the Mills tariff bill—or any similar pet measure of the administration, we think the people ought to object to officials countenancing such an abortion as this box outside the door. If a consideration is paid for such bad taste it should be subject of investigation by the proper authorities. If the postal employes have been gratuitously induced to boom such an unsightly and inconvenient excrescence they should be informed of the impropriety of such conduct, and told to go and sin no more. STAMP.

KITTERY REPUBLICAN CAUCUS.

At the republican caucus held in Trefethen hall, Kittery, on Friday evening, the following delegates to the state convention at Portland on June 12th were chosen: Dr. M. F. Wentworth, Robert Briard, D. M. Shapleigh, C. H. Hobbs, J. W. Brooks, C. L. Favor and F. H. Bond.

It was voted to meet on Friday evening, June 2d, to organize a republican club. All signers of the call and every republican in town are invited to be present. All who intend supporting the republican ticket will be made welcome.

BASE BALL.

The game between the Nashuas and Portsmouths on the South street grounds, announced for Saturday afternoon, did not take place, owing to the rain. Had the weather been favorable there would have been a large attendance, the work of the Portsmouth club up to date having been very pleasing to the local supporters of the game, and giving assurance of genuine sport during the season, while the Nashuas as yet have no defeat scored against them.

The Portsmouths made one bite at the Rochesters yesterday and downed them. The score at the end of the seventh inning was fifteen to four in favor of the brewers. The game came off in Portsmouth, and the ground was in terrible condition. The fielders had to wear rubber boots and life preservers, the water was so deep, and they should have been furnished long-handled scoop-nets in addition. It must have rained down in Portsmouth more or less this spring.—Dover Times.

NOTICE TO PENSION CLAIMANTS.

Memorial day and also the Fourth of July occur this year on Wednesday, and Wednesday is the day designated by the pension bureau for the meeting of boards to examine claimants for pensions. In order that claimants may not suffer delay in the prosecution of their claims, the commissioner of pensions has directed all boards of pension surgeons to meet on the Tuesdays next preceding each of the days above named. Claimants for pensions will govern themselves accordingly.

POLICE COURT—BATCHELDER J.

SATURDAY, May 19th.

Charles Gallagher, drunk, fine $3, costs $6.90; paid.

John W. Ayers and Peter Sweeney, for drunkenness, were each assessed $9.90, fine and costs, and both sent to Brentwood for not paying.

ed, the evidence showing the wife to have been the aggressor while drunk.

Joseph Seadler, assault on Philip Rousheimer, (both United States marines, stationed at the navy yard,) was fined $3, costs $7.67; paid. The plaintiff chipped in half of the assessment.

ANOTHER "NUISANCE" RAID.

The saloons of Dandy Amazeen, John Boyle, Napolean Gilbert, Mrs. Roach and Mrs. Ranoke in Salmon Falls were raided on Saturday forenoon. It was announced that all the parties named would be taken before the court on charges of being common sellers and keeping liquor nuisances, and unless they would sign the "nuisance" agreement and go out of the business would be fined $160 each, and sent to jail for six months.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Joseph L. Martin, of Dennett street, is visiting friends in Boston.

Passed Asst. Engr. John A. Tobin is ordered to the Swatara.

Mr. Arthur Rand, of Boston, was in this city Sunday on a visit to his parents, John S. Rand and wife.

Ensign Edward E. Capehart is detached from the naval academy, and ordered to the U. S. S. Constellation.

Mrs. A. D. Ordway of Battle Creek, Michigan, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Walter S. Gray of Hanover street.

Naval Constructor Samuel H. Pook is detached from the New York navy yard, June 30th, and placed on waiting orders.

Messrs. Ralph Jones and Henry H. Ham, Jr., of Boston, and Walter H. Page of Lynn, passed Sunday with friends in this city.

Mr. John H. Hutchinson arrived home on Friday evening of last week from a visit of several days to his son at Dartmouth college.

Mr. Damrell, of the "Old Corner bookstore," Boston, was in this city on Sunday on a visit to Mr. John Laighton of Richards avenue.

Mr. Benjamin Philbrick of Kittery, who has been absent about three years, on a cruise in the U. S. S. Omaha, on the Asiatic station, arrived home last week.

Mr. Charles V. Carter, formerly steward at the Wentworth and Rockingham hotels, who has been in Pasadena, Cal., during the past winter, as steward in the famous Raymond hotel of that place, is in this city on a vacation, prior to assuming the duties of steward in the Pemigewasset house at Plymouth this summer.

MARITIME NOTES.

The brick schooners Satellite, Lillie and Sadie A. Kimball, from the up-river brickyards with cargoes for Boston, arrived at that port on the 19th inst.

Among the arrivals at this port on Saturday were the steamer Harrisburg, from Philadelphia with 1662 tons of coal, the schooner A. K. Woodward, from Hoboken with 181 tons, and the schooner Helen Thompson, from Rondout with 1350 barrels of cement, all to J. Albert Walker.

The floating stage of the steamboat landing at Appledore island, which has been on the railway at Kittery to have the bottom thoroughly examined, was last week in the steamer dock at the north end receiving some necessary repairs to the upper works, preparatory to being towed to the Shoals to be moored for the season's work.

The practice-ship Constellation is to be towed to Annapolis from this station by the tug Leyden. The latter vessel will be under command of Lieut. Comdr. Edward T. Strong, with Boatswain Hill, Boatswain McCaffery, Gunner Wilson and Carpenter Hanscom as watch officers; Asst. Engr. Carter will have charge of the engineering department, with a detail from the department of steam engineering at the navy yard, reenforced by men shipped in this city for the trip, to run the fires and engines. It is expected that the Leyden, after taking the Constellation to Annapolis, will tow the Pensacola around to this port from New York.

The National Mechanics & Traders' bank is now paying a semi-annual dividend of three and one-half per cent.

L. V. Newell & Co., portrait and landscape photographers of this city, have leased for a few weeks the photographic studio in Kennebunk formerly occupied by C. S. Gurney, and will reopen the same for two days in each week, Wednesday and Thursday, until further notice, commencing this week.

Salvation Oil, the greatest cure on earth for pains, as an anodyne has no equal in the market. It is without doubt the best liniment. Price twenty-five cents a bottle.

The beer pitcher will always beat the base ball pitcher.

The peculiar purifying and building up powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla make it the very best medicine to take at this season.

It is no wonder that the beer-loving Germans are always ready for Meyerbeer.

PLEASE MEND YOUR WAYS.

Mr. Editor: A great amount of work is being done and a large amount of money expended on Sagamore road, in operations which will unquestionably result in a great improvement of that road. Other costly but satisfactory improvements were made on the same road last year, and when the city of Portsmouth is through with the whole business—it may not be through even when the present improvements are completed—the road will be a fine one, and a credit to the city. But in the meantime we poor outsiders have to use Lafayette road as a means for reaching the city; and that road is, in bad weather, in a dangerous and almost impassable condition. A stranger driving over it, bumping over the gullies and circumnavigating the rivers and lakes, and vast deposits of mud, would suppose that no work had been done on the road since Lafayette passed over it in the year 1825 or thereabouts. True, Lafayette road is not in the direct line between the railroad depôts and the Wentworth house; but it is an important thoroughfare, and while the city is expending many thousands of dollars every year on Sagamore road it ought not to be impossible to get fifty cents once in a while for a load of gravel to fill up a dangerous hole in Lafayette road. If that work ought to be done, this ought not to be left undone. RYE ROAD.

THE CHERRY BLOSSOMS.

The backwardness of this season can be judged somewhat from the following record of the first appearance of cherry blossoms on the same tree in a garden in this city for the past few years:

In 1879, May 13th; 1880, May 11th; 1881, May 10th; 1882, May 25th; 1883, May 18th; 1884, May 16th; 1885, May 15th; 1886, May 16th; 1887, May 10th; 1888, May 21st.

It will be seen by this statement that this season, although nearly two weeks later than last year, is not quite as backward as was 1882, so far as the blossoming of cherry trees is concerned.

Sunday last, May 20th, was Whitsunday.

Ayers & Locke have a full line of tinsel braids and sets at popular prices.

There was a good show of northern lights on Sunday evening from nine o'clock till after midnight.

Ayers & Locke have ladies' Jersey vests from 25 cents upward; also lisle and silk ditto, equally good values.

The schooner J. & L. Bryan, from Philadelphia with coal to E. F. Sise & Co., arrived at this port on Saturday.

The churches were more numerously attended on Whitsunday than for several previous Sabbaths. The fine weather no doubt had something to do with the extra turn out.

Have you seen that lot of Challi Dress Goods at 10 cts. per yard? If not, go to Lewis E. Staples' dry goods store, No. 7 Market street.

Many pedestrians and scores of carriages went down Sagamore road on Sunday; the road improvements and new bridge were the attraction.

Ayers & Locke have a full line of gloves and hosiery; excellent values in black and colored taffeta gloves at 25 cents. Also ladies' fast-black silk-finish hosiery at 25 cents per pair.

New Dress Goods at Ayers & Locke's; 500 yards pin-head dress goods, manufactured to retail for 50 cents, which they have recently purchased and will place on their counters at the extremely low price of 25 cents per yard. It is safe to say that they are the best value in a dress fabric ever shown in Portsmouth.
